For breeding, increasing and confirming our hope of eternal bliss by all h.

Upon all the Considerations, it must needs be the indispensible Duty of all that pretend to true Piety and Christianity: 1 To know and understand the Holy Scriptures i sufficiently. 2. To prize and esteem them k highly. 3. To love them and delight in them l exceedingly. 4. To study and search them (which is a noble imployment) accurately m. 5. To believe them stedfastly n. 6. To apply them to their own particular Cases and Conditions impartially o. 7. To obey and practise them sincerely, entirely, and continually p.

To the furtherance of Persons well-affected herein, I have (according to the poverty of my Talent) drawn up A Compendious Analytical Exposition of every Book of the Holy Scriptures, (which from my youth up hitherto have been my most endeared delights:) And have entituled it, THE KEY OF THE BIBLE, because it tends to unlock and open the Richest Treasury of the Holy Scriptures, to such as desire to be well acquainted with the whole Counsel of God q.

AN INTRODUCTORY

ADVERTISEMENT TO THE READER.

Containing 1. The Worth of Scripture-knowledge. 2. Some General Directions or Rules for the Right Understanding the Holy Scriptures: And how this present Treatise is to be Improved most advantageously to that end.

CHAP. I.

The Scope of this Key of the BIBLE.

THE Holy Scriptures are a the lively Oracles of the living God, unfolding the secrets of his Will to man; The Epistle of Jesus Christ, Revealing from Heaven the saving mysteries of his sweetest love unto his Church: and the Blessed Charter of the Saints, which no Tract of time shall reverse; whereby they hold of God all their present enjoyments, in the life that now is, and all their future hopes of that life which is to come. b Chrysostome prefers Scripture before Angels; and saith, c Get ye Bibles, the medicines of the soul. d Job esteemed them more than his necessary food. Paul delighted therein touching the inward man. David preferred them before e the honey and the honey-combe; before f great spoil, g thousands of gold and silver, h all riches, and therefore accounted them his i heritage, k his Counsellors, his meditations, &c. Yea, professeth l his heart did break for longing to Gods judgements at all times. And every godly and truly blessed man should make the Scripture, his m delight, and meditate therein night and day.

Notwithstanding how many gracious souls are there, whose delight it is, to repair often to this Sanctuary of the Scriptures, (as n Augustine stiles them) but cannot tell what they see there of the Lord, and of his glory; who frequently read in this blessed Book, but like the q Ethiopian Eunuch, understand not, or not to purpose, what they read? And this comes to pass, 1. Partly, through the sublimity of those supernatural and heavenly mysteries therein revealed whereby r some things are hard to be understood. 2. Partly, through the obscure and mysterious manner of Scriptures revealing many things, whereby the Lord would exercise the sharpest and deepest apprehensions of men. 3. Partly through the defect of some familiar Manu-duction into the whole Bible, and the several Books of Old and New Testament therein contained, which might like a Clue of thread, conduct into these Sacred Treasuries, and like a Key unlock this Cabinet of Christs richest Jewels. Whereupon after much deliberation how this might be best effected, apprehending that some brief and solid Discovery of the 1 Order, 2 Names, 3 Times, 4 Penmen, 5 Occasion, 6 Scope, And 7 Principal Parts of the Books in the Bible would much conduce to ripen Christians in Bible-knowledge, spreading before their eyes in A general view, the Current of the whole Scripture: I entred upon this Task, and drew up this Treatise at first more compendiously in order to all these seven several ends. But in the Second Edition more fully and largely, in all the forementioned * particulars, especially in the Principal parts of the Books; Adding (by way of Appendix to several Books) the Sacred Songs, dispersed here and there up and down the Old and New Testament: And now at last in this third Edition, I have added the whole Book of Psalms, Analytically Explained, and Metrically Translated, and that immediately out of the Hebrew Original. And I doubt not but the judicious Reader will reap much satisfaction in, and advantage by this Edition.

By way of Preface, be pleased to pause a little with me upon the serious consideration of 1. The great worth of Scripture-knowledge. 2. The ready way how to attain to it. That will quicken Christians to Scripture-study. This will help them to Scripture-understanding.

CHAP. II.

The Great Worth of Scripture-knowledge.

SCripture-knowledge is of great worth and consequence to every Christian. Or, The Holy Scriptures are most worthy of all Christians constant study, and utmost endeavours to understand them. For,

* See those ends of uses of this Treatise explained afterwards in Rule 6. And how to improve this Treatise most profitably.

I. The Author inditing and judging the Holy Scriptures, is God blessed for ever. Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; f All Scripture is divinely inspired. Hence called the t Oracles of God; u The Word of Christ. And the x Saying of the Holy Ghost; y For the Prophecy came not at any time by the Will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. We are apt to value, desire to study and understand the Books of godly, learned, and judicious mens making: How much more should we endeavour to the utmost to understand the Scriptures, which are the only Books of Gods making? Mens Writings are too much mingled with vanity, ignorance, folly, mistakes, imperfections, infirmities and corruptions, savouring much of a carnal spirit, when most spiritual: But Gods Word is satisfactorily full, without all vanity; most wise, z faithfull and true, without all falshood or folly; Compleatly a perfect, beyond all imperfection; b most pure, and c exceedingly refined; without all corruption, and without all carnal mixtures, wholly spiritual, sweetly resembling that most spiritual Spirit that did indite them.

II. The Amanuenses or Penmen of the Holy Ghost for the Scriptures, were not contemptible or ordinary, but incomparable and extraordinary persons. As Moses the d meekest man on earth, the peculiar Favourite of God, with whom c God talked face to face; the f None-such of all the Prophets in Israel. Samuel, g that mighty man in prayer. David the King, that h man after Gods own heart. King Solomon, that i wisest of all the Kings, whom God honoured with the k building of the Temple. Daniel, in whom was found l an excellent spirit, and great dexterity in m expounding secrets and mysteries, John n the Disciple whom Jesus loved above all the rest, o who leaned on Jesus breast. Paul p who was caught up into the third Heavens, whose writings (saith q Chrysostom) like a wall of Adamant, compass about, or surround all the Churches. In a word, r all of them holy men of God, moved by the Holy Ghost. These being the Penmen, how incomparable and extraordinary must their Writings needs be? who would not study them, and earnestly pry into them?

III. The matter of the Scriptures is most inviting, able to allure the hearts of men and Angels to the study of them, yea to transport and ravish their spirits in the understanding of them. Herein are revealed most profound and inexplicable mysteries, The Nature of the blessed GOD, simple, without composition; s All-sufficient, without any external Addition; t Immutable, without all shadow of alteration; u Eternal, x Immense, Incomprehensible, y Omnipresent, and wholly x Infinite, without all limitation, &c. The a Unity of Essence, Toe b Trinity of Persons; The Father not being the Son, nor either of them the Holy Ghost; yet all of them the Holy God. The Secrets of Gods eternal counsels, especially touching the c Electing of his own in Christ, Predestinating them to the Adoption of children, when all others are passed by. The curious Order of the Creation, to bring his purposes to pass. The Permission of mans fall from the Pinacle of his natural integrity, that thereby he might take occasion to glorifie the height of justice and mercy in raising him up by Christ to a far higher pitch of supernatural felicity. The person and office of Jesus Christ the Mediatour, and both altogether d wonderfull, e God and man united in one person, to unite God and man in one Covenant; The Son of God became the Son of man, to make the sons of men sons of God. A King, to subdue all our enemies to us, and us to himself. A Prophet, to unveile the bosome-secrets of his Father unto us. A Priest, offering up himself, upon himself, by himself; offering up himself, the Sacrifice, as man; upon himself, the Altar, as God, by himself, the Priest, as God-man. Christ was humbled, and thereby we exalted, Christ wounded, we healed; Christ accursed, we blessed; Christ slain, and we live; and Christ conquered, that so we might be more than Conquerors through Christ that loves us. What shall I say? In Scripture is revealed, how Enemies are reconciled. Sinners justified, Aliens adopted, Beggars made Heirs and co-heirs with Christ, and how dust and ashes shall be glorified for evermore.

Here are unfolded the f Covenant of grace, wholly made up of heavenly Cordials. The g Promises of the life that now is, and that which is to come, h exceeding great and precious. The i Comforts of God, able to counterpoise the deepest disconsolations. And k Commands, surpassing all the Laws in the World, in holiness, justice, and goodness.

Here are discovered, The miseries of all that are in the first Adam, The felicities of all that are in the second Adam; and the way how poor souls are translated from those miseries, to these felicities.

Here you shall find 1. God descending to man, In preparing all spiritual priviledges for sinners in Jesus Christ our Saviour, In tendring richest Grace by Covenant-Promises and Ordinances, and In applying these preparations and tenders actually to the soul by the Spirit. 2. Man ascending unto God, by the Spiritualizing of his Nature, Acting of his Faith, Aspiring of his desires, Fervency of his Prayers, and Holy Tendency of his conversation, yea, both God and man sweetly closing together in a most intimate Communion in Jesus Christ, which is as another Paradise, and Heaven on Earth.

In a word, what is there not in Holy Scriptures? Are we poor? Here's a Treasury of riches. Are we sick? Here's a Shop of Soul-Medicines. Are we fainting? Here's a Cabinet of Cordials. Are we Christless? Here's the Star that leads to Christ. Are we Christians? Here's the bands that keep in Christ. Are we afflicted? Here's our solace. Are we persecuted? Here's our Protection. Are we deserted? Here's our Recovery. Are we tempted? Here's m our sword and victory. Are we young? Here's our beauty. Are we old? Here's our wisdom. While we live, here's the Rule of our Conversation; when we dye, here's the hope of our Glorification. So that I may say with Tertullian; n I adore the fullness of the Scripture. Oh blessed Scriptures! Who can know them, and not love them? Who can love them, and not delight to meditate in them night and day? Who can meditate in them, and not desire to love them, love to desire them, and both desire and love to understand them? This is the Book of books; (as David said of Goliahs Sword) there's none like that.

Said one,

Ex aliis palea viles, hinc grana leguntur
Aurea: tu paleas linquito, grana lege.

I may English it,

Mens books with worthless chaff are stor'd,
Gods Scriptures golden grains afford.
Reject the chaff; and spend thy pains
In gleaning up these Golden grains.

Take away our Papers (said p Augustine) and bring amongst us the Book of God; hear Christ saying, hear Truth speaking, &c. I may close up this Paragraph with his words, who thus emphatically expresseth himself, * The sacred Scripture is the Book of life, whose Original is eternal, whose essence is incorporeal, whose knowledge is life, whose writing is indelible, whose inspect is desireable, whose Doctrine is easie, whose knowledge is sweet, whose depth is unsearchable, whose words are innumerable; and onely one word All.

Enarrat. in Psal. 57. * Sacra Scriptura est liber vitæ cujus origo æterna, cujus incorporalis essentia, cujus cognitio Vita, cujus Scriptura indelebilis, cujus inspectus desiderabilis cujus, doctrina facilis, cujus scientia dulcis, cujus profunditas inscrutabilis, cujus verba innumerabilia; & unum tantum verbum, Omnia. IV. The form of the Scripture, both Inward and Outward, if well considered, commends all pollible endeavours and industry for the understanding thereof.

1. The Inward form, is, That there are conformity of the things laid down in Scripture, to that infallible and eternal truth of God our understanding, that indited and revealed them. Writings compiled by men carry in them a conformity to the idea in their understanding, which being subject to ignorance, error and corruption, through the imperfection that is in them, must needs produce writings fundably imperfect, ignorant, erroneous and corrupt: but no such thing can be incident unto the Scriptures, which are conform to the Divine understanding of q the only wise God, which is r infinite, s unsearchable, and wholly admirable, which is all t Light without any darkness at all; all u Truth, without the least error; All perfect, without any shadow of imperfection; all pure, without any colour of Corruption. So that the Scriptures of themselves cannot lead us unto errour, but the more we truly understand them the more our minds shall be enriched with truth, and elevated to a conformity to the supream truth of God.

2. The Outward form of the Scriptures, or manner how things are therein revealed, is not onely plain and easie, not onely dark or difficile, but rather x mixt of both; some things being facile, y some things being hard to be understood; some places are such shallows, wherein Lambs need not be afraid to wade, some again such deeps as Elephants may be enforced to swim. z By plainness God nourisheth the weakest, by obscureness he exerciseth the acutest, (As Augustine hath intimated) That facility occation not our contempt of Scripture, there are interwoven some difficulties; that difficulties deterre not from the study of Scripture, there are intermingled some facilities. For as a Augustine notes, If all were shut up, how should obscure things be revealed? If all things were hid, whence should the soul have ability to knock for the opening of things shut up? Is therefore our Capacity weaker? Here's relief for our infirmity: Is our apprehension deeper? Here's work enough for the sharpest perspicacity. So that the most ignorant need not be afraid, the most intelligent need not be ashamed of endeavours after Scripture-understanding.

V. The end is manifold and excellent, for which God committed his word to writing, and that writing to us. viz. b For Doctrine, that Faith and truth may be asserted; For reproof or conviction, that error may be confuted: As Athanasius said, Heretick's are to be stoned with Scripture c Arguments; For correction of manners enormous or offensive; For instruction in the paths of righteousness; and for d Consolation that drooping dejected distressed spirits may not be overwhelmed.

This sweet Consolatory vertue, and Soul-supporting property of the Scriptures is very evident, and demonstrated by the happy experience and sense of comfort which divers precious servants of the Lord have found in the Holy Scriptures in their dolours, anxieties and troubles of consciences, deepest afflictions and straights, death it self.

e Thy Word is very pure, therefore thy servant loveth it. e Ps.119, 140.

Thy testimonies are my delight and my counsellors, yea thy law is my delight. f Ps.119, 24.

Paul comforting the Thessalonians in the death of their Christian friends, writes to them of the future Resurrection, Judgement and glory of the Saints and concludes, g wherefore comfort one another with these words. g 1 Thes. 4. 18.

And the love-sick Church of Christ her self being ready to fall into a spiritual swoon, through the sense of her own infirmities, and Christ's estrangements from her, cries to the Ministers and her other friends, h O stay me with flagons, and comfort me with Apples, for I am sick of love! Wine and Apples are pleasant refreshing Cordials to feeble fainting spirits: so the precious Promises and Gospel-doctrines of Christ are to his love-wounded souls. h Cant. 2. 5

Augustine, and his dear companion Alipius, how were they in their great Soul-afflictions, comforted and raised up with two sentences of Scripture. Augustine deeply laying to heart all his misery, such a mighty storm arose in his soul, as brought a shower of tears; he rose from Alipius, where they sate together, and withdrew from him a good distance, that he might more freely and fully pour out himself before God. I laid me down (saith Augustine) under i a certain fig-tree, I know not how, and I opened sluce to my tears, and the floods of mine eyes burst out, thy acceptable sacrifice. And not in these words, but in this sense, I spake many things to thee. k But thou, O Lord, how long? How long, wilt thou be angry for ever? O l remember not our former iniquities! For I felt my self held by them, and I cast forth miserable expressions. How long, how long? To morrow, and to morrow! Why not now? why not this hour an end of my filthiness? m These things I spake, and wept in the bitter contrition of mine heart. And behold I heard a voice (as of a boy or girle, I know not whether) from a neighbouring house, saying with singing, and oft repeating, n TAKE UP AND READ, TAKE UP AND READ. And presently with changed countenance I intentively began to think, whether Boyes in playing were wont to sing any such thing; nor could I remember that I ever heard it. The violence of my tears being repressed, I rose up; interpreting nothing else to be divinely commanded me, than that I should open the book, and read what chapter I first found. For I heard of Antonius, that by reading of the Gospel which he happily light upon, he was admonished, as if what he had read had been spoken to him; Go and sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven, and come follow me: And that by this Oracle he was presently converted to thee. Therefore being thus incited, I returned to the same place where Alipius sate; for there I had laid the Apostles book, when I thence arose. I snatch it up, opened, and silently read that Chapter on which mine eyes were first cast. o Not in rioting and drunkenness; not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying, But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof. Nor would I read further, nor was there need. For presently with the close of this Sentence, as it were with the light of security infused into mine heart, all my darksom doubtings fled away. Then either putting my finger in the place, or what other sign I know not, I shut the Book, and with a cheerfull countenance I told it to Alipius. But what was done in him self, which I knew not, he thus declared: He asks to see what I read, I shewed it; and he attended further than I read, I not knowing what followed. But it followed, p him that is weak in the faith receive ye, which he applyed to himself, and opened unto me. But by this admonition he was confirmed, and without all turbulent delay was conjoined in a good pleasure and purpose, most congruous to his manners, wherein he long ago excelled me. Thereupon we go in to my mother, tell her, ber, she rejoyceth; we declare how it was done, she exults and triumphs; and blesseth thee, who art able to do above all that we are able to ask or think, because she saw that thou hadst granted her far more concerning me, than she was wont with her miserable and lamentable groans to ask of thee. Thus far Augustine. Who would not now delight to read, and understand the Scriptures, whereby Augustine and Alipius were thus converted and comforted.

Father Latimer, standing at the stake ready to shed his hearts blood for the truth, lifting up his eyes to heaven, with an amiable and chearful countenance, comforted himself with that Scripture; q Faithful is God, who will not suffer us to be tempted above what we are able, 1 Cor. 10. 13.

Mr. Midgeley Minister at Ratchdale in Lancashire; oppressed with Melancholy and sad temptations to self-murther, and going down to the water-side to drown himself (as is credibly reported) having the New Testament in his pocket, it came into his thoughts, before he flung himself in, to read a little in his Testament, and opening it, happily first cast his eye upon that cordial Promise, Come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest, &c. Matth. 11. 28, 29. Whereupon he was so supported, that he inferred; Sayst thou so? then I will not drown my self, &c.

Mrs. Kath. Brettergh of Bretterghoult in Lancashire (who was wont to task her self to t read of the Scripture eight Chapters every day at least) in her sickness before her death fell into great distress of soul, through apprehensions of the severity of Gods Justice, the greatnesse of her sins, want of faith, love to God, &c. Sometimes she would cast her Bible from her, and say, u It was indeed the Book of life; but she had read the same unprofitably, and therefore feared it was become to her the Book of death. Sometime she would say, Her sins had made her x A Prey to Satan, a Spectacle to the World, a disgrace to Religion, and a shame to her husband, kindred and all true Christians: And here she would weep bitterly. She wished she had never been born, or that she had been any other creature rather than a woman. She cried out oftentimes, Woe, woe, woe, &c. a weak, a woful, a wretched, a forsaken woman: and such like pitiful complaints against her self, with tears continually trickling down her cheeks.

But at last she was before her death restored to joyes and comforts unspeakable by means of the Scriptures. y Oh (said she) my soul hath been compassed about with terrors of death, fear within, and fear without; the sorrows of hell were upon me, knots and knors were upon my soul, (which twice or thrice she repeated) and a roaring wilderness of woe was within me: but blessed, blessed, blessed, be the Lord my God, who hath not left me comfortless, &c. —— z One time she took her Bible in her hand, and joyfully kissing it, and looking up towards Heaven, she said, O Lord, it is good for me that I have been afflicted, that I might learn thy Statutes. The law of thy mouth is better to me than thousands of gold and silver, Ps. 119. 71, 72. —— a She desired her husband to read some part of Scripture. He read the 17. of John, as he read vers. 9. I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine, she interrupted him, saying. O Lord Jesus, dost thou pray for me? O blessed and sweet Saviour, how wonderful how wonderful! how wonderful are thy mercies! Read on (said she) the blessedst reading that ever I heard, the comfort whereof doth sweeten my soul —— When he came to ver. 24. Father, I will that they whom thou hast given me, be with me, &c. Stay (said she) and let me meditate on the goodness of the Lord; for now I perceive and feel the countenance of Christ my Redeemer is turned towards me, and the bright shining beams of his mercy are spread over me: Oh happy am I that ever I was born to see this blessed day! Praise, praise, oh praise the Lord for his mercies, for he hath brought me out of darkenesse and the shadow of death, &c.—O my sweet Saviour shal I be one with thee, as thou art one with thy Father? And wilt thou glorifie me with that glory which thou hadst with the Father before the World was? And dost thou so love me (which am but dust and ashes) to make me Partaker of glory with Christ? What am I poor wretch, that thou art so mindfull of me? Oh how wonderful, how wonderful, how wonderfull, is thy love, &c. —— b To a Christian friend that came in to see her, wondering at her joyes, she said; O the joyes! the joyes! the joyes that I feel in my soul! they be wonderful! they be wonderful! they be wonderful! and thus she continued ravisht in spirit, and triumphing in Gods praises till her last. c At last with a sweet countenance and stil voice she said, My warfare is accomplished, and mine iniquities are pardoned. Lord whom have I in Heaven but thee, and I have none on earth but thee. My flesh faileth, and my heart also, but God is the strength of mine heart, and my portion for ever. He that preserveth Jacob, and defendeth his Israel, he is my God, and will guide me unto death. Guide me O Lord my God, and suffer me not to faint, but keep my soul in safety. And with that she presently fell asleep in the Lord.

Mr. John Holland B. D. a memorable Saint, and rarely qualified Preacher, how did he comfort himself with the holy Scriptures, in the valley of the shadow of death? The day before he died, it pleased him, as formerly often, so then more eagerly, to call for the holy Bible, with these very words d Come, O come; Death approacheth, let us gather some flowers to comfort this hour. And turning with his own hands to the eight chap. of Pauls Epistle to the Romans, he gave me the book (saith Mr. William Leigh, Pastor of Standish) and bad me read: At the end of every verse he made a Selah, or pause; and gave the sence in such sort and feeling, as was much (we saw) to his own comfort, but more to our joy and wonder. —— Having thus continued his meditation and Exposition for the space of two hours or more, on the sudden he said; O stay your reading what brightness is this I see? Have you light up any Candles? To which I answered, no: it is the Sunshine; for it was about five a clock in a clear Summers Evening. Sun-shine (saith he) nay my Saviours shine: Now farewell World, welcom Heaven; The day-star from on high hath visited mine heart. O speak it when I am gone, and preach at my Funeral: God dealeth familiarly with man, I feel his mercy, I see his majesty; whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell, God he knoweth; but I see things that are unutterable. So ravished in spirit, he roamed towards Heaven, with a cheerful look, and soft sweet voice; what he said, we could not conceive. At last shrinking down again, he gave a sigh with these words. Ah, yet it will not be! my sins keep me from my God. Thus that evening, twice rising, and twice falling, with the Sun in the morning following, he rose never to fall; when again raising himself, as Jacob did upon his staff, he shut up his life with these blessed words. O what an happy change shall I make! from night, to day; from darkness, to light; from death, to life, from sorrow to solace; from a factious World, to an heavenly being. O my dear brethren, sisters and friends! it pitieth me to leave you behind, yet remember my death when I am gone; and what I now feel, I hope you shall find ere you die, that God doth and will deal familiarly with men. And now thou fiery charet that came down to fetch up Elijah, carry me to my happy hold; and all ye blessed Angels who attended the soul of Lazarus, to bring it up to Heaven: here me, O here me into the bosom of my best beloved. Amen. Come Lord Jesus, Come quickly. And so he fell asleep.

Lazarus

Take all the rarest Writings now in the World; some of them all can but make us a drooping and disconsolate feast from the depths of woe and horrour; some of them can fill the heart true holy full of sweet & peace, some of them all can thus enlarge and encrown the spirit in transports of heavenly joy and ravishments through apprehensions of Gods love and mercy, above grief, above temptation, above sin, above all fear of death, that King of Terrours, but in this blessed Word of God alone. Who would not now labour to understand the Scriptures? Who would not treasure up, and kiss, and embrace, and greedily swallow down these soul-reviving Cordials?

Now then how exceedingly do we frustrate and make void, as to our selves, the chief ends and scope of the LORD in imparting his Holy Scriptures to us, if we study not to understand Scripures! How in Doctrinals, They 1. Assert the Truth. 2. Confute errour; How in Practicals. They 1 Direct in well-doing, 2 Correct for ill-doing; And 3 How they comfort fainting souls in all their saddest perplexities!

VI. How acceptable is our study and understanding of the Scripture unto God! For,

1. He commands us this way to bestow our selves, c Search the Scriptures. f Let the word of Christ indwell in you richly in all wisdom. Not be, but dwell with you: not dwell with you, but dwell in you, yea indwell in you, Greek: Not dwell in you but dwell in you richly: not only dwell in you richly, but in all wisdom.

2. He Commends them that have industriously acquainted themselves with the Scripture. g Timothy, that from a child he had known the Holy Scripture, able to make him wise unto Salvation. h Apollos, That he was an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures. The i Bereans, that they were more noble than those of Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so. And he makes it one Character of the godly blessed man k that His delight is in the Law of the Lord, and therein he meditates day and night.

3. He Condemns the contrary unskilfulness in the Scriptures, as the l infirmity of Babes. Yea as the root of all errour in spirituals; m do ye not erre because ye know not the Scriptures?

Appositely saith Chrysostom to this purpose; n Ignorance of the Scriptures hath brought forth Heresies, hath brought in corruption of life, hath turned all things upside down ——Ignorance of the Scriptures is a very Hell. And elsewhere he saith, o It is the cause of all evils to be ignorant of the Scriptures. p Hierom also to the like purpose; He that knows not the Scriptures, knows not the power of God, and his wisdom. The ignorance of the Scriptures is the ignorance of Christ.

4. In a word, He promises happiness to the right understanding of the Scriptures. q If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them. And sometimes notably rewards them that endeavour to understand them. While the r Ethiopian Eunuch read the Prophet Isaiah, that he might understand it, the Lord sent Philip to instruct him and to convert him; The Eunuch was Baptized, and went on his way rejoycing.

VII. Finally, The true and solid understanding of the Scripture, is the foundation of all possible benefit or advantage by the Scripture. For how should we forsake sin, s deny ungodliness and worldly lusts, and labour to get out of our carnal condition, till by Scripture we be convinced of the sinfulness of sin, and danger of our natural condition? How should we desire Christ earnestly, or accept Christ delightfully, till we understand by the Scripture what want we have of Christ, what worth there is in Christ? Till we understand Scripture Principles, how shall we receive them? Till we understand Scripture-Promises, how shall we believe them? Till we understand Scripture-commands, how shall we obey them? Till we understand Scripture-examples, how should we follow them? And till we understand Scripture-comforts, what supporting sweetness can we expect from them? O therefore labour diligently to understand the Counsels of God, that you may be in more immediate capacity of reaping all spiritual benefits by the word of God. t The understanding of the Scriptures (saith Nicolaus) is the most excellent thing which we have by prayer from the mouth of God. Tertullian (as he saith true and elsewhere) u Let's seek for matter out of the Scripture, to build in our selves a house of salvation.

Certain RULES or DIRECTIONS for Effectual gaining of Scripture-knowledge.

HItherto of the great work of Scripture-Knowledge; Now of the way how to attain it. That Holy Scriptures may be more profitably and clearly understood, certain Rules or Directions are to observed and followed. These Directions might be digested into two Ranks, viz.

I. Some more special and peculiar, more particularly concerning Scholars. As, 1. The competent understanding of the Original Languages, Hebrew, Chaldee, and Greek, wherein the Scriptures were written; whereby (as x Hierome insinuates) all translations are to be examin'd. 2. The prudent use of Nat. Logick, for orderly and methodical resolution of the text, &c. 3. The subservient helps of other Arts, as Rhetorick, Natural Philosophy, &c. without which it is impossible satisfactorily to interpret the Scriptures. For as y Ambrose well observes, Though Penmen of Scripture wrote not according to Art, but according to Grace, which is above all Art (for they wrote what the spirit did Dictate to them) yet they that have written of Art, have found an Art in their writings, &c. 4. The benefit of humane Histories to illustrate and clear the Divine. 5. The conferring of ancient Translations with the Originals, especially the Greek version of the Old-Testament by the LXXII. much followed in the Allegations of the New-Testament; and the Syriack version of the New-Testament. 6. The prudent use of the most Orthodox learned and judicious Commentators. 7. Constant caution, that all Tongues, Arts, Histories, Translations, and Comments be duly ranked in their proper places in a subserviency under, not a Regency or Predominancy over the Holy Scriptures, which are to controule them all. For when Hagar shall once usurp over her Mistress, its high time to cast her out of doors, till she submit her self. Many such things ought to be insisted upon, but that is besides my present intention.

Peruse the Scripture still with an humble self-denying heart. Be not puffed up, or conceited with thine own knowledge, or other perfections: m He that thinks he knows any thing, knows nothing yet as he ought to know. Empty vessels are most receptive; so are self-emptying minds. It is a great help to knowledge, n not to be ignorant of our ignorance: for sense of want spurs on endeavours after enjoyment. The fructifying showers quickly glide away from the lofty hills, but they stay and soak into the low Valleys. God that o resists the proud, yet gives grace to the humble and lowly; And among other graces, the grace of Knowledge and Understanding: For p With the lowly is wisdom. q The meek, (or humble) will he guide in judgement; and the meek will he teach his way. Thus saith Christ, r I thank thee O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, but hast revealed them unto Babes. Whence Becanus s notes, that such as are proud, and attribute to their own wisdom, attain not to the true sense of Scripture. Be therefore clothed with humility in use of Scripture, that true Scripture-Knowledge may increase.

IV. Rule.

Familiarize the Scripture to thy self, by constant and methodical exercise therein. Method and Order, as it is the Mother of memory, so it is a singular friend to a clear understanding. The generallity of the Scripture, hath such a contexture and coherence one part with another, that small insight into it will be gained by reading it confusedly, disorderly; therefore read the whole in Order. Divers have published Directions, how to read over the whole Scripture methodically, once a year, &c. consult them.

But be constant in perusal and studying of the Scriptures; hereby Scripture phrase and sense will become familiar and facile. How hard at first to write, to play on an Instrument, &c. but by multiplying acts, men get habits, and write, play, &c. with facility and dexterity. Use not Scripture only by fits and starts, in some good pangs or moods, &c. but habitually converse with Scripture, trade in them, t meditate therein night and day. u Let the word of Christ (not onely lodge or sojourn in you, but even) dwell in you. Hence those commands of God to his people of old: x This Book of the Law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night —— y These words shall be in thine heart, and thou shalt whet them diligently upon thy children, and shalt talk of them, when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt binde them for a sign upon thy hand, &c.

V. Rule.

Understand Scripture according to the Theological z Analogy, or Certain rule of faith and love. Anomaly, i. e. Irregularity, is some deviation from the rule, or exception against the rule: To this, here, Analogy is opposed. By this Analogy, understand, A certain Epitome of Scriptures, or brief abridgment of Christian Religion collected out of the plain places of Scripture; according to which, other dark and figurative expressions in Scripture are to be explained. This Analogy of faith and love, Paul charges Timothy to hold fast, a saying, Hold fast [ὑποτύπωσιν ὑγιαινόντων λόγων.] i. e. That [Delineation, Draught, Platform, Pattern, or,] forme of sound words, which thou hast heard of me in faith and love, which is in Christ Jesus. Where seems to be intimated, a Systeme, or form of Doctrine, communicated from Paul to Timothy, according to which Timothy was to steere as by a Compass. This form of Doctrine is described here, 1. By the general nature of it, A forme of sound words, A draught or model of wholsome Doctrine. 2. By the principal parts of it, into which it is branched, viz. 1. Faith, 2. Love. Faith Comcomprisheth in order to, All things to be believed, as in the Creed taken out of Scripture. Jura quoad facienda, All things to be done, as in the Decalogue, Lords Prayer, and Sacramental Institutions, which are Scripture; into therefore this whole Body of Divinity is wholly attributed. So the primary foundation upon which the Forme of Sound words is built, viz. Christ Jesus. Compare here with 1 Cor. 3. 11. Eph. 2. 20. So that if in any place of Scripture the words or Letter of the Text be repugnant to the Analogy of Faith and Love, it is not to be understood properly and literally, but improperly and figuratively. As for instance, b This is my body,—This is my blood, &c. This cannot be understood properly, that the bread and wine are Christs body and blood, for that is contrary to the Analogy or rule of faith, which tells us that Christs humane nature is c received into Heaven, and whom the Heavens must contain till the restitution of all things; therefore it is to be understood figuratively, and in a Sacramental sense. The sign being put for the thing signified, by a Metonymie. Some are commanded d To eate Christs flesh,—e to pluck out our right eye, and cut off our right hand, if they offend us. We cannot take any of these literally and properly, for that were against the analogy or rule of love. f Thou shalt not kill; therefore we must seek for a spiritual and improper sense, viz. eating Christs flesh, not carnally with our teeth, but spiritually by faith, i. e. believing in Christ crucified, &c. As also denying all corrupt affections, inclinations or occasions, though as deare and useful, as right hand or right eye unto us. Thus this rule faithfully followed, will clear many hard and intricate passages in Scripture. It is therefore of singular consequence to every one that desires solidly to understand the Scriptures, to be well grounded in the Fundamentals and Principles of Christian Religion, without which like a ship without her sail, a man g shall be carried away with every wind of vain doctrine, perverting or mistaking the Scripture.

VI Rule.

Be well acquainted with the 1 Order, 2 Titles, 3 Times, 4 Penman, 5 Occasion, 6 Scope, and 7 Principal Parts of the books, both of the Old and New Testament. These will much promote the solid and judicious understanding of the whole Bible in a short space. For, 1. Hereby you shall have the very Idea or Character of every Book lively describing the nature and Contents of it before your eyes, as in a Map, before you begin to peruse them. 2 Hereby you shall have a Clew to conduct you, a Compass to saile and steere by, in the perusal of any book. 3. Hereby also you shall have a summary Recapitulation or Recollection of the chief Aime, and subject-matter of every book, much tending both to help judgement, and strengthen memory, after the perusal of any book of Old or New Testament. And therefore this course must needs be an useful Key, to unlock the rich Cabinet of the Holy Scriptures, and to discover the precious Treasures thereof unto you.

Now this is the Intent and Scope of this Treatise; viz. so familiarly to open and unfold, The 1. Order, 2. Titles, 3. Times, 4. Penmen, 5. Occasion, 6. Scope, and 7. Principal Parts of the Books of the Old and New Testament. That the whole Tenour of the Bible, might be spread open in a General veiw, to the meanest capacity. For,

1. The Order of the Books; especially of the Historical Books (observed all along, and compendiously represented in the two Tables, before the Old and New Testament,) more evidently helps to discover the Order of Histories and matters handled therein, and the Order of Gods governing his Church in several conditions.

2. The Titles, 1. Some of them summarily signifie to us the chief matter of the Book; as Genesis, The Generations of the heaven and earth, Exodus Israel's departure out of Egypt, &c. 2. Some Simplissima & certissima explicatio dictorum est, quæ ex locis sui occasione dicendi sumitur. Hilar.

3. The Times of the Penmen, the Kings or Governours in which they lived, are usually related with, as in the Titles of the Prophets, which serve to discover the confusions of Times, which otherwise would be very difficult, both in the Prophets, and in the Apostles. See therefore these two Tables, &c. 4. For the dating of the PROPHETS Books, immediately before the Prophecy of ISAIAH. For 5. the dating of the Apostles EPISTLES; immediately before the Epistle to the ROMANES. Difficulties will be wiped away and cleared, and you dissolve many knots.

4. Penmen, being holy men of God, extraordinarily inspired, is mean to us the divine Authority of their writings. This inclines faith, love, and awfull reverence to their Books.

5. The Occasion upon which the Books were written, together with

6. The Scope, drift, or end of the book, being well considered, give great light to the whole book, the whole frame, disposition and chief argument handled in the book; having a singular residency to the Scope. Therefore as the Architect useth his eye steddily on the mark, when he would floor accurately; so still for your thoughts upon the Occasion and Scope of every Book, when you would perule them understandingly.

7. The Principal parts of the Book, here Analytically laid down, exhibite clearly to your view, both the chief Subject, or matters insisted upon in every Book; as also the methodical and orderly coherence of all the parts of the Book with one another. Books looke upon confusedly, are but darkly and confusedly apprehended: But considered distinctly, as in these distinct Analyses or Resolutions into their Principal parts, must needs be distinctly and much more clearly discerned.

This is the chief Purpose and Aime of this Book: By these particulars to familiarize the Scriptures unto Christians, that delight to controverse with God in his own book; To whom I earnestly commend this direction, for the more profitable use of this Book, viz. That 1. Before they read any book of Scripture, they would first read what is in this Key said of that Book. 2. In reading, they would still remember the Occasion and Scope of the book, and diligently compare the Principal parts here, with the Text: whereby the whole series and current of Scripture is clearly and familiarly laid open to the meanest capacity. And 3 After the perusal of the Book, they would read again what this Key speaks of it. Hereby the understanding will be cleared, and the Memory confirmed.

VII. Rule.

Heedfully and judiciously observe the accurate Concord and Harmony of the holy Scriptures: though written by several persons, at several times, in several places, yet one and the same Spirit inditing all, is still like himself, consonant to himself in all. The Discord is in our minds, rather than in Gods word. Hence z Augustine, Let us be at concord in our own heart and the Scripture will have no discord in it. There are principally Five notable respects, in which Scriptures sometimes seem most contrary, repugnant, and opposite one to another; when yet they are not dissonant, but consonant, and sweetly concording one with another. Take the illuſtrations of them ſeverally.

I. Scriptures ſeem oppoſite, but are not, when the ſame word or phraſe in ſeveral places is uſed not in the ſame, but in ſeveral ſenſes and acceptations: for the ſame words have oft-times ſeveral ſignifications. In ſuch caſe, diſtinguiſh the ſeveral Acceptations, and the Scriptures agree.

As Paul ſaith, b Work out your own ſalvation with fear and trembling. But John ſaith, c There is no fear in love, but perfect love caſteth out fear, &c. Theſe places are not oppoſite: becauſe the word [Fear] in John ſignifies a baſe, ſervile, ſlaviſh fear; in Paul a filial, child-like, Religious fear. In this ſenſe it is ſaid of the d Samaritans, they feared the Lord: and again, they feared not the Lord, i. e. they feared the Lord ſervilely and hypocritically for his Lyons, but they feared him not religiouſly, filially, ſincerely. Moſes ſaith, God i reſted on the ſeventh day from all his work: But k Chriſt ſaith, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work; yet here's no oppoſition: For the works of God are either works of Creation, whereby new kinds of Creatures are made; ſo Moſes intended that God reſted from his work; or works of Conſervation and Providence, ſuſtaining and governing his works created, ſo Chriſt meant, the Father and he wrought ſtill.

Moreover Paul ſaith, o Therefore we conclude that a man is juſtified by Faith without the deeds of the Law. But p James ſaith, Ye ſee then how that by works a man is juſtified, and not by Faith only: yet no real oppoſition: For Juſtification in Pauls ſence; ſignifies an inſtrumental Application of Gods righteouſneſs, viz. Jeſus Chriſt to our ſelves, and ſo faith alone juſtifies before God: but Juſtification in James his ſenſe ſignifies a Declarative Manifeſtation of the truth of that Faith whereby we are juſtified, by the fruits and works of it. Paul ſpeaks of our juſtification before God; James of our Juſtification before men: Paul, of the juſtification of our perſons by Faith; James, of the juſtification of our Faith it ſelf, by Works.

II. Holy Scriptures ſeem oppoſite, but are not; when they treat not of the ſame but of ſeveral ſubjects or ſeveral matters. As, Chriſt promiſed the Apoſtles, q When the Spirit of Truth ſhould come, he ſhould guide them into all truth. But Paul teſtified that Peter erred, and r was to be blamed. Here are ſeveral ſubjects, viz. Doctrine and Practice: As to Doctrine, the Apoſtles erred not therein, becauſe they had it immediately from God: But as to matter of Practice, Peter there erred, diſſembling fellowſhip with the Gentiles for fear of the Jews. Again, It is ſaid in one place, That ſ Elijah went up by a Whirlewind into Heaven. And in another, t Behold I will ſend you Elijah the Prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. Yet theſe places oppoſe not one another, becauſe here are ſeveral ſubjects ſpoken of; the former being Elijah the Tiſhbite; the latter John the Baptiſt, the New-Teſtament-Elijah, ſo called becauſe he came u in the ſpirit and power of Elijah.

Yet theſe oppoſe not, becauſe in the former Paul ſpeaks of his carnal unregenerate part; in me, that is in my fleſh, dwels no good thing: in the latter of his ſpiritual regenerate part, I delight in the Law of God, after the inner man.

Again, Chriſt ſaith, b My Father is greater than I. But Paul ſaith, c Chriſt Jeſus being in the forme of God, thought it no robbery to be equal with God. Yet no oppoſition, for in Chriſts perſon are two natures, viz. of d God and man: Now as Chriſt is God, ſo he is equal to the Father, as Paul meant: as Chriſt is man, ſo the Father is greater than he, as himſelf ſaid.

IV. Scriptures ſeem oppoſite and contrary, but are not, when they ſpeak of things, not in the ſame, but in ſeveral reſpects, notions or conſiderations. For the ſeveral reſpect, removes all contradiction or oppoſition.

As Chriſt ſaith, e If I beare witneſſe of my ſelf, my witneſſe is not true. But elſewhere he ſaith, f Though I bear record of my ſelf, yet my record is true. Yet here's no oppoſition indeed, becauſe Chriſt ſpeaks of bearing witneſſe of himſelf in ſeveral reſpects; In the former place, of bearing witneſſe to himſelf disjunctly and ſolely without the Father, ſo his witneſſe were not true: In the latter, of bearing witneſſe of himſelf, conjunctly or jointly with the Father; ſo his witneſſe of himſelf is true.

If we ſay that we have not ſinned, we make him a lyar,* &c. Yet here's no real oppoſition; for in ſome reſpects they that are born of God, may be ſaid to ſin, in ſome reſpects they ſin not. They have ſin original in them, and actual ſin, through infirmity, &c. is done by them, while they are in this world: But they ſin not as unregenerate men ſin, viz. i 1 Not againſt the Goſpel-Remedy, Jeſus Chriſt. 2 Not as under the Reign of Sin; 3 Not with a full will; 4 Not preſumptuouſly; 5 Not habitually; 6 Not with allowance of themſelves in any boſom-corruption; 7 Not totally and Finally.

Added to the first is the field of Christs Kingdome. It shall have no end, but be established for ever. Thus Paul saith, Christ as the second Adam set up the Kingdom to God restored it after. For no real opposition. For Christs Kingdom may be considered in divers respects, viz. 1 As it is Essential, belonging to Christ as God: So he shall never deliver up this Kingdom. 2 As Covenantal, Dispensatory, or Mediatory: The Mediatory Kingdom of Christ is understood in respect of. The subjects of it; to Christ our Mediatour shall be head of his Church, and mystical body for ever; The Circumstances of it, or manner of administration of it, by Word, Sacraments, Effusion of the Spirit, &c. And thus at last Christ shall deliver up the Kingdom to the Father, for then God in Christ, face to face, shall be an endless Sabbath, Sermon, Sacrament. All in all.

V. Finally, Scriptures may seem but are not really opposite, when they intend not the same, but several times. Or at least when they spake of the same times in several respects. Distinguish wisely the times, and respects, and the opposition ceaseth.

s See Key of the Bible, pag. 44. t Acts 13. 19. 20.

Furthermore the time of the Government by Judges, in the s Book of Judges, is computed to be about two hundred ninety and nine years. But Paul in his Sermon at Antioch, saith, t And when he had destroyed seven Nations in the Land of Canaan, he divided their Land unto them by Lot, And after that, he gave unto them Judges, about the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the Prophet. Here seems to be a great opposition; but if things be well examined, there is none at all. Yet it may not be dissembled that this is so hard a knot, that it much puzzles writers satisfactorily to unty it. 1 Partly, because this computation of 450 years, is so punctually confuted by this text, viz. to begin after Canaan was divided by Lot, and to end at Samuel exclusively. 2 Partly, because that noted Chronology mentioned in 1 Kings 6. 1. assures us expressly, That the time from Israels coming out of Egypt till the beginning of the building of the Temple in the fourth year of Solomon, was precisely but 480 years, but if we allow for the time of the Judges 450 years in this account; we shal find the whole time from going out of Egypt till the Temples founding, wil arise to 591 years in all, viz. From their departure out of Egypt, till their entrance into Canaan-40 years Thence to Jesuahs death about——17 y.
Thence to Elies death, (for Samuels time is included in Sauls Reign, Acts 13. 21.) according to this supposition——450 y.
Thence to the death of David——80 y.
Thence to the founding of the Temple in Solomons fourth year——4 y.
In all——591 years.

So that in these regards, it is no easie matter clearly and undoubtedly to reconcile these times. Many ...

...conveniences are offered for the ending this case, yet none of them is ... [illegible] ... from one birth of Jacob (which seems to be stated as their period, Gal. Chap. 3. v. 17. among all people God chooseth Abraham, among all Abrahams children chooseth Isaac, and making a Covenant with him,) till the beginning of Judges, which is computed to be four hundred fourty seven years, that is four hundred and fifty years wants but three years, and in usual in Scripture to put the round number, for the compleat number. This Computation they make thus.

From Isaac's birth, to Jacob's birth——years—60,
From Jacob's birth, to the going down into Egypt——30.
Thence to the Coming forth of Egypt——210.
Thence to the Entring into the Land of Canaan——40.
Thence to the Dividing of the Land by Lot——7.
Which makes up in all——447.

But this Opinion is attended with these two inconveniences. 1. The precise Text in the Acts seems plainly to confine us for these four hundred and fifty years, between the dividing of the Land of Canaan by Lot, and the beginning of Samuels Rule; which limits this computation transgresseth. 2. The number computed doth not exactly amount to four hundred and fifty, wants three. 2 Others therefore, to avoid these inconveniences, confine, and abound their computation according to this Text, to the space of time betwixt the dividing Canaan by Lot, and Samuels Rule. And they think Paul reckoned up all the years mentioned in the Judges, and so they compute both the years of the Judges, and the years of Israels oppressours, distinctly and severally. (though the years of the Oppressours are indeed comprized under the years of the Judges) and both together do punctually make up the four hundred and fifty years here mentioned in the Acts. As followeth:

The Judges mentioned in the Book of Judges, governed in all——299 years.
To these add the fourty years of Eli, who so long judged Israel, 1 Sam. 4. 18.——40.
So the whole time of the Judges rule, till Samuel, was——339

Israels Oppressours were,
1. Cushan who oppressed them, Judg. 3. 8.——8 years.
2. Moab, Judg. 3. 14.——18.
3. Jabin, Judg. 4. 3.——20.
4. Midian, Judg. 6. 1.——7.
5. Ammon, Judg. 10. 8.——18.
6. Philistims, Judg. 13. 1.——40.
So the whole time of their Oppressours, was——111.

Now adde these together, viz. the years of their Judges, and the years of their Oppressours, three hundred thirty and nine, and one hundred and eleven, and the total resulting is four hundred and fifty years exactly: (only this inconvenience remains, the same years are reckoned twice over, yet it is not in the same, but several respects). Now if out of the number of years, from departure out of Egypt, till the Founding of the Temple, as first computed, viz. 591, You subduct the years of the Oppressours of Israel under their Judges, which seems to be twice reckoned up, viz. one hundred and eleven years. The remain is just four hundred and eighty years, according to that of 1 Kin. 6. 1. And so the Scriptures on all sides are reconciled accurately; And therefore this opinion seems most to be embraced.

VIII. Rule.

Learn that excellent Art of explaining and understanding the Scriptures, by the Scriptures. The Scriptures in some places speak more darkly and dubiously, in other places they express the same things more clearly and certainly: y the doubtful are to be explained by the certain, as dark places by those that are clear. As Aug. noteth; As Peter being to prove to the Jews Christs resurrection by Scripture, viz. z Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, nor suffer thine holy one to see corruption: he alledgeth for clearing this, another Scripture to evince, that this promise was made to David concerning Christ, and could not properly be intended of David himself, a Men and brethren let me speak freely to you, of the Patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his Sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore he being a Prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an Oath, &c. Certainly Scripture is the best Expounder of it self. Scripture-exposition of it self, (as b Augustine, and before him c Irenæus observed) is most regular and safe. Let us (saith d Chrysostom) attend to the Scope of Scripture, which interprets it self and suffers not his hearer to erre. The Gold was not sanctified (saith e Origen) without the Temple; no more any sense but what is drawn out of the Scripture. And most excellently f Hillary. He is the best Reader, who interprets sayings by sayings; who brings not an interpretation to Scripture, nor imposeth a sense upon Scripture, but findeth a sense in Scripture, and draws it from Scripture, &c.

Now that we may more successfully and clearly understand Scripture by Scripture, these ensuing particulars are to be observed.

1. That Jesus Christ our Mediator, and the salvation of sinners by him, is the very substance, marrow, soul, and Scope of the whole Scriptures. As many g passages not obscurely intimate unto us, What are the whole Scriptures, but as it were the Spiritual Swadling-cloathes of the Holy Child Jesus? 1. Christ is the Truth & Substance of all the Types and shadows. 2. Christ is the Matter and Substance of the Covenant of Grace under all Administrations thereof; under the Old Testament Christ is veyled, under the New Covenant Revealed. 3. Christ is the Center and meeting place of all the Promises, for h in him all the Promises of God are yea, and they are Amen. 4. Christ is the thing signified, sealed, and exhibited in all the Sacraments of Old or New Testament, whether ordinary or extraordinary. 5. Scripture-Genealogies are to lead us on to the true Line of Christ. 6. Scripture-Chronologies, are to discover to us the times and seasons of Christ. 7. Scripture-Laws, are i our Schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ; the Moral by correcting, the Ceremonial by directing. And 8. Scripture-Gospel is Christs Light, whereby we know him; k Christs voice, whereby we hear and follow him; Christs Cords of Love, whereby we are drawn into sweet union and communion with him; yea it is the l power of God unto salvation unto all them that believe in Christ Jesus. Keep therefore still Jesus Christ in your eye, in the perusal of the Scripture, as the End, Scope, and Substance thereof. For as the Sun gives light to all the Heavenly Bodies, so Jesus Christ m the Sun of Righteousness gives light to all the holy Scriptures.

2. Still remember how Jesus Christ is revealed in Scripture, gradually in Promises and Covenants, till the noon-day of the Gospel shined most clearly. Especially in these more remarkable Periods of time: 1. To Adam immediately upon his fall, most obscurely and imperfectly. 2. To Noah, more clearly than to Adam. 3. To Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, more clearly than to Noah. 4. To Moses and Israel at Mount Sinai, more clearly than to Abraham. 5. To David and his Seed more clearly than to Moses. 6. To Israel after the Babylonish Captivity, more clearly than to David. 7. To the Church under the New Testament, the New Covenant is laid open more clearly than to all others. For, 1. God is a God of Order, and he makes known his gracious contrivances orderly. 2. Christ, and Salvation by him are Treasures too high and precious to be disclosed all at once to the Church. 3. the state of the Church is various; she hath her infancy, her youth, and all the degrees of her minority, as also her riper age; and therefore God revealed Christ not according to his own ability of revealing, but according to the Churches capacity of receiving. 4. This gradual revealing of Christ suits well with our condition in this world, which is not perfect, but growing on to perfection, fully attainable in Heaven onely. Now this gradual unveiling of the Covenant and Promises in Christ, is to be much considered throughout the whole Scripture; that we may see the wisdom of Gods dispensations, the imperfection of the Churches condition here, especially in her minority; and the usefulness of comparing the more dark and imperfect, with the more clear and compleat manifestations of the Mysteries of Gods grace in Christ.

3. Well compare the Texts you would understand, with the Context; and note the n coherence. For (though some Scriptures are laid down in certain independing Aphorisms, like an heap of Gold-rings or distinct Jewels, or like a rich Cabinet of Pearls, as most part of the Proverbs, yet the generality of the Scriptures is concatenated or linked together part with part like a golden Chain, intwisted or woven together like a curious silken web, one thing so depending upon another, as o that they mutually help to the interpreting of one another. Consider therefore still the coherence and dependance, otherwise you will run into a thousand misunderstandings. As where it is said, p If the righteous scarcely be saved, where, &c. A weak Christian perhaps is discouraged hereby, thinks he shall scarce ever come to heaven: Now the Context clears it; for the Apostle speaks q that judgment [or affliction] must begin at the house of God, Gods people, and thence argues to the certainty of wicked mens greater punishments: so that here, [scarcely be saved] is to be understood, not of spiritual and eternal salvation from hell, but of temporal salvation from temporal afflictions and persecutions, from which the righteous shall not be free.

4. Compare dark places with clearer: what is in one place veyled, is in another oft-times unveyled. As, with Parables r confer the Exposition; with Visions s the interpretation; with Laws, the t Explication thereof, &c. For as Augustine hath observed. u In those things that are plainly laid down in Scripture, are found all things containing faith and manners: and places obscure, are to be illustrated by those that are manifest.

5. Explain those places wherein any matter or subject of Divinity is touched onely occasionally or accidentally, with sundry other places wherein it is handled and insisted upon purposely and professedly, which are the very seat and chief fountain of the Argument. As if you would understand James, c. 2. touching Justification by works as well as faith, where Justification is spoken of more accidentally; compare it with the Epistle to the Romans, c. 2, 3, 4. &c. wherein Justification is purposely and fully handled. So if you would truly understand any Text about the matter of Creation, consult with places where the Creation is professedly handled, as in Gen. c. 1. and c. 2. and Psal. 104.

6. Parallel Types with Anti-types, or things typified. The Types more familiarly lead us to the understanding and apprehending of things typified, and consequently more firmly fix them in our memories, The Anti types more evidently unfold and unveyl the Types

7. Carefully ponder what Prophecies and Promises are already allready fulfilled, and what remain further to be fulfilled in their season. For so far as any Scripture clearly testifies the fulfilling of any of them so far we have a clear and undoubted Commentary upon them, As Isa. 7. 14. fulfilled and so cleared, *Matth.*1.22,23. So *Exod.*12.46. fulfilled and cleared, John 19. 36. So Isa. 61. 1, 2. fulfilled and cleared, Luke 4.18,19, 21. with many such like; And where Prophecies or Promises are found to be yet unfulfilled, we shall thereby be incited to study them, and the intended time of their Accomplishment, exercising faith and prayer thereupon.

8. Finally, Parallel heedfully the Old and New Testament together; and specially all those places in the Old Testament which are in any respect alledged in the New-Testament, whether 1 the phrase and words only, or 2 the sense and matter only, or 3 both words and matter, be cited. This would give wonderfull light to many hundreds of passages in the Bible. And for this end I have with much care and diligence compiled, a Parallel of the places of the Old Testament, any way alledged in the New, and had once resolved to have inserted it in this place; But to avoid prolixity, I must now forbear it, least the Porch prove too big for the building.

IX Rule.

The last Direction I shall commend to the Reader for the improvement of heavenly dexterity in, and understanding of the holy Scriptures, is, Endeavour sincerely to practise Scripture, and you shall daily understand Scripture. a Servant-like duty, he rightly reads the Scripture that runs swiftly the way of Gods Commandments into Duty. This unfeigned care in practice, will in the end prove the surest cure in Scripture. The holy way is the guide of Practice, Practice the Life of Theory. Where Scripture contemplation and experience meet both together in the same person, true Scripture understanding must needs be heightened and doubled. To this effect is Christs promise a My Doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me; if any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God. To like purpose subscribes the experience of David. b Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies; for they are ever with me. I have more understanding than all my teachers; for thy testimonies are my meditation. I understand more than the Ancients, because I keep thy Precepts.

a *Joh.*7.16, 17. b *Psal.*119. 98,99,100

These things (Christian Reader) I thought fit to commend to thee by way of Preface; but shall detain thee no longer from the perusal of the Book it self, the Lord that teacheth his people to profit, advance thy spiritual proceeding abundantly by both: So prayeth

Gods COVENANT with man in Chriſt is repreſented to us in holy Scripture principally two ways; (the Covenant being for ſubſtance but one and the ſame) viz. d As promiſed, As Performed.

d Tempus enim conſtituit Deus promiſſis ſuis, & tempus eis quæ promiſit implendis. Promiſſionum tempus erat tempore Propheterarum uſque ad Joannem Baptiſtam: ab illo autem & deinceps uſque ad finem, tempus eſt implendi ea quæ promiſſa ſunt. Fidelis Deus qui ſe noſtrum debitorem fecit; non aliquid a nobis accipiendo, ſed tanta nobis promittendo. Parum erat promiſſio, etiam ſcripto ſe teneri voluit, veluti faciens nobiſcum chirographum promiſſionum ſuarum: ut cum ea quæ promiſit ſolvere inciperet, in Scriptura promiſſorum conſideraremus ordinem ſolvendorum. *Auguſt. 1. As promiſed fore-prophecied and typified in Chriſt to be manifeſted afterwards in the fleſh. Hence called the e Covenants of Promiſe; Covenants, not Covenant: becauſe of the ſeveral Publications of the Covenant with more and more Augmentations in ſeveral points or periods of time. Thus the Covenant is made known in all the Books of Scripture written before Chriſts coming, which are therefore called the f OLD-COVENANT, or the g OLD-TESTAMENT.

must clearly and fully unvailed to us in all the Books of Scripture written ſince Chriſts coming; which are therefore ſtiled the i NEW-COVENANT, or the k NEW-TESTAMENT.

Thus the whole BIBLE is diſtributed into the 1. Old, 2. New Teſtament; which yet are not diverſ, but the ſame for ſubſtance, as * Lactantius hath obſerved; the Old being fulfilled in the New, and Chriſt Teſtator in both.

Sed tamen diverſa non ſunt, quia novum veteris adimpletio eſt, & in utroque idem Teſtator eſt Chriſtus, qui pro nobis morte ſuſcepta, nos hæredes regni æterni fecit, abdicato & exhæredato populo Judæorum, &c. *Lactant. I. MOSES.

I. MOSES.

MOSES [the n servant of God, The first Penman of Scripture] was an Ebrew born in Egypt, after the worlds creation about 2432 years, before Christ about 1496 years. He o is descended from Abraham the father of the Israelites, as Abraham was the p fourth from Adam the father of the world. Moses (saith some) is the seventh from Abraham, a New Ebrew, who was the seventh from Adam. So was Eber the seventh from Enoch, and Enoch the seventh from Eber. All excellent among ordinary men, as the Sabbath in regard of the six other days. When Moses was born, q he was very fair. He was marvellously saved from death, being drawn out of the water, whence his name r MOSES, i.e. Drawn forth, was given to him. s Augustine thinks, in Moses his name is intimated not only Moses his deliverance and salvation from waters, but also Pharaohs destruction in waters. He was nourished by King Pharaohs daughter for t her own son; u Learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and mighty in words and deeds. He lived in Pharaohs Court 40 years, and then left the Court, x rather to suffer affliction with the People of God, &c. z He was a stranger, a shepheard in the Land of Madian 40 years. Thence God called him to feed a his people, and Israel his inheritance. He fed Israel most faithfully b 40 years, being c in the Church in the wilderness, with the Angel that spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, where he received the lively Oracles to give unto us, and commanded us a law d which is the inheritance of the Church of Jacob.

MOSES wrote the Law of God in the five first Books, called in Greek the Pentateuch, i.e. The five-fold Volume. As first it is framed to be written in one volume or book, those being such a continued f connection of Books which Books f that was afterwards succeeding to the several distinct matters therein contained, divided into five several Books, containing g An History of things past, h a Covenant between God and his Church then present, i And a People-like further g Grace to come, now exhibited by Jesus Christ. In propounding of which things (k Moses worthily observes) Moses hath in view upon his glorious fame: for in the Histories are implied l Allegories, and in the Laws are types and shadows of k good things to come; the body whereof is of Christ. In Genesis (which History ends with Israels going down into Egypt) we have the image of n natural man fallen from God into the bondage of sin. In Exodus, k the type of our Redemption, and state restored by Jesus Christ. In Leviticus, the shadow of our sanctification, which we are made Sacrifices unto God. In Numbers, our spiritual warfare wherewith we are exercised and armed to fight the good fight of faith. In Deuteronomie, the Doctrine of our justification, and preparation to enter into our heavenly Canaan, after Moses death, by the conduct of Jesus the Son of God.

GENESIS.

Sect. I. Name.

GENESIS, i. e. Generation, so called by the Greeks; 1 Partly because it sets forth the a Generations of the heavens and of the earth, in their first creation: 2 Partly because it describes the b Genealogie of the Patriarchs. The Hebrews name their Books of the Old Testament, either 1 From the Prophets, the Penmen of them; Or 2 from the principal subject or Argument handled in them; Or 3 From the first Hebrew word wherewith they begin, as the five Books of Moses, and the Lamentations of Jeremiah. Hence Genesis is called in Hebrew בראשית Bereschith, i. e. In the beginning.

a Gen. 2. 4. b As Gen. 5 and elsewhere.

Sect. II. Penmen.

It is not probable this Book was written by Moses, whilst a Private man and a shepheard in Madian in the desert; but rather after he was a Publick person, and furnished with a Prophetick spirit. For, 1. How could Moses by a private, without a Prophetick spirit, so accurately relate the worlds creation, and things past? 2. How could he foretell things to come as touching c Christ and others? 3. Otherwise the credit and authority of this History would be too much enfeebled. 4. Nor is it absurd, which some Hebrew writers think, who referre this writing to that of Exod. 24. 12. Come up to me into the Mount, and be thou there, and I will give thee the Tables of Stone, and the Law, and the Precepts, which I have written to teach them. Understanding by the Tables, the Decalogue; By the Precepts all the Ceremonial, and Judicial Ordinances: and by the Law, all other writings of Moses, whether Historical or Dogmatical, as d Paræus hath observed.

Sect. III. Time and Chronologie.

This Book as it is absolutely the ancientest writing extant in the world, so it is most compendious; being an History of 2369 years, as e some think: or rather of 2368, as f others compute. This may appear in three eminent Intervals or Periods of time recorded in Genesis, viz.

1. From the Creation to the beginning of the flood, in Noahs 600th. year, through ten Generations, 1656 years, viz. From Adams creation to Seth's nativity 130 years. From Seth to Enos, 105. From Enos to Cainan, 90. From Cainan to Mahalaleel, 70. From Mahalaleel to Jared, 65. From Jared to Enoch 162. From Enoch to Methuselah 65. from Methuselah to Lamech, 187. From Lamech to Noah's birth, 182. From Noah's birth to the beginning of the flood, 600. In all 1656.

II. The second Period of time is, From the beginning of the flood through other ten Generations to Abrams birth, 352 h years, viz. From the Flood to Arphaxad, 2 years. From Arphaxad to Selah, 35 years. From Selah to Heber, 30 years. From Heber to Peleg, 34 years. From Peleg to Reu, 30 years. From Reu to Serug, 32 years. From Serug to Nachor, 30 years. From Nachor to Terah, 29 years. From Terah to Abraham, 130 years. In all 352 years. So that Abraham was born in the 2008th year from the Creation: which is accurately to be observed, lest we puzzle the whole sacred Chronologie, as learned men have advertised.

III. The third Period, is, From Abrahams birth to Josephs death through four Generations, 360 years, viz. From the birth of Abraham to the birth of Isaac, k 100 years. From Isaacs birth to Jacobs birth, l 60 years. From Jacobs birth to his going down into Egypt, m 130 years. From Jacobs descent into Egypt to his death, n 17 years. From the death of Jacob to the death of Joseph, 53 years, which may be thus gathered. Joseph dyed when he was o 110 years old. He stood before Pharaoh when he was p 30 years old. After the seven years of plenty, in the third year of famine, Jacob came into Egypt, in the q one hundred and thirtieth year of Jacob, and fourtieth year of Joseph. Joseph lived with his father in Egypt r seventeen years. Therefore when his father dyed, Joseph was 57 years old: consequently he lived after his fathers death s 53 years. So that the total of this third Interval amounts to 360 years. And therefore, 1656. and 352. and 360. the particulars of all these three Intervals being added together, This History of Genesis is evidently an History of 2358 years continuance.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of Genesis, is to set forth. The Generation of the world; The corruption thereof by sin; The restauration thereof by Christ the seed of the woman; Together with the government of the old world before the flood, and the following world after the flood, especially of the Church of God in particular families in both, under the Patriarchs.

The reasons why Moses began his writings with the History of the Creation, the Fall of Man, &c. are conceived to be these, viz. 1. To procure the greater authority to his writings, by his setting forth those things which could not certainly be known but by Divine revelation as t Augustine intimates. 2. To assure the Church (contrary to the opinions of the Heathen) of the nature of the true God, and the works of God, as also that the world was not eternal 3. To convince the world of the sinful state of all mankind, Adam the Root of mankind being corrupted. 4. To display the riches of Divine grace to man, in u promising presently a second Adam to repair what the first Adam had destroyed. 5. By the Majesty of the Creator described, to provoke the people of Israel to more awful and dutiful obedience. 6. To deterre Israel from impiety, and incite them to godlyness, by propounding the examples of different rewards of the pious and impious, as x Eusebius hath noted. 7. Finally, to teach us that He is the only true God to be worshipped and served, who created the world out of nothing, restored the world corrupted, and in the beginning hath made known himself to mankind by his infallible Word.

Sect. V. Principal Parts.

This Book of GENESIS (which is of so admirable worth and use, that y some stile it the Compendium of all Divinity, as Moses the Father of all Divines) might, for memory sake, be distributed after the manner of the Hebrews into 6 Sections, according to the History of the six Fathers therein described, viz. Of y D. Pareus in Gen. prologom. p. 14. 1647.

I. ADAM; whose Creation, Marriage, Dominion, Fall, Punishment, Promise of Recovery, and Generations, are laid down Chap. I. to V. ver. 6.

II. NOAH; who was a Preacher of righteousnesse, Parent of the new world. Chap. V. to X.

III. ABRAHAM; whose Calling, excellent Faith, Conference and Covenant with God, Posterity, Peregrinations, and other singular acts, are recorded Chap. X. to XXV.

IV. ISAAC; whose History is described, Chap. XXV. to XXVIII.

V. JACOB; whose various conditions and distresses are described, Chap. XXVIII. to XXXVII.

VI. JOSEPH; who by the envy and emulation of his Brethren was sold into Egypt, and there by singular providence advanced to the second place of Government in the Kingdome, whereby his Fathers family was afterwards preserved from perishing in an extream Famine, and the knowledge of the God was brought into Egypt. Chap. XXXVII. to the end.

But here I shall rather follow the ensuing Distribution, which is conceived to be more exact and methodical.

EXODUS.

Sect. I. The Name.

EXODUS, i.e. Going-out, or Departure, so called by the Greek, because it declares Israels miraculous departure out of Egypt, after they had been long oppressed there under tyrannical servitude. In Hebrew it's called ואלה שמות veelle shemoth, i.e. And these are the names. Because these are the a Exod. 1. 1 first words of the Book.

Sect. II. The Time and Chronologie.

Exodus is an History, from the death of Joseph till the erecting of the Tabernacle, for about 142 years, viz. From the death of Joseph to the birth of Moses 60 years, b as some compute. From Moses birth to the departure out of Egypt, c 80 years. From the departure out of Egypt, to the erecting of the Tabernacle, d 2 years. The Tabernacle was erected in the second year, viz. e the second year after their coming out of Egypt: yet this History is not finished in this Book, till Num. 9. 29.

Sect. III. Penmen.

That Moses was Penman of this Book is generally acknowledged: but when it was written, cannot so precisely be determined yet, it being an History of matters of fact, doubtlesse it was written after the Giving of the Law in Mount Sinai, and the erecting of the Tabernacle. For things cannot historically be related, till they be acted; as that learned f Rivet hath noted.

Sect. IV. Occasion and Subject-matter.

Moses having described the Creation of the world, the Propagation of the Nations, and some Primordial beginnings of the Church in several families in the book of Genesis, now comes in this book of Exodus to describe the state and condition, especially of the Church as collected out of several families, and united in one politique body or society, separated from all other people, partaker of the g precious promises of God, and in due season expecting their accomplishment. This is the h Church in the wilderness.

g Gen. 15. 13. & 17. 8.
h Act. 7. 38.

In this Book especially are declared: 1 Gods wonderful deliverance of Israel out of Egypt, and from the Egyptians at the Red-sea; 2 His miraculous sustaining of them in the wildernesse; 3 His giving them the Law, therein renewing Covenant with them on Mount Sinai; And 4 How he caused his Tabernacle to be erected among them. So that (as i one observes) If there be any Book wherein the singular Providence of God appears in preserving, propagating, and delivering his Church; If there be any Book wherein the truth and fidelity of Gods promises shines forth in their accomplishment? If any Book wherein the infinite wisdome and Justice of God appears in making of Lawes, and erecting of Divine worship: (And I may add, If ther be any Book wherein we have a lively embleme of the afflicted Church of God in the wilderness of this world) certainly this is the Book.

i And. Rivet. Prolog. in Exod. p. 1.

Sect. V. Scope.

The Scope or drift of this History, is, In general to set forth Gods tender, faithful, wise, just, and happy government of his Church now collected out of all the several families of Israel, and united in one politique body.

k Gen. 14. 13, 14, 15, 16. with Exod. 12. 40 and children. 2. To magnifie Gods power in their miraculous deliverances and preservations; not only before his own people, but in sight also of the very Heathen. 3. To encourage his people to depend upon him in deepest straits of afflictions, seeing he so tenders them in affliction, and saves them from affliction. 4. To adumbrate in Israel, passing from Egypt through the Red-sea, Wilderness, and Jordan, to the promised Land, as in a lively m type, the Churches state in the wilderness of this world till she come to the heavenly Canaan an eternal rest. As said Augustine, Observe we their stations and Mansions, we may in them behold great wonders of our heavenly journey. Consider this Parallel.

1. Israel delivered from Pharaoh, the Task-masters, and Egypts miseries.	1. The Elect delivered from Satan, sin, world, death and hell, wonderfully.
2. Israel passeth the Red-sea, wherein all Egyptians are drowned.	2. Elect by baptism and blood of Christ are saved, wherein all their sins are drowned & swallow'd up.
3. Israel combats with and conquers Amalek.	3. Christ and his Members fight with sin and Satan, and overcome them.
4. Israel had the Law from Mount Sinai.	4. Elect instructed of Christ, whereby they are advanced above low earthly to high heavenly contemplations.
5. Israel had Gods moving Tabernacle among them, with all its Vessels and Utensils.	5. The Elect are here Gods moving Tabernacle, Vessels for holy use, &c.
6. Israel after all distresses, at last quietly possessed of Canaan.	6. The Elect after all tribulations shall at last in endless peace and joy possess Heaven it self.

AN

AN APPENDIX TO EXODUS.

The SONG of MOSES and the Israelites at the Red-Sea, contained in Exod. 15. 1. to 22.

Metrically Translated out of the Hebrew, and Analytically Explained.

Sect. I.

THis famous Song both for Antiquity and other Excellencies, far surpasseth all Songs whatsoever left upon record by Heathenish Antiquity; Yea is the most ancient of all Scripture-Psalms or Songs. Moses Pemedix (as a Josephus and b Hierom think, in Hexameter verse). Moses and the Israelites sung it at the Red Sea, in the two thousand four hundred fifty third year from the Worlds Creation, or thereabouts, (as Scripture-Chronology inclineth). Most probably this is that Song of Moses, alluded to in the c Revelation.

a Joseph Antiquit. Jud. lib. 2. cap. 7.
b Hieron. in Pref. Chron. I. Eusebii ad Vincent Gallicn.
d Exod. 14. 17. to the end, and 15. 1.
e Sient autem in quos Deus jubere voluit, omnis creatura irascitur sic & illis quibus auxilium præbuit, omnis creatura suffragatur. Etenim hos ambos populos Mare Rubrum divisit: ubi eorum alteri totius pressuræ finis, initium alteri cunctæ felicitatis fuit —— Nam & Pharaonis exercitus mare post Israel intravit: sed uni refugium, alteri laqueus fuit. August. de Mirabilib. Script. l. 1. c. 19. & 20. p. 722, 723. Tom. 3. 1569.

Sect. II.

Occasion. Gods wonderful drowning of persecuting Pharaoh, and all his Egyptian Host in the same Red sea, by which he delivered his people Israel, and this immediately after their departure out of Egypt. To this purpose, saith e Augustine; As every creature is angry with them whom God will punish: so every creature is serviceable to them whom God will help. For the Red-sea divideth both these People; becoming to the one an end of all their Tyranny, to the other the beginning of all their Felicity; to the one a Refuge, to the other a Snare.

Sect. III.

Scope. 1 Thankfully to praise the LORD both for the Egyptians utter overthrow, and the Israelites Preservation at the Red-sea; and 2 Prophetically to assure the Israelites of their like victory over the Canaanites, and Possession of the Promised Land.

So the Song is partly Historical, partly Prophetical.

Sect. IV.

Principal parts. Herein therefore are,

I. Most elegant praises of God, for his admirable destruction of the Egyptians, but salvation of the Israelites, ver. 1 to 19. Whose Praises and the matter of them are,

1. Summarily propounded, both 1. in general, The Lord excelleth gloriously. And 2. in special, The Horse and his Rider, &c. ver. 1.

2. More fully expounded and amplified

1. By a grateful Attributing, or Ascribing such names and titles unto God, as conduce most peculiarly to praise God for his exploits at the Red Sea, ver. 2, 3.

2. By a triumphing narration of Gods judgements upon his own and his peoples enemies. Herein are most emphatically declared to us, 1. Gods Impartiality in his judgements. Pharaoh his chariots, his host, his chief Captains were all drowned, ver. 4. II. Gods irresistible Severity against the Egyptians, illustrated by many similitudes: He made them sink to the bottom as a stone, ver. 5. He dashed them in pieces with his right hand, ver. 6. He pulleth them down like a falling building. He devoured them as stubble with his flaming wrath, ver. 7. III. Gods notable method in bringing them into the snare. 1. Partly by dividing the Red sea miraculously, that it stood like walls of congealed Ice for Israel to passe through, ver. 8. 2. Partly by hardening Pharaoh to follow them into the sea, whose pride and insolencie is lively personated, I will pursue, I will overtake, &c. Climax. ver. 9. 3. Partly Gods utter overwhelming both them, their pride, and their cruelty in the sea at the very blast of his wind, ver. 10. IV. Gods matchless excellency, beyond all mighty ones whatsoever, displayed at the Red sea, even to admiration, ver. 11, 12.

II. Most sweet Prophecies, (laid down not only in the future, but often in the Preter-tense for the more certainty) of future blessings assured to Israel, upon these rare experiences, viz. 1. That God would in might and mercy guide them to the holy Land, where they should dwell, ver. 13. 2. That God by the noise of the overthrow of Pharaoh, would so amaze and astonish the inhabitants of Palestina, Edom, Moab and Canaan, that they should be as still as a stone, ver. 14, 15, 16. 3. That Israel should pass over Jordan into Canaan without opposition, ver. 16. 4. That Israel

Israel should be brought into, and planted in the place prepared for them. *ver.*17.

III. A Conclusion of the Song, ascribing everlasting dominion to God, ver. 18.

After this Song, the Principal Subject-matter of it is briefly recited again, *ver.*19. And how Mary and the women with timbrels and dances answered the men in this Song, singing the first clause, altering only one word, *ver.*20,21. Perhaps she repeated this at every Period; as [for his mercy endureth for ever,] is f elsewhere repeated.

f Ps. 136. throughout. See 2Chro. 5.13.

More particularly, 1. To keep Israel from Idolatry, (to which they were very prone) by instituting such a costly, laborious, visible and glorious worship. 2. To lead them by Sacrifices expiatory, to Christ the only true Propitiation for our sins able perfectly to purge the consciences. By Sacrifices Eucharistical or Gratulatory, to Spiritual thankfulnesse to God for all his benefits. And by the Holy Priesthood, to Christ the only eternal all-sufficient Priest f able to save to the uttermost all that come unto God by him. 3. To instruct them, by meats forbidden as unclean, to avoid what God prohibits. By many sorts of uncleannesses, and their expiations; That the holiest Saints on earth

Sect. I. Name.

NUMBERS, Gr. ἀριθμοὶ, so called, because a great part of the Book, especially at the beginning, is spent in Numbering of the Tribes and Families of Israel, and of their Journeyes from Egypt to Canaan. This is now the first Muster or Numbring of the People, (the same with that Exod. 38. 26. seem Numb. 1. 46.) described here in the four first Chapters. At this Muster they were 603550. This Account is taken of the Peoples Number, 1 Partly that they might orderly be ranked in their Tents about the Tabernacle. 2 Partly to evidence the fidelity of Gods Promises in bringing such multitudes into the promised Land (which shortly they were to enter) notwithstanding so many wicked ones were destroyed from among them in the wilderness. The second Muster or Numbring of them, was in the a fortieth and last year of their Travels, when (all this Generation being dead save Moses, Caleb, and Joshuah) their sons were numbred for to receive the inheritance of the Land of Promise, A Type of Heaven. And they were in all 601730. almost as many as at the first Muster. In Heb. it is called בְּמִדְבַּר Bemidbar, i. e. In the Desert. Sometimes וַיְדַבֵּר Vajedabber, that is, Then spake. That being the fifth, this the first word of this Book in the Hebrew text.

a Num. 26. 51.

Sect. II. Penman.

Moses (questionlesse) was PENMAN also of this History, which is so continued in one Series with the b former.

b See Num. 1. 1, &c.

Sect. III. Time or Chronologie.

Numbers contains an History from the beginning of the second moneth of the second year after Israels coming out of Egypt, to the beginning of the eleventh moneth of the fortieth year, viz. c 38 years and upwards, about 9 or 10 moneths, as some d observe. And this may remarkably be evinced, by comparing Num. 1. 1. and 36. 13, diligently with Deut. 1. 3. which, as above, demonstrate both the beginning and ending of this History of Numbers. For, the things mentioned from the beginning of the Book to ver. 19. belong to the first moneth of the second year of their departure out of Egypt, to which also the whole Book of Leviticus. Things in Chap. 5, 6. are recorded things done for the space of 38 years, and 9 or 10 moneths.

Sect. IV. Scope.

Lively to set forth, 1 The rich blessing of God upon Israel, in their wonderful increase. 2 His vigilant providence over them in all their wildernesse-journeys and difficulties. 3 His impartial severity against their corruptions for which many of them e perished in the wilderness after they had been delivered out of Egypt, so that they could not enter into his rest because of their unbelief. 4 And yet, Gods exact faithfulnesse in bringing such wonderful multitudes to inherit Canaan according to his promise.

DEUTERONOMIE.

Sect. I. Name.

DEUTERONOMIE, i. e. The ſecond Law, or Law repeated. Thus denominated by the Greek, becauſe this book containeth a Repetition of Gods Law given by Moſes to Iſrael. This Repetition of the Law the Lord was pleaſed to make, 1 Partly becauſe all that Generation then living, when the Law was firſt promulged on M. Sinai, except, Moſes, Caleb, and Joſhuah, were now dead in the wilderneſſe. 2 Partly becauſe their children either heard not that firſt Promulgation, or being very young, had in great part forgot it. 3 Partly that God might help their dulneſſe and incapacity, in not only affording them the Repetition of the Law, but the Explanation alſo. So that this Book ſeemes to be as it were an Abridgment or Epitome of the three former Books, containing the ſumme of all Gods Laws; and a Compendium of the principal Hiſtories, all being cloſed up with the memorable death of Moſes. Moſes brought them from Egypt, through the wilderneſſe, to the borders of Canaan, and then dyed, could bring them no further: but Joſhuah brought them into it; and poſſeſſed them of it. Thus, the a Law is our Schoolmaſter to bring us to Chriſt: but only Jeſus the true Joſhuah brings us into Gods promiſed Reſt. In Hebrew it is ſometimes from the ſame ground called משנה Miſchneh, i. e. Repetition of the Law. But moſt uſually, from the firſt words of the Book it is called אלה הדברים Elleh haddebarim, i. e. Theſe are the words; or only דברים Debarim, i. e. The words.

a Gal. 3. 24.

Sect. II. Penman.

Penman of this Book, as of all the four former Books, was Moſes; who alſo (as is thought by b ſome) wrote the Hiſtory of his own death aforehand in the laſt chapter by a Prophetick ſpirit; or Joſhuah wrote it for him,

Sect. III. Time or Chronologie.

This Book contains the Hiſtory of but a few days, viz. From the beginning of the eleventh moneth, to about the ſeventh day of the twelfth moneth of the fourtieth year after Iſraels departure out of Egypt: for Moſes began to ſpeak theſe words in the c firſt day of the eleventh moneth of the ſaid fortieth year, which was a little before his death: He d died when he was one hundred and twenty years old; after which Iſrael mourned for Moſes in the land of Moab e thirty dayes. This determines the time of the Hiſtory, as Junius well obſerves.

e Deut. 34. 8

The Chronologie of this Hiſtory is thus computed by ſome: viz.

1. The firſt part of this Book containes the Hiſtory of the f firſt day of the eleventh moneth of the fortieth year, after their coming out of Eypt. 2. The ſecond part, contains the Hiſtory of the g ſecond day. 3. The Third part contains the Hiſtory (as is probable) of h four days at moſt. 4. The fourth part contains the Hiſtory of i one day. 5. The fifth containes the Hiſtory alſo of k one day. 6. The ſixth containes the Hiſtory of l one day. 7. The ſeventh part containes the Hiſtory of their mourning for Moſes m thirty dayes.

f Deut. 1. 2, 3, 4.
g Deut. 5. to c. 11.
h Deut. 11. to. c. 26.
i Deut. 27. and 28.
k Deut. 29. and 30.
l Deut. 31. &c.
m Deut. 34.

Proof hereof may be drawn from the Hiſtory of Joſhuah, by computing backwards from the day of the Paſſeover. For in the Land of Canaan the firſt Paſſeover was celebrated n in the one and fortieth year after Iſraels coming out of Egypt, on the fourteenth day of the moneth Niſan. Before which they were o circumciſed, which probably took up four dayes. One day they were paſſing through Jordan; p two dayes

p Joſh. 1. 11

dayes in preparation for it: These three dayes seem to be the time q of searching out the Land: and lastly the thirty r dayes mourning. And thus going backwards, we shall find that Deuteronomie contains an History of but a very few dayes.

q Compare Josh. 1. 11. with ch. 2. 22.

Sect. IV. Scope.

SCOPE. 1. That the Law formerly given of God, may by this new Repetition of it be more declared, confirmed, and applyed to the present condition of Israel: most of them having not heard it formerly, or having forgot it, and they thereby fitted and better prepared for the promised Canaan, upon which they were entring. 2. That by commemoration of Gods wonderful benefits to them and their fathers, they might be incited to all true thankfulnesse love and obedience. 3. And also that by recalling to memory their and their fathers sinnes and punishments, they might be brought to an awfull fear of the Divine Majesty.

DEUTERONOMIE.

Viz.

MOSES SONG for a WITNESSE against ISRAEL. In Deut. 32. 1. to 44.

Metrically Translated out of the Hebrew, and Analytically Explained.

Sect. I.

THis SONG is full of Divine Majesty; most elegant and emphatical; and in the Original laid down with extraordinary variety of several sorts of words. The important matter of it was the rather digested into the form of a Song, that it might be both more familiarly known, and firmly remembred of all Israel. From the Matter and Scope of it, it may fitly be stiled, The SONG of MOSES for a witnesse against Israel.

Sect. II.

Penman of it was Moses, and that a little before his death, c c Deut. 31. 16, 19, 22, 30.

Sect. III.

Occasion; God fore-saw that when Israel should possesse the promised Land, d they would forsake God, break his Covenant, and serve other gods: wherupon the Lord would forsake them, hide his face and bring many evils and troubles upon them; Therefore God charged Moses before his death, when Israel was now ready to enter upon the promised Land, to write this Song and teach it to the people, That it might be a witnesse for the Lord against Israel, and all their causelesse and inexcusable rebellions against God.

d Deut. 31. 16, to 23.

Sect. IV.

Scope, To e testifie as a witnesse against Israel, when they should forsake God, break Covenant with him, and serve Idols in the land of Canaan, and so bring upon themselves many woful judgments; To the condemning and aggravating of their causelesse rebellions, and to the clearing and justifying of Gods severest proceedings against them.

e Deut. 31. 22. compared with verses foregoing.

Sect. V.

Principal Parts. In reference to this end, In this Song are considerable, 1 The Preface. 2 The Substance of the Song. 3 The Conclusion.

THE PREFACE, or Exordium of the Song, containing, 1 An emphatical Exclamation to Heaven and Earth, as witnesses against Israel, ver. 1. 2 A Promissory Option or wish, that the words of this Song may have like efficacie upon Israel, as the fruitful Dew and timely Rain upon the herbs and grass, verse 2. 3. A pious Resolution to praise God. 4 An incitation of others to do the like, ver. 3.

The SUBSTANCE of the SONG. Which is, 1 Narratory, 2 Minatory, 3 Promissory. II.

I. NARRATORY, ver. 4. to 19. Herein is a Narration.

1. Of the glorious name and excellent greatnesse of Israels God, (against whom backsliding Israel could have no exception, laid down in several Attributes ascribed to him, verse 1, 4.

2. Of Israels corruption in general, Amplified 1 By the cause of it, themselves. 2 By the grievousnesse of it, not like the spot of Gods People. 3 By the nature of it, crookednesse, frowardnesse, &c. ver. 5. 4 By the unkindnesse manifested therein against the Lord, verse 6.

3. Of Gods goodnesse and mercies to Israel, Described

1. More generally, verse 6.
2. More particularly. Gods favours singularly appeared towards Israel.

1. In preparing habitations for Israel (before Israel was) By proportioning the bounds of the Canaanites of old (when God divided inheritances to the Nations) to the number of Israel that should afterwards succeed them in Canaan, verse 7, 8. Amplified by the ground of this mercy, viz. Gods gracious Acceptance of Israel as his portion and inheritance, verse 9.
2. In conducting and leading Israel himself alone through the wildernesse with singular care, tenderness and safety, ver. 10, 11, 12.
3. In enabling Israel to conquer Canaan, and to possesse that rich, fat, and fruitful Land, flowing with milk and honey; &c. verse 13, 14.

4. Of Israels great ingratitude and rebellion against God, forsaking the only true God that had done so much for them, embracing and serving idols, strange gods, new up-start gods, Devils, &c. pathetically aggravated, ver. 15. to 19.

II. MINATORY, verse 19. to 36. Herein the Lord observing and abhoring them for their provocations, terribly threatens them for the future, when they shall thus apostatize in Canaan.

1. To hide his face and withdraw his favour from them, verse 19,20.

2. To provoke the Jewes to Jealousie with them that were no people, a foolish Nation, viz. Gentiles, f where the Calling of the Gentiles is promised, verse 21.

f Calling of the Gentiles foretold. As this place is interpreted in the New Testament compare Rom. 10.19 &c. 1 Pet. 2. 10. with Hos. 1. 10

3. To heap variety of judgements upon them, ver. 22. to 27.

4. To blot out even Israels memory from among men, vers 27. Amplified, 1 By a Correction; God would thus punish Israel, were it not for their Adversaries pride and insolencie that thereupon would be occasioned, verse 28. 2 By the Reason of this threat, Israels bruitishnesse, verse 29. 3 By Gods gracious wishes of good to them notwithstanding, verse 30, 31. 4 By a metaphorical aggravation of their sinnes in several similitudes, verse 32,33,34.

5. To take his opportune time for inflicting these judgments upon Israel, v. 35.

III. PROMISSORY and Consolatory; wherein after all these threatned judgments, mercy is promised in Christ unto them, verse 36. to 43. This consolation promised, is described, 1 By the Season when it shall be bestowed, viz. in Israels lowest condition, v. 36. 2 By the Helplesnesse of all their idols in whom Israel would trust, verse 37,38. 3 By the Alsufficiencie of God alone to save or destroy, verse 39. 4 By the Lords Oath and peremptory Resolution to be avenged to the uttermost of all his, and his peoples adversaries from the very beginning, ver. 40,41,42.

III. g Calling of the Gentiles See Rom. 15.9,10.

The CONCLUSION of the Song, inciting the g Gentiles to triumph with Gods people the Jews, 1 For Gods avenging his servants blood upon their enemies. 2 For Gods reconcilement to his people both Jews and Gentiles in Christ, making Atonement for them, ver. 43.

(This may be sung as Psal. 51.)

1 Give eare, O Heavens, and speak I will:
h Let earth to my mouth's words attend
2 My speech shall as the Dew distill,
As Rain my Doctrine i shall descend,
As small rain on the tender herb,
And as the showers on grasse abroad.
3 For I le proclaim JEHOVAH'S Name:
k Ascribe ye Greatnesse to our God.

4. ¶ The ROCK; His work perfection is;
For all his wayes pure judgement be;
God's Truth, l without unrighteousnesse;
Exactly just, and right is he
5. Themselves corrupted-they alone;
Their spot is not his children's staine:
A vexing Generation,
Perverse and crooked they remaine.

6. ¶ O foolish people and m untaught,
Thus recompence the LORD do ye?
Not he thy father n that thee bought;
Who made thee and establish't thee?
7. The dayes o of old remember thou,
p The yeares of ages ponder well:
Thy father ask, and-heel-thee-shew,
Thine Elders, and they will thee tell.

8. When God most high to nations
Inheritance once distributed;
When he did sever Adam's sonnes;
The Peoples bounds q he constituted,
According to the number of his Deare Israel's sonnes. O love divine!
9. For, the LORD'S Part, his people is Jacob is r his possession's line.

10. Him in a land of wilderneſſe
(Encompassed with wants) he found,
And in the dismall emptinesse,
And howling of the desart ground.
Him-he-conducted-round-about,
Him-he-instructed-prudently;
He-kept-him: going in and out,
Ev'n as the apple of his eye.

11. As th' Eagle doth stirre up her nest,
Doth flutter o're her tender young,
Doth spread-abroad her wings, (as prest
To fly, to draw her brood along,) Doth softly take them one by one,
And them upon her wings doth beare;
12. So, Him the LORD did leade alone,
s Nor did strange god with him appeare,

13. He made him ride with glory great,
On Earth's High places, He did yeeld,
And plentifully he did eate
The fruitfulnesses of the field:
Likewise out of the rock so hard
The Honey-comb he made him-suck,
And suppling Oyle for him prepar'd
To flow out of the t flinty Rock.

14. Both Butter of the goodly Kine,
And Milk of fructifying flock;
With fat of Lambs fur passing fine,
And of the Rams u of Bashan's stock,
And of Goat-bucks both rich and good,
With fat of Kidneys of the Wheat,
And of the Grape the pleasant blood,
Thou didst drink wine both pure and neate.

15. ¶ But Jesurun did-wax-fat, and kick;
x With-fat-thou-art-repleniſhed,
Exceedingly thou art grown thick,
With-fatnesse-thou-art-covered:
Then God y that had created him
Forsook he, through temptation,
And very-lightly-did-esteem
The Rock of his salvation.

16. With strange gods of the Nations
They him provok'd to jealousie,
They with Abominations
To wrath provok't him grievously.
17. To Devils z they offered, not to God;
To gods not known to them, in need;
To new gods a lately come-abroad,
Of whom your fathers had no dreed.

18. Thou God forgot'st that formed thee;
Nor Rock, that thee begat, didst mind.
19. ¶ Then God saw, and them loath did he:
b His children him provok'd, unkind.
20. c He said, From them my face I'le hide,
I le see what their last end shall prove
For they d most-froward folk abide,
Sons in whom is no faith, nor love.

21. They me-to-jealousie provok't
With that which is not God, but lies,
They-me-to-anger-have-provok't
With their vile idol-vanities:
And I le move-them-to-jealousie
With Gentiles not a people yet,
Them with a foolish Nation I
Will move to anger, and them fret

II. THE PROPHETS.

Hitherto of Moſes, or the Law of Moſes, contained in the Pentateuch, or Five-fold Volume. Next in order follow the PROPHETS.

THe PROPHETS wrote all the Books of the Old Teſtament, beſides the Pentateuch of Moſes. Theſe Prophets inſpired infallibly by the Holy Spirit of Prophecie, wrote Books of three ſeveral ſorts, viz. 1 Hiſtorical, 2 Dogmatical or Doctrinal, and 3 Prophetical.

The b Hebrews thus diſtinguiſh the books of the Old Teſtament:

1. תורה Thorah. The Law, viz. the five books of Moſes.

2. נביאים Nebiim, viz. The Prophets. The prophets they ſub-diſtinguiſh into two ſorts, viz. 1. נביאים ראשונים Nebiim, Riſhonim, that is, The former Prophets; perhaps ſo called becauſe they treat of the firſt Prophets. Theſe are four, viz. Joſhuah, Judges, Samuel, and Kings. And 2. אחרונים נביאים Nebiim Achronim, i. e. the later Prophets; which they reckon up in four books alſo, viz. Iſaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the Twelve minor Prophets, which were anciently joyned all in one Volume, leſt they through their ſmallneſſe ſhould be loſt. That phraſe ſeems to favour this, c It is written in the Book of the Prophets; the Prophet Amos being cited, which is one of the Minor, or leſſer Prophets.

3. כתובים Cherubim. i. e. The writings, by way of emphaſis. They were written by the Spirit's inſpiration, not by Propheſie; ſaith d River out of Elias Levita. The Greek calls theſe books Ἁγιόγραφα, Hagiographa, i. e. the Holy writings; upon ſome ſuch ground. I. HISTORICAL BOOKS.

The HISTORICAL BOOKS of the Prophets relate the Hiſtory of the Jews, and of the Church of God among them, from the death of Moſes, which was e when he was one hundred and twenty years old in f 2493 year of the world; untill the period of the Perſian Monarchy, poſſeſſed by Alexander the Macedonian, call'd Alexander the Great, who conquered the Perſians, and got dominion of Aſia, about g Ann. 3613. after the worlds Creation. So that theſe books contain an Hiſtory of about 1121 years continuance.

Of this Hiſtory of the Jews, and of the Church of God, there are two principal Parts or Periods, viz.

1. Of the Iſraelites Entrance into the promiſed Land.

2. Of their Government and Condition, after that Entrance.

Sect. I. The Order and Name.

THe Hiſtory of Iſraels Entrance into the promiſed Land, is deſcribed in the book of JOSHUAH. So called, Partly from Joſhuah, the inſtrumental Author of this book, as ſome think; Partly from the chief Subject handled therein, viz. the Acts of Joſhuah, the Succeſſor of Moſes, the Governour and chief Captain of Iſrael, under whoſe conduct they conquered the Land, divided it by Line and Lot among the Tribes, and poſſeſſed it according to all Gods faithful h promiſes in that behalfe unto their Fathers.

Sect. II. Penmen,

Some aſcribe this Hiſtory to Ezra, or to ſome Prophet. Some think i Joſhuah was PENMAN of it; partly becauſe it bears his Name; partly becauſe it is ſaid in the cloſe of this book, k And Joſhuah wrote theſe words in the Book of the Law of God. But theſe Reaſons are ſcarce cogent: 1. Becauſe the books of Judges, Ruth, and Kings, bear their Names, yet not penned by them. 2. Becauſe thoſe words which Joſhuah is ſaid to write in the Book of the Law of God, intend not this whole Hiſtory of Joſhuah, but only the l words of the Covenant which Joſhuah made betwixt God and the people at Shechem, a little before his death. m Calvin rather thinks their conjecture to be more probable who referre the writing of this Book Book, or at least the collecting of the summe of this History, to Eleazer the High-Priest (whose death is recorded in the end of this Book) it being the High-Priests office not only by lively voice to teach the living, but also by writing to instruct posterity in the ways of God. And before the Levites (saith he) degenerated, they were Actuaries to repose to perpetual memory all memorable occurrents in the Church. But yet both o Calvin and others suspend their determinate judgement herein, because at most it seemes but conjectural and uncertain.

Sect. III. Time or Chronologie.

This Book (according to the common opinion of p Writers) recording the affairs of Israel from the death of Moses to the death of Joshuah, contains an History of 17 or almost 18. years. q Mr. H. Broughton saith; Hosea Joshuah, or Jesus of Ephraim, ruleth 17 years, & executeth the curse Gen. 9. making Canaan a servant to Sem. But among them all I find none that make out & demonstrate convincingly and clearly these 17 years, the time of this History: nor doth it appear (that I can yet find) particularly in this history of Joshuah. Take therefore this particular demonstration of it, which seemes evident, viz.

It is said positively, That r Solomon in the 4th year of his reign began to build the House of the LORD, in the four hundred and fourscore year after the children of Israel were come out of the Land of Egypt. This place is one of the great Boundaries for Scripture Chronologie, by which we are to regulate lesser Computations According to this therefore let us reckon up particulars, and we shall find that all other particular periods of time betwixt Israels coming out of Egypt, and Solomons beginning to build the Temple, are expresse and clear in Scripture, and make up in the whole 463 years, to which if we add 17 years, the time of Joshuah's History, the total in all amounts to 480 years exact, according to that place in 1 King. 6. 1. As followeth.

s Deut. 29. 5 Josh. 5. 6.	Israel wandered in the wilderness, s after they came out of Egypt, as is evident	40 years
	Joshuah governed, Suppose	17
	From Joshuah to Eli, the time of the Judges, and of their History, as in the Book of Judges is particularly demonstrated hereafter	299
t 1 Sam. 4.	Elies time of judging t Israel	40

As for the 111 years of Israels oppressions by their enemies in the times of the Judges, they (as hath been z formerly shewed) are indeed comprehended under the years of the Judges, and therefore in this Computation are not distinctly to be counted.

Sect. IV. Scope.

SCOPE of this Book (which seems annexed as an Appendix to the V. Books of Moses) is Excellent. As, a Josh. 21. 45. & 23. 14, 15. 1. To demonstrate Gods exact faithfulnesse in performing a all his Promises most punctually, made to the Patriarchs & people of Israel, especially touching his bringing them in to possesse the land of Canaan; and this notwithstanding all intervening difficulties and impediments, viz. Jordan, High walled Cities, Anakims, 7 Warlike Nations, especially their own sins. That so all the Israel of God may hence learn to trust the Lord and his promises in all ages for ever.

2. By Israels being brought through the wilderness and Jordan, not by Moses, but by Joshuah, conquering all the Canaanites, and putting them into the peaceable possession of Canaan the promised typical Rest; the absolute triumph over all the remainder of the Canaanites (left among the people for their trial and exercise) being reserved for the time of the absolute and triumphant reign of K. David: lively to adumbrate the spiritual conduct of the true Israel of God, through all the wildernesse-tribulations and floods of afflictions in this world; not by Moses and his Law (which only prepares and directs, but makes nothing perfect) but by the true Joshuah Jesus Christ, conquering all our spiritual enemies, Sinne and Death, World, Flesh, and Devil; and so putting them into the actual and peaceable possession of Gods true promised Spiritual rest in this life; reserving only some remains of sinne and spiritual enemies, to try and exercise the graces of Gods people, till the time come of Christs full and absolute reign in Heaven, our true David, when the elect shall have full victory and triumph, being brought into the true eternall rest of Heaven, there to keep an endlesse Sabbath unto God.

And this is not an Allusion, or Allegory feigned or devised by man, but an opposite Accommodation of the Type and Anti-type, appointed and so interpreted by God himself in his Word. For as the Apostle hath observed to the Hebrews, b Canaans rest was a type of Heavens rest; otherwise God would not have promised to his people, Psal. 95. another rest after their entring into Canaans rest: And Joshuah that brought them into the Typical rest, a Type of Jesus that brings the faithfull into the true rest. Hence Augustine. c Let the Jew if he will be a Jew inwardly, in the spirit, not in the letter; if he will be reputed an Israelite indeed in whom is no guil, remember in the figure that dead Jesus, who brought into the Land of the dying; and let him acknowledge in the Truth the true Jesus by whose conduct he may enter into the Land of the living. The d Prophets also declare Christ to be the true King David, whose Government is more absolute than that of Judges. Whereto elegantly the same Augustine alludes, e First the times of the Judges, then of the Kings; As there shall be first the judgement, then the Kingdom, &c.

b Heb. 4. 7. to 12.

c Superest ut Judæus ille, si vult & in abscondito Judæus esse, non litera, sed spiritu: si vult reputari verus Israelita in quo dolus non est, requiratur in figura illum mortuum Jesum qui introduxit in terram morientium; & agnoscat in veritate vivum Jesum, quo duce intret in terram viventium. Aug. contra Faustum Manichæum l. 16. c. 20. JUDGES.

Sect. I. Order of the Books.

HItherto of the Hiſtory of Iſraels Entrance into the land of Canaan, deſcribed in the Book of JOSHUAH. Now followeth the Hiſtory of Iſraels condition and Government after their Entrance into the promiſed Land. Which is deſcribed, what it was. 1. Before their Carrying away into Babylon. 2. During the Captivity. 3. After the Captivity.

I. Before their carrying away into Babylon, and that either under 1 Iudges, or under 2 Kings.

I. Under Iudges.

And here wee have two Hiſtories, viz. One Common or Generall touching all Iſrael. Another Particular, only concerning ſome particular perſons.

Sect. II. Name.

The Common or Generall Hiſtory under the Government of Judges, is the Book of JUDGES, in Heb. שופטים Shophtim, that is, Judges: ſo called, not from the Authors of it, but from the Subject matter of it, viz. The Government of Iſrael by Judges.

Judges were certain Heroick perſons raiſed up out of divers Tribes, by the extraordinary motion and inſtinct of the Spirit of God, who governed, defended, and oft-times delivered Iſrael (upon their return to God) from many enemies and extreamities of troubles, which by their ſinnes againſt God they had brought upon themſelves. This Government by Judges was in the nature of it Ariſtocratical; managed Ordinarily by the a Elders, or a Senate in the ſeverall Cities, as ſeemes intimated in the Song of Deborah and Barak: Extraordinarily, in perillous times, by ſome one extraordinarily raiſed up and acted by Gods Spirit preſiding over the reſt.

Sect. III. Penman.

Penman of this Book the b Hebrews think to be Samuel: Some, that this Book was c collected by ſome Prophet out of publique Regiſters or Records, which (as d Calvin thinks) were wont to be kept by the Prieſts and Levites. Others think that every Judge recorded the things acted in his own dayes reſpectively: and that Samuel, or Ezra, or Jeremiah, or King Hezekiah, (whoſe e men copied out ſome of Solomons Proverbs) f collected and digeſted them into one volume.

Sect. IV. Time or Chronologie.

This Book contains an Hiſtory of Iſraels Politie and the ſtate thereof, from the death of Joſhuah till the Prieſthood of Eli, viz. for the ſpace of 299 years, which may be thus computed and demonſtrated.

From Joſhuahs death, to the death of g Othniel.	40. years	g Jud. 3. 11.
From Othniels death to the death of h Ehud and Shamgar: For as i H. Broughton hath noted, Ehud himſelf could not rule ſo long, ſince God hath ſhortned mans life in Moſes's dayes to 70 or 80 years. After Joſeph who ruled 80 years in Egypt, none ruled ſo long as 80 years. But underſtand, from the death of Othniel, to the end of Ehuds affairs [wherein Shamgars rule is contained] to be in the whole 80. years.	80	h Jud. 3. 30. i Cave putes Ehudrebus præfuiſſe annis 80. Ex quo enim vitæ humanæ tempus ad 70 aut 80. annos contractum eſt, nemo in Scripturis reperitur vel a longe ad 80 gubernationis publicæ acceſſiſſe. Joſeph in Ægypto omnium fuit ultimus (quorum iis mentio fit) cui tanto temporis ſpatio gubernare contigit. Sed poſt annos 40. de, quibus ſub Othoniele, 80 fluxerunt uſque ad finem rerum ab Ehude geſtarum. H. Brought, Concent. S. Script. p. 52. edit. Hanov. 1602.
From Ehuds death, to the k death of Deborah	40	k Jud. 5. 31.
Thence to l Gideons death	40	l Jud. 8. 28.
Thence to m Abimelech's death	3	m Jud. 9. 22
Thence to n Tholah's death	23	n Jud. 10. 2.
Thence to o Jair's death	22	o Jud. 10. 3.
Thence to p Jephte's death	6	p Jud. 12. 7.
Thence to q Ibzan's death	7	q Jud. 12. 9.
Thence to r Elon's death	10	r Jud. 12. 11
Thence to ſ Abdon's death	8	ſ Jud. 12. 14
Thence to t Samſons death	20	t Jud. 16. 31
So the whole time of this Hiſtory of the Judges is juſt	299 years.	u Act. 13, 19 20.

Doubt. But how then can this computation be reconciled with that paſſage in Pauls Sermon at Antioch, viz u And when he had deſtroyed ſeven Nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land to them by lot. And after that, he gave them JUDGES, about the ſpace of 450 yeares untill Samuel the Prophet. Here ſeems a vaſt odds (viz. of 151 years) betwixt theſe two accounts.

Anſw.

x Rule 7. Num. 5. y Tempore quo Roma condita est populus Israel habebat in terra Promissionis annos septingentos decem octo, ex quibus viginti septem pertinent ad Iesum Nave; deinde ad tempus judicum tricenti viginti novem. Aug. de civ. Dei l. 18. c. 22.

Answ. Here is no difference amongst these Scripture-computations, though there seem such. The reconcilement of this seeming discord, see before at large in the x Introductory Advertisement to the Reader.

Augustine makes another computation of the time of the JUDGES History, viz. for 329 years, saying, y In the time when Rome was built, the people of Israel dwelt in the land of Promise 718 years. Whereof 27 (it should rather be 17 years, as one the like of Joshuah hath been evidenced) belong to Iesus Nave, then 245 to the time of the Judges. But herein also his computation hath failed, as before appears.

Sect. V. Scope.

The Scope, or End of this History of JUDGES, is

1. Immediately, To declare the state and condition of the Commonwealth of Israel under the Government of JUDGES. And how Israel behaved themselves towards God after all the great and wonderful mercies which he had shewed them ever since they came from Egypt, till (according to his promise) he had given them rest in the peaceable possession of the land of Canaan. And how God did deale with them. Viz. How they permitted many of the Canaanites, that accursed Nation, to dwell among them, yea, to contract and marry with them, &c. to the ensnaring and defiling of Gods people with Idolatry and corruptions in Gods worship, and depravation in their lives and conversations. For which pollutions and apostasies, God made these Canaanites and other Nations oft-times grievous scourges to Israel; oppressing them with cruel tyranny: yet when Israel repented and returned to the LORD, He raised them up Saviours, Judges, which wonderfully delivered them. Though the Philistines were not totally extirpated under the Judges, till the Kingly reign of David.

2. Mediately, To shew what happy Halcyonian dayes Gods Church enjoyes under pious Magistrates. How severe God is against the sins, especially the idolatry of his own people; and yet how he remembers mercy in midst of severest judgments, to his repenting and reforming people.

Sect. VI. Principal Parts.

This Book (being as a clear looking-Glasse or Map, discovering both Israels Carriage towards God, and Gods towards Israel in the Promised Land, during the Government of JUDGES) describes Israels sin, 1. As General, 2. As Special.

I. Israels sin; as General, universal or common to all the Tribes. Thus their sin is described 1 By the Kinds of it, 2 By the Effects of it.

I. Kinds or sorts of their sinnes, were primarily 1 Negligence, 2 Perfidiousnesse.

Chap. 1. z Canaanites not driven out.

1. Negligence, in z not fully driving the cursed Canaanites out of the Land, Ch. I. Here are declared, 1. How far, and with what successe, they proceeded to drive out the Canaanites, especially Judah and Simeon, ver. 1. to 19. 2. Wherein the Tribes failed, in not driving them out; whose failings are particularly mentioned, v. 19. to the end. 3. How Gods Angel reproved this great sin, in the Tribes, Ch. II. 1. 2, 3. 4. How Israel mourned upon this reproof, ver. 4, 5.

Chap. 2, a Israels idolatry in Canaan.

2. Perfidiousnesse, in Apostatizing from the true God to a Idols. This sin is amplified, 1. By the occasion of it, viz. death of Joshuah and the Elders, that had seen the Lords works for Israel, ver. 6. to 24. 2. By their incorrigibleneesse in it, ver. 14. to 20. 3. By Gods threatning and punishing them for it, in not driving out the Nations, ver. 20. to the end. Which proved a snare to Israel, Ch. III. 1. to 8.

Chap. 3. b Israels five sore oppressions

II. Effects or fruits of their sinnes in particular, viz. b Five cruel Oppressions under five sorts of tyrannical enemies, Syrians, Canaanites, Midianites, Ammonites and Philistines, (such evil-doing being still recited as the cause of all.

under five sorts of enemies.

1. Under Syrians, 1. By Cushan-rishathaim, King of Mesopotamia, eight years; finished by Othniel Caleb's brother, ver. 8. to 11. 2. By Eglon, King of Moab, eighteen years, finished by Ehud, ver. 12. to 31. And by the Philistines, finished by Shamgar, ver. 31.

2. Under Canaanites by Jabin King of Canaan (who had nine hundred chariots of of Iron) And Sisera the Captain of his Host, they were mightily oppressed twenty years, Ch. IV. 1, 2, 3. whom Deborah the Prophetesse and Barak finished; Their victory is laid down, ver. 4. to the end of the chapt. whose triumph is contained in their pathetical Gratulatory Song, Ch. V. throughout.

Chap. 5.

3. Under Midianites, Amalekites and Children of the East seven years from whose tyranny they were delivered by Gideon, Ch. 6. to 10. Where note 1. Israels sinne, Ch. VI. 1. 2 And their oppression for their sinne, ver. 2. to 7. 3. Israels cry under their Oppression to the Lord, ver. 6. 4. The Lords answer to their crying a Prophet, ver. 7. to 11. viz. By sending a deliverer, GIDEON, ver. 11, &c. Touching GIDEON are declared divers things, viz. 1. His extraordinary call to deliver Israel, ver. 11. to 23. 2. His notable victorious Acts against the Midianites, &c. ver. 33. to Ch. VIII. ver. 22, 23. 3. Things falling out after his subduing of Midian, viz. Gideon refusing Rule over Israel, His Molestation of Ephod, His seventy one sons, His death, Israels idolatry and ingratitude, ver. 32. to the end. 4. Gideons Successors, viz. 1. Abimelech Gideons bastard, who aspiring by indirect meanes without Gods call to be King, after he had reigned three years wastefully, Ch. IX. throughout. 2. Tola succeeding him judged twenty three years, Ch. X. ver. 1, 2. 3. Iair succeeding him judged twenty two years, ver. 3, 4, 5.

Chap. 6.

Chap. 9.

Chap. 10.

4. Under Ammonites and Philistines eighteen years. Where are set forth, 1. The cause of this oppression, viz. Israels Apostacy, ver. first end. 2. The effect, viz. Israels repentance and cries to the Lord; Amplified by Gods sharp rebuke of their idolatries, notwithstanding Gods former deliverances of them; ironically bidding them cry to their idols for help; yet upon their Reformation commiserating them, ver. 10. to 17. 3. The Remedy by Iephthah who judged Israel six years, ver. 17, 18. ch. 11, 12. throughout. Where, of 1. Iephthahs Nativity and private Life, Ch. XI. 1, 2, 3. 2. His Election to be Head and Captain of Gileadites, ver. 4. to 12. 3. His treaty with the King of Ammon, though unsuccesseful, ver. 12. to 29. 4. His engaging in Battel against Ammon, where his e Vow, Victory, and performance of his Vow thereupon, ver. 29. to the end of the chapt. 5. His victory over the Ephraimites, quarrelling with him for not calling them to fight with him against Ammon, Ch. XII. 1. to 7. 6. His death, ver. 7. 7. His Successours, viz. Ibzan, who judged seven years, ver. 8, 9, 10. Elon who judged ten years, ver. 11, 12. Abdon who judged eight years, ver. 13, 14, 15.

Chap. 11. e Iephthahs Vow. Iephthah seems not to have Sacrificed his daughter as a Burnt-offering, notwithstanding his Vow, for these reasons following,

1. Because he vowed not peremptorily [I will offer it up for a Burnt-offering ver. 31.] but [It shall surely be the Lords, Or I will offer it up for a Burnt-offering.] For the Hebr. particle (ו) signifieth both [And] & [Or] as also the Margin of our Bibles noteth. So that this might be the scope and sense of his Vow; That whatsoever he first met out of his doors he would either dedicate it to the Lord; Or (if it were fit to be sacrificed) he would offer it up for a Burnt-offering. And thus Pagnine Translated it, Erit Jehovæ, aut offeram illud in Holocaustum.

2. Because, There's an intimation of her being devoted to perpetual virginity, And she knew no man, ver. 31. Pagnine renders it Itaque ea non cognoverat virum, i. e. Therefore she knew no man; For the conjunction (ו) signifies, And, Or, Therefore, &c. [Therefore] viz. Because her Father had devoted her to perpetual virginity. Lest she should be any others then Gods, he would not have her to marry; This showes his ignorance of the Law of Vowes, Levit. 27. 5. &c.

Where provision is made for redemption of the persons of man or woman at such or such a price.

3. Because the Hebrew word [תנחות Letannoth] derived from [תנה Tanah] signifies in the Conjugation Pihel, not only [To Lament] as it is translated in our Bibles, but also [To talk with, or confer with] As Buxtorf in his Lexicon hath noted out of Kimchi; Ad confabulandum, juxta Kimchium, ut fœlices amicis colloquiis cum de virginitate, & statu vitæ solitario consolarentur, i. e. To talk with her, viz. That by friendly conferences they might comfort her both touching her virginity, and touching her solitary state of life. For this end the daughters of Israel went four times a year to comfort her by talking with her. In those dayes perpetual Virginity or Barrenness being counted a great reproach and a curse in Israel, either 1 Because they there by were debarred of the blessing of fruitfulness at first bestowed upon mankind, Gen. 1. 28. Or 2 Because they were hereby deprived of one fruit of the promise made unto obedience, Deut. 7. 14. Or 3 Because thereby they were cut off from all hopes of having the Messiah descend of them according to the flesh.

f Samson. 1. Under Philistines, Israel was oppressed, for doing evil against the Lord, forty years. But f Samson who judged twenty years, avenged Israel of the Philistines Ch. 13. 1. to Ch. 17. 1. Here are at large delineated I. Samsons birth, promised by an Angel to his Parents, Chap. 13. Ch. XIII. verse 2. to 24. Performed, verse 24. II. His life, both in his Prosperity and Adversity, where more particularly of 1 His growth, verse 29. 2 The spirits moving him at times, ver. 25. 3 His marriage with one of the Philistines daughters, as an occasion of quarrel against the Philistines by the over-ruling Providence of God; Where, of his killing a Lion by the way, afterwards finding honey in his Carcasse, his Riddle at his Marriage-feast, and other circumstances, Ch. XIV. 1. to 20. 4 His father in Law's giving of his wife to another Chap. 14. ver. 20 and Ch. XV. 1, 2. Amplified by the effects thereof, viz. Samsons burning the Philistines standing corn with foxes and fire-brands, ver. 3. to 6. Hereupon the Philistines burning of Samsons wife and her father, Chap. 15. v. 6. Samsons revenge thereof, v. 7, 8. Thereupon Samsons being delivered bound by the men of Judah to the Philistines, who breaking his bonds, killed one thousand Philistines with an Asses jaw-bone, and being extremely athirst thereby, God miraculously supplied him with water, v. 9. to the end of the chapt. 5 His escape from the Philistines in Gaza, at midnight bearing away the City-gates, &c. Ch. XVI. 1, 2, 3. 6 His love to Delilah, who at last betrayed him into the Philistines hands by cutting off his locks g wherein his strength lay, v. 4. to 21. Amplified by the Consequents thereupon, viz. The Philistines putting out of Samsons eyes. Their sacrificing to Dagon for delivering him into their hands. Their sporting with him in the house of Dagon, and Samsons pulling down of the House upon them, so (as a notable Type of Christ,) killing more at his death than in his life, v. 21. to the end of the chapt.

g Of Samsons strength seated in his Haire, and how it could be, Aug. hath this notable discourse.—

Naturæ investigantibus quæstionem non minimam incutit, quomodo totum sensibile corpus in insensibili capillo morum fortitudinis habuit: cujus damnum doloris sensum nequaquam intulit, cum illum tonsor a reliquo corpore ferramenti aculeo divisit. De Sampsone ergo prius quam nasceretur, a Deo præcipitur, ut capilli illius nunquam ferri acumine vel alicujus aculei tonderentur. Quamdiu igitur in Mandati Divini custodia permanserat, Spiritus Sancti munere maximam fortitudinem habebat. Unde cum muliebri persuasione præcepti Dominici transgressionem adinvenit, etiam spirituale fortitudinis donum quod habuerat statim recessit. Non quia in sensibili capillo, ossium, & carnis, & sanguinis, qui nihil ex his habet, virtus inerat; sed mandati Dominici observatio donum fortitudinis observabat, &c. Aug. de Mirab. Sac. Script. lib. 2. cap. 6. Tom. 3.

h Jam hic imaginem crucis attendite. Expansis enim manus ad duas columnas, quasi ad duo ligna Crucis extendit; Sed adversarios suos interremptus oppressit, & illius passio interfectio facta est persequentium. Et ideo Scriptura concludit, Plures mortuus occidit, quam vivus occiderat. Nam hoc mysterium in Domino nostro Jesu Christo impletum est, Redemptionem vestram quam ipse vivus non celebraverat, Mortuus Consummavit. Aug. de Tempore Serm. 107. Tom. 10.

Israels sinne as special or peculiar to some particular Family or Tribe only among the rest. II.

And here are recorded chiefly two great sins, viz. 1 Idolatry; and 2 Uncleanness.

I. Idolatry, 1 Of one Family, 2 Of one Tribe.

1. Of one Family only, viz. i Micah's; who had an House of Gods, Ch. XVII. His Idolatry is set forth by 1. The Idols which he had, ver. 1. to 5. 2. His Priest, viz. his own sonne, consecrated by himself, ver. 5. 3. One Reason of this Idolatrous defection from God, No King in Israel, ver. 6. 4. Micah's contract with the Levite of Bethlehem-Judah, to be his Priest, ver. 7. to the end of the chapt. Chap. 17. i Micahs Idolatry.

2. Of one Tribe, Viz. Of Dan, Ch. XVIII. The Idolatry of the Tribe of Dan, is described by 1. The Occasions of it, more remote, No King, &c. ver. 1. More immediate, viz. Their sending five men to spy out the Land for a Possession, who accidentally lodging at Micah's House, after they had spied out Laish, informed the six hundred Danites of Micah's Image, Ephod, and Teraphim, (as they went to fight with Laish) and they took them all away, ver. 1. to 30. 2. Their setting up Micah's graven image for themselves, ver. 30, 31. Chap. 18. k Danites Idolatry.

II. Uncleanness with a Levites Concubine, Ch. XIX. XX. XXI. Herein consider.

1. The description of his Concubine, by her Dwelling-place, Whorish behaviour, and Departure from her husband, Ch. XIX. 1, 2. Chap. 19.

2. The Levites journey to fetch home his Concubine, and their lodging at Gibeah of Benjamin in their return, ver. 3. to 22.

3. The uncleanness of the men of Gibeah, abusing the l Levites Concubine to death, ver. 22. to 29. l Levites concubine.

4. The dreadful judgment that befel the Benjamites for this sinne, being almost destroyed by the sword of all the rest of the Tribes of Israel. Where I. Their invitation to avenge this wickedness, by the Levites cutting her in twelve pieces and sending her to all the coasts of Israel, ver. 29, 30. II. Their Preparation for punishing of this folly. 1. Partly by informing themselves of the matter of fact, Ch. XX. 1. to 8. 2. Partly by ordering their Army, ver. 8. to 12. 3. Partly by demanding the Delinquents of Gibeah, that they might be put to death, which was refused, ver. 12. to 18. 4. Partly by consulting with the Lord herein, ver. 18. III. Their three m Battels with the Benjamites, in the first whereof Israel lost 22000. men, in the second 18000. But in the third they destroyed all the Benjamites except 600. ver. 19. to the end of the chapt. IV. Consequents hereupon, viz. Israel bewails the desolation of the Tribe of Benjamin; and for supply of the 600 remaining Benjamites with wives, they slay all the males and wives of Jabesh-Gilead, because they came not up to fight against Benjamin, and gave them thence 400 Virgins for Wives, and further directed them to catch the Virgins, when they should come out to dance in Shilob, to supply the rest, Ch. XXI. throughout. Chap. 20. Chap. 21. m That battel fought, Judges 20. could not probably fall out later than the 48 of Ehud, though it be recorded per ὑστερον πρωτερον in the end of the Judges, my ground is, because Phinehas was present at it. Judg. 20. 28. who being at least 20. years old when he slew Zimri and Cozbi, (otherwise he was not capable of bearing Armes,) at this time must be above 120. years old, which age was rare in those times. They who place this History according to the Order of Narration after Samsons death, must of necessity make Phinehas to be above 330. years old, which is improbable. Dr. Drakes Sac. The SONG of DEBORAH and BARAK

Contained in JUDG. 5.

Metrically Translated out of the Hebrew, and Analytically Explained.

Sect. I.

o Exod. 15. 1, &c.

THis Song is a Triumphant a Victorial Song, or Song for Victory that Israel had over Sisera's Host. Of like nature to o Moses his Song upon the drowning of Pharaoh and the Egyptians in the Red-Sea, As that, so this Song is full of most eloquent rhetorical strains, and emphatical Elegancies, that may even passionately affect the Readers or Hearers It seems to be at first Penned by Deborah p the Prophetesse, the wife of Lapidoth, that judged Israel at that time: And afterwards digested into this History, by the Penman or Penmen of this Book. It was Sung by q Deborah and Barak, as the chief Singers, (Deborah being the Prophetesse and Judge, and Barak the chief Captain of Israels Host in that Expedition) yet it's likely, Barak's whole Army that obtained the Victory joyned in singing this Song, on the self-same day that God gave this glorious victory to them. An excellent and imitable Example of speedy Thankfulnesse for received Mercies.

q Judg. 5. 1.

Sect. II.

Occasion of this Song is largely described in the r foregoing Chapter, and in summe amounts to thus much: viz. After Ehud's death, Deborah the Prophetesse succeeding him as Judge, Jabin King of Canaan that reigned in Hazor (who had 900 charets of iron, Sisera being Captain of his Host) mightily oppressed Israel for twenty years together; after which Deborah the Prophetesse (by command from God) directs Barak son of Abinoam to take with him ten thousand men of Zabulon and Naphtali, and to draw towards M. Tabor, God promising to draw unto him Sisera with his Army to the River Kishon, and to deliver them into his hand. Accordingly Barak did, and Deborah went up with him: And Sisera with his 900 charets of Iron and all his Host marched towards them; Where by the waters of s Megiddo the whole Host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword, not a man left, only Sisera lighted out of his charet, and fled away on his feet to the Tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite (which was of the children of Hobab the Father-in-law of Moses) for there was peace betwixt Jabin and Heber: But Sisera being weary and fast asleep, Jael fastens a nail of the Tent quite through both his Temples, and fastned it to the ground. So Jabin was utterly subdued. And thereupon the same day this Victorial Song was sung.

Sect. III.

Scope. 1. Thankfully and triumphantly to describe the singular goodnesse of God to Israel in delivering them from the grievous and long oppression of Jabin King of Canaan, for 20 years together; utterly destroying his whole Army, by Barak and his Army of 10000 out of Zabulon and Naphtali, with some few others. 2. To commend all that offered themselves willingly in that Battaile; but discommend those that assisted not. 3. To encourage Gods people in after-times to expect from God glorious victories over their enemies, when God calls them forth to battail, though they be fewer and worse armed than their enemies.

Sect. IV.

Principal Parts. To this end in this Song are considerable: 1. The Exordium or Preface. 2. The Body of the Song. 3. The Conclusion.

3. Iſraels deliverance from theſe Oppreſſions and miſery, in general deſcribed, as matter of praiſe to the Lord, *ver.*9. to 14. Where note, 1. The forwardneſſe of Iſraels Governours to hazard themſelves commended, ver. 9. 2. The praiſes of divers ſorts of perſons for Iſraels deliverance, is commanded and encouraged, *ver.*10. to 14.

4. The Inſtruments out of ſeveral Tribes which God uſed for Iſraels deliverance, are particularly commended; and contrariwiſe, thoſe that followed their private affairs, neglecting the publique, and Gods call to appear for it, are condemned, ver. 14. to 19.

II. At the Battel; here are deſcribed

1. The Enemies that fought with Iſrael, Canaans Kings, *ver.*19.

2. The Place of the Battel, in Taanach by the waters of Megiddo, *ver.*19.

3. Their Illſucceſſe, ſet forth Negatively and Poſitively. 1 Negatively, They got no prey nor captives, &c. no gain of money, *ver.*19. 2 Poſitively, They were quite overthrown, Starres fighting againſt them, The river Kiſhon ſweeping them away, And Iſraels prancing purſuit breaking the enemies horſe hoofs that they could not fly, *ver.*20,21,22.

III. After the Narration of the Battel, things mentioned are,

1. The Curſe of Meroz, for not helping in this Battel, *ver.*23.

2. The Bleſſing of Jael, Heber's wife, for killing Siſera who fled to her Tent for ſuccour; moſt elegant deſcribed, *ver.*24. to 28.

3. The Ironical taunting of Siſera's Mother, for her vain-glorious expectations of his Conqueſts, &c. that was now dead, *ver.*28. to 31.

a Andr. Rivet. Iſag. ad Sacr. Script. c. 29 p. 501. Sect. 16.

Many a Writers annex this Book of Ruth as an Appendix to the Book of Judges; as they do the Lamentations to the Prophecie of Jeremiah.

Sect. II. Name.

This Book of RUTH is ſo ſtiled from Ruth the Moabiteſſe, a Gentile, (Moab being one of the b inceſtuous ſons of Lot) concerning whom this Book treats, eſpecially of her Marriage with Boaz, whoſe Pedigree by a Prophetick ſpirit, is brought down to c King David; Ruth bearing to Boaz, Obed the Grandfather of David, of whom according to the fleſh d Chriſt came. Hence Ruth is reckoned among Gods people, and in Chriſts line.

d Mat. 1. 5, 6,

The Chald. Paraphraſt thinks that Ruth was the daughter of Eglon King of Moab. But ſaith e Gerhard, that is not proved by any Scripture, nor is it likely that a Kings daughter would marry a ſtranger, and leave her native country to ſeek bread in another land.

Therefore I ſhall not gainſay, if a little leſſe age be aſcribed to her, a little more to others Yet to me that time of Child-bearing ſeems not incredible knowing the ſtrong conſtitutions of bodies in thoſe times. Sect. I. Order of Books.

HItherto of the condition of Israel under the Government of JUDGES: Next consider their state as under the Government of KINGS.

And here we have III. Histories compiled in VI. Books, viz. The two Books of Samuel, the two Books of Kings, and the two Books of Chronicles. Which Histories, as a some observe, set forth the

As the subject matter of these Histories doth clearly evince.

I. The United State of the Kingdome of Israel, is described what it was under the Kings. 1. by Election and 2. by Succession. And how it increased and flourished whilst so united.

1. Under Kings by ELECTION, The Kingdomes condition is recorded in the I. Book of SAMUEL.

Sect. II. Name and Penmen.

This and the following Books are thus called, either 1. From the b matter or subject therein handled, viz. The History of SAMUEL, (which takes up a great part of this Book) and of the two Kings anointed by Samuel. Or also; 2. From the Instrumental efficient cause, or Penman of this book; c Samuel being supposed to have Penned this Book till c. 25. David the rest, d Junius is of opinion, that Samuel had a great share in Penning of these two books that beare his name; and that Nathan the Prophet, and Gad the Seer penned part thereof; from that intimation, e Now the acts of David the King, first and last, behold they are written in the book of Samuel the Seer, and in the book of Nathan the Prophet, and in the book of Gad the Seer. Which words of Samuel, Nathan, and Gad, seem to be the two books of Samuel penned by them three

By the f Greek LXXII. these Books of Samuel and Kings are called Βασιλειων, Books of Kingdomes: but the Latines more fitly stile them, Regum, Books of Kings; because they describe not the state of several Kingdomes of several Nations, but only the History of several Kings in one Kingdome of Israel divided into 12 Tribes. This Book is also called the I. Book of Kings, beause the latter part of it contains the history of Saul the first King of Israel.

This History treats of the last Judges, viz. Eli and Samuel; and of the first King, viz. Saul. Declaring when and upon what occasion the LORD changed the Aristocratical government by Judges, into a Monarchical government by Kings, viz. in the dayes of Samuel; g And upon occasion of the extreme wickedness of both Elies and Samuels Sons. As also how Saul carried himself both in life and death: and how God prepared David for the Throne, Saul being rejected.

It is an History of about 80 years continuance, viz. Under h Eli 40 years; and under i Samuel and Saul, 40 years.

Sect. IV. Scope.

Scope of this book is,

1. More immediately to declare the state of Israels affairs under the last Judges, Eli and Samuel; and the first King, Saul. How the Government of the Kingdome was changed from an Aristocracy to a Monarchy, especially in Davids person and posterity, who was a singular Type of Jesus Christ the true spiritual k King David, l King of Kings, &c. who shall utterly subdue all his Israels enemies, and at last settle them in perfect peace and rest. This change came to passe by Occasion of Elies indulgence to his sons in his later dayes, by whose wickednesses the Sacrifices and Worship of GOD was brought into contempt with the people: which God severely punished by the Philistines conquering Israel, killing Elies sons, taking the Ark; at which newes Eli fell backward off his seat, and his neck brake. But God mindfull of his Covenant to Israel, raised them up m Samuel, a wonderfull Deliverer of them from their enemies, a faithful Judge or Governour, and a singular restorer of Gods worship and religion from corruption: Whose sons being in his old age appointed by him to succeed him, they through their wickednesse and injustice provoked the people to desire a King, before Gods time was fully come to set up Davids God therefore gave them Saul n a King in anger, and took him away in wrath. For Saul, through disobedience to God, and other sins, forfeited his Crown: whereupon God commanded Samuel to anoint David King; whom therefore Saul persecuted all his dying day, notwithstanding all Davids innocency, meekness to Saul, and heroick exploits in war for the good of Israel.

Filii Israel dese nihil confidentes, Arcam testamenti Domini in exercitu suo in pugnam contra adversarios conducunt. Sed legis transgressores nequaquam legis Arca tuetur; victo potius, & deleto, ex parte populo ab alienigenis ipsa capitur. Qui victoriæ munere lætantes in terram suam eandem captam perducunt, & veluti triumphi hujus Authorem juxta Dagon deum suum, Arcam Dei Israel in Templo statuerunt, Sed primo die Dagon coram Arca prostratus repertus, iterum in loco suo restituitur. Crastino vero fractus ad limen in cenum partes, capite & manibus, spina dorsi ejus truncata reperitur. Quod FUGERE IDOLOLATRIÆ IN ADVENTU DOMINICÆ LEGIS CULTUM monstrabat. Qui enim fugiunt, persequenti dorsum dant. Præterea quoque tota Philistæa fada admodum plaga percutitur: nam & extales eorum prominebant, & ingens soricum & insolvens copia per totam Provinciam diffundebatur. Convenienter quippe dominus illis utramque pœnam paraverat, qualem rerum ipsarum conveniens ratio exigebat; Quatenus qui misera Animalia divino cultu venerebantur per miserrima animalia in adventu Dominica legis castigarentur; Et qui Tabernaculi Domini interiora, i. e. How the Philistines, (who came against Israel, hearing they were assembled at Mizpah,) upon Samuels Sacrificing and Praying, were discomfited by Israel, God also thundering upon the Philistines, ver. 7. to 13. 3. How the Philistines were kept under all the dayes of Samuel, ver. 13, 14. 4. How religiously Samuel judged Israel all his dayes, ver. 15, 16, 17. 5. How in Samuels old age, his sons (appointed Judges by him) degenerated from his integrity, whereupon the people took occasion to u ask for a King to govern them. Ch. VIII. 1. to 6. This desire of the people is amplified 1 By the displeasure both of Samuel and of the LORD hereat, ver. 7. 8. 2 By Samuels solemne protesting to them, and shewing them (at the Lords appointment) what the manner of the King would be, how Tyrannical, &c. ver. 9. to 19. 3 By the Peoples importunity for a King notwithstanding all this, ver. 19, 20. 4 By Samuels condescending to them, (at Gods direction) to set a King over them, ver, 21, 22.

Chap. 8.

Hitherto the History of the Aristocratical Government under the two last Judges, viz. Eli and Samuel, is continued. Next follows the History of the change of this Aristocratical, into a Monarchical Government by Kings, viz. Saul, David, &c.

II. The Monarchical Government of the people Israel, under KINGS is described in this Book, what it was 1. Under SAUL, the Peoples King, 2. Under David, the LORD's King.

x King Saul elected.

And 5 Then dimissed the People, ver. 20. to 26.

3. After Sauls Election, are declared

1. The different affections of the People to him, ver. 26, 27.

How ingratefully and wickedly they dealt with God in asking a King, when the LORD was their King that had done so much for them, ver. 6. to 16, Of this great sin of theirs Samuel further conviceth them, by bringing upon them on that day, Thunder and Rain at his Prayer, ver. 16. to 20. 4. c Sauls malice against David.

5. Sauls c perfidiousnesse (the fruit of his hatred) to David, discovered, 1 By casting his Javelin at David, ver. 10, 11. 2 Removing him from his presence, ver. 12, 13. 3 By propounding to David an ensnaring Marriage with one of his own daughters, only upon condition that David would bring to Saul an hundred foreskins of the Philistines; that thus by the Philistines David might be destroyed, which yet David effected and prospered, ver. 13. to the end of the chapt. 4 By commanding Jonathan and all his servants to kill David. Amplified, by Jonathans Compact with David, and his reconciling of David to his father Saul. Ch. XIX. ver. 1. to 8. 5 By his second attempt to kill David with his javelin, ver. 8, 9, 10. 6. By pursuing him to Naioth in Ramah, where both Sauls messengers and himself prophecyed, ver. 18. to the end of the chapt. This is further amplified, by Davids flight from Naioth and Ramah, secretly to Jonathan, with whom he expostulates about his Fathers hatred of him; Renewes covenant; Consults about his safety, how to discover Sauls evil mind still against David; which being done, David takes his leave of Jonathan, reciting the Covenant betwixt them. Ch. XX. throughout.

This Battel betwixt Israel and the Philistines, is described by passages, 1 Before, 2 At, and 3 After the Battel.

2. Saul consulting with a woman that had a Familiar spirit, (though he had formerly put away out of the land Wizards, and those that had familiar spirits) and by the woman with f the Devil himself in the likeness of Samuel, to know the event of that warre. 3. The remanding or sending back David and and his men home to Ziklag, out of the Host of the Philistines, upon the jealousie that the Princes of the Philistines had of him, lest he should prove false in the Battel, Ch. XXIX. throughout.

The great grief of his men, and his own distresse by the mutinousnesse of his Army hereat, ver. 4, 5, 6. 3. David having consulted with the Oracle of God by the Priest, pursueth the Amalekites, surprizeth them, kills all save 400 that fled on Camels, and recovers all the spoile, ver. 7. to 21. 4. Davids dividing the spoile betwixt them that went to the Battel, and them that tarried by the stuff, verse 21. to 26. 5. Davids Presents of the spoile, when he came to Ziklag, sent to all his friends round about, ver. 26. to the end of the chapt.

How singularly remarkeable was Gods Providence in sending back David out of the Philistines Host, whereby his own towne Ziklag was recovered, and his guilt of Sauls blood, (who fell in that Battel) and of fighting against Gods people, was prevented.]

2. At the battel. Israel in Mount Gilboa was worsted. g Saul and his three sonnes, (one being Jonathan,) and his Armour-Bearer, and all his men slain; Ch. XXXI. ver. 1. to 7.
3. After the Battel, the events

Thus the LORD delivered David his servant from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul.

Other Events of this Battel, are laid down in the next History, viz. II. Samuel.

Metrically Translated out of the Hebrew, and Analytically Explained.

Sect. I.

THis excellent, pithy, and pathetical Prayer was uttered by Hannah (the pious wife of Elkanah, the Mother of Samuel the Prophet) in the House of God, at Shilob, in the presence of Eli the Priest. Occasion of it, was as followeth; Elkanah having h two wives, viz. Hannah whom he loved, who had no children; and Peninnah, who had children. Peninnah i provoked Hannah, because of her barrenness whereupon Hannah being in great bitterness of soule when she was in the House of the Lord at Shilob, she wept, and prayed for a Son, and k vowed a vow, if the Lord should give her a son, she would dedicate him as a Nazarite to the Lord all the dayes of his Life. The Lord heard her prayer, gave her a son, whom she named SAMUEL, i. e. 1 Asked-of-the-strong-God, because she begged him of the LORD; obtained him by Prayer. And as soon as she had weaned him, she m brought him up to the House of the Lord in Shilob to Eli the Priest, and there devoted him to the Lord; making this Thankfull Prayer there, for the Lords giving her a son according to her desire in her distresse. So that it may hence well be called, Hannah's Thankfull Prayer.

Obj. But how can it be called a Prayer, when it seems wholly to be spent in Praises, Instructions and Prophecies, no one Petition being mentioned in it?

Ans. 1. Prayer and Praise are neer of kin: For, Prayer hath two branches: viz. One Petitory, consisting of Requests, Petitions or Supplications; this is most properly stiled Prayer: The other Gratulatory, consisting of Praises, Thanksgivings, &c. This is that which is here only laid down, and called Prayer per Synecdochen partis. 2 Praises and thanks for blessings received are tacite requests, virtual and implicite Petitions for continuance of those blessings; and do as it were incite and move the Lord to superadd more favours upon such thankful hearts. So that Thanksgiving may well be called Prayer. 3. In Prayer, Petition usually accompanies Thanksgiving: And though no Petition of Hannah's be here plainly expresst, yet (as n P. Martyr noteth) it is likely that Hannah in her thanksgiving for her son did also desire and petition (at least in heart and will) that Samuel might long live, and faithfully minister before the Lord many yeares.

Object. But how could Hannah utter this Prayer in the House of God, in presence of the Priest, and perhaps others; when woman o are forbidden upon divers grounds and reasons to speak in the Church?

Answ. 1, Perhaps Hannah (though she spake in prayer, yet) spake so low, that none could hear what she said; or, only spake in her heart, as she did formerly when she prayed for a childe: p But Hannah, she spake in her heart, onely her lips moved, but her voyce was not heard. And so to speak in the Church is not only lawfull for, but the duty of women in the Church. 2. Paul forbids womens teaching or speaking in the Church, as an Ordinary habitual received custome or practice; and this by divers Arguments: But this hinders not but that Godly women Extraordinarily furnished with a gift of Prophecie, as q Deborah in dayes of Judges, r Huldah in dayes of K. Josiah, The s four daughters of Philip the Evangelist in the Apostles dayes, &c. might instruct and teach even in publick Assemblies, according to the Direction of the Spirit of Prophesie: And this was Hannahs case here. But this extraordinary Action cannot now be drawn by Women into imitation in our dayes, This extraordinary gift of Prophecy being long since ceased.

Sect. II.

Penman. Though Hannah uttered this prayer, yet we find not that she penned this Prayer, Rather probable, that the Penman of this Book was directed to pen this Prayer by the same spirit of God, who indited it for Hannah, and knew every word of it. For, 1. The Preface to this Prayer implies thus much, Nec dubium est, Hannam gratias agendo pro Samuele sibi concesso, desiderasse una & petisse, animo saltem & voluntate, ut superstes dius esset, & coram Domino in serviret multos annos. *Pet Mart. much, expreſſing in the third perſon, And Hannah prayed, and ſaid; As recorded of her by another: And not in the firſt perſon, And I prayed, and ſaid; as recorded by her ſelf. 2. It will be hard to evidence any part of Holy Writ to be penned by a Woman, as part of Holy Writ.

Sect. III.

Scope of it is, 1. Partly to praiſe and magnifie God with enlarged thankfullneſſe, for giving her a ſon according to her earneſt Prayer. And this is the thing that herein ſhe firſt and immediately intended. 2. Partly to warne thoſe that are in high and proſperous ſtate, not to walk proudly and arrogantly contemning others; for God can quickly pull them down to the duſt. And to encourage thoſe that are in loweſt ebbes of diſtreſſes, not to deſpond, but to truſt in God alone, and cry to him who can eaſily lift them up, even beyond expectation. 3. Partly, Prophetically to foretel Gods guiddance and preſervation of his Saints in their motions and enterprizes; But his deſtruction of all his wicked Adverſaries, when he ſhall come to judge; and his high exaltation of the Dominion and Kingdom of Jeſus Chriſt himſelf.

The Chaldee Paraphraſt, and David Kimchi, (as t Pet. Martyr hath obſerved) judge this to be an excellent Prophecy. Hannah in a ſort ſuſtaining the Perſon of the Church, which wonderfully rejoyceth, when ſhe ſees holy men Divinely raiſed up, for purging out of Errors and abuſes in Gods worſhip; So here, Hannah exults and triumphs at the birth of Samuel, by whom ſhe foreſaw that Baal, Aſhteroth, and other baſe Idols ſhould be deſtroyed. She propheſies alſo (as Hebrew writers think) that the Kingdoms and Tyrants (Oppreſſours of Gods people) ſhould be broken and deſtroyed, the Aſſyrians, Nebuchadnezzer, Grecians, alſo Gog and Magog; yea, ſhe touches the Kingdome of the Meſſiah, and the laſt Judgement, and reward of the Godly and the wicked. u Auguſtine himſelf alſo obſerving, 1. That herein are things ſpoke beyond the ſphere and reach of a weak woman. 2. That the matter of of this Song cannot be all of it applicable to the gift of her ſonne Samuels. 3. That here's mention of Gods King, when as yet the Kingly office was not at all erected in Iſrael; concludes it to be a ſingular Prophecy, and ſo interprets and applies it. Thus Peter Martyr in his Comment, Junius in his Annot. x Diodate, and other modern Writers, account it partly Prophetical. Hannah begins her prayer upon the particular occaſion of her ſon, yet ſhe reſts not there in her own particular, but by the impulſe of the Spirit of God raiſes up her expreſſions higher, both to the Church, and to Chriſt himſelf.

t Pet. Martyr Comment. in 1 Sam. 2. 1, &c.

u Itane vero verba hæc unius putabuntur eſſe mulierculæ, de nato ſibi filio gratulantis? Tantumne mens hominum a luce veritatis aversa eſt, ut non ſentiat ſupergredi modum fœminæ hujus dicta quæ fudit? x In this Canticle, as in many others, Gods Spirit doth not reſt upon the firſt motion, or upon the occaſion of the ſingular and temporal benefit; but raviſheth Hannah into contemplation of the univerſal, ſpiritual, and eternal benefits of the Church, which are here ſet down by her, and whoſe perſon Hannah doth in this place repreſent. Diod. Annot. on 1 Sam. 2. 1.

Sect. IV.

The Excellencie of this Prayer appears in divers regards, viz. 1. In that the ſubject-matter of it is ſo ſublime and heavenly, namely, Of the Nature and Acts of God; The Saints, Church, and Kingdom of Chriſt. 2. In that the Perſon uttering this Prayer, a ſeeble woman, was rapt up and y inſpired with ſuch a Prophetical ſpirit, whileſt ſhe prayed it. 3. In that the Expreſſions in it are ſo elegant, ſtately, lofty. 4. In that the B. Virgin Mary (inſpired by the ſame Spirit of God) framed her Song of praiſe for the Conception of Jeſus Chriſt our only Lord and Saviour, in imitation of this Prayer of Hannah; yea, borrowed many words and phraſes hence, As may appear by this enſuing Parallel.

Sect. V.

Principal parts, This Prayer is 1 Partly Euchariſtical. 2 Partly Prophetical.

Euchariſtical and Gratulatory, wherein Hannah thankfully triumphs in the Lords great goodneſs to her, ver. 1. to 9. This is laid down by way 1 Of Narration, and 2 Of Admonition.

I. The Narration contains 1 Her ſpiritual Joy, and 2. The grounds of it.

1. Her ſpiritual Joy in the Lord, is deſcribed in ſeveral expreſſions, viz. 1. Her hearts exulting, that was grieved. 2. Her Hornes exaltation, that was debaſed. 3. Her mouths Enlargement over her enemies, eſpecially Peninnah, that was ſhut up in ſilence, ver. 1.

2. Ground hereof, 1. Gods ſalvation, particularly manifeſted in giving her a ſonne, ver. 1. 2. Gods ſingular Sanctity, therefore to be ſanctified. 3. Gods ſingular ſtrength, like a rock, ſupporting and ſafe-preſerving his people, ver. 2.

II. The Admonition inferred hereupon to her Rival Peninnah, yea, to all kind of inſolent adverſaries of Gods Gods humble and distressed servants, wherein consider 1 The Matter, 2 The Motives enforcing it.

1. The Matter, that they deal not so extream haughtily against Gods People, ver. 3.

2. The Motives enforcing this Admonition are drawn from

1. Gods accurate knowledge, whereby he discerns and weighs all mens acts, ver. 3.

2. Gods actual Providence, whereby he actually orders all things as he pleaseth, so pulling down the highest, that therein none have cause to presume; so lifting up the lowest, that therein none have cause to despair. This is cleared by an elegant induction of Particulars, as 1. In affairs of Warre, ver. 4. 2. In point of fulnesse and emptinesse, ver. 5. 3. In point of barrennesse, and fruitful child-bearing her own case, ver. 5. 4. In case of mortal afflictions and vital deliverances, ver. 6. 5. In point of Poverty and Riches, ver. 7. 6. In respect of deepest Debasement, and highest Advancement: ver. 7, 8.

3. Gods soveraignty and power over the whole world, whereby he is able to do all these things, ver. 8.

II. Prophetical, both Promissory and Minatory. Wherein Hannah foretells

1. The Lords guidance and custody of his Saints in their wayes and motions, ver. 9.

2. The utter ruine and destruction of the wicked Adversaries of God, though never so strong, verse 9, 10.

3. The Lord's Judgments of the whole World, that he may thus deal with his Saints, and his Adversaries, ver. 10

4. The establishing of his King hereupon, and eternal exalting of the Dominion of his Messiah, the Lord Christ, ver. 10.

(This may be sung as Psal. 100. Or, as the X. Commandments.)

1. SAM. 2.

1. Then Hannah prayed, and said;

For I in thy Salvation joy.

2. There is none Holy as the Lord,
For to inferior, none there is;
Nor any Rock, to be compar'd
And equalled, like thee God alone.

3. Now boast no more so haughtily,
Speak here no more proud haughtiness,
Let no Hard language, scorns or taunts
Come from your mouth, as formerly.

8. He doth from dust the weakling raise,

And make them heir Glory's throne:

For, Pillars of the earth below

Upon them he hath set also
The Round world, fixed to remain.

9. His gracious Saints feet keep shall he;
But wicked ones (that them assail)
In darknesse they shall silent be:
For man by strength h shall not prevaile.

h Heb. The Lord, his contenders.

Sect. I. Order and Name

HItherto of the Government of the people Israel under Kings by Election, viz. Saul and David. The first beginnings of Davids Kingdome, in Samuels private Anointing him; and Davids victories, being declared in 1 Sam. Now follows Israels Government, and the state of the Kingdome under Kings by Succession in Davids family, Davids being the Root of this Succession; whose History is declared in II. SAMUEL. So called for Reasons formerly mentioned in 1 Sam. It's also by the Greek called the II. Book of Kingdomes; but better by the Latine stiled The second Book of Kings, because therein the History of David the second King of Israel is continued.

This being an History of Davids Kingdome, Acts and other Affairs, may well be called, The Annals of King David.

Penman a some think to be the High-Priest; or some Disciple of Samuel, who yet for honours sake, gave the Book his Masters name. But it is rather probable that the latter part of the I. of Samuel, and this whole Book of the II. of Samuel, were Penned by Nathan the Prophet, and Gad the Seer; as it seems not obscurely intimated in the Chronicles: b Now the Acts of David the King, first and last, behold they are written in the book of Samuel the Seer, and in the book of Nathan the Prophet, and in the book of Gad the Seer. i. e. (saith c Junius) in the two Books of Samuel: parts whereof were written by these here named: Unto whom also d Diodate herein consents. And that learned e River asserts it against the Papists.

Sect. III. Time or Chronologie.

This II. Book of Samuel contains an History of about fourty years continuance, being a Record of King Davids whole Reigne, save only some few Passages in his extream old age, a little before his death, mentioned in 1 Kings chap. 1. and 2. Now f David was thirty years old when he began to reigne, and he reigned fourty years. In Hebron he reigned over Judah seven yeares, and six moneths: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Israel and Judah Understand here 32 years and an half, (which is 33 years current) and so with the seven years and an half over Judah, there are just 40 years. David as Prophet, especially as King, was a singular Type of Christ, For (as g H. Broughton, that mighty man in the Scripture, hath observed (David was anointed King over Judah in Hebron, at 30 years old so Christ was baptized, being 30 years of age. David was crowned King at Jerusalem 1000 years exactly before Christs baptisme. He reigned over Judah and all Israel, as many years as our Lord lived, viz. 32 years, 6 moneths

Sect. IV. Scope.

Scope of this Book is,

1. Primarily and more Immediately, To Continue the History of Israels State under the Kingly Government of David (Saul being slain.) To this end, The Reigne of King David is lively delineated in this History; 1 How after he had lamented Sauls Death, by degrees he obtained the Kingdome, notwithstanding all difficulties, according to Gods Promises, first being Anoynted King of Judah in Hebron: then seven years after in Jerusalem, King over all the tribes of Israel. 2. How he governed his Kingdome possessed; with great Piety towards God, Valour against his enemies, Humanity towards his friends and subjects. And hereby wondrously restored the shattered and broken kingdom, which wicked Saul had almost strangled in it's infancy. In this Book and the I. of Kings there are many Occasions of Davids most devout, heavenly Psalmes, mentioned, (as h P Martyr observes,) which without these Histories could not be understood. 3. How notwithstanding all Davids Piety and integrity he was overtaken with many sinfull failings, and some very grievous and scandalous, yet he most seriously and sincerely repented of them. Both are propounded, That (as i Augustine well noteth) at the falls of such great ones, the lesser may tremble and know what to avoid; at their rising again, they that have fallen may know what to follow and imitate. Though (alas) many will fall with David, but they will not rise with David. 4. And finally, how severely God chastised Davids faults, (though repented of, and Pardoned) by Sword, Famine, and Pestilence, in his own Person, Family, and Kingdom.

h In hoc vero libro & in priore Regum de Davide agitur, & se offerunt multæ occasiones Psalmorum, quos sine hac Historia intelligere vix possumus. Pet. Murt. Proem. Com. in II. Reg.

2. Secondarily and more Mediately to declare 1. How all-sufficient and faithful the Lord is, in delivering his upright servants from all their Adversaries and deepest adversities, and in performing his promises exactly unto them, notwithstanding all difficulties and seeming impossibilities to the contrary. 2. How godly Kings repair and strengthen their Kingdoms, which wicked Kings before them have weakned and ruined. 3. How the best and uprightest of Gods servants, oft-times fall into sinne; Ever rise again by repentance; and yet notwithstanding are disciplin'd for their miscarriages, by many sharp, but fatherly chastisements. 4. How the highest Prosperity of Gods people, is (like Checquer work) intermingled with Crosses and Calamities.

i Multi cadere volunt cum David nolunt surgere cum David. Non ergo cadendi exemplum propositum est; sed si ceciderit, resurgendi. Attende ne cadas. Non fit delectatio minorum, lapsus majorum: sed sit casus majorum tremor minorum. Ad hoc propositum est, ad hoc scriptum est, ad hoc in Ecclesia sæpe lectum atque cantatum. Audiant qui non ceciderunt, ne cadant; audiant qui ceciderunt, ut surgant. Aug. Enarrat. in Psal. 50. (sec. ejus Enumerat.) Tom. 8.

Sect. V. Principal Parts.

In this Book is an Historical Description of the Affairs and memorable Acts of King David, during his Regal Government; viz. 1. In his Life. 2. Near his Death.

I.

Davids LIFE is represented, 1. As it was Glorious 2. As it was Ignominious.

I. As it was glorious. The Glory of Davids Kingly life, was resplendent in his Royal Inauguration, or actual Advancement to the Throne. This is set forth, 1. By things Antecedent thereto. 2. By things Concomitant. 3. By things Consequent thereupon.

I. By things Antecedent, viz. Davids deeds and deportment in relation to the Death of King Saul, (through his deadly Enemy.) as k David laments the death of Saul and Jonathan

1. How deeply David laid to heart the k death of Saul and Jonathan, and the falling of Israel by the sword:

Chap. 1. sword; Rending his cloathes, mourning and weeping and Fasting till even, upon the relation thereof by an Amalekite that had escaped out of the hoast, and confessed that he slew Saul. Ch. I. ver. 1. to 17.

2. How David caused the Amalekite to be slain for killing the Lords Anointed, according to his own confession, ver. 13. to 17.

3. What a sad Pathetical Elegy David made upon the death of Saul and Jonathan, bitterly lamenting them, ver. 17. to the end of the chapt.

II. By things Concomitant, or accompanying his Regal Inauguration, viz. The manner of his obtaining the Kingdom, not all at once but by certain steps and degrees. As 1. The Kingdom of Judah, 2. The Kingdom of all Israel.

1 David Anointed King of Judah. Chap. 2.

1. He obtained the Kingdom of Judah, by going up from Ziklag into Judea to Hebron, where the men of Judah anointed him King over the House of Judah, Ch. II. ver. 1, 2, 3, 4. This is further amplified, By the information that the men of Jabesh gave to David their King, touching the Loyalty of the men of Jabesh-Gilead in burying Saul; and by Davids kindnesse to the men of Jabesh-Gilead for it, ver. 4. to 8.

2. He obtained the Kingdom also of all Israel, gradually. As Chap. 3. 1. Partly by prevailing over Abner and his Opposition to Davids Throne, in setting up Ishbosheth, Sauls sonne, King over all Israel for two years space. Where note 1. Abners setting up Ishbosheth King, ver. 8. to 12. 2. The manner of the Battel betwixt Abners and Joabs men; Joab prevailing, ver. 12. to the end of the chapt. 3. The issue of this victory, Strengthening Davids house, and weakning of Sauls house, Ch. III. ver. 1. Davids Increase is further set forth by his six sonnes borne to him in Hebron, ver. 2. to 6.

2. Partly, By Abners revolt from Ishbosheth, and his covenanting to bring about all Israel to David, which he also effected. This is described, 1. By the Occasion of it, viz. Ishbosheths challenging Abner for going into Rizpah Sauls Concubine, ver. 6, 7. 2. By Abners deep discontent herewith, vowing to translate the Kingdom from Saul to David, ver. 8. to 12. 3. By Abners agreement with David to this effect, ver. 12. to 17. 4. By Abners perswasions with the men of Israel to accept David as their King; reporting it to David, and so going from David to effect it, ver. 17. to 22. 5. By Joabs killing of Abner, (going to bring about all Israel to David) David not knowing of it, for killing Asahel Joabs brother, ver. 22. to 28. This fact is amplified by Davids discontent and lamentation for Abners death, ver. 28. to the end of the chapt.

Chap. 4. 3. Partly, By the Death of Ishbosheth Sauls sonne. Of which note, 1. III. By things Consequent, or ensuing upon Davids being anointed King over all Israel, viz. David's n Davids acts and affairs in managing the Government of his Affairs, Kingdom, which were 1 Polemicall, 2 Ecclesiastical, 3 Politicall.

1 Davids Polemicall or warlike Acts and Atchievement, viz.

1. Thinking of the Strong hold of Sion in Jerusalem, from the Jebusites, calling it the City of David, dwelling and building there, ver. 6. to 10. This is amplified 1 In Generall, by David's growing great hereupon, the Lord being with him, ver. 10. 2. In particular, 1 By Hiram King of Tyre's congratulating David, sending him Materials and Workmen who build him an house, ver. 11, 12. 2 By Narration of Davids Concubines and children born to him at Jerusalem, ver. 13. to 17.

2. Davids Ecclesiastical or religious Acts, viz.

2. The death of Uzzah, for staying the Ark shaken by the Oxen, ver. 6, 7. The Lords blessing Obed-Edom and his house thereupon, ver. 11.

p Oza filius Aminadab sequens Arcam, cum illam velut sustentans tangeret, subita morte percussus & suffocatus est. In quo facto temeritas cum ipso Oza, qui (cum non esset de genere Aaron) Arcam tetigit, damnatur, & rursus populus, quia causa in divinis rebus agere deberet, admonetur. Sed quidam aliquod præcedens peccatum in Oza per hanc culpam punitum esse existimant, quoniam sæpe evenit, ut minores culpa præcedentium peccatorum vindictam incutiant. Quemadmodum cum populus Israel peccasset, commovit dominus ut David numeraret populum, per quod accidit, ut plebs peccans per parvam Regis culpam, pœnam sustineret præcedentium delictorum. Angelus enim Domini LXX virorum millia ex omni Israel usque Bersabee occidit, & Hierosolymam urbem velut delere proposuit; Non quod Dominus civitatem, quam nunc disperdidit, delere vellet, sed ut ostensus in procinctu vindicta Angelus, dignam videnti Regi pœnitentiam incuteret. Ex quo intelligitur David minorem culpam commisisse, quam plebs; Qui peccatum suum perfolam pœnitentiam delevit: Populi vero delictum in authoribus suis mortis severitatem promeruit. Aug. de mirabil S. Chap. 7. II. His purpose to build God an house, made known to Nathan the Prophet, Ch. VII. 1, 2, 3. Amplified 1. By the villainous entertainment that Davids servants found with Hanun and his Princes, shaving off half their beards, and cutting off their garments to the Buttocks, ver. 3, 4, 5. 3. By the events ensuing hereupon, and occasioned hereby, viz. Davids victorious Battels with 1 The Ammonites and their adherents, ver. 6. to 15. 2 The Syrians, ver. 15. to the end of the chapt. 3 Rabbah the Royal City of the children of Ammon, which at last was taken, and the Ammonites cruelly put to death, (during the siege of this City David committed those two horrid sins of q Murder and Adultery.)

q Davids Murder & Adultery. r 2 Chro. 17. 3.

Hitherto the life of King David hath been described as Glorious, and these were r the first wayes of David.

Hereafter it is considered as Ignominious.

II. As Ignominious. The Ignominiousnesse of Davids life is described, both in respect of 1 His Hainous Sinnes, 2 His Grievous Sorrowes thereupon.

By the more immediate Occasion, viz. Davids espying of Beth-shebah Uriahs wife washing her self, from the roof of his house, ver. 2. 3. By the Manner of his committing the sinful act of Adultery, ver. 3. to 6. 4. By Davids endeavor to cloak the sinne, 1 Partly by sending for Uriah out of the Camp, that he might go home and lye with his wife, ver. 6. to 13. 2 Partly by making Uriah drunk, (the former device not taking effect) ver. 13. 3 Partly by writing to Joab to set Uriah in the hottest battel, whereby he was slain before Rabbah by the Ammonites, (the other attempts being frustrate,) ver. 13. to 26. 5. By Davids marrying of Beth-shebah, when her mourning was past, ver. 26, 27. 6. By the Lords great displeasure at these facts of David, ver. 27.

II. Davids Sorrows, and judgements of God upon him for these sins, 1 Threatned, 2 Inflicted, 3 Yet at last abated, Chap. 12. 1. Threatned by Nathan, 1 Paraboli cally, Ch. XII. 1. to 7. 2 Plainly, ver. 7. to 13. By the effects or issues of it, viz. 1 Davids sad lamentings, ver. 30. to 37. 2. Absaloms flight to the King of Geshur, ver. 37, 38. Amplified 1 By Davids trouble at Absaloms absence, his soul longing for him, ver. 39. 2 By Absaloms recalling home, first to Jerusalem, then to the Kings Presence, by the subtilty of Joab, and the Parable of the woman of Tekoa, Ch. XIV. throughout.

APPENDIX

II. SAMUEL.

Viz.

DAVIDS Lamentation

For the ſlaughter of Saul, Jonathan, and Iſrael by the Philiſtines.

Recorded in II. SAMUEL 1. ver. 17. to the end of the chapt.

Analytically Explained, and Metrically Tranſlated.

Sect. I.

IN that great Battel betwixt Iſrael and the Philiſtines in M. Gilboa (deſcribed in the cloſe of the former c Book) Iſrael in their own land was worſted by the Philiſtines, K. Saul and Jonathan his ſon were ſlain; whereupon the Philiſtines cut off Sauls head, ſtript off his Armour, put it in the Houſe of Aſhtaroth, and publiſhed this victory in the Houſe of their Idols, to the great reproach of Iſrael, and diſhonour of the God of Iſrael. Upon this Occaſion David deeply laying to heart the publique cauſe of God and his Church, (moved by the Spirit of God) Penned this ſad Epitaph or Mournful Elegie, (afterwards digeſted into the Series of this Hiſtory by the Penman of this Book,) which may fitly therefore be denominated, Davids Lamentation for the ſlaughter of Saul, Jonathan, and Iſrael by the Philiſtines, Foraſmuch as it is ſaid immediately before this Elegy, d And David lamented with this Lamentation over Saul and over Jonathan his ſonne, As Jeremiah wrote Lamentations over Jeruſalem, and King Joſiah, he being ſlain. e Joſephus ſaith, David compoſed Lamentations and Epitaphs in praiſe of Saul and Jonathan, which are read even to this very day. That learned f Pareus hath well obſerved, that David herein praiſeth Saul not as a Tyrant, as an Enemy, &c. but as a King anointed at Gods command, as a Publick Magiſtrate, as a Father-in-Law to him, &c. And he laments Saul, as rejected of God, and Periſhing in impenitency, and as a Map of humane frailty, thoſe in higheſt place not being ſecure from loweſt falls. Yet, it is to be noted, That all the excellencies for which David thus commends Saul, were only Natural, Moral, Civil, or Military; not Religious.

f d. Pareus in Adverſ. in 2 Sam. 1.

Sect. II.

Scope of this Lamentation ſeems to be,

1. Primarily, To incite all Iſrael to lay to heart this great and extraordinary breach that God had made upon them, (as g P. Martyr obſerves) that they might repent and return from their evil wayes. For Iſrael that was wont to conquer, is now conquered. Jonathan that with one Armour-bearer routed ſo great an hoſt of Philiſtines, is now himſelf ſlain by the Philiſtines and that in his own country on M. Gilboa, &c, Why is Iſrael foiled? Saul and Jonathan (ſo valiant for their country) fallen? Why are Philiſtines advanced with ſuch matter of triumph? Why is God thus diſhonoured, Iſraels glory laid in the duſt, &c. But becauſe of ſome provocations in Iſrael to be mourned for and reformed? This (ſaith he) is the aime of the Holy Ghoſt.

g P. Mart Com. in 2 Sam. 1. 17 &c.

2. Secondarily, to teach Gods people by Davids imitable example, how to behave themſelves in like Caſes. Not vulgar, but many ſingular exemplary vertues are reſplendent in David in this his Lamentation, for our imitation, as h Pareus hath noted them to my hand. viz.

h D. Pareus in Adverſ. in 2 Sam. 1.

1. Piety to God, whoſe diſhonour he feared, Tell it not in Gath, &c.

2, Love to his Country: lamenting the loſſe of ſuch valiant and uſefull men as Saul and Jonathan were, who hazarded lives and all for Iſrael.

3. Honour to the Magiſtrate. He honoured his Office, not his evil abuſe of it.

4. Juſtice and Truth; acknowledging even the vertues and excellencies of an Enemy.

5. Placableneſſe; that he could be ſo far from ſeeking seeking revenge of his deadly enemy, as that he could so love him, as sadly to lament and weep for his death.

6. Fidelity. His affection continuing to Jonathan even to death.

7. Modesty. In that he hasted not to the Throne, but waited Gods time and call, not carnally rejoycing when the time was come.

Sect. III.

Principal Parts. Touching this Funeral Elegy, Consider 1. The Preface to it, 2. The Substance of it.

I. In the Preface to it, note 1. Davids mournful Action, viz, His lamenting over Saul and Jonathan, the form of his Lamentation being indigitated, 2 Sam, 1. ver. 17, 2. Davids martial instruction of the children of Judah (inserted in a Parenchesis) He bade them teach the children of Judah the use of the bowe; because in this battel the Philistines had done most harm to Israel by the bowe. This is amplified by the Record made of it in the l Book of Jasher, ver, 18.

l The Book of Jasher is also mentioned in Josh. 10. 13. Touching the standing still of the Sun and moon, till Joshuah had avenged himself of his enemies, Is not this written in the Book of Jasher? The Hebrew word יָשָׁר Jasher, signifies upright; some therefore render it, in the Book of the upright. Some interpret this of the Book of Genesis, as being spoken to encourage his people. For they being under consternation of mind by this late blow, might say, to what purpose is the use of the Bowe to us? All is now lost and hopelesse. Nay, saith David, in the Book of the upright, there is a certain promise made to our tribe, that we shall recover all again. For in the blessings of Iacob the Patriarch, Here is this Promise to Iudah, Thine hand shall be on the neck of thine enemies, Gen. 49. 8. and to the like purpose in Moses his blessing of the twelve tribes, Deut. 33. 7. But others understand it of the Book of Gad and Nathan, in which they conceive this Funeral Elegy of David was recorded, As P. Mart. Com. in 2 Sam. 1. 18. observes. But some of acute and ponderous Judgment, rather are of opinion, that hereby is meant, some Book of publick Acts or Annals, which (with divers others of like nature (mentioned in Scripture) is lost, Iun. Annot. in Josh. 10. 13. D. Parem in Adverss. in 2 Sam. 1. 18. The subiect, nor the Author of this Book is not known, being lost, as many other such Books were, saith Diodate Annot. on Josh. 10. 13.

II. In the Substance of this Lamentation, Consider 1. The Proposition. 2. The Exaggeration of it. 3. The Conclusion.

I. The Proposition, of the sad matter of his Lamentation, viz, The death of Saul and Jonathan, (described, as 1 Israels beauty, and 2 The mighty ones,) in Israels high places on M, Gilboa, ver. 19.

II. The Exaggeration or passionate Aggravation of their fall and destruction.

1. By a Deprecation against the publishing it in the Philistines Cities, Gath and Askelon, with the reason of this Deprecation, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised Philistines triumph, and that would be the Lords dishonour, ver. 20.

2. By an Imprecation or Curse upon M. Gilboa, where note 1. The evil imprecated, perpetual Barrenness. 2. The ground of this imprecation, because that was the place where King Saul fell as a common man, ver. 21.

3. By emphatical Commendations of Saul and Jonathan, 1 Jointly, and 2 Severally.

I. Jointly they are commended.

1. From their victorious successfulness in military exploits against their enemies, ver. 22.

2. From their amiable Concord, 1. In living together. 2 In dying together, ver. 23.

3. From their speedy dispatch in warlike undertakings, which is usually crowned with honour; they were swifter than Eagles, ver. 23.

4. From their undaunted might and valour stronger than Lions, ver. 23.

II. Severally they are praised, viz.

1. Saul he is reproached for his triumphant bounty to the daughters of Israel, sending to them Presents of the spoiles he took, Scarlet, Ornaments of gold, other delights, after which they are incited to weep over Saul. Applicable ver. 24. 2. Lamented in an elegant Exclamation at their fatal fall. How are the mighty fallen in midst of battel. A translation from praise of Saul to Jonathan's, ver. 25.

2 Jonathan is l. Lamented, where 1. Jonathans death is described, ver. 25. 2. Davids deep distress for it is professed, ver. 26. II. Commended, to aggravate his losse, Jonathan is commended 1. From his near relation to David his brother. 2. From his Pleasantnesse to David. 3. From his most inclusive love to David, his love passing the love of women, ver. 26.

III. The Conclusion, in a passionate Exclamation, Expostulation or Admiration, at the fall of these mighty ones, and in them Israels Military defence destroyed, ver 27.

(This may be sung as Psal. 51.)

King DAVIDS Victorial Song, and triumph over all his Enemies.

Contained in 2 Sam. 22.

Metrically Translated out of the Hebrew, and Analytically Explained.

Sect. I.

u Canticum ἐπινίκιον.
x Compare 2 Sam. 22. 1 with 2 Sam 23. 1.

THis is King Davids most excellent u Victorial Song, or sweet Swan-like song x in his old age, not long before his death; after that God had delivered him from all his enemies especially from Saul the most constant and cruel enemy of them all, hunting David as a Patridge upon the mountains, from whom David made at least IX. or X. remarkable Flights and escapes.

This song then is an Abstract or Abridgment of Davids Triumphs over all his Enemies before his death; and may therefore well be stiled, King Davids Victorial Song, or Triumph over his all Enemies. This Song is the same for substance with Psal. 18. only some few words in the original Hebrew being omitted, added or altered, (as the exact Reader may observe by comparing them together) which are followed in this Translation.

Sect. II.

y Compare 2 Sam. 22. 1 with Psal. 18. Title

Penman of this Song was y David, (without all contradiction) who also sung this Song to the Lord in the day of his Deliverance. But Probably the Penman or Penmen of this History digested it thus into this History.

Sect. III.

Scope of this Song, full of most weighty and considerable Mysteries, is

1. To praise God with triumphant thankfulnesse for Davids deliverance from all his enemies (now brought under his feet) but especially from Saul his most deadly, malicious, implacable adversary: As also for establishing his Dominions in peace, and enlarging his Kingdome even to the Gentiles.

2. To instruct (by Davids imitable example) all Princes and Persons, that in just warres prove victorious over their enemies, how to make a right improvement of their Victories, viz. Not to give themselves to sensual pleasures, Luxury, Vain-glory, Self-attributions, Pride, Prophanenesse, Insolency, Tyranny, &c. (for so Conquerours themselves are conquered and subdued by their own lusts.) But in thankful, humble and holy Praises of the Lord of Hostes alone, setting up and magnifying his Power, Wisdome, Goodnesse, Providence, Protections, Deliverances, &c. seeing God alone doth all.

3. To triumph in God for the victorious Kingdom of Jesus Christ, the true David, and great King both of Jewes and Gentiles, (of which David and his Kingdome was but a type) who shall at last obtain z the utmost ends of the earth for his possession, shall subdue and tread all his enemies a under his feet, and settle his own Kingdom in everlasting peace. For this Song, as it is partly Eucharistical in reference to David, so it is partly Propherical in reference to Christ And so Paul the Apostle interprets it, in his Allegation of it, saying, b Now I say that Jesus Christ was a Minister of the Circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the Promises unto the Fathers: And that the Gentiles might glorifie God for his mercy, as it is written, For this cause I will confesse to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy Name. Whereupon Peter Martyr saith, c This Song containeth the excellent Properties of God; Teacheth to place confidence in God; sings of deliverance, Gods admirable judgements, Victories, an amplified Kingdom, and in all these celebrates Christ himself, &c. Augustine also long before him judged this Song to be in part Prophetical, saying, d Here speaks Christ and his Church, that is, the whole of Christ, head and body.—— And again, Whatsoever things are spoken in this Psalm that cannot properly agree to the Lord, viz. the Head of the Church; are to be referred to the Church. For whole Christ speaks here in whom are all his Members.

Sect. IV.

Principal parts. In this admirable Song, Consider 1. The Preface. 2. The Substance of the Song. 3. The Conclusion. I.

The Preface to it, contains 1. The kind of it, A Song usually sung with voice. 2. The Penman and singer of it, David. 3. The object to whom, to the LORD. 4. The time when, in the day, &c. 5. The occasion whereupon, Deliverance, &c. ver. 1, 2. II.

The Substance of the Song it self, wherein note

I. Davids Profession,

1. Of his experimental confidence in Gods All-sufficient Protection against all dangers and enemies, which Divine Protection is described so fully by an heap of metaphorical expressions, as whereon faith may securely rest, ver. 2, 3.

2. Of his devotion towards God, how he would call upon him, that he might be saved from his enemies, ver. 4.

II. Davids thankful Praises to God, for deliverances and glorious victories over his enemies, ver. 5. to 47. Herein David

1. Emphatically delineates his desperate straites and and miseries wherein he was involved, ver. 5,6.

2. He declares how in these distresses he improved Prayer, ver. 7.

3. Describes the Lords gracious deliverances of him out of all these distresses, viz. 1. By hearing his Prayer, ver. 7. 2. By many majestical and glorious Symboles or Tokens of the LORDS Presence with him, most comfortable to David, but most terrible to Davids enemies, ver. 8. to 17. 3. By the wonderfulness of his deliverance, being (as excellent e Moses) drawn out of many waters, and rescued from enemies too strong for him. And God did thus deliver him, 1 Principally, because he delighted in him, ver. 17. to 21. 2 Scripturally, that he might hereby reward him graciously according to his innocency and integrity before him, ver. 21. to 29.

4. Triumphs most joyfully and thankfully for those deliverances in many stately and most elegant expressions, like a mighty Conqueror victoriously trampling upon the necks of all his enemies, ver. 29. to 44.

5. Acknowledgeth not only his deliverance from his enemies, But the enlargement of his Kingdome even to the Gentiles, who hearing of his glory and greatnesse, did quake and submit themselves to him ver. 44. to 47.

The Conclusion of the Song most sweetly

1. With cordial expressions of present gratitude for these divine deliverances, ver. 47, 48, 49.

2. With Prophetical Promises of future gratitude for future blessings, the full accomplishment whereof should be in Christ that was to be of Davids seed, ver. 50, 51.

2. SAM. 22.

39. I have consumed them likewise,
Yea so I have them wounded all,

I. KINGS.

Sect. I. Order of the Book

THe UNITED State of the Kingdome of Israel, as it Began under King Saul, and Increased under King David, hath been described in the Two Books of SAMUEL. (Which came to its height and full flourishing under King Solomon, as in the beginning of I. Kings is evidenced.)

The DIVIDED state of the Kingdome, and how upon that division it Decreased and came to Ruine, till at last the Ten Tribes were carried captive into Assyria by Salmanasar, and Judah carried captive into Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, is laid down in the Two Books of KINGS.

This Division and decay of the Kingdome is laid down two waies. 1. According to the Causes and Beginnings thereof. 2. According to the Progresse thereof.

I. According to the Causes and first Beginnings of this Division, and decay thereupon ensuing. These are set forth in the I. of KINGS.

Sect. II. Name.

This Book is stiled by the Heb. א מלכים I. Melacim. that is, I. KINGS. By the Greek The III. of Kingdoms. But better according to the Latine, The III of Kings. The History of the Kings both of Judah and Israel, being the Subject-matter of the Book.

Sect. III. Subject Matter.

In this Book, the Causes and first Beginnings of the Kingdoms Division and Decay are laid down 1 Partly by way of Opposition of the flourishing state of Davids Kingdom united under Solomon c. 1, to c. 11. 2. Partly by way of Exposition of the Occasions, (viz Solomons sinnes, Gods Justice, Solomons Death c. 11. and of the first Beginnings of the Division and decay of the Kingdom under Reboboam, to whom only two Tribes were left subject, Judah and Benjamin, 1 King 12. 16, &c. And under Jeroboam, to whom the other ten Tribes revolted: and afterwards under their Successors severally.

Now in this Book are recorded the Acts of K. Solomon

Sect. IV. Time or Chronologie.

This Book contains an Hiſtory of 126 years continuance; if we compute the years of the ſeveral Kings Reigns at large, and complenda, as they are expreſſed in this Book, without ſubſtraction. And this is evidently demonſtrated in the ſubjoyned Catalogue; wherein it is remarkable, how the years of the 4 Kings of Judah, and of the 8 Kings of Iſrael, run in a contemporary Parallel in this Book, and, with Solomons, do exactly agree in this Total ſumme of 126 years; as followeth.

SOLOMON King of JUDAH and of all ISRAEL. 1 KING. 11: 42.

And whereas Iosephus [illegible] three years of the ſeveral Kings of Iſrael and Judah, and Africanus [illegible] according to [illegible] Kings of Iſrael [illegible] years, connecting the laſt year of the precedent with the firſt year of the ſubſequent Kings, to [illegible] years of Solomons reign, 1 year of Rehoboam, the 18. year of Jeroboam, to be the 1 year of Iſrael, &c. the total ſum will be 128 years exact. And ſo conſequently according to this account, there is an hiſtory of 128 years only, viz. 2 years ſhort of the former Computation.

Doubt. You have omitted four years about the time of King Jehoſhaphat's Reign, becauſe of ſome ſeeming difference of Scripture hiſtories. For, it is ſaid in one place, that Jehoſhaphat reigned twenty and five years in Jeruſalem. And in other places intimate that he reigned ſo long; for it is ſaid, that a Ahaziah ſon of Ahab began to reign over Iſrael, the 17 year of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah, and reigned two years. That b Jehoram another ſon of Ahab, reigned in his ſtead in the ſecond year of Jehoram ſon of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah: and that the c Jehoram King of Iſrael began to reign the 18. year of the reign of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah, by all which it appears, that Jehoram ſon of Jehoſhaphat, the firſt year of his reign, was parallel with the 18. year of Jehoſhaphat; and conſequently Jehoram's firſt year, with Jehoſhaphat's 19. year. Or that both Ahaziah began to reign over Iſrael, and Jehoram ſon of Jehoſhaphat began to reign over Judah, in the ſame 17. year of Jehoſhaphat; and ſo there are 8 years from Jehoſhaphat's 25 years ſomewhat omitted. This is one knot.*

Further it is ſaid elſewhere, that d In the 5. year of Jehoram ſon of Ahab King of Iſrael, Jehoram ſon of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jeruſalem. Now Jehoram King of Iſrael's 5. years were parallel with Jehoſhaphat King of Judah's 22. year; e for he began in Jehoſhaphat's 18. year to reign. So that by this account, Jehoram ſonne of Jehoſhaphat began to reign over Judah in Jehoſhaphat's 22. year. Take both ends off 3 years from Jehoſhaphat's 25. and alſo ſeemeth repugnant to the former computation, evidencing that Jehoram began to reigne in the 17. year of Jehoſhaphat. This is another knot.

Adde hereunto, another Scripture ſaith, h That after Jehoſhaphats death, Jehoram his ſon reigned in his ſtead. And this could not be till the 25. year of Jehoſhaphats reign, 1 King. 22. 24. And this ſeems to croſſe both the former times of Jehoram's beginning to reign. This is a third knot.

Anſw. For reſolution herein, that Obſervation of the learned and accurate H. Broughton is to be conſidered, and eaſily, unties all theſe knots at once; viz. [1 JORAM thrice Vice-Roy, and Roy, in 17. and 22. and 25. of Jehoſhaphat: never proſpered.] 1. In the 17. year of Jehoſhaphat, Jehoram his ſon began to reign as Pro-Rex, or Vice-Roy to his father. This was his firſt time, according to thoſe places 1 King. 22. 51. 2 King. 1. 7. and 2 King. 3. 1. 2. In the 22. year of Jehoſhaphat Jehoram his ſon began again to reign as Vice-Roy; which 22. year was contemporary to the 5. year of Jehoram King of Iſrael, according to thoſe Texts in 2 Kings 3. 1. and 2 Kings 8. 16, 17. In this latter Text it is ſaid, And in the fifth year of Jehoram the ſon of Ahab King of Iſrael, Jehoſhaphat then King of Judah, Jehoram the ſon of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah began to reign. Which gives us plainly to underſtand, that then Jehoram began to reign as Vice-Roy, his father ſtill being King, and ſo reigned with his father 4 years before his death. Which 4 years are to be reckoned part of

of his 8 years reign: and this the rather, because when Jehoshaphat's death is mentioned, it is not said And Jehoram his son began to reign; but, Jehoram his son reigned in his stead, 2 Chron. 21. 1, 3. For he had begun to reign 4 years afore, with his father; Now he reigned alone. This was his second time of reigning. 3. Jehoshaphat dying in the 25. year after he came to the Crown, Jehoram his son is said to reign in his stead, 2 Chron. 21. 1, 3; viz. then Jehoram came to his compleat reign alone; and so he reigned 4 years. This was his third time.

So that Jehoshaphat reigned alone only 17 years; but jointly with his son Jehoram 8 years more, viz. 25. years in all. And thus by diligent comparing of Scripture with Scripture, the accurate concord and concent of it may be found out, even where most discord seems to be.

This seems to be the cleerest way of reconciling these Scriptures about Jehoshaphat's reign; and the truest Computation according to the plain intent of the Text it self. And yet k some learned men somwhat puzzle themselves in this Computation, divers of them neither agreeing with the Text, nor with one another, as in the Margin is evident.

k Twenty and five.] By 2 King. 3. 1. it appeareth that in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat, Joram King of Israel began to reign. And by 2 King. 1. 17. that the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat was the second year of his son Joram. And by 2 King. 8. 16. that this Joram son of Jehoshaphat did not begin to reign but in the fifth year of the other Joram King of Israel. Whence we must conclude, that in these five and twenty years of the reign of Jehoshaphat, is comprehended all the time from his succession to the Kingdome, even to his death: Whereof he reigned sixteen [it should be seventeen] years alone; then he joyned his son Joram with him for 7 years space: and at last put the whole Government into his hands, disburthening himself of it two years before his death. Jo. Diodat. Annot. on 1 King. 22, 42, But this Author considers not how Jehoram was twice Vice-Roy, or Deputy-King, the first time in the 17. year, the second time in the 22. year of his fathers reign till his death, &c. as hath been evidenced.

Prima difficultas est in annis Josaphati & Jorami filii, quia 1 Reg. 22. 42. dicitur Josaphat regnasse 25 annos, & Joram filius Josaphati dicitur cœpisse regnare quinto anno Jorami filii Achabi: qui incidit in annum 23 Josaphati. Ergo Joram annos duos regnavit cum Patre, 2 Reg. 8. 16, Cum vero ibidem dicitur Joram regnasse annos 8. intelligitur regnasse duos cum Patre; sex reliquos solus. Sic Gualterus Mercator. Alii, ut Funcius, Bucholzerus quadriennium volunt regnasse Joramum cum Patre; Hi duos annos amittunt. Candidus patri 25, filio 8 integros tribuit & sic duobus abundat. *D. Sect. V. Penmen.

Penman of this Book, and also of II. KINGS, is conceived not to be any one man, but divers. Though the Hebrews would have them to be written by Jeremiah. Others think that the Churches history, which was written by divers, was digested and collected into volumes, either by l Ezra, or by the m chief Priests and Prophets, as the Churches publick Actuaries, whom we may probably conceive to have penned, and to have had a chief hand in ordering the Books written in their respective dayes.

Notwithstanding, it seems evident, that the beginning of I. Kings touching Solomon's reign, was written by Nathan, Ahijah and Iddo; for it is said, n Now the rest of the Acts of Solomon, first and last, are they not written in the words of Nathan the Prophet, and in the Prophesie of Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of Iddo the Seer? Which acute o Junius understands of the beginning of I. Kings, written by these three herein named. And other parts were written by Jehu son of Hanani. p Now the rest of the Acts of Jehoshaphat first and last, behold they are written in the words of Jehu the sonne of Hanani, who is mentioned in the Book of the Kings of Israel. As also by Isaiah the Prophet. q Now the rest of the Acts of Uzziah, first and last, did Isaiah the Prophet the sonne of Amos write; thinks Junius, both in the Second Book of Kings, and also in the Book of his Prophecy. It is very propable that the Acts of the several Kings were recorded and written by these Prophets that were contemporary to them.

Sect. VI. Scope.

Scope of this Book, wherein the History of Israels State under Kingly Government is contained from David till the Reign of Jehoram, sonne of Jehoshaphat King of Judah, is either 1 More Immediate, or 2 More mediate.

1. More Immediate, to shew how David in his old age, according to Gods Appointment, commanded Solomon his sonne, (notwithstanding his elder brother Adonijahs exalting himself to be King,) to be set upon his Throne. And how Solomon after Davids death governed his Kingdom in Wisdom, Justice and Godlinesse. How God appearing to him in a dream, at his request promised him incomparable Wisdom, Riches and Honour, &c. and performed it accordingly, so that he was highly honoured and beloved of his subjects, and admired of all Princes far and near. How his Kingdome flourishing with wonderful Peace and Prosperity, He built the most magnificent Temple of the Lord at Jerusalem, the fixed place of Gods worship; so that as Davids Kingdom lively represented the State of the Church as Militant on earth; Solomons Kingdom notably adumbrated the condition of it as triumphant in Heaven. How Solomon in his old age, loving many strange women, had his heart stollen away, and divided from God, to the countenancing of Idolatry. Whereupon the division of his Kingdom from his seed is threatned, and (upon occasion of his son Rehoboams tyrannical words to the People) inflicted: ten tribes (called Israel) falling off to Jeroboam, two tribes only, viz. Judah and Benjamin, (called Judah) remaining to Solomons House for Davids sake. How through Jeroboams Policie in setting up two Calves for the ten tribes to worship, a woful Rent was also made in the matters of Religion; what wicked Kings all the Kings of Israel were, both in private life, and publick Government. How notwithstanding in Judah there were intermingled good Kings, who took care to Reforme Religion being corrupted, and to Protect it being reformed, God still continuing his Church in Judah, and raising up prophets from time to time, to correct, direct, encourage them as they had need, to gather his Elect out of Israel, and leave the ungodly without excuse when Gods Judgments came upon them.

2. More Mediate, to declare how the Piety of Kings, preserves their Kingdoms in unity and flourishing prosperity: But the sins and wickednesse of Kings, especially their idolatry, whereby they divide themselves from God, brings divisions into their Kingdoms, and consequently ruine upon themselves, their families and Dominions.

Sect. VII. Principal Parts.

The chief Parts and Method of this History, might be pointed out according to the Periods of the several King's Reignes, (the Subject-matter of the Book;) But rather thus. This Book describes 1. The Increase of the Kingdom of Israel to the utmost top of its temporal glory under King Solomon, Whilest United. 2. The Decrease thereof after Solomon, when divided.

The Increase and Growth of the Kingdom to its height of worldly Glory, is set forth under the Reign of King Solomon, whose 1. Life 2. Death are to that end recorded.

I. King

ing a tribute of bond-service upon the Canaanites in the land, but not upon Israel, verse 15. to 26.

10. In his building a Navy of ships at Ezion-Gebir, which fetched Gold from Ophir, verse 26, 27, 28.

6. Solomons condition, both Prosperous and Adverse.

1. Prosperous. His prosperity is described, I. By his HONOUR and FAME, whereupon the Queen of Sheba comes to prove him with hard Questions, &c. Chap. X. 1. to 14. II. By his RICHES, discovered 1. By the plenty of gold that came to him yearly, ver. 14, 15. 2. By his two hundred targets, and three hundred shields of beaten gold, ver. 16, 17. 3. By his ivory Throne overlaid with the best gold, ver. 18. to 21. 4. By all his vessels of gold, (silver being nothing accounted of in his dayes,) ver. 21. to 24. 5. By the rich Presents brought him far and neer, ver. 24. 25. 6. By his chariots and horsemen, ver. 26. 7. By the plenty of silver, ver. 27. 8. By his tribute, ver. 28 29.

2. Adverse. His adversity is described as it was I. Procured, and brought upon himself by his fearful Idolatries, where unto he was drawn by loving many strange women, Ch. XI. 1. to 9. II. Threatned, with rending of his Kingdom from him, reserving only one tribe for David and Jerusalems sake, ver. 9. to 14. III. Inflicted, by the LORDS stirring up divers adversaries against Solomon, viz. 1, Hadad the Edomite, ver. 14. to 23. 2, Rezon, the son of Eliadah, ver. 23. to 26. 3. Jeroboam the son of Nebat Solomons servant, ver. 26. to 41.

7. The rest of Solomons acts, ver. 41.

Chap. 11. y Doubt. But seeing Solomon in his old age, so wofully forsook God, and fell to such horible idolatry; and we read not of his repentance; What may we think of his eternal salvation? Whether was Solomon saved or not?

Answ. This doubt hath the more difficulty in it, because Scripture doth not afford us so evident a Resolution herein, one way or other. And therefore learned men both ancient and modern have been of several opinions herein, and seem much unresolved about this matter. Briefly consider the Arguments on both sides, and then see what is fittest to be determined.

I. Arguments against Solomons Eternal salvation, viz.

1. God was angry with Solomon, because his heart was turned from God, 1 King. 11. 9. Answ. This evinceth not his damnation; for 1. God is sometimes angry and displeased with his Elect for their sins, as with Moses, Deut. 1. 37. and 4. 21. with Aaron, Deut. 9. 20. with David, 2 Sam. 11. 27. 2. The Lord was angry with Solomon as a Father, not as an Enemy or Judge; For his Chastisement and Reformation, not properly for his punishment and condemnation.

2. David the Prophet fore-warned Solomon his sonne, thus; Thou Solomon my sonne, know thou the God of thy Father, and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing minde,——— If thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever, 1 Chron. 28. 9. Therefore Solomon forsaking God, seems to be cast off for ever.

Answ. 1. Gods threatnings of evil, though very peremptory, are not alwaies actually performed, but sometimes are for other ends, viz. to provoke sinners to repentance, as in Nineveh's case Jonah 3, 4. 10. To caution his Saints against sin, &c. 2. Should Solomon have utterly and finally forsaken God, God would have cast him off for ever; but Solomon repented, (as after will appear.) 3. Solomon for forsaking God so far as he did, was in some sense cast off for ever; viz. in respect of the Regal glory of his family, ten Tribes being quite rent from him, and never more returning to his house.

3. We read of Solomons fall, 1 Kings 11. 1. to 9. but we read not of his Repentance, nor of his demolishing of the idolatrous high places which he had built, for they were long after demolished by King Josiah, 2 Kings 23. 13. yet Manasseh's repentance, 2 Chron. 33. 12, &c. yea, Ahabs counterfeit repentance, 1 Kings 21. 27, 28, 29. are recorded.

Answ. 1. Divers grounds from Scripture may evince that Solomon did repent, as in the subsequent Reasons. 2. To argue thus, Solomons Repentance is not recorded, therefore he repented not; is not cogent. We read not that Adam and Eve repented of their first fall: shall we say they repented not; or were not saved? Christ descending of Adam according to the flesh, Luke 3. 38. We read not that Gideon repented of his idolatrous Ephod, Judg. 18. 27. did not Gideon therefore repent? Is not Gideon numbred among the faithful? Heb. 11. 32. We read not that the godly Fathers under the Old Testament repented of their Polygamy, did they not therefore repent of it before they dyed? Doubtlesse in the Particular, or in the General, all the Elect repent of all their sinnes before their death Habitually, or Actually. 2. Solomons not demolishing the idolatrous high-places which he had set up, was his great Sin, yet proves not a nullity of his repentance and grace: no more then in his Successors, Asa, Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, &c. (whom we count truly pious Kings) who permitted them throughout their reign to stand undestroyed, till Josiahs reign, 2 Kings 23. 13. 4. As the Repentance of Adam, and of the posterity of Methuselah, Henoch, Lamech, and other holy Patriarchs before the flood, is not mentioned, (all which it would be hard to conclude under final impenitency): So Solomons repentance is not expressed. Why? That God might teach all men (saith Master Perkins) to the worlds end what a fearful thing it is to disobey his commandements as Adam [and Solomon] did; or to defer repentance when they are called by Gods Word, as they men did. Therefore to fear us from the like (though afterwards they repented,) it pleased God not to record it, but to leave it doubtful. Perkins Comment. on Heb. 11. 7. p. 52. a Lond. 1631.

4. Some testimonies of Ancient Fathers seem to be against Solomons salvation. Augustine, Nam ipse Solomon mulierum amator fuit, & reprobatus est a Deo, &c. i.e. Solomon himself was a lover of women, and reprobated of God, &c. Aug. Enarrat. in Psal. 116. Prooem. Tom. 9. Before him, Cyprian, Quisquis ille confessor est, Solomone major aut melior, aut Deo charior non est. Qui tamen quamdiu in viis Domini ambulavit, tamdiu gratiam quam de Domino fuerat consecutus, obtinuit: postquam dereliquit Domini viam, perdidit & gratiam Domini; sicut scriptum est Et excitavit Dominus Satanam ipsi Solomoni. i. e. Whoever that confessor be, he is not greater, or better, or dearer to God than Solomon; who so long as he walked in the wayes of the Lord, so long he kept the grace obtained of the Lord: but after he forsooke the way of the Lord, he lost also the favour of the Lord; as it is writte, And the Lord stirred up an adversary against Solomon. Cypian de Unitat Eccles. Sect. 18, p. 302. a. Edit. Goulart. 1593. And before them both Tertullian. Solomon (audeo dicere) etiam quam habuit in Deo gloriam, amisit; per mulierem in idololatriam usque pertractus, i. e. Solomon (I dare say) lost even that glory which he had in God being drawn by a woman even to idolatry. Tertull. Advers. Marcion. lib. 3. cap. IX. sub, fin. p. 465. Franeker, 1597. Answ. But to these and like Testimonies it is easily answered. 1. They are both Humane, and from persons of a fallible spirit. 2. All their testimonies may admit of a favourable interpretation, so as not to intend Solomon's eternal damnation. Augustine's that Solomon was reprobated [viz. disallowed] of God, in respect of his sinnes. True; for God so far disallowed him, as to threaten and punish him for them. Cyprian's, That he lost the grace, or favour of the Lord; viz. either in respect of temporal prosperity and peace, God raising him up adversaries: or only in some gradual manifestations of his favour, as in appearing to him, &c. Tertullian's, That he lost the glory he had in God, may intimate that all the temporal glory given him of God, was eclipsed and obscured.

These are the principal Arguments against Solomons eternal Salvation, and thus they may be answered.

II. Arguments for Solomons eternal Salvation, viz.

1. The LORD's singular love to Solomon. His love was to him from his Birth. Bathsheba bare David a sonne, and he called his name Solomon, and the LORD loved him. And he sent by the hand of Nathan the Prophet, and he called his name Jedidiah [i. e. Beloved of the LORD] because of the LORD, 2 Sam. 12. 24. 25. This special love God notably manifested to Solomon. 1. By the Relation wherein God set Solomon to himself, viz. as a sonne to a father; He shall be my sonne, and I will be his father, 2. Sam. 7. 14. 1 Chron. 22. 10. 2. By his singular appearing to him twice, viz. At Gibeon, saying, Ask what I shall give thee, 1 Kings 3. 5. &c. and after the Temple was built, 1 Kings 9. 2. 3. By hearing Solomons Prayer, 1 Kings 9. 3. 2 Chron. 7. 12. now God hears not sinners, but the righteous, John 9. 13 (not to mention the Lords honouring Solomon with building his Temple; crowning him with a confluence of all prosperity, &c.) Now shall God thus love Solomon, and finally cast him off?

2. God's special Promises touching Solomon, or to him. I will establish the Throne of his Kingdome for ever. I will be his Father, and he shall be my sonne: if he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with with the rod of men, and with the ſtripes of the children of men. But my mercy ſhall not depart away from him. 2 Sam. 7. 13, 14, 15. 1 Chron. 22. 10, Pſal. 89. 30, 31, 32, 33, &c.

3. Solomon's ſingular piety and eminent religiouſneſſe, was ſuch, that though he fell, the Lord would not let him fall finally away. Conſider well 1. His Faith in God, ſtiling him, O LORD my God, 1 Kings 3. 7. and 5. 5. 2. His Love to God. And Solomon loved the LORD, 1 Kings 3. 3. 3. His Obedience to God, Solomon loved the LORD, walking in the ſtatutes of David his father, 1 Kings 3. 3. And the Lord commends and approves his wayes, ——three years they walked in the wayes of David and Solomon 2 Chron. 11. 17. Solomons wayes mentioned together, and praiſed together with Davids wayes. 4. His heavenly Devotions and Zeale to God and his glory, diſcovered in his excellent Prayers to God, as in 1 Kings 3. 6. to 10. and 8. 22. to 54. and 8. 55. to 62. 5. His experimental Communion with God and with Jeſus Chriſt, lively diſcovered in the Book of Canticles, Penned by him, Cant. 1. 1. which is an heavenly adumbration of the ſpiritual endeared fellowſhip betwixt Chriſt and his Church.

4. Solomon repented after his fall. For 1. His wayes are commended by God, after his death, 2 Chron. 11. 17. This place teacheth that Solomon repented after his fall, ſaith H. Broughton. Concent. Script. p. 82. Hanov. 1602. 2. He wrote his Book of Eccleſiaſtes, after his fall, as his Retractations; wherein he proves all Riches, Honours, Pleaſures, Wiſdom, &c. all things to be vanity, except the fear of God. He ſaith, I the Preacher was King over Iſrael in Jeruſalem, Eccleſ. 1. 12, as if he had ſaid; before I ſinned I was King, but now I deſerve not that Title.

5. Solomon was an eminent Penman of the Holy Scripture, Prov. 1. 1, Eccleſ. 1. 1. Cant. 1. 1. Such were holy men of God, 2 Pet. 1. 21. Cum Solomon fuerit Sanctus Propheta, ſtatuendum eſt, eum eſſe beatum, i. e. Solomon being an holy Prophet, we muſt conclude he is happy. Broughton. Concent. P. 80.

II. KINGS.

Sect. I. Order, and Name.

THus the state of the Kingdom hath been described, According to the Rise and Beginning of the Division in it, in I. Kings. In the next place, the Kingdoms Condition is considered According to the Progress and Growth of the Kingdoms Division, and the miserable calamities growing and increasing thereupon. This is related in II. KINGS. Called in Heb. ב מלכים, II. Melacim, i. e. II. KINGS. By the Greek, IV. of KINGDOMS. Better by the Latine, IV KINGS; the History of the Kings being still continued in this Book. Some think, this, and the former Book were at first but one Book; and only divided to avoid greatness of the bulk, and multiplicity of Chapters. And as Pareus noteth, That the German Version begins this Book at 51. verse of the foregoing chapt. so as to take the whole story of Ahaziah. Which doubtless were most convenient, were it not that Concordances would be disordered thereby.

Sect. IV. Doubts, and Difficulties about the Chronology.

But upon diligent search into this II. KINGS, I find that here arise certain intricate Chronological doubts and difficulties, both touching the Kingdom of Judah, and of Israel, which had need to be cleared and removed; especially these 7 ensuing, viz.

Doubt I. In the Kingdom of Judah ariseth some difficulty about the time of Amaziah. For he reigned 29, years, 2 Kings 14. 2. And the 15. year of his Reign agreed with the first year of the Reign of Jeroboam son of Joash, 2 Kings 14. 23. Consequently the 29. or last year of Amaziah's Reign, must needs agree with the 15. year of Jeroboam, And yet it is said, That Azariah (alias Uzziah) son of Amaziah King of Judah, began to reign in the 27. year of Jeroboam King of Israel, and that he was sixteen years old when he began to reign, 2 Kings 15. 1, 2. So that by this Account, betwixt Amaziah's last year, and his son Uzziah's first year, here are full 11 years vacant, or overplus.

Answ. There are three Resolutions propounded by Writers for untying this knot. 1. Some think that here's a mistake, that for the 27. year of Jeroboam, it should be the 17. yeare; as Mercator. But this, saith b Parens well, est secare Nodum, i. e. is to cut the knot; not to unty it. Besides, this will gain but 10. years; and the vacancy objected is 11 years at at least, and that exclusively. 2. Some do reckon these 11 years in the 52 years of Uzziah son and successor of Amaziah; the Kingdom being governed by States or Princes of Judah, during the minority of Uzziah (who was but about four or five years old when his father died) till he came to be sixteen year old, 2 Kings 15. 2. 2 Chron. 26. 1, 3. This c Parens ascribes to Funccius, and approves it as truer than the former. But this Reconciliation cannot hold; because the first year of Amaziah's 52. did not begin till the 27. year of Jeroboam King of Israel, 2 King. 15. 1, 2, 3. Others therefore best of all remove this doubt, by counting these 11 years betwixt the last of Amaziah, and first of Uzziah his sonne, to be an Inter-regnum; there being at that time no King in Judah, the Kingdom was governed by their Princes, Elders, or chief States, for so long till Uzziah came to be capable of Government. Thus d Broughton, e Diodate, f Wolphius, and others.

d Regnum Judæ ab optimatibus usque ad vigesimum septimum Jeroboami. Id accidit cum propter Oziæ eneram ætatem, tum quod ordines Regem suum non minus obissent, quam Israel. Unde reprehenditur Lackis, quod Amaziam tradidisset eis, qui morte ipsum effecerunt. [Deus non vult etiam impios Reges tolli a privatis.] H. Brought. Concent. S. Script. p, 29, Hanov. 1601.

e Seeing that Amaziah reigned 29 years, 2 Kings 14. 2. and that Jeroboam son of Joash began to reign the 15. year of Amaziah, 2 King 14. 23. it followeth that this 27. year is but the 11. year after the death of Amaziah. So we must conclude that there was an Inter-regnum or vacancie of the Royal seat in Judah, for the space of 11 years, or thereabouts; occasioned peradventure by Azariah's tender age, or by the powerfulnesse of his fathers murtherers, who kept the Government-in their hands. Diod. Annot. on 2 Kings 15. 1.

f Videtur hinc colligi vel Inte-regnum quoddam, vel tutorum simul ac pupilli Regis opera consilioque administratum & circiter duodecim annos gubernatum. ——— Hæc considerata docent Deum mirabiliter conservasse regnum hoc Davidis posteris, ut Promissis staret, & firmaret spem Messiæ ——— Wolph suppl. ad P, Mart. Com. in 1 Reg. 15. 1.

Doubt II. In the Chronology of the Kingdom of Israel ariseth another Difficulty. It is said of Jeroboam sonne of Joash King of Israel, that he began to reign in the 15, year of Amaziah King of Judah, and reigned 41 years, 2 King. 14. 23. And that Zechariah sonne of Jeroboam reigned over Israel in the 38. year of Azariah King of Judah, 2 Kings 15. 8. Now the time intervening betwixt the 15. year of Amaziah, and the 38. year of Azariah, was in all 63 years. For, from the 15. year of Amaziah or 1. year of Jeroboam. (which agree, 2 King. 14. 23. to the 1 year of Azariah (alias Uzziah) son of Amaziah were 27 years, 2 Kings 15. 1. Thence to the 1. year of Zechariah Jeroboams son, parallel with the 38 year of Azariah, is 38 years, 2 King 15. 8. 27 years & 38 years being added together, make up just 65 years. So then betwixt Jeroboam's first, and his son Zechariah's first year intervene 63 years. Subduct out of 63, the time of Jeroboam's reigne, viz. 41. and there remains 22 years vacant. Answ.

Answ. By this doubt it is evident, that betwixt Jeroboam sonne of Joash his last year, and Zechariah his Successors first year, did intervene full 22 years. During these 22 years the Kingdom of Israel was in an Anarchy by freqent seditions, (thinks g Broughton) or at best, we must grant an Inter-regnum or vacancy of Kingly Government in Israel for 22 years together, betwixt Jeroboam and Zechariah. This Zechariah was the fourth Generation of Jehu, which God brought according to his Promise to sit upon the Throne, notwithstanding all intervening difficulties. Compare 2 Kings 10. 30. and 15, 12, Gods Promises, (yea, even to wicked men, how much more to the godly,) shall stand, notwithstanding all Providences or Improbabilities that seem to crosse the same. This Inter-regnum, with others, is heedfully to be marked for the better perfecting the true Chain of Scripture Chronology.

g 22 annorum viginti duorum annorum ex crebris seditionibus usque ad Oziæ 38. ibi regnavit Zecharias quartus a Jehu, 1 Reg. 10. 30 H. Brought. Concent. S. Script, p. 95. Hanov. 1602.

Doubt III. It is said, that Ahaz was 20 years old when he began to reign, and that he reigned 16 years; so that he lived but in all 36 years, 2 King. 16. 2 And yet it is said, that Hezekiah his son was 25 years old when he began to reign, 2 Kings 18. 2. Consequently Ahaz was but 11 years old when he begat Hezekiah; which seems very strange.

Answ. 1. We need not interpret 2 Kings 16. 2. that Ahaz was 20 years old when his father, Jotham began to reign: for this is too much forced, seeing the Text saith, Twenty years old was Ahaz when he began. No mention of Jotham's age. 2. We need not flie to that h shift, that Ahaz was Hezekiah's legal not natural Father. 3. Though it may seem strange, yet is it not impossible, that Ahaz being but about 11 years old should beget Hezekiah. For its no hard thing (as i Hierom answers this doubt) for the God of nature to effect what he pleaseth above the ordinary course of nature. And he brings an instance of a woman that had a child by a boy of 10 years of age: and with us many marry at 13. or 14. Adde hereunto, It is with men as it is with fruit, some grow ripe far sooner than others. Further, the Nation of the Jews had a singular blessing for Generation and Multiplication; and therefore this is the lesse to be admired. Finally, its very probable, the Guardians and Kindred of the Royal Issue in Judah, took care that the Male, should marry as soon as was possible very young, for the perpetuating of Davids line till the time of the Messiah, k Broughton saith, Ahaz as young a father, as Elizabeth was an old mother, were both to hope in Emmanuel, to be born of a Virgin.

h Wolph. supplem. ad P. Mart. Com. in II Reg. 18, 1, 2. i Hier. in Ep. ad Pammachium & Oceanum de optimo genere interpretandi.

Doubt IV. It is said, that Hoshea slew Pekah son of Remaliah, and reigned in his stead in the 20. year of Jotham son of Uzziah, 2 Kings 15. 30. And yet it is evident that Jotham reigned but sixteen years, 2 Kings 15. 33. How can these be reconciled?

k Achazo tam juveni patri, quam erat Elizabeta senex mater, sperandum fuerat in Emmanuele, nascituro ex virgine. H. Brought. Concent. S. Script. p. 98. Hanov. 1602.

Answ. 1. Either we may say that hence it appears, Jotham lived 20 years after he began to reign; but of these 20. he reigned only 16. resigning up the Kingdom to his son Ahaz for the four last years. 2. Or suppose Jotham lived not 20 years, we may say, this 20. year of Jotham intimates how long after the beginning of Jotham's reign it was, that Hoshea slew Pekah, viz. in the 20. year after: not that Jotham was then reigning when that fact was committed. Not in the 20. year of Jotham's reign, but in the 20. year after he began his reign.

Doubt V. Menahem began to reign in the 39. yeare of Azariah King of Judah, and reigned ten years, 2. Kings 15. 17, So that his last year, viz. his 10. is parallel with Azariah's 48. year. And yet it is said, that Pekahiah son of Menahem began to reign in the 50. year of Azariah, 2 Kings 15. 23. So that by this account, 1 year parallel to Azariah's 49. year, is slipt in the Chronology of the Kings of Israel.

Answ. This is evidently an Inter-regnum or vacancy of the Royal Government in Israel for one years space. The troubles of the State of Israel for many years together, though seditions, treasons, and murders of Kings, frequently interrupting the Royal Government, makes the Chronology very intricate and perplexed.

Doubt VI. Pekah King of Israel is said to begin his Reign in the 52. years of Azariah [or Uzziah] King of Judah, and to reign 20 years, 2 Kings 15. 27. and it is said that Hoshea son of Elah conspired against Pekah, and slew him, and reigned in his stead, in the 20. year of Jotham King of Judah, 2 Kings 15. 30. (Jotham's 20. year being parallel to the year next ensuing after Pekah's last year, 2 Kings 15. 32.) and yet elsewhere it is said, that Hoshea son of Elah began to reign in Samaria, in the 12th year of Ahaz King of Judah, 2 Kings 17. 1. Ahaz his first year being parallel with Pekah's 17th year, 2 Kings 16. 1. Consequently his 4th year parallel with Pekah's 20th year, immediately after which Hoshea slew him. Now betwixt Ahaz his 4th year, when Pekah's reign determined, and Ahaz his 12th year when Hoshea's reign began, there intervene full seven years. Whereunto shall these seven years be reckoned? or how shall these places be reconciled.

Answ. 1. It is clear by these places alledged, that in the Kingdom of Israel betwixt the reign of Pekah and Hoshea, there was another Inter-regnum, or vacancy of the Royal Government for VII yeares together, and so these seven intervening yeares are to be accounted. 2. If Hoshea (having murdered Pekah) did presently usurp the Throne and Regal Government, yet he is not said to begin his reign till seven years after, either because for that seven years the people did not accept him, (abhorring his bloody conspiracy against Pekah:) or because the King of Assyria, (who about his time enslaved Israel) did not confirm Hoshea in his Kingdom till the twelfth year of Ahaz. 3. It is not to be neglected, that where Hoshea's killing of Pekah is recorded, It is only said [and he reigned in his stead, 2 Kings 15. 30.] noting out only his Succession of him in the Regal Government, but not the time when he first became his Succession; but in the twelfth year of Ahaz (which was seven years after Pekah's death, as hath been demonstrated): It is said, Hoshea son of Elah began to reign in Samaria, 2 Kings 17. 1. denoting the very time when he succeeded him in the Royal Government.

Doubt VII. Jehoahaz son of Josiah, was but 23. years old when he began to reigne, and he reigned three moneths in Jerusalem, 2 Kings 23. 30, 31. and yet his younger brother Eliakim (whose name Pharaoh Neco turned to Jehoiakim) who succeeded him, is said to be 25 years old when he began to reign, 2 Kings 23. 34, 36. So that according to this account Jehoiakim seems to be about two years elder than his elder brother, which seems to imply an impossibility.

Answer. For reconciling of this Chronology, and resolving this difficulty; 1. Either we must say, that there was an Inter-regnum, or vacancy in the Kingdom for two or three years after Jehoahaz his reign; and if so, the absurdity ceaseth. 2. Or, rather we must conclude, that Jehoiakim was Pro-rex, or Vice-roy, while his brother Jehoahaz was Captive in Egypt (as l Junius thinks) and so Jehoiakims age of twenty five, is reckoned from his brothers death in Egypt, when of Vice-Roy, Jehoiakim became full King. 3. Or, (which seems most satisfactory of all) we must hence determine that thought Jehoahaz stept to the Throne before his brother Jehoiakim, yet Jehoiakim was the elder brother by birth, about two years. Thus m Broughton, n Diodate, o Wolphius, others, unty this.

suo regni ratione, 1 Chro. 3. Junior vero nativitate An. duob.

H. Brought. Concent. S. Script. p. 105. Hanov. 1602.

n And the People] Some believe that this Jehoahaz was installed by popular faction, and not according to Birth-right, seeing that he was but 23 years of age when he began to reign, and reigned but three moneths: whereas his brother Jehoiakim who succeeded him, was 25 years of age when he began to reign, ver. 36. unless there were some vacancy or Inter-regnum after Jehoahaz. Jo. Diodat. Annot. on 2 King. 23. 30.

this knot. For, it may be that a faction among the the people set up Jehoahaz to be King before his time, without due right. See and consider well 2 Kings 23. 30. Or, perhaps King Josiah preferred his younger sonne Jehoahaz, appointing him after him to the Crown, before Jehoiakim because of his wickednesse, who yet afterwards by favour of Pharaoh Necho came to the Crown, 2 Kings 23. 34. Thus God appointed Solomon though a younger brother to reign after David, 1 Kings 2. 15. and Rehoboam appoints Abijah, a younger son to succeed him, 2 Chron. 11. 20, 22. and 12.

Sect. V. Scope.

The Scope of this II. KINGS (which is a Continuation of the History begun in I. KINGS) is either 1 More Immediate, or 2 More Mediate.

1. More Immediate, To continue the Narration of the condition of the Divided State of the two Kingdoms of Israel and Judah from Jehoshaphats reign, till the Assyrians desolated Israel, and the Caldeans captived Judah, for their grievous sins, aggravated by their obstinate impenitency. Herein therefore are declared notably, 1. How ISRAEL persisting in Jeroboams idolatry, and adding thereunto divers abominable Pagan idolatries, was plagued with Warres, Seditions, Treasons, murthers of Kings, Inter-regnum's, and intertuptions of the royal Government sometimes for many years together, yea, alterations of the royal Line, and other sad disasters of State; till at last (no counsels or warnings of the Prophets, not these heavy judgments inflicted upon them, pervailing with them to repent) they were over-run and destroyed by the Assyrians, the people of Israel captived and utterly dispersed, and their Kingdome possessed by Heathens mixed of several Countries, called Samaritanes, who set up a mingle mangle Religion of Paganisme and Judaisme, called Samaritanisme. 2. How JUDAH also (though Gods true Religion, Worship and Church was preserved still among them, yet) leavened with Israels corruptions, partly of themselves too prone to idolatry, fell into most grievous sins; from which they could never be throughly reclaimed, either by the Doctrine of Gods Prophets, or by the endeavours of divers godly Kings after Reformation, or by the Judgments of God on Israel or themselves; or by the singular mercy of God in delivering them from the Assyrians tyranny. So that God delivered them at last into the hands of the Chaldeans, who after divers pressures inflicted on Judah, took, sackt, and burnt Jerusalem and the Temple, and carried the people captive to Babylon. And afterwards the remnant of poor people left in the Land were carried captive into Egypt. And yet in this most woful eclipse of the Jewish Church, the Lord reserved an holy seed to people the Church, and continued Davids line for the bringing forth of the Messiah according to the flesh, as God had promised to David.

2. More Mediately, to delineate 1 God verity in his Threats and Promises, against all difficulties and impediments intervening, and this not only to the godly, (as to David and his house, continuing his seed that the Messiah might descend of him) but also even to the wicked as to Jehu, &c. together with his severity in his Judgments. 2 The continual revolution of Families and State. 3 The mischief of sinne, especially in Magistrates, dividing them and their people from God, and consequently themselves amongst themselves, till both Kings, People and Kingdomes be ripe and ready for utter desolation.

Sect. VI. Principal Parts.

The Chief Parts of this History may be considered (as in I. Kings,) according to the distinct Reigns of the several Kings of ISRAEL and JUDAH, Proceeding on where the former History left, viz. at AHAZIAH the eighth King of Israel, whose History is partly laid down in the close of I. Kings, and partly in the beginning of II. Kings.

2. The Succession of Elisha as Prophet in stead of Elijah; a double portion of his spiritual resting upon him. This is discovered, 1. 5. Elisha's Acts, very wonderfull, viz.

1. He multiplies the oyle of the Prophets widow, whereby she paid her debts, Ch. IV, ver. 1. to 8. Chap. 4.

2. To testifie his gratitude to the Shunamite, for her kinde entertainment of him, 1. He promiseth her a sonne, (though her husband was old, and she childless,) ver. 8. to 18. 2. He raiseth her sonne, (being dead) to life again, ver. 18. to 38.

I. CHRONICLES.

Sect. I. Order.

IN former Hiſtories the State of the Kingdom hath been deſcribed, 1. As United, viz. in 1 and 2 Sam. 2. As Divided, viz. in 1 and 2 Kings. 3. Now it comes to be conſidered, as, Both United and divided, in 1 and 2 Chron.

Sect. II. Name.

The Hebr. ſtile this Book דברי הימים Dibre Haijamim, viz. The words of Dayes; or, The words of Yeares. (ים jom: being oft-times taken for years) becauſe this Book is a Sacred DIARY, or Holy ANNALS reporting the memorable Acts and Occurrents in the Church of God, and Civil States both Domeſtick and Forreign. Hence (a) ſome, not unfitly entitle them, The Books of Annals. (b Annals, barely declaring matters of fact in order for divers yeares.) So theſe two Books are the CHURCHES ANNALS.

b Gellius de N. A. l. 5. c. 18.

The Greek in the ſame ſenſe calls them χρονικῶν, (whence the Latin, Chronica? and our Engliſh, CHRONICLES;) and Βιβλων παραλειπομενων, Biblion Paraleipomenon, viz. The Book of things Omitted; or BOOKS OF REMAINES; becauſe ſome things omitted, or not ſo fully deſcribed in the former Hiſtories, (viz. the Pentateuch of Moſes, Joſua, Judges Ruth, Samuel and Kings,) are here ſummarily explicated and ſupplied, eſpecially touching the Kings of Iſrael and Judah.

c Teſtamenti veteris Epitomen, &c Hieron. in Epiſt. ad Paulin.

Hierom calls the Chronicles, deſervedly, c The Epitome or Abridgement of the Old Teſtament: and ſaith that this Hiſtory is of ſuch conſequence, that whoſoever would arrogate to himſelf the knowledge of the Scriptures without it, doth but mock and abuſe himſelf. And elſewhere, he ſtiles it, d The Chronicle of the whole Divine Hiſtory. Underſtand him, in reference to all the foregoing Books eſpecially, of which it is a moſt compendious Abſtract. Some e think, That the Book of the Chronicles, ſo often mentioned in the Book of Kings, is not this Book, but perhaps ſome other Epitome of the whole Sacred Hiſtory. But if the Additional Supplemens in I. and II. Chron. to I. and II. Kings be well conſidered, the contrary ſeems more probable.

Sect. III. Penman.

Penman of I. and II. Chron. are uncertain. Authors ſeem much unreſolved herein. f Some note, that R. Solomon & R. D. Kimchi were of opinion it was Ezra; Learned g Junius alſo is of the ſame Judgement. The argument that generally inclines them to this opinion, is, h That the ſame words uſed in the cloſe of the Chronicles, 2 Chron. 36. 23. are alſo uſed in the beginning of Ezra, Ezra. 1. 1, 2, 3. Yet againſt this Opinion there lies this Objection, That the Books of Kings and Chronicles ſeem to be contemporary, and extant about the ſame time, foraſmuch as they reciprocally referre to one another ſo often; but the Books of the Kings ſeem to be long before Ezra's dayes. h Parens therefore thinks their opinion more probable, that hold, the Chronicles, as the Kings, were written by ſeverall Prophets, each Prophet recording the things that fell out under the Kings in their times. And that perhaps it may be granted, that Ezra digeſted thoſe ſeverall Records into this Order, prefixing the Genealogies before the beginning, and adding the Cloſe of 2

Sect. IV. Time, or Chronology

These 2 Books ſeem to be written about the ſame time with the 2 Books of Kings, ſeeing they mutually alledge one another very often.

This I. Chron. principally inſiſts upon the Hiſtory of David, delineating his Genealogy from the First Adam, & carrying it forwards towards the 2d. Adam, wherein the 12 Tribes and their families are recorded Chap. 1. to 10. And afterwards his famous Acts, eſpecially; Ch. 10. to the end of the Book. So that this Book is a Compendious Chronologie (anſwering to the times of all the former Books, till I. Kings) recording Perſons and their Acts in the Church of God, from the Creation of the world, till about the yeare 2984. viz. Of

Sect. V. Scope.

Scope of this Book is either 1 Immediate, or 2 Mediate.

1. Immediate. To deſcribe, 1 The Genealogies of thoſe People, among whom the Lord continued his Church from Adam till the Return from the Babyloniſh Captivity. 2. Gods ſingular Accompliſhment of his Promiſes to Abraham, &c. in multiplying their Seed ſo numerouſly. 3. An Abſtract (with ſome Explanatory Additionals interwoven) of the Reign of David, and of his Excellent Acts, whether Eccleſiaſtical, Polemical, Political, or Oeconomical. How he ordered the whole ſervice and worſhip of God, and how liberally he prepared for the building of the Temple, (whereof he gave Solomon the Model from the LORD, becauſe he was to build it,) both by conſecrated ſpoils, as alſo by his own and the Peoples Freewill-offerings thereunto; delivering all into Solomons hand before his death.

2. Mediate. 1. Clearly to draw down from Adam the Line and Genealogie of Jeſus Chriſt, the k MESSIAH promiſed to the Fathers, but eſpecially to David, Abraham, and Adam. That when in fulneſſe of time this promiſed Mediator ſhould be performed and revealed in our fleſh, the Church and People of God might infallibly know, That this and no other was that very promiſed SEED OF THE WOMAN, the Son of Abraham, the Son of David. And this is the principal ſcope of the Genealogie in the nine firſt Chapters. 2. To propound in David the pattern of a good King indeed, and how happy that Kingdom and People are who are ſo governed.

I. CHRONICLES.

Viz.

DAVID'S Pſalme of Thankſgiving to the LORD,

At the Bringing up of the ARK of God into the CITY of DAVID;

Recorded in 1 CHRONICLES. 16. from ver. 7. to 37.

Sect. I.

DAVID, that ſ man after Gods own heart, that the ſweet Pſalmiſt of Iſrael, being after K. Sauls death eſtabliſhed on the Throne in the Kingdom of Iſrael, makes it his firſt and chiefeſt care to advance Religion and the true worſhip of God in his Kingdome. To this end he u fetches the Ark of God (firſt from Kiriath-Jearim, to Obed-Edom's houſe; And x afterwards with great ſolemnity and better order, from Obed-Edom's houſe) to the City of David in Jeruſalem. For which ſingular mercy, that David might teſtifie his ſpecial thankfulneſſe to the Lord, having Penned this excellent Pſalm, which is partly Euchariſtical, partly Prophetical: He y then on that day firſt delivered this Pſalme, to give thanks unto the Lord, into the hands of Aſaph and his brethren, (So that ſome Pſalms which have Aſaph's name prefixed, may yet be penned by David;) Which may therefore fitly be denominated, David's Pſalm of Thankſgiving to the LORD at the bringing up of the ARK.

ſ Act. 13. 22.
t 2 Sam. 23. 1.
u 1 Chron 13.
x. 1 Chron c. 15. & 16
y 1 Chron. 16. 7.

It is very remarkable, that this Pſalm of Thankſgiving is collected, or gleaned by parcels out of divers other Pſalms, ſuitable to the preſent Occaſion of bringing up the Ark, and ſo the ſeverall parcels (only ſome few words altered) are joyned together in this form or method by David, as it is here repreſented. viz.

1. Verſe 8. to 23.	is	1, Part of Pſal. 105, viz. from verſe 1. to 16.
2. Verſe 23. to 34.		2. The whole 96. Pſalm.
3. Verſe 34.		3. Part of divers, viz. Pſal. 107. 1. and 118. 1. and 136. 1.
4. Verſe 35, 36.		4. Part of Pſalm 106. viz. verſe 43, 48.

2 Some hereupon account this not one, but three diſtinct Pſalms delivered by David to Aſaph at one and the ſame time. But by the ſame reaſon there ſhould be here 4 Pſalms, and one of them but one verſe. 2. The ſeries of the Pſalm is continued, as being one, not divers. 3. Nothing in this Chapter induceth us to think otherwiſe. Now this courſe of David may ſeem to warrant and inſtruct us in like manner to extract and connnect ſeveral ſuitable and pertinent paſſages out of ſeveral Pſalms, to Pray to, or Praiſe the LORD withall, upon ſpeciall Occaſions.

2 firſt] Theſe 3 ſeverall Pſalms of ver. 8. 23, 34. were the firſt he gave them of his penning; peradventure to be ſung by three divers Quires, whereof every one had his chief, and they were to ſing one after another, until the People had ended this Action, ſaying Amen. ver. 36. And afterwards David compoſed and gave them many more. 2 Sam. 23. 1. Jo. Diod. Annot. on 1 Chro. 167.

Sect. II.

Scope of this Pſalm is, 1. To exhort and incite the Church and people of God to bleſs and praiſe the Lord, not onely in word and voice, but alſo in true worſhip and obedience, for all his wondrous works wrought for his people; for the judgements of his mouth, and Covenant with his people touching Canaan, As alſo for his ſingular Majeſty, Greatneſs and Dominion, above all Idol-gods throughout the world. How ſuitably! The ARK, now brought up, being a ſpecial ſign or token of Gods a power and gracious Preſence with his people; and the Cabinet of the Covenant. 2. To inſinuate Prophetically the propagating of the Kingdom of the MESSIAH from Jews to Gentiles; exhorting the Jews to publiſh and preach Gods praiſes to the Gentiles, and thereupon the Gentiles to acknowledge Gods majeſty, power, and benefits performed by CHRIST to the Church; to renounce idols, turn to God, and ſerve him Touching this Psalme consider therein, 1. The Proem. or Inscription, 2. The Substance of the Psalm. 3. The Conclusion.

I. The Procm or Inscription prefixed, denoting 1. The Occasion, 2. Penman, 3. Scope and use of this Psalm, 1, Chron. 16. ver. 7.

II. The Body or Substance of the Psalm.; which is, 1. Partly Eucharistical, 2 Partly Propheticall, both laid down in an Hortatory forme.

I. Eucharistical. Pathetically exhorting and inciting Israel, the Church of God, to all possible expressions of thankful praises to the Lord. herein note,

1. The Duty exhorted to, viz. Thankful praising of God, 1. In Heart; Glorying, ——Rejoycing, —— Remembring his wonders and judgments, viz. On Egypt especially. 2. In Tongue? Giving Thanks, —— Calling on his Name,—Publishing his deeds; —Singing, —Singing Psalms. ——Talking of all his wondrous works. 3. In Life; seeking the Lord and his strength, (viz. his Arke, a Symbole of his power, presence, favour,) seeking his face, (viz. His Oracle) continually, ver. 8 to 14.

2. The Arguments or Grounds whereupon this Duty is urged, and for which he is thus to be celebrated, viz. 1. His Sovereignty, He is the Lord our God, therefore all praise is his due, ver. 14. 2. His judgments on all his enemies, ver. 14. 3. His gracious everlasting Covenant to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, touching Canaan (a Type of heavens rest) ver. 15. to 19. Amplified by his singular providence and tender care over them, though few strangers, passing from Nation to Nation, yet none were permitted to wrong them, he reproved Kings for them, (as for Abraham, Gen. 12. 14. to 18. and 20. throughout.) ver. 19. to 23.

II. Propheticall. Containing (as d some have well noted) A Prophecy of Christs Kingdome, and of the calling of the Gentiles from idols to serve and praise the living God. This is laid down in forme of an Exhortation to all the Jews, to preach sweetly the Lords Glory and Wonders shewed in Israel unto the Gentiles, that forsaking vaine idols, and serve the true God only, acknowledging and celebrating his benefits and dominion by Jesus Christ. This Exhortation is 1. Proposed. 2. Enforced. 3. Amplified.

1. Proposed, wherein consider 1. Who are exhorted, viz. All the earth, viz. e all the Land of Israel. 2. Duties whereunto they are exhorted, viz. 1. To sing to the Lord. To Evangelize (as the Hebrew בשר properly signifies) day by day his salvation, (viz. of sinners by Jesus Christ especially.) 2. To declare his glory and wonders (viz. revealed to Israel especially in that salvation.) 3. Where these duties are to be performed; Among the Gentiles, among all Nations, (A clear intimation that Christ and his Gospel should be preached to the Gentiles throughout the world) ver. 23, 24.

2. Enforced, by divers cogent Arguments, viz. 1. The greatnesse of God. 2. The Praise worthinesse of God. 3, The dreadfulnesse of the Lord above all Gods; proved by the vast disparity betwixt him and them, All they are idols. The Lord created the Heavens, i. e. the world. Synechd. How should this therefore convince all Gentiles, to renounce vain idols to laud and serve the only true God that made the Heavens, &c.) ver, 25, 26. IV. The glorious Majesty, might and gladnesse in the Lords Presence and Place (these are evident in the world, but especially in his Church, by the Ark of his Presence, &c.) ver. 27.

3. Amplified hereupon, ver. 28. to 34. wherein. The f Gentiles (thus preached unto and instructed by the Jews,) are incited 1. To give the Lord due praises; 2. To joyn with his Church in his worship and fear, ver, 28, 29, 30. 2. The settlement and establishment of the whole earth, weakned and ruined by sin, is hereupon promised in Christs Kingdome, ver. 30. 3. The universal triumph and gladnesse as it were of all creatures (in an elegant Prosopeia) is intimated, upon the Lords Presence and dominion among the Gentiles, as well as the Jews, ver. 31, 32, 33. f Jun. Annot. in 1 Chro. 16.

The Conclusion of the Psalm containing 1 An invitation to give thanks to the Lord for his goodnesse and everlasting loving kindnesses, v. 34. 2. A Direction to Israel how to pray for their salvation and deliverance from the Heathen, ver. 35. 3. A concluding Doxology, ascribing endless Blisse and Praise to the Lord God of Israel, ver. 36. III.

II. CHRONICLES.

Sect. I. Order.

IN the former Book, viz. I CHRON. the state and condition of the Kingdome of Israel hath been described, in respect of 1. The Inchoation, or beginning of it, under Saul. 2. The Augmentation, or Increase of it, under David, Now in this II CHRON. it is further described, in respect of 3. The Perfection, or highest temporal Glory of it, under Solomon. 4. The diminution or decay of it, after the unhappy Division under Rehoboam, &c. till at last it even failed under Zedekiah, by reason of Judah's 70 yeares captivity in Babylon. So that this Book is a Chronicle, or Chronical Abridgement of both the books of KINGS; with some Explanations, and Additions at the end of the Book.

Sect. II. Name.

The reason of the Denomination, or Name of this Book, see in I. Chron. This being but a Continuation of the same History, according to the same intent and purpose of the I Chron.

Sect. III. Penman.

Sect. IV. Time, or Chronology

This Book relates the state of the Israelitish Kingdom, dom, from the beginning of King Solomons Reign, till after Judah's Return from the Babyloniſh Captivity, which fell out in the firſt yeare of CYRUS King of Perſia. And ſo it contains in the whole, an Hiſtory of about 541 years. Which may be thus computed, viz.

From the beginning of K. Solomons Reign (wherewith this book begins) to the end of K. Jehoſhaphats Reign (wherewith I. Kings ends) 126 years. As hath been formerly demonſtrated in Particulars, on I. KINGS Sect. IV.	126
From the end of K. Jehoſhaphats Reign till JUDAH was wholly carried captive into Babylon in the 11. of Zedekiah, (which is the whole time of the Hiſtory deſcribed in II. Kings) about 344 years and a half. As hath been formerly cleared, on II. KINGS, Sect. III. in a Table, in particulars.	344½
From the 11. year of Zedekiah, a when Judah was carried captive to Babylon, to the end of the Captivity, 70 years; mentioned in 2 Chron. 36. 20, 22, even till the reign of the Kingdome of Perſia,	70,
The Return of Judah out of the Captivity of Jeruſalem, to build the Houſe of God, in the firſt yeare of CYRUS King of Perſia, & according to the liberty granted by his Proclamation; here alſo recorded. 2. Chron. 36. 20, 21, 22, 23.	1 a becauſe there is ſome queſtion made from what time the Calculation of the 70 years Captivity do commence; we muſt obſerve, that in the Books of Kings and Chronicles we finde mention of 4 Babyloniſh captivities.
	541½

In the firſt, Manaſſeh was carried away captive, 2 Chron. 33. 11.

In the third, Jehoiachin was carried away captive, 2 Kings 24. 14. And in this captivity the Prophet Ezekiel was Captive, Ezek. 1, 2.

In the fourth, Zedekiah was carried away captive with the whole Nation except ſome of the poor, 2 Kings 25, 2 Chron. 36. And from this Captivity did the 70 years commence: for in this only the whole Land was made a deſolation, and then only did that Nation ſerve Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon 70 years, as was fore-prophecied, Jer. 25. 11, 12. And then only did the Land enjoy her Sabbaths, 2 Chron. 36. 21. Jer. 25. 9. & 12. Jo. Diod. in his Obſervations after II. Chron.

Sect, V. Doubts and Difficulties Chronologicall.

Doubt. I. Mention is made of a Writing or Letter ſent from the Prophet Elijah to that wicked Jehoram, Sonne and Succeſſor of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah, threatning him with a lamentable death by falling out of his bowels, for his wicked Reigne, and for murdering his brethren that were better than himſelf, 2 Chro. 21. 12, to 16. Now how could Elijah ſend a Letter to this Jehoram, when Elijah ſeems to be taken up to heaven in a fiery chariot before Jehoram began to reigne? For Jehoram began not to reigne till he was thirty two years old, 2 Chron. 21. 5. this his thirty ſecond yeare was the fifth yeare of Jehoram ſonne of Ahab King of Iſrael 2 King. 8. 16, 17. But Elijah was tranſlated in the time of Jehoſhaphat, preſently after the death of Ahaziah ſonne of Ahab, probably in the very firſt yeare of Jehoram ſonne of Ahab, Succeſſor of Ahaziah, the ſtory of Elijah's rapture being recorded betwixt the death of Ahaziah, and the reigne of Jehoram King of Iſrael. Compare 2 Kings 2. throughout, with 2 Kings 3. 1.

Anſw. 1. To ſay that Elijah wrote this Letter after his rapture up into heaven, would gratifie the Pontificians, who hold that the dead have often written to the living. But (as b Broughton ſaith) this is but a Datage, We leave therefore that opinion to the deluded Papiſts and their lying Legends.

b Epiſtola hæc ſcripta fuit ante Aſſumptionem. Aſſumptionem. Nam mortuos ad vivos ſcribere et factitatum fuiſſe ſæpe tenent Pontificii, Deliramentum eſt, Eraſmus. H. Brought. Concent. S. Script. p. 88. in marg. Hanov. 1602.

2. To ſay as c ſome, that this muſt be ſome other Elijah that wrote this letter, ſeeing the great Prophet Elijah was already taken up into heaven in theſe dayes, as appeareth by 2 Kings 2. 11. ſeems not ſo ſafe and conſonant to Scripture, which mentions no Elijahs, but Elijah the Thiſhbite, 1 King. 17. 1. and John the B. the N. T. Elijah, who was to come in the power and ſpirit of Elijah, Mat. 4. 5, 6. with Matt. 11. 14. Mar. 9. 11. Luk. 1, 17. Nor is it needfull to flie to this imagination about another Elijah, there being other wayes of untying this knot.

c V. 12. Elijah] The great Prophet Elijah was already taken up into Heaven, in theſe dayes, as appeareth by 2 Kings 2. 11. Wherefore this muſt be ſome other Elijah, or elſe it muſt be that the great Elijah had written this Prophecie in his life-time, and appointed that in its due time it ſhould be delivered to Jeboram. Jo. Diod. Annot. on 2 Chron. 21. 12.

3. Moſt thinke this letter was written by Elijah before his Aſſumption into heaven, of the future Kingdome of Jehoram, as Iſaiah wrote of the future Kingdome of Cyrus, Iſa. 44. and 45, And Ahijah of the Kingdome of Joſiah, 1 Kings 13. 2. So it was meet, an impious King ſhould be reproved by the abſent, who would not endure the preſent. Thus d Junius, with whom e Pareus conſents, tranſcribing his very words; H. Brought. and Jo. Diodate alſo inclineth to this Opinion, as appears by their words formerly alledged.

d Scriptum ab Elijah] Quod Elijah antequam aſſumeretur, ſcripſerat de futuro regno Jehorami: ut Jeſchabia de futuro regno Cyri, Jeſchah. 44, 45. & Achija de regno Jeſchijæ, 1 Reg. 13. 3. Sic opportuit impium Regem ab abſentibus reprehendi, qui præſentes non fuiſſet paſſus: Nam Elijam temporibus Joſaphati raptum fuiſſet ante hujus regnum, docetur, 2. Reg. 2. 11. Fran. Jun. Annot. in 2 Chron. 21. 12. e D. Pareus in Not. Brevigrib. in 2 Chron. 21. 12.

4. But may we not happily pitch upon a better reſolution than all theſe? what if we ſay Elijah both wrote and ſent this Letter to Jehoram ſonne of Jehoſhaphat, before his own Aſſumption into Heaven, and this before the death of Jehoſhaphat; and this furthermore in the the time of his ſonne Jehorams reign? would not then the reſolution be evident? But how can this be? Eaſily, Thus. Elijah ſeems to be caught up to Heaven in the firſt year of Jehoram ſonne of Ahab King of Iſrael, as was before intimated. Jehoram ſonne of Ahab began to reign in the eighteenth yeare of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah, 2 Kings 3, 1. (Jehoſhaphat reigning twenty five years in all, 1 Kings 22. 42.) This firſt year of Jehoram ſonne of Ahab, was parallel to the ſecond year of Jehoram ſonne of Jehoſhaphat, 2 Kings 1. 17. for this Jehoram was Pro-rex or Vice-roy, twice in his fathers life-time, viz. in his ſeventeenth and twenty ſecond yeare, as hath been demonſtrated on II. Kings Sect. III. There ſee. Now this was a year or two before Elijahs Aſſumption into Heaven, as appears by what hath been ſaid. Jehoram therefore in the dayes of Elijah, being made Vice-roy, (probably upon ſome expedition of Jehoſhaphat abroad,) and taking the advantage of his fathers abſence to kill all his brethren for the making the Crown ſurer to himſelf. 2 Chron.

2 Chron. 22. whereupon Elijah might send him the terrible Letter, which, during the time of his sickness, he was so desperately wicked and cruel.

Doubt. II. It is said that Jehoram, sonne of Jehoshaphat was thirty two years old when he began to reigne and reigned eight years. 2 Chron. 21. 5. & that he lived but fourty years in all. And yet his sonne Ahaziah (who succeeded him the fourth year) is said to be fourty two years old when he began to reigne, and he reigned one year, &c. 2 Chron. 22. 2. By this reckoning Ahaziah should be one & two years elder than the sonne of his father, which is both impossible and absurd to imagine.

Answ. 1. This seems such an intricate and inexplicable knot, that some think this difficulty is not to be resolved.

fV. 2. Fourty and two] 2 K. 8. 26. It is said that he was two and twenty years of age, which is confirmed by that, that Jehoram the father of Ahaziah was two and thirty years of age when he began to reign, and reigned eight years, 2 Chron. 21. 5. which in all is fourty, whereupon he could not have a sonne of fourty two years of age when he succeeded his father. This difficulty is not to be resolved; and it is likely that there is some alteration happened in these Accounts. Jo. Diod. Annot, on 2 Chron. 22. 2.

2. Some g suspect here the corruption of the Text by some mistakes of the Transcribers, and think the age of these Kings might in old time be writ in numeral letters, not in words at length; and so the letters ב מ standing for fourty two, might easily be put for the letters כ ב (somewhat resembling it,) which stand but for twenty two. Answ. 1. But h This remedy is worse than the malady. How dangerous a thing is it once to admit any such corruption of the original Text! for, where then shall we stop? what Scripture will not be suspected of corruption? how will this shake the instrumental foundation of faith, obedience, comfort and all Religion? where shall we have a certain Canon or Rule, whereby to try and examine and amend all translations? i Bellarmine indeed grants some lesser corruption in the text, either by reason of likeneſse of the letters, or vowel-points. But k others abhorre this opinion, and demonstrate by cogent Arguments, the purity of the Hebrew and Greek texts against all corruption.

3. Some l Expositors answer, that (as Hieronme testifyeth) Jeboram reigned twenty eight years, but only eight years are computed in the number, because so long he reigned well: the rest are omitted, because in them he gave himselfe to the service of Idolatry. In which sence Saul is said to reign two years. Therefore the twenty yeares wherein Jeboram reigned wickedly, which are not mentioned in II. Kings, in this place are added to the years of his sons life, (lest there should be any breach in the Chronology,) whereupon the years of the sonne arise to fourty two, (viz. twenty years redundant,)

4. I like their opinion best that referre this fourty two years to the time of the reigne of the house of Omir, which was just fourty two years, till the beginning of Ahaziah's Reigne, whose mother was Athaliah the daughter of m Omir. Ahaziah himselfe then was twenty two years old when he began to reigne, as 2 Kings 8. 26. But his mothers house, viz. Omri's was thus fourty two years standing in respect of the kingdome. Thus that accurate n Broughton; Ahaziah a sonne of twenty two years of his own age, is a sonne of fourty two years of Omri's house. Seder-Olam and other learned among the Hebrews, have thus reconciled those texts long ago. Acute o Junius also shewes that here is a more obscure Trajection or Transposition of the phrases in this verse, as in 1 Sam. 20. 16. Ezra. 10. 17. and Neh. 12 22. which not being well observed involves the text with Questions and Interpretations. And therefore he thus reads the text——So Ahaziah son of Jeboram King of Judah reigned whose mothers name was Athaliah daughter of Omri, being fourty two years old when Ahaziah reigned, who

Doubt. III. It is said Jehoiachin was eight years old when he began to reigne; but 2 Chron. 36. 9. But Jehoiakim was eldest sonne, and was eighteen years old when he began to reigne, and he reigned in Jerusalem three months, and ten dayes. (Surely no more difference, how exactly so ever computed.)

Answ. 1. There needs some longer discourse then the next compasse of Doubts doth. Divers ingenious learned have (doubtlesse) found it impossible exactly to reconcile in the Story of Chronicles, the numbers seems to have suffered in the tract of time by some accidents. But this is a dangerous Conclusion; Safer for us to acknowledge our own inability to understand Scripture, than so to call in question the purity of Scripture Text alone. And how unlikely any corruption in these two places? Seeing all the Hebrew Copies (as q Glassius hath observed,) unanimously hold the received reading, nor can we be produced to the contrary; nor do the Greek and Latin versions differ from the present. Therefore we must finally so reconcile not to reforme these Scriptures. I exceedingly applaud that saying of r Welphius, Theft Solutions (that I may confesse what I think) displease me, that are made with the Emendation of the sacred BIBLE.

2. Some thus reconcile these two places; Jehoiachin was eight years old when he [viz. his father Jehoiakim, began to reign, and he [viz. Joboiachin his sonne, reigned three months in Jerusalem, 2 Chron. 36. 9. A like place see in the History of Ahaz, 2 King 16. 2. Thus s Junius.

3. Others thus, Its probable that Jehoiakim (who reigned eleven years,) did in the beginning of his reigne, about his second yeare, joyne his sonne Jehoiachin at eight years of age in the Government of the kingdome with himselfe, by reason of the many insurrections in the Kingdome of Judah at that time. But Jehoiakim the father being carried captive to Babylon, Jehoiachin the son plenarily possessed the kingdome. So that he was eight years old when he began to reigne with his father joyntly, according to that of Chronicles: but eighteen years old when he began to reigne alone, (his father being carried captive to Babylon,) which the History of Kings intends. Thus t Parens, u Wolphius, x Glassius. And Glassius adds this Reason out of R. David Kimhi, why Jehoiakim joyned Jehoiachin with himself in Government. Perhaps (saith he) he (viz. Jehoiakim) had other sons: and therefore, because he saw the Kingdome was suspended in the hands of others [viz. Egyptians, 2 Chron. 36. 3, 4.] he knew not whether he might be disturbed from his Kingdome, as it fell out to his brother [viz. Jehoahaz. 2 Chron. 23, 2, 3, 4.] therefore he made his sonne Jehoiachin reigne with himselfe, who was to reigne after him, and in his stead.

Let the judicious Reader well weigh and chuse which of these two last ways of Reconciling he pleaseth. y Parens confesseth, that of Junius is the neater; for why (saith he) should Jehoiakim, joyn a childe of eight yeares old with him in Government? But some Reason hath been hinted, and perhaps the then state of the Kingdome might minister other Causes.

Other doubts Chronological see resolved formerly on II. KINGS Sect. IV.

Sect. VI. Scope.

The chief Intent or Scope of this Book (which is an Abridgement of the two Books of Kings) is,

1. For Substance, one and the same with that of I. and II. KINGS. Save only that after the divided state of the Kingdome under Rehoboam, the History of the Kings of Israel (whereof there was not one good, but every one wicked) is wholly waved; and the History of the Kings of JUDAH (divers whereof were good, and truly godly) is continued unto the Babylonish Captivity. To evidence the Accomplishment of Gods Promises, especially to David and his seed, and through Davids family to clear the line of Christ the Messiah.

2. To intimate after this the term of the Captivities continuance, viz. 70 years, according to the Word of the LORD.

3. To declare the wonderful Return of the Captives of Judah from Babylon (in the first year of Cyrus) when the term was expired; and how easily God brought about that difficult work, by working upon the heart of Cyrus the Persian.

Thus far of those HISTORICAL Books, describing the state of the Jewish Church BEFORE the Babylonish Captivity.

Next come to be considered those Historical Books, which describe the Churches state UNDER the Babylonish Captivity, as the B. of ESTHER; and AFTER the Babylonish Captivity. 1. According to the truth and manner of it, as the book of EZRA. 2. According to the fruit and event of it, as NEHEMIAH. Perhaps the Book of Esther (though in order of History it should be ranked before the other two, yet) is in our Bibles placed after them both, because of the Historical connexion and continuation of II. Chron. and Ezra; this Book evidently beginning with the very self-same words, wherewith that ends. Compare 2 Chron. 36. 22, 23. with Ezra 1. 1, 2, 3.

Now because these Histories declare things that fell out under the II. MONARCHY, viz. the Persian Monarchy: It may be very useful and necessary for the better understanding of these three books, (before they be spoken to in particular) as also of the Prophesie of Daniel, to represent to the Readers view, A brief Chronology of the Reign of the Persian Monarchs, with the continuance and period of that Monarchy; according to the judgement of best-approved a Authors and Chronologers.

In the ninth year after this Conquest, Cyrus obtains Rule over all Asia, (as Helvicus and Alfredus note) and so reigned two years. In the end of these two years he releases the Jewes from Captivity in Babylon to return under Zerubbabel, as is noted in Scripture, 2 Chron. 36. 22. 23. Ezra 1. 1. &c. and 3. 1. &c.) THe Truth and Manner of the Jews RETURN from BABYLON, is deſcribed in the Book of EZRA. So called, 1. Partly from Ezra the Penman of it. 2. Partly from Ezra's acts, a chief part of the Subject matter of it. עזרא Hbezra ſignifies, An Helper. How fitly was he ſo ſtiled, who ſo wonderfully helped the Jewes to ſettlement, after their Return from Babylon!

Some a count, and call Ezra a Prophet. But b Auguſtine doubts whether he may be called a Prophet. c Hierome ſaith he was Joſedech, whoſe ſon was Jeſus the High-Prieſt. But how can he be denyed to be a Prophet, when Chriſt himſelf ſtiles all the Books of the Old Teſtament, d Moſes and the Prophets? It is a Tradition among the Hebrews, that Ezra was the prophet Malachi; as Buntingus notes in his Chronologs, p. 101. Setoeſtæ, 1590.

This is certain, Ezra was e a prieſt, he was of the houſe and lineage of Aaron: ſee his f pedigree. A moſt expert and g ready ſcribe in the Law of Moſes. He was ſent with h Comiſſion by Artaxerxes Mnemon from Babylon to Jeruſalem, &c.

This Book, and that of Nehemiah following, are by the Hebrews reputed as but one Volumne; and that is called by i them, The I. of Ezra; this, the II. of Ezra. The Greek and Latine divide them (as our Engliſh) into two Books; the former being aſcribed to Ezra, the latter to Nehemiah.

Sect. III. Scope.

Chief Scope of this Hiſtory is,

1. Immediately, To deſcribe the Jews Return from the Captivity of Babylon at two ſeveral times, viz. I: In the firſt year of Cyrus the firſt Perſian Monarch, who by Proclamation granted leave to all the Jews that would, to return unto Jeruſalem, under conduct of Zerubbabel (of Davids line) as their Governour, and Joſhuah the high-prieſt; for Reſtauration of the Temple, Worſhip of God, City Jeruſalem, and Jewiſh Commonwealth. Many therefore went up, began to build the Temple, but were interrupted many years by the Samaritans & other adverſaries, till the reign of m Darius Nothus, who according to Cyrus his Decree cauſes the Temple to be built; and it was finiſhed in his ſixth year. 2. In the Reign of n Artaxerxes Mnemon, in his ſeventh year, Another great company of the Jews went up under the conduct of Ezra (the ready Scribe in the Law of Moſes,) the King granting him all his requeſt, for reſtoring the ſervice of God. Who coming to Jeruſalem, reforms the mixed marriages of Jews with Profane Pagans, cauſing them to put away all their ſtrange wives, and their children by them, (for which Gods wrath was heavy upon them) that ſo they might be preſerved an holy ſeed, and not be drawn away from their God.

2. Mediately, To evidence how punctually faithful, and all-ſufficiently able God is, in performing of his Promiſes to his Church and people in their ſeaſon, touching their deliverance and reſtauration, againſt all impediments, improbabilities, and ſeeming impoſſibilities. For he made Cyrus an heathen King his ſhepheard, and nurſing father to his Church, to bring them out of Babylon, (wherein they were as helpleſſe and hopeleſſe, as dead bodies or dry bones in a o grave) to build the p Temple and reſtore Jeruſalem.

NEHEMIAH.

Sect. I. Order.

THE Return of the Jews out of Babylons Captivity to Jerusalem hath been declared in the Book of EZRA; according to the Truth and manner of it: And how the Altar and Temple were built, and mixt Marriages reformed. Now in this B. of NEHEMIAH it is described, according to the Happy fruits and Events of it; how the City Jerusalem was repaired, Civil Government therein setled, and divers affairs in reference to both Church and State, happily ordered.

Sect. II. Name.

This History is called by some, the II. of EZRA, 1. Either out of an Opinion that Ezra penned this as well as the former Book, that bears his name. 2. Or, because the History of the Jews return from Babylon, begun in Ezra, is here continued: this Book being as an Additional Supplement, or continuation to that.

But others better denominate it NEHEMIAH, And thus it is commonly stiled, 1. Partly because Nehemiah was the Instrumental Author or Penman (as will appear after.) 2. Partly because the Acts of Nehemiah are the principal Subject matter of it.

Who

Who was this Nehemiah? נחמיה i. e. Nechemiah a signifies either, The rest of the LORD, from נוח Nuach, To rest: by the bleſſing of the LORD he ſetled the Jewes, returned from Captivity, in happy reſt in their own Land. Or, The conſolation of the LORD, from נחם Nicham, To comfort: How appoſitely! ſeeing he was ſuch an excellent inſtrument of Comfort to the Jewes, after their long and mournful Captivity; he being the famous Repairer and Reſtorer of Jeruſalem and her Priviledges.

Nehemiah is called, התרשתא Hattirſhatha, viz. b The Tirſhatha. Interpreters much vary among themſelves about the Notation and genuine ſignification of this name. Some think it ſignifies, A Diſſolver of the Foundation: ſome, The Foundation, or Drink of them that contemplate: ſome, One that contemplates the year, or Time; from the Hebr. and Syr. both together: ſome, One that had liberty to drink wine in the Kings houſe, for his office-ſake there; from the Chald. תחר to give licence, and שתא to drink. Or rather, it ſignifies, A diſpenſer or giver of drink: ſo pointing out Nehemiahs office about the King of Perſia, as c Wolphius hath noted. d Gerhard thinks it ſignifies, A Cup-bearer; (And it is evident, that was e Nehemiah's office.) But in the Chaldee language is a Title of Dignity and Honour. f Junius tranſlates it, Legatus Regis, viz. The Kings Legate, Ambaſſador, or Commiſſary, (who yet ſomewhat ſtrangely interprets and applies this to Shaſhazzar, whom many think to be Zerubbabel.) In the Margin of our Engliſh Bibles, it is rendred, Governour. This g Nehemiah was the ſon of Hachaliah; Cup-bearer to King Artaxerxes, in Shuſhan the Palace, that being the Metropolis of Perſia, built (as h Pliny thinks) by Darius Haſtiſpis. He was ſent with i Letters of Commiſſion from the King to Jeruſalem, to repair and build Jeruſalem which he ſucceſſefully effected againſt all diſcouragements and oppoſitions.

Sect. III. Penman.

It is noted by k ſome, to be the opinion of divers learned Fathers, viz. Athanaſius, Epiphanius, Chryſoſtom, with others; that Ezra who penned the former book, was Penman alſo of this book. But the received opinion ſeems rather to be adhered to, That Nehemiah himſelf was Penman of this book. 1. Becauſe the very inſcription of this book evinceth it, l The words of Nehemiah ſon of Hechaliah, &c. When the Holy Ghoſt calls them Nehemiah's words, ſhall we count them anothers? 2. Becauſe no ſolid Reaſon is brought to the contrary by any of that opinion. 3. That learned and ponderous Hierome ſaith, m Ezra and Nehemiah, viz. The Helper, and the Comforter from the LORD, are joyned together in one volume; intimating that they were two diſtinct Authors. 4. Becauſe throughout the whole current of this Hiſtory, Nehemiah is brought in relating his own Acts, in the firſt perſon. n As I was in Shuſhan —— I was the Kings Cup-bearer, &c.

Sect. IV. Time and Chronologie.

This book contains an Hiſtory of Occurrents about the Reſtauration of Jeruſalem, &c. by Nehemiah (who is o thought to be very young, when he firſt engaged in it) from the 20. year of Artaxerxes Mnemon, to the laſt year of Darius the laſt, the Period of the Perſian Monarchy; for about 55 years, viz.

Sect. V. Scope.

The Scope or Driſt of this book (as of others) is 1. Primary, 2 Secondary.

1. Primary and more immediate, To deſcribe Nehemiah's notable Acts for Reſtauration of Jeruſalem, with eſtabliſhment of other Civil and Eccleſiaſtical priviledges among the returned Jewes. How being affected deeply with Jeruſalems ruines, he obtained Commiſſion from King Artaxerxes for rebuilding Jeruſalem; and ſucceſſefully effected it againſt all oppoſition. How he reformed the Uſurious oppreſſions among them. How he took care for Jeruſalems ſecurity. How for advancement of Gods true Religion and Worſhip, he engaged them all in a moſt Solemn Covenant with God, ſealed to by their Princes, Levites and Prieſts. How he diſpoſed of the inhabitants by lot, ſome to dwell at Jeruſalem, ſome in other Cities. How he Dedicated the walls of Jeruſalem. How he appointed the Offices of Prieſts and Levites in the Temple. And all this being done in 12 years q ſpace, in the 32 year of Artaxerxes he returned to Babylon. But afterwards returning again to Jeruſalem a ſecond time, he found and reformed many corruptions that had crept in among them.

q Neh. 13. 6

2. Secondary, and more mediate; To let us know, 1. How deep and deſperate the diſtreſſes of the Church may grow, before God will reſtore her. 2. How difficult, ſlow and perplexed a work, the work of Reformation is, both by reaſon of adverſaries to be oppoſed, and publick corruptions to be removed. 3. How eaſily and wonderfully God can bring Reformation to perfection againſt all impediments whatſoever, when he is reſolved to carry it on. 4. What excellent and uſefull inſtruments pious and faithful Magiſtrates are for the accompliſhing both of Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Reformation; Nehemiah being a lively Pattern of a true Reformer indeed.

ESTHER.

Sect. I. Order.

IN the two former Hiſtories of Ezra and Nehemiah, The Return of the Jews from the Babylonian Captivity to Jeruſalem hath been deſcribed: Now in this Book of Eſther, ſome remarkable Occurrents that befell the Jews in their Captivity under one of the Perſian Monarchs, viz. Ahaſhuerus, is recorded. This book ſeems placed after the other two (though before them in time) for reaſons formerly intimated, before Ezra.

Sect. II. Name.

The Hebrews call this Book מגילת אסתר Megillath Eſther, i. e. The volume of Eſther. From the chief Subject-matter thereof, viz. The Hiſtory of Q. Eſther the Jew in extremity of ſtraits, is here deſcribed.

Sect. III. Penman.

Penman is not ſo unanimouſly determined upon mong Authors. R. Moſes (as a ſome obſerve) contends it was written by the Men of the great Synagogue b Philo, that it was compoſed by Joachin ſon of Jeſus the High-Prieſt, who returned with Zorobabel and was his Companion. R. Abraham, that it was written by Mordecai; from that paſſage, Eſth. 9. 20, 23. And Mordecai wrote theſe things.—As Mordecai had written to them. But this writing of Mordecai relates not to this whole Hiſtory, but onely to the Anniverſary Feſtival appointed to be obſerved for the Jewes deliverance, &c. But more probably c Auguſtine and others think it was penned by Ezra or Nehemiah.

c Poſt hos tres Prophetas Aggæum, Zachariam, Malachiam, per idem tempus liberationis populi ex Babylonica ſervitute, ſcripſit etiam Eſdras, qui magis rerum geſtarum Scriptor eſt habitus, quam Propheta: ſicut eſt liber qui appellatur Heſter, cujus res geſtæ in laudem Dei non longe ab his temporibus inveniuntur, &c. Auguſt. de Civ. Dei. l. 18. c. 36. Tom. 4.

It is very obſervable of this book of Eſther, that it is the only book in the whole Bible, wherein the Name of GOD is, not at all found. Perhaps upon this conſideration it is, that d ſome have excluded it out of the Canon of Sacred Writ. But e others finding theſe X. Chapters in Hebrew original, upon better ground receive and reckon it as part of of the Canon.

Sect. IV. Time, or Chronologie.

This Book contains an Hiſtory of the ſtate of the Church in Captivity, f under the Reign of Ahaſhuerus King of Perſia, from about the 2. year of his reign, till the end of his reign, which was about 18 or 20 years, (ſuppoſing him to be Xerxes) for he reigned about 20 or 21 y. as hath been formerly intimated. Thus compute the time:

Ahaſhuerus makes his g Feaſt, in his	3	g Eſth. 1. 3.
He h marrieth Eſther the Jew, in his	7	h Eſth. 2. 16.
Haman i conſpires againſt the Jews, and is hanged, in his	12	i Eſth. 3. 7. & 7. 10.
Thence Eſther and Mordecai Govern, the reſidue of his reign

Sect. V. Scope.

Scope, To declare, not only the extreme fury and ſubtilty of the Devil and his inſtruments againſt the Church and people of God; but alſo the ſingular vigilancy of Gods providence over his Church in extremeſt ſtraits and deepeſt dangers, Preſerving them from them, Advantaging them by them, and Returning their enemies plots upon their own heads, when neereſt execution. For in this book, King Ahaſhuerus having put away Q. Vaſhti, marrieth Eſther the Jew, and advanceth Mordecai her kinſman for his faithfulneſſe in detecting a conſpiracie againſt the Kings life; and appoints Haman to honour him like a Prince (at that very time that Haman came to ſue to have Mordecai hanged for not bowing to him, and all the Jewes deſtroyed.) Which deſign through Mordecai's inſtigation, and Eſthers interceſſion with the King is prevented, and all the miſchief returned upon Haman and his confederates, to the great triumph and advantage of the Jews in all the Kings provinces. From all which we may ſee, that verily there is a reward for the righteous, verily there is a God that judgeth in the earth.

Sect. VI. Principal Parts.

This Book chiefly declares the Jews deliverance from Hamans Plot; By what means, and in what manner it was effected.

The Means of this ſtrange deliverance was Eſthers Advancement. Her Advancement is deſcribed, 1. By the occaſion of it. 2. By the Manner of it. I.

1. The Occaſion of her Advancement. viz. Queen Vahſtie's refuſal to come to the King at his Royal Feaſt, when he would have ſhewn her beauty to his Princes and people, Ch. I. 1. to 13. II. DOGMATICAL, or DOCTRINAL Books.

THus far of those Books which are more properly Historical; Now of the Books which were written in the same times with the former, which declare to us the Will of God in a more Doctrinal way, and therefore for distinction sake called DOCTRINAL. They are also called the Poetical Books, because it is conceived that they, or most of them in Hebrew were written in Metre, or Poetical Measures; which now are not so easie to be found out.

These DOGMATICAL Books consist in these

Doctrines

I. Of more special and particular reference to some particular individual Person, as touching Job's affliction in the Book of Job.

II. Of more general reference and respect to all; and this either 1. In Davids book, viz. The Psalms. Or, 2. In Solomons Books, which are 1 Proverbial, viz. PROVERBS. 2 Penitential, viz. ECCLESIASTES. 3. Nuptial, viz. CANTICLES, or SONG OF SONGS.

JOB.

Sect. I. Order.

DOctrines of more special reference to a particular Person, are laid down in the Book of JOB.

Touching the Order of this Book, according to which it is ranked in the Bible, it is observed by that learned and judicious Author Mercerus, a That the Hebrew Doctors thus order the Books called Hagiographa, or Holy Writings, by way of Emphasis; viz. First, RUTH, who was in the times of Judges. 2. PSALMS penned by David, who came of Ruth. 3. Job. according to their opinion, who count him equal to the Queen of Sheba. 4. Solomon's three Books, viz. PROVERBS ECCCESIASTES, (which are Books of Wisdom) and SONG OF SONGS, which he is thought to have written in his old age. 5. LAMENTATIONS of Jeremiah, who followed Solomon. 6. DANIEL, who after Jeremiah was in exile, in dayes of Nebuchadnezzar. 7. ESTHER, who was after him, under Ahasuerus. 8. EZRA, who flourished under Darius II. after Ahasuerus. 9. Last of all, CHRONICLES, as a Breviary of the whole Bible-History. But amongst those that think JOB was contemporaneous to Moses, this Book of JOB seems most fitly to be ranked first of all.

Sect. II. Name.

This Book is b entituled, JOB; as is most probable from the chief Subject matter therein treated of, viz. that precious man Job, and his various condition of Prosperity, Adversity, and Recovery out of all his Distresses, and his Demeanour in them all.

b Titulus est, Liber Jobi, non quod Job scripserit, sed quia de Job est scriptus. D. Par. Præm. in lib. Job.

This

This name אוב JOB, (according to Hierome) c signifies one Grieving, from אי a particle of Grieving. Or a Magician, Wise man, the Heb. אוב signifying a familiar spirit, Lev. 20. 27. Magician is sometimes taken in good sense. Some derive it from the Chaldee יבב viz. To rejoyce, as it were shouting, howling; but its usually taken in better part. Some derive it from איב viz. An enemy, passively: Job being exposed to enmity of wife, friends, &c. and almost abhorred of all by reason of his overwhelming calamities. d Gregorius likes best this Etymon. But Mercerus rather thinks it comes from some Arabian root, which often agees with the Hebrew.

c Nomen Job. Hieron. Dolentem, vel Manum interpretatur: quanquam pro Magno Magum legendum putarem. אוב Hebraice est Pythō. Erit autem interjectum Magi nomen in bonum interdum sonat. אי est Dolentis particula. Alii a יבב Chaldaica voce quæ jubilare significat, quasi ejulantem. Sed יבב in bonum fere partem sumi solet. Sunt qui ab איב inimico deducunt, passive: quasi virum simultati & inimicitiis expositum dicas, & ob calamitates quibus obrutus pene fuit, omnibus abhorrendum. Sed curiosius non puto vocis etymon inquirendum, quia ex fonte potius Arabico ductum puto: etsi multa Arabica nomina virorum cum Hebræis conveniunt, & ex fonte sint Hebræo, ut sociorum Job, Eliphaz, Tiophar, Elihu, &c. Joan. Mercer. comment. in lib. Job, c. ver. 1. d Greg. Gregorii Franci Lex Sanct. num. 138.

Sect. III. Whether there was such a man as Job ? Who he was? And when he lived?

e See R. Moses Ben. Maimon in lib. Moreh Nebochim, par. 3. Sect 22. et Mercer. quo sup.

But was there ever any such man as this Job ? Answ. e Some think that there never was such a man in the world, as this Job, of which this Book speaks: And so they account this Book not Historical, but Parabolical, to expound mens opinions about Gods providence in afflictions, &c. like Nathan's Parable to David, in 2 Sam. 12. And that no mortal man was able to bear such afflictions as here ascribed to Job, &c. But this opinion upon divers grounds is exploded by the Judicious; who hold, that this Job was, and that all these things storied of him, befel him. For,

f Job. 1. 1. This Book expresly noteth Persons names, Places Facts, and other Circumstances, usually recited in true real Histories. Here's, 1. Job's f Name, Country Piety, Wealth, &c. described. Here's the names, numbers, and acts of his children mentioned. Here's g Job. 2. his g wife, and her carriage recorded. Here's his h Job 2. 11, &c. h friends, their Names, Countries, and Discourses with him in his afflictions, punctually delineated, &c. And can we rationally imagine, these were not realities? 2. The honourable mention which other i Ezek. 14 14, 20, Scriptures make of Job, evince that this was a real story. In O. Testament Ezekiel saith, i Though these three men, Noah, Daniel and Job were in it, they should deliver but their own souls, &c. They are here called k Jam. 5. 11. three men: We believe there was really a Noah, and a Daniel; and Why should we doubt of a Job? In N. Testament, James saith, k Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord, that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy. 3. The founder Hebrew Writers acknowledge that l Jo. Mercer præfat. in l Job. this Job really was, and that all these things befell him for an example to us, saith l Mercerus. Modern Writers generally repute this a real history:

But the greater doubt is, Who this Job was, and in

m I. Merc. ibid. what time he lived?

Answ. These two Questions depend so upon each other, that the Resolution of the one will be coincident with the Resolution of the other. Here are various Opinions, recited by m Mercerus. As,

1. Some think he lived in dayes of Moses. But others judge their reasons for that opinion so light, that by them it may be as well concluded that he lived in dayes of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

2. Some, that he lived in time of the Judges, from that expression Job 27. 12. because in that time all was vanity, all given to wickedness.

3. Some, that he lived in dayes of Ahasuerus, because of the beautiful n woman then sought for, o Jobs daughters being commended as the faireſt of all in the land.

4. Some, that he lived in the time of the Queen of Sheba, because mention is here made of the p Sabeans. Others, in the time of the Chaldeans under Nebuchadnezzar, because the q Chaldeans are mentioned.

5. Some, that he lived in the dayes of Jacob and married his daughter Dinah, because of that phrase, r Thou speakest like a foolish woman: much like that, ——hath wrought folly in Israel.

But the weakness of these opinions and their grounds, seems very apparent.

6. Some others think that Job came of t Nahor Abraham's brother, and that he was the third from Nahor, thus; ——Nahor, ——Uz, ——Job: and that he lived about that time that Israel was in Ægypt. u Hierome seems to incline hereunto, especially seeing Job is said to dwell in the x Land of Uz, and y Uz was one of Nahor's sons. This opinion z Mercerus thinks, most probable of all. But (in a Gerhards opinion) that Land seems not to have received its name of Uz coetaneous to Abraham, but rather from b Uz son of Aram, Sem's Nephew, presently after the flood.

7. Others rather are of the opinion, that Job is the same with c Jobab King of the Idumæans, of the race of Esau. And that יובב viz. Jobab might be changed into אוב Job, either from the custome of the Hebrew tongue, which oftimes changeth one letter for another; or from the Arabick, Idumæan, or other dialect of the Country where he sojourned; or from the change of his condition in the world; while prosperous, he might be called Jobab the letter being doubled; when in distresse, his name contracted into Job. See the like in case of d Abraham, of e Naomi.

This last opinion is urged by Arguments not to be neglected. 1. From the circumstances of place. f Jobab in the Land of Idumæa, Job in the Land of g Uz, a chief tract in Idumea. Hence Kings of Edom are called h Kings of the Land of Uz. 2. From description of their possessions, Jobab hath i Regal Majesty, Job had a k Princely estate, not usual to private men. And also Princely l Dignity, Habit, and Office. 3. From Similitude of names. As Moses reckons up among Esau's sons, one m Eliphaz who brought forth one Theman builder of a Town of his own name. So Job's History mentions n Eliphaz the Temanite. 4. From the consent of divers Authors subscribing to this opinion.

Ambrose saith, o That there were of Esau divers good and faithful, Job proves, who is the fifth from Abraham, of the sons of Esau, that is the Nephew of Esau.

of the Hunchite, by the instinct of Gods Holy and infallible Spirit, were written for our Instruction, unto whom the ends of the world are come. Therefore let us diligently search the Scriptures, that we may find out the Mind of God, that we may be wise unto Salvation, and throughly furnished unto all good works. Thus much concerning the Author and Penner of this Book.

Some notwithstanding are of opinion, (That the time when this Book was penned, seems to be when the people journeyed in the wilderness, after their deliverance out of Egypt, whereof there are manifest marks in this Book, as of a thing newly done, and yet fresh in mens memories. Let the learned judge.

Sect. IV. Penman.

Penman of this Book is not certainly known. 1. Some think it was Solomon: but that's scarce probable, Job (by consent of all) living so long before Solomon, and many Penmen of holy Scripture intervening before them. 2. Some, That Job penned this Book himself, because the expressions and speeches of Job are laid down in such emphatical and patherick terms. But Gerhard suggests divers reasons against this opinion: For, 1 Then Moses should not be the first Writer of Scripture, Job living long before him. 2. Then this Book should not have been reckoned in the sacred Canon, Job being not an Israelite, but an Idumean, and his Book written in Arabick, not in Hebrew. Yet he denies not, but Job might write the discourses betwixt him and his friends, in the lofty Arabick stile; Moses afterwards making many additions, and writing the whole in Hebrew. 3. Most are of opinion, that it was penned by Moses. R. Solomon and other Hebrews favour this opinion, saith Gerhard. There are that think, that Moses found the History of Job with Jethro his father-in-law in Midian, and that he carried it thence into Egypt, to instruct the Israelites by Job's example, patiently to bear Egypts oppressions. Alsted thinks Moses wrote Genesis and Job, about the same time, viz. a little before Israels departure out of Egypt, Ann. Mund. 2452. The most common opinion is (saith Diodate) That Moses hath been the Author of it, having written the Narration in prose, and the Discourses which were held upon this subject in an Heroick verse, fitting the dignity and gravity of the matter.

Sect. V. Scope.

The chief Scope of this excellent Book is,

1. Immediately, To describe the various state of that truly Religious, and (as Justine stiles him) thrice-Happy JOB, viz. His great Prosperity. His deep adversity; and his wonderful Recovery out of all his distresses; and his singular Deportment in them all.

Especially here are delineated, Jobs many and heavy afflictions, in his state, servants, children, and in his own person both body and soul; into all which he was suddenly implunged by Gods permission, and Satans instigation, accusing Job's Religion as mercenary; that so Job's uprightness might be cleared, his graces proved, Satan confuted, and God in all magnified.

More particularly, Job having experience of Gods love and favour in Christ, is amazed at the severity of Gods strange proceedings with him, and bursts out into some distempered complaints to God, justifying himself. But Job's three friends endeavour to convince Job, that either he was a wicked man, or an Hypocrite, were most unreasonable and injurious. 3. That true faith in Christ, and upright heart and good conscience towards God, is the sweetest comfort supporting the heart under bitterest Trials. 4. That extremity of Troubles may push the best of Saints upon some extravagancies of passions and expressions, which yet argue not a nullity of Grace, nor a losse of Gods love. 5. That when patience hath had its perfect work, and God hath sufficiently honoured his own name in the sufferings of his people he can easily deliver them out of all their trials and distresses, and crown them with double happiness and prosperity.

Sect. VI. Principal Parts.

In this Book Jobs threefold condition is described, viz. 1. His great Prosperity. 2. His deep Adversity. 3. His wonderful Recovery out of all his Distresses.

JOB'S [b] PROSPERITY was either, 1. Spiritual. Ch. I. ver. 1. Or, 2. Temporal, In his Posterity, ver. 2. In his Possessions, ver. 3. In the love and communion among his children, ver. 4. Amplified by Jobs sanctifying them continually by Sacrifices, ver. 5.

JOB'S [c] ADVERSITY, is described, I. By the Antecedent Occasion of it, viz. Satan's instigation of the LORD against Job, as being meerly mercenary in his Religion, and the LORD's permission, leaving all that Job had, in his hand, but himself, ver. 6. to 13. II. By the particular miseries brought upon him, viz. 1. His Oxen and Asses spoiled by the Sabeans, slaying also his servants, v. 13, 14, 15. 2. His sheep, and other servants burnt with fire from heaven, ver. 16. 3. His Camels taken, and other servants slain by the Chaldeans, ver. 17. 4. All his children destroyed with the fall of their eldest brothers house; amplified by Jobs self-denying deportement under all this, ver. 18. to the end of the chapt. 5. I. ELIHU, the youngest of Jobs friends, takes up the controversie in a very large speech respecting both Job and his friends, (which some account four distinct speeches) wherein, note.

1. The Preface, before his speech; containing, 1.

2. The Substance of his discourse, wherein he, 1. Con-

By the faithfull Ministry of the Word, v. 23. to the end of the chapt. III. Confuteth Job for accusing God of injustice in such afflicting of him. II. GOD himself, speaking out of the Whirlwind is the other Moderator, and he finally and fully decides the Controversie betwixt Job and his friends.

1. Challenging Job for ignorance in his expressions, Chap. 38. Ch. XXXVIII. 1, 2.

2. Convincing Job of his unfitness to contest with God; there being no proportion betwixt Gods infinite wisdom and power; and Jobs great ignorance and imbecillity even in natural things, many of which are particularly instanced in, v. 3. to the end of the chapt. and Ch. XXXIX. throughout. and Ch. XL. v. 1, 2. 3 Blaming Job for attributing too much to his own, too little to Gods righteousness, Describing Jobs impotency ironically, but Gods Omnipotency discovered, especially in those two wonderful creatures Behemoth, and Leviathan, v. 6. to the end of the chapt. and

THE PREFACE.

Sect. I. The General Order of the Book of Pſalmes.

HItherto of that DOCTRINAL Book, which contains Doctrines having Immediately a more ſpecial and particular reference to a particular perſon, viz. JOB: though Mediately it is of ſingular uſe and benefit to Gods people in all after-ages, as other a Scriptures are. Next come we to conſider of thoſe DOCTRINAL Books, which repreſent Doctrines of more General Concernment, both Immediately and Mediately, viz. The Books of 1. David, and 2. Solomon. Some whereof were (as b is thought) originally written in Hebrew-Metre, or Poetical Meaſures, which now we are not ſo well acquainted with; Others in Proſe.

1. DAVID'S Book, is that moſt excellent, Devout, and Heavenly Book of PSALMS.

The General Order of this Book of Pſalms may be conſidered, 1. Relatively. 2. Abſolutely.

1. Relatively. As it hath Relation to the other Books of the Old Teſtament. And ſo we may conſider it, 1. According to the Method or Manner of the c Hebrews Ranking or placing it, viz. Among the Chethubim, that is, The Writings: by way of Emphaſis, which the Greek calls Ἁγιόγραφα, Hagiographa; that is, The-Holy-Writings. As I have formerly noted, before the beginning of Joſhuah. And yet d Mercerus a learned Hebrician, ſomewhat differently from others, reports the Order of the Hagiographa, according to the Hebrew Doctors, as I have already noted on Job Sect. 1. yet ſtill retaining the Pſalms among the Hagiographa. 2. According to the Order wherein it is marſhalled by later Writers, in which Order we have it placed in our Engliſh-Bibles, viz. Among thoſe Books of the Prophets which are Doctrinal. The Prophets Books of the Old Teſtament, being from their ſubject matter divided into Hiſtorical, Doctrinal, and Prophetical Books, as I have more fully repreſented their Order in a brief Scheme or Table, before GENESIS.

2. Abſolutely. As this Book of Pſalms is in it ſelf repreſented to us, conſiſting of 150 Pſalmes, (of which number, (ſaith Auguſtine *,) there's no doubt.) That Pſalm touching The Bleſſed Man, being Firſt; That touching Chriſts Kingdom in Sion, being Second; That upon Davids Flight from Abſalom his ſon, being Third; &c. Now hence this Queſtion ariſeth, viz. Whether this Book of Pſalms, comprizing 150 in all, were at firſt placed in this Order among themſelves, as now they are tranſmitted to us? In anſwer hereunto, I ſay; 1. That it ſeems very clear, That this very Order, wherein theſe 150 Pſalms are ranked, is very Ancient; and probably was before the Apoſtles dayes. 1. Partly, becauſe Paul preaching at Antioch, had this paſſage in his Sermon;——e As it is alſo written in the ſecond Pſalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Therefore in Pauls dayes, that was The Second pſalm, which is ſtill The Second pſalm in our dayes. And therefore probably then the Pſalmes were in the ſame Order as we have them now. 2. Partly, becauſe the moſt Ancient Verſions of the Pſalms, viz. The Latin, Arabick, Syriack, yea, the Greek Verſion of the LXXII. (which ſeems to be followed by our Bleſſed Saviour and his Apoſtles, in their Teſtimonies alledged out of the Old Teſtament) ment) do unanimously with one joynt-consent set down the Psalms in this very order wherein we now have them. Although some of them have some small difference from the rest, in the Uniting, Dividing and Enumerating of some of them, as I hereafter shall be pointed at in its proper place; yet still the same order of the Psalms is observed. 3. Partly, because all the best Hebrew Copies joyntly confirm this Order. 4. Partly, because all our ancient Writers of any credit since the Apostles dayes, as well as Modern Authors, alledging any Testimonies out of the Psalms, do avouch and follow this order. II. That nevertheless it is palpably evident, That the several Psalms are not now placed in the self same order, as they were written. For, 1. Then, the 90th Psalm, penned by Moses, should have been First. 2. Then, the 3d. psalm, touching Absalom's conspiracy, should have been placed after all those psalms penned upon occasion of King Saul's Persecutions of David. 3. Then, psalm 72, penned by David for Solomon, g which (from those words, The Prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended, ver. 20.) is thought to be the last psalm David wrote before his death, should have been ranked after his other psalms, &c. But, how, when, or by whom, the Psalms were digested into this order, as we now have them, some conjectures may be had, but no certainty. h Sim de Muis suspects, but he dare affirm nothing peremptorily in the case, That the psalmes were thus digested, not with respect to the History, but to the Musical or Poetical Measures, That those psalmes who were of like Poetical Measures, or like Musical number, were cast together. But hence I infer two things as certain; 1. That the Time, History or meaning of any psalm, cannot solidly be evinced by the bare order of it: but will require a further and more accurate disquisition. 2. That, it is not very safe nor prudent to draw any Doctrinal Positions or Dogmatical conclusions, from the meer Disposal of the Psalms in their present order.

Sect. II. The Denominations, or Names of this Book.

This choice Book hath many Names given unto it. 1. It is called by the i later Hebrew Writers (who added Names to the Book) ספר תהילים Sepher Tehillim, following rather the Chaldee termination than the Hebrew, which regularly is Tehilloth, as Psal. 22. 4.) that is, The BOOK OF HYMNES or PRAISES: because the high PRAISES of God are the chief Subject-matter of the psalms. 2. In the Old Testament, the psalms are stiled, ישראל זמרות Zimroth Jisrael: k that is, THE PSALMS OF ISRAEL. So called, because they were all penned l for the spiritual use and benefit of God's Israel of old, and of the Israel of God under the New Testament also. 3. In the New Testament, Ψαλμοὶ m THE PSALMES. And so this Book is denominated also by the LXXII. in the most ancient Roman Copy out of the Vatican library. This n Greek word comes from another, which signifies gently-to-beat, viz. some musical stringed instruments, wherewith the psalmes were wont to be tuned and sung in the Temple. And this Denomination (is by a Synechdoche of the part) given to the whole Book, because in the Titles or inscriptions prefixed to the Psalms in the Hebrew Text, most of them are called PSALMES few are called SONGS, fewest HYMNES. And Βίβλος Ψαλμῶν; that is, THE BIBLE, or o BOOK OF PSALMES; because these 150 psalms were all digested into one Book or Roll, lest any of them should be lost, but that all of them might be the better preserved for the benefit of the Church: As all the Smaller Prophets, upon the same account, were put into one Roll or Volume, which is therefore called, p The Book of the Prophets. Moreover, the Apostle useth three Denominations which comprehend all the integral parts of this Book, and most especially have relation thereunto, viz. * PSALMES, HYMNES, and SPIRITUAL SONGS: q Let the Word of Christ indwell in you richly, in all wisdom. Teaching and admonishing your selves (ἑαυτοὺς, your selves, or one another) with psalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual songs, singing with Grace in your Heart unto the Lord. r —— But be filled with the Spirit, speaking to your selves with Psalms, and Hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart unto the Lord. Here (as s Junius thinks) we have A Genus, and two Species. The Genus; ᾠδαὶ, Odes, songs. This word Answers to the Hebrew word שירים Shirim, songs, from שור Shur, to sing. This is often prefixed in the Titles of the psalmes, as Psal. 30. 45, 46, 65, 68, 108, 120, &c. The two Species are, 1 Ὕμνοι Hymnes, Praises; sung with voice, especially. Answering to the Hebrew word, תהילים Tehillim, or תהילות Tehilloth, Praises. This Domination is prefixed to Psalm 145 Title; תהלה לדוד Tehillah le David, An Hymne, or praise of David. From הלל Hillel, to praise, to extol with praises. And from this word the Hebrew Writers (as was noted) stile this whole Book ספר תהילים Sepher Tehillim, The Book of Hymnes, or Praises. 2. Ψαλμοὶ psalmes, (as was noted) from ψάλλω, gently-to-strike, viz. some stringed instrument of Musick. Such were usually tuned on stringed Musical Instruments. This Answers to מזמורים Mizmorim, psalms; From זמר Zamar, to prune, cut-off, &c. This is Prefixed in many Titles, As Psal. 3. 4, 5, 6, &c. And this word properly signifies; Artificial Modulations cut out, (as it were) in certain numbers, measures, &c. Thus these t psalms, Hymnes, and Spiritual songs (according to the Gr. Version of the LXXII. much followed in the New Testament) answer to Mizmorim, Tehillim, and Shirim. But sometimes they are not so exactly differenced, but promiscuously used one for another. 4. The Greek Version of the LXXII, according to the Alexandrian Manuscript-Copy, (next in Antiquity and repute to that of the Roman,) stiles it, Ψαλτήριον, The psalter: from the u psaltery, a Musical Instrument used among others in singing of psalms of old. The Syraick Version denominates it; The Book of Psalms of David King and Prophet. The Arabick Version; The Book of psalms of David the Prophet, King of the sons of Israel. Anciently it was called, Soliloquium, The Soliloquy: Because it contains the Saints solitary Conferences, and sweetest secret retirements with God in Meditations, Confessions, Prayers and praises: and Gods precious returns, and fatherly wisperings of love and favour to them again, reciprocally.

Sect. III. The Authours of this Book of Psalms.

The Efficient Cause, or Author of this Book of psalms, is either 1 Principal. Or 2 Instrumental.

1. The principal Authour or Efficient of this Book of psalmes, contriving and enditing the psalms therein contained, is the ever-blessed God, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; They are his Divine spirations, his Sacred and Heavenly breathings unto his Amanuenses or Penmen, and by them unto us. 1. God the Father: As the Apostles declare in their Prayer; x They lift up their voice to God with one accord, and said; Lord thou art God which hast made Heaven and Earth, and the Sea, and all that in them is: who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, Why did the Heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things? The Kings of the Earth, &c. For of a Truth against thy holy childe Jesus, &c. Thus, God the Father spake the Second psalm to David. The like also understand of the y other psalms. 2. God the Son, Jesus Christ: z Let the the Word of Christ to dwell in you richly, in all Wisdom, teaching and admonishing your selves in Psalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, &c. Where it is evident, That these Psalmes, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, (answering to the Titles of our Psalmes, Tehillim, and Shirim, as have been shewed) were part of the Word of Christ, the Holy Scriptures, given by the Holy Ghost; [illegible] as the Holy Ghost saith; To day if you will hear his voice harden not your hearts, &c. in the provocation, &c. This plainly shews (as the like is to be said of all the rest) the stile or language of the Holy Ghost. As what Psalmes, Hymns or Spiritual Songs are there in the world comparable to these, that have God, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, for their Authors and Indicters? with what Zeal, Devotion, Spirituality, Faith, and Affection, may we acquicke in these, recreate our hearts in singing and meditating of these; which are so Divinely inspired, so Infallible, so Heavenly, Holy, and Spiritual! I say with him, b Sure I am that Davids psalmes are spiritual Songs, if ever there were any spiritual songs in the world.

II. The Instrumental Efficient or Author of this Book, may be considered, 1 As Penning or Writing the psalmes, As Collecting or Gathering them into one Book.

c Fran. Jun in Proleg. ad lib. Psalm Sect. 2.

1. The Penmen, Amanuenses or Writer of these psalms, seems not to be any one person, but divers: and the Title of sundry psalms import evidently thus much. But who those were, is not so unanimously agreed upon. 1. The Jewish Writers name ten Penmen, (as c Junius notes) viz. Adam, (to whom they ascribe Psalm 92.) Melchizedech, (to whom they attribute Psa. 110.) Abraham, (whom they call Ethan, and give to him psal. 89.) Moses, Asaph, Heman, Jeduthun, and the three Sons of Korah, viz. Assir, Elkana, and Ebiasaph. And they make David onely the Gatherer of them into one Book. Answ. But this Opinion is false and fabulous. For, 1. The 92 psalm, ascribed to Adam, seems probably by the Argument or Subject matter of it, to be David's: though no Penman at all is mentioned in the Inscription. 2. The 110 psalm, attributed to Melchizedech, was certainly written by David, as both the Title of that psalm, and the d New Testament again and again gives us to understand. 3. David was questionless the Penman of very many psalms, even of all those psalmes before which his name is prefixed in the Title, and also of sundry others, to which his name is not prefixed, as the Holy-Ghost in the e New Testament assures us, as of Psa. 2, and 95, And how many more un-titled psalms David did Pen, who can assert? and therefore to ascribe the whole Book of psalms to these ten, and none to David (accounting him onely the Collector or Gatherer of them into one Book) is very false and injurious. II. Others reckon up somewhat differently ten Penmen of the psalmes, thus; viz. Moses, David, Solomon, Asaph, Heman, Erhan, Jeduthun, and the three sonnes of Korah. This is a more tolerable Enumeration than the former. Howbeit, it may justly be doubted, Whether every one of these ten had an hand in Penning these psalmes. Solomon hath two psalms ascribed to him, having his Name in their Titles, viz. Psa. 72. and 127. But neither of them seem to be penned by Solomon, but both by David for Solomon. And the Title לשלמה Lisheloma, is rather to be rendred for Solomon, than of Solomon. Psal. 72. is Davids prayer for Solomon: probably his last Prayer. And vers. 20. it's said; The prayers of David the Son of Jesse are ended, which reckons this as one, and the last, of Davids prayers. And psalm 127 seems to be Davids Counsel to Solomon, teaching him, that all humane labours are frustrate, unless they be helped and prospered by God. Jeduthun prophecied with the Harp, &c. 1 Chron. 25. 1, 3. But those two psalms that have his name in the Title were not penned by him. For as the very Titles signifie, psal. 39. was have an Inſtance of ſome other Books of the Old Teſtament which were written and Collected at ſeveral times. To mention only one; viz. The Proverbs. The nine firſt Chapters Solomon himſelf did both write, and collect into Order. The tenth chapter, and all that follow to ch. 25. 1. ſeem to have been written indeed by Solomon, but Collected by ſome other: as is conceived from the Title prefixed; The Proverbs of Solomon, Prov. 10. 1. Though u ſome think, that Solomon was both Authour and Collector of theſe Proverbs alſo. Theſe Proverbs from ch. 25. 1. to ch. 30. 1. were written by Solomon, but Copied out by the men of Hezekiah King of Judah: as x the Preface to them expreſly informs us. Probably Hezekiah's ſervants, good men, or Prophets, gathered them out of y ſome other writings of Solomon, and ranked them in this Order wherein we now have them. Or (as z Junius thinks) they extracted them out of the Records of the Acts of Solomon, and digeſted them thus into a body: moſt of theſe Proverbs appertaining to Ethicks and Civil Adminiſtration. The 30th. chapter ſeems to be penned by Agar ſon of Jakeh, &c. The Proverbs then being written, and collected by ſeveral perſons, at ſeveral times; why ſhould it be thought improbable, that the pſalms, penned by ſeveral perſons, and at ſuch ſeveral times, might not alſo be Collected by ſeveral perſons in thoſe ſeveral times.

DAVID therefore, being Penman of ſo many Pſalmes, that the whole Book is (and not undeſervedly) denominated from him, The Pſalms of David; And he probably Collecting ſundry of the Books, into which this volume is ſubdivided: It cannot but be very proper and pertinent to lay down here A Deſcription of this Excellent Perſon DAVID, according to the Holy Scripture; Eſpecially by I. His Name, DAVID. II. His Deſcent or Pedegree. III. His Eminent Endowments and Qualifications, Natural, Artificial and Spiritual. IV. His Offices, He being a Prophet, and a King. V. His renowned Acts, After his Firſt, Second and Third Anointing, which were many. VI. His failings and miſcarriages which were many, viz. ten in number, and ſome of them very hainous. All of them being recorded to teach us; 1 Gods infinite Purity; who cannot abide Sin, no, not in his deareſt Servants. 2 The Holy Scriptures impartiality; which ſpares not the ſins of any, but rips up and brands the miſcarriages even of Holy Penmen of Scriptures themſelves. 3 The weakneſſe of the ſtrongeſt, and ſinfulneſſe of the Holieſt in this life. 4 What care and caution ought to be in all to look to themſelves, David ſo falling, who may not ſuſpect himſelf with fear and trembling? VII. His Penitential Recoveries out of all theſe Sins and Miſcarriages, through the rich Grace of his God. By his Miſcarriages we are warned againſt iniquity, by his Recoveries againſt impenitency: By thoſe againſt Preſuming, by theſe againſt Deſpairing: By thoſe of our own weakneſſe, by theſe of the Powerfulneſſe of Divine Grace. VIII. His Afflictions and Chaſtiſements wherewith the LORD Exerciſed him for his many failings, notwithſtanding his Repentance. viz. In his Family five wayes: In his Kingdome four wayes. IX. His Holy End and Happy Diſſolution after all. But having a elſewhere ſpoken already at large to all theſe Particulars, thither I refer the diligent Reader: And I hope in his peruſal thereof he ſhall not loſe his labour.

Sect. IV. The Occaſion, and Scope of the Book of Pſalmes.

The Occaſion upon which this Book was written was not one, but manifold: As the Penmen were many who wrote them, and the times and ſeaſons many, and at great diſtance one from another, wherein they were written. Some of them being penned before; ſome, under; and ſome, after the Babyloniſh Captivity, As is evident by the matter of the Pſalms themſelves.

The Summary and General Scope intended in this Book, ſeems eſpecially to be this: viz. I. Partly, To demonſtrate wherein true happineſſe eſpecially conſiſts, viz. 1 In true godlineſſe; The truly godly man being the onely happy man in the world, as is evidenced in Pſalme 1. which is as an excellent Preface to all the Pſalmes. 2 In due ſubmiſſion to the LORD's Anointed JESUS CHRIST, as is required in Pſalme 2. 3 In having JEHOVAH to be our God, our Covenant-God, as is teſtified in Pſalme 144. All which true happineſſe is moſt variouſly and ſweetly illuſtrated in all the reſt of the Pſalmes. II. Partly, To delineate moſt lively and experimentally, what ſweet intercourſe and endeared Communion there is, even in this life, betwixt the truly godly and onely happy people and Church of God; and their moſt bleſſed God in Chriſt, who is his own infinite happineſſe, and to them the Fountain of all happineſſe. 1. How the LORD exerciſeth them; 1 With afflictions and tribulations of all ſorts, in Name, State, Body and Soul; by open Enemies, falſe Friends, and neereſt Relations. 2 With cruel Perſecutions for Righteouſneſſe ſake. 3 With violent and dangerous Temptations. 4 With woful and moſt uncomfortable Deſertions. 5 And with many other inward Conflicts and Anxieties of Soul. 2. How by theſe things they are exerciſed and improved in their Faith, Hope, Patience, Experience, Repentance, Acquaintance with God, Comforts, Peace, Joy, and in all their Spirituals. 3. How hereby they are excited to the lively exercile of Meditation, Self-examination, Prayers, Cries Lamentations, Confeſſions, Praiſes to the LORD, &c. 4. And how in all theſe, God Awakens, Excites, Inſtructs, Supports, Encourageth, Tryes, Refines, Enableth, Evidenceth, Increaſeth, and Eſtabliſheth them and all their Spirituals, aſſuring them of his Al-ſufficiency, Goodneſſe and Faithfulneſſe therein, at laſt delivering them out of all, and by all preparing them For a far more exceeding and eternal weight of Glory, 2 Cor. 4. 17. Nevertheleſſe every particular Pſalme hath his particular Scope therein intended, which is diligently to be obſerved in the right unfolding and underſtanding of every Pſalme, as in the ſeveral explications of them will hereafter more evidently appear.

Sect. V. The ſingular Excellency of this Book of Pſalmes.

The Book of Pſalmes is moſt Excellent. It is much Commended, but it excells all Praiſes: It is much accounted of, but it excells all Eſtimation: It is much Admired, but it even tranſcends all Admiration. All Holy Scriptures are b Sweet as the honey, and the honey-comb: but as ſome Honey, ſo this Book of Pſalmes is of a ſurpaſſing ſweetneſſe and delicioulneſſe. All Books of Scripture are as ſo many heaps of refined Gold: but this of the Pſalmes is as the Gold of c Ophir, yea, as the pureſt Gold of d Uphaz; yea, all the Gold in the world is but dirt to it. All the Scriptures ſhine orientlly like the glittering Starres in the Firmament; but this Book ſhines among them glorioully as a Starre of the firſt Magnitude. More Particularly.

I. How excellent is this Book, that is made up of Pſalmes ſo Succinct and Compendious! They are called מזמורים Mizmorim. e Pſalms: from זמר Zamar, To prune, paire off, cut off, &c. For they being originally written, not in proſe, but in Verſe, or Hebrew meaſures, they are as it were ſuccinctly pruned or paired, and made very conciſe. Like Gold, Pearl, or precious ſtones, they comprehend much in a little compaſſe, as Ambroſe notes *; are full full of themselves. Athanasius calls this Book [illegible] The Epitome of the whole Scripture, and a Compendy of all Theology, and a common Store-house of [illegible] Psalms: A Common Store-house of [illegible] Psalms.

II. How excellent a thing this Book, wherein the Holy Ghost hath made such singular use of the New Testament! No other Book in all the Old Testament, is so frequently alledged in the New Testament as the Book of Psalms: As is evident by this ensuing Demonstration.

For-

forasmuch therefore as the Holy Ghost is delighted to fetch more Testimonies into the New Testament out of the Book of Psalmes, than out of any other Book of the Old Testament, this stamps a great Character of Eminency and Excellency upon the Book of Psalmes.

III. How excellent is this Book wherein are so many clear and choice Prophecies of JESUS CHRIST! Especially of his 1. Person. 2. Office. 3. States. 4. Effects and happy fruits of his Offices; as I have elsewhere manifested; and here again recite, as very pertinent, viz.

I in my Mystery & Marrow of the Bible, Gods Covenants. Book 3. Chap. 5. Aphoris. 7. p. 1083, 1084.

1. Of his Person. 1. That he is God, Psal. 45. 6, 11. with Heb. 1. 8. The Son of God. Psal. 2. 7. with Heb 1. 5. The WORD of God; By the WORD of the Lord were the Heavens made, &c. Psal. 33. 6. with Joh. 1. 1, 2. 2. That he should be man, lower than Angels Psal. 8, 4, 5, 6 with Heb. 2. 6. to 10. Of the Seed of David, the Fruit of his loynes, Psal. 132. 11. with Act. 2. 30. Luk. 1. 32, 33.

2. Of his Mediatory Office. As

1. A Prophet; Preaching Gods righteousnesse, loving-kindnesse and Truth, in the great Church, Psal. 40. 8, 9. 10.

2. A Priest; An Everlasting Priest of Melchizedech's Order, farre above the Order of Aaron, Psal. 110. 4. with Heb. 5. 6, 7. and 7. 17. See also Psal. 2. 7. with Heb. 2. 9. 1. Of his satisfaction for us by his offering up himself, Psal. 40. 6, 7. 8. with Heb. 10. 5. to 15. &c. 2. Of his Intercession for his People, Psal. 2. 8.

3. A King. God's King in Sion, in his Church, Psal. 2. 6. and 132. 11. with Acts. 2. 30. Luk. 1. 32, 33. 1. That, as Gods Messiah, Psal. 2. 2. He should be Anointed with the Holy-Ghost, that Oyle of gladnes above all his fellows, Psal. 45. 7. with Heb. 1. 8, 9. Acts 10. 38, Joh. 3. 34. Eph. 4. 7. 2. That he should Rule his Subjects Religiously, Righteously and Gloriously, Psal. 45. 3, 4, 6, 7. with Heb. 1. 8. 9. 3. That he should subdue his Enemies powerfully, Psal. 45. 5. 1 By Converting them to be his Subjects, Psal. 110. 2, 3. and 2. 8. 2 By Confounding of incurable Rebels, Psal. 2. 9. and 110. 5, 6. 4. That he should be an universal King over the Nations, Psal. 2, 8. 9. and 22. 27, 28, 29, 30. and 72. 8. 9, 10, 11. 5. That he should be an Everlasting King upon the Throne of David for evermore, Psal. 46. 6. and 89. 4, 36, 37, with Luk. 1. 32, 33.

3. Of his States of Humiliation, and Exaltation, wherein he should execute this his Mediatory Office. So that as Ambrose said, * In the Psalmes Christ is not onely born, but endured his saving Passion, Rested, Riseth, Ascends into Heaven, sits at the right-hand of the Father, &c.

*InPsalmis itaque nobis non solum nascitur Jesus, sed etiam salutarem illam suscipit passionem, quiescet, assurgit, ascendit ad Cœlum sed et ad dextram Patris, &c. Ambros. in Psal. David Præf. p. 461. Tom. 4. Basil. 1577.

1. In his Incarnation; being made man, lower than the Angels, Psal. 8. 5. with Heb. 1. 7, 8, 9.

2. In his Sufferings and Passion. As, 1. That he should be betrayed by his owne familiar friend, one of his owne Family, Psal. 41. 9. with Joh. 13. 18. viz By Judas Iscariot, one of his twelve Apostles. 2. That Heathens and People of the Jews, with the Kings and Rulers of the Earth: that is, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and people of Israel, should gather together, and confederate to destroy him, Psal. 2. 1, 2, 3. with Act. 4. 25, 26, 27, 28. 3. That he should be Crucified, His hands and feet pierced, his body so stretched upon the Cross that all his Bones might be told, and By-standers should look and stare upon him, Psal. 22. 16, 17. with Matth. 27. 35. Mark. 15. 24. Luk. 23. 33. Joh. 19. 23, 27. 4. That his Garments should be parted, and lots cast upon his Vesture, Psal. 22. 18. with Luk. 23. 34. Joh. 19. 24. 5. That he should be derided by his Enemies shooting out the lip, and shaking the Head at him, for his trusting in the LORD, Psal. 22, 6, 7, 8. with Matth. 27. 39, 43. 6. That, they should give him Gall and Vinegar to drink Psal. 69. 21. with Matth. 27. 48. Mark. 15. 23. John 19, 29. 7. That he should be under an heavy Desertion upon the Cross, His God in some sence forsaking him, Psal. 22. 2. with Mark. 15. 34.

3. In his Death, Psal. 22. 15.

4. In his Burial, Psal. 16. 8, 9, 10. with Act. 2. 31. and 13. 35.

His Exaltation is herein foretold especially in three degrees of it, viz.

1. In his Reviving and Resurrection from the dead Psal. 2. 7, with Act. 13. 33. Heb 1. 5, compare also Psal. 16. 8, 9, 10. 11. with Act. 2. 25, 31. and 13. 35.

2. In his Ascension into Heaven, leading Captivity Captive and giving gifts to men, Psal. 68. 18. with Ephes. 4. 8, 9.

3. In his Session at Gods right-hand, till all his foes become his foot-stoole, Psal. 110. 1. with Matth. 22. 44. Mark 12. 36. Luk. 20. 42. Act. 2, 34. 1 Cor. 15. 25. Heb. 1. 13.

4. Of the happy fruits and effects of his Offices. As

1. His Captivating of our Spiritual Captivity, Sin, Death, Grave, Hell, Satan, &c. Psal. 68. 18. with Ephes. 4. 8.

2. His Receiving and giving gifts for men, yea, even for the rebellious, that the Lord God might dwell among them, Psal. 68. 18. with Ephes. 4. 8, 9, 10, 11, &c.

3. His Converting of a numerous Company (like the morning dew for multitude) even of the Gentiles unto himself, as his Seed that shall serve him, and be his Voluntiers, his willing People, Psal. 22. 27, 28, 29, 30, 31. and 110. 2. 3.

4. His Conferring of true saving blessednesse upon all sincere Believers that place their Trust and hope for salvation in him sincerely, Psal. 2. 12. with Rom. 9. 33. and 10, 11. and 1 Pet. 2. 6.

Thus the Book of Psalmes speaks so much of the Person, Office, States and Fruits of the Office of JESUS CHRIST, that it may be accounted Evangelium Propheticum, A Prophetical Gospel. And the more any Book of Holy Scriptures displayes CHRIST, and sets forth his Perfections, Fulnesse, &c. the more excellent it is. That's the choisest Cabinet that hath most of Christ in it, who is the choicest of all Jewels.

IV. How excellent is this Book, in regard of the Experimental Matters therein contained! This Book is a rich Record of Experiences. Many of the Psalmes are the Saints Experimental Discoveries of their Affaires in all sorts of their Capacities and Conditions: The very Anatomie's of their Hearts; the Idea's of their States and Deportments therein; and the lively Demonstrations of Gods Grace, Guidance, Comforts, Protection, Deliverance, &c. in the very worst of all Extreamities. As 1. In Publick dangers to the Church of God, by many and mighty adversaries, Psal. 46. and 124. 2. In publick Calamities brought upon the Church, by sad Dispensations, Psal. 44. 90. and 137. 79. 3. In glorious Providences over the Church, in all Distresses, Difficulties and Dangers, and wonderful Deliverances at last out of all, Psal. 105, 106, 107. and 126, 76. 4. In great Temptations, Psal. 73. 5. In sad Relapses into sin, Psal. 51. 6. In and under Sense of Gods hot displeasure and indignation for sin, Psal. 6. 38, 39. 7. In and under Spiritual Desertions, the Lord hiding and with-holding from his People the Sense of his wonted favours, Psal. 22. 77. 88. 8. In Privation of Gods publick Ordinances, and exile from the Holy Assemblies, Psal. 42. 63, 84. 9. In insurrection and confederacies of many Enemies against Gods People, Psal. 3. 59. 60. 64. 83. 78. 79, 10. In Persecutions by the ungodly, Psal. 7. 10. 11. In Deep Afflictions and Distresses, Psal. 6. 13, 102. 118. 12. In extream danger of Death it self, Psal 116. In these and many such respects, we have the Saints choice experiences recorded in the Psalmes, with great variety. And that case can hardly befall us, which in some of these Psalmes we may not finde exemplified in the people of

In his Revelationum gratiam, Resurrectionis recentes testimonia, repromissionis munera. In his discovitare pericula, discitio erubescere peccatorum delectorum. V. How excellent is this Book in the Spirituality of it! Oh what sublime, spiritual, heavenly, and raised breathings are here towards the Father of Spirits! Are they Saints, or Angels, or Seraphims that speak in these psalms? what gracious Soul of experienced sense can read these psalms, and not be raised, and not be ravished, and not be transported as once the Apostles on the Holy Mount, wherein Christ was transfigured? Who can feelingly go along with David in his sacred Raptures, and not be (as it were) caught up in spirit into the third Heavens with him? Who can truly taste of this heavenly Manna, and not nauseate as sordid mire and dung all these earthly enjoyments?

1. Here we have most spiritual Meditations, and heavenly Contemplations. As, touching God, Ps. 96. 97. His works, of Creation, Ps. 8. and 19. 1, to 7. and 104 and 100. Of providence, Psal. 18 and 78. Christ our Mediator, and his Prophecy, Priesthood, and Kingship, Psal. 68. and 110 and 2. and 93. Christs endeared Relation to his Church, Psal. 45. The Law of God, Psa. 19. 7, &c. and 119. throughout, &c.

2. Here we have most spiritual Doctrines, As, that, the truly godly man is the onely happy man, whose iniquities are pardoned, &c. Psal. 1. and 15. and 32. that, whatever be the afflictions of Gods people, yet God is good to Israel, &c. Them he will guide with his Counsels, and after receive them to glory. O how much of Grace, of Heaven, of the Spirit of God, abounds in this precious Book, (as is evident by these few instances, to mention no more) and how influential are they to the spiritualizing & elevating of Believers hearts! how sweetly may we here converse with God, and with his Saints of old, and with History instructeth, Law teacheth, Prophecy foretelleth, Reproof correcteth, Morality perswadeth: In this Book of Psalmes here is a procedure of all these, and a Medicine for mans salvation, &c. ——A Psalme is the Benediction of the people, The laud of God, The praise of the Vulgar sort, The applause of all, The speech of every one, The voice of the Church, A shrill confession of the Faith, A full devotion of Authority, The gladsomeness of Liberty, The noise of pleasantnesse, The resultation of joyfulnesse. It mitigates wrathfulnesse, It hides perplexednesse, It alleviates sorrowfulnesse. Nocturnal Weapons, Diurnal Masteries. A Shield in Fearfulnesse: A Feast in Holynesse. It's the Image of tranquility, The pledge of peace and concord, &c. ——What is it, which thou meetest not with, in reading the Psalmes To the like effect Basil the Great said elegantly; * All Scripture divinely inspired and profitable, was for this cause written by the Spirit, that as in a common Medicine-shop for souls; every man might gather out the Medicine fit for his peculiar disease. ——For some things the Prophets instruct us, And others the Historians, And others the Law. And others the Proverbs: But this one Book of Psalmes, comprehends in it what is profitable out of them all. It prophecies things to come, It records Histories, It gives lawes for our life, It prescribes what things are to be done, and in a word, It's a common Storehouse of good Doctrines, bringing to every one things found out with singular care, &c. ——A Psalme is the tranquillity of the mind, The Arbiter of peace, stilling the swellings and waves of the Thoughts. ——A Psalme is the procurer of Amity, The union of those that disagree, a Reconciler of those that are at enmity: For who can count him an enemy, with whom he ences sends up one voice to God. That therefore which of good things is accounted most excellent, Singing of Psalms doth afford, viz. Love, &c. ——— A Psalme is an expeller away of Devils, A procurement of the succour of Angels, Armour against nocturnal fears, Rest in diurnal labours, tuition of Infants, An ornament of Youth, The solace of old men, and womens most apposite Ornament. It inhabits Wildernesses, It brings markets to sobriety. To beginners it's the first Element, To proficients an augmentation. To the perfect a consummation, The voice of the Church. ——— A Psalme is the work of Angels, The heavenly imployment, The spiritual Incense. O the wise invention of our Teacher, whereby we may at once both sing, and learn the Doctrines of salvation! it is, That things taught do more heat our souls. For a forced learning is not permanent, but what we learn with delight and joy, more firmly fixeth on the soul. And what mayest thou not learn hence? Not the magnificence of Fortitude? Not the exactnesse of Justice? Not the venerableness of Temperance? Not the perfection of Prudence? Not the manner of Repentance? Not the measure of Patience? Not any of all good things thou canst name? Hence is, Perfect Theology: The Prediction of Christs coming in the flesh: The Commination of the Judgment: The hope of the Resurrection: The fear of Punishment: The promises of Glory: The Revelation of Mysteries. In the Book of Psalms all things are treasured up as in a common Store-house. So he. ———The same Basil also, in the same Homily, saith; * The Holy Ghost, observing mankind so hardly drawn to vertue, for that we being prone to pleasure, were negligent of a right life, what did he? He mingled the delight of Melody with Doctrines, that by the harmony and melodiousnesse of hearing we might secretly accept the commodiousnesse of words. Likewise Physicians, who giving an harsh and loathsome Medicine to drink, do rub the brim of the Cup with honey. For to this purpose the neat harmony of Psalmes was Excogitated, that those who are young in age, at least in manners, whilest they are making melody may have their souls really instructed. For scarce any going hence from us remembers a Prophetical or an Apostolical Precept: but the Oracles of the Psalmes, all will sing at home, and carry them with them to the market, &c.

What shall I say? This Book of Psalmes is so useful in every regard unto the People of God, that I may say with that learned and elegant Augustine? It is t Childrens Tuition, Young men's Ornament, Old men's Solace, and Womens fittest comelinesse. ——— The first Element for Beginners, An Increment for Proficients, A firme Establishment for the perfect, The joynt voice of the whole Church. And afterwards he thus concludes; What is it, that may not be learned in the Psalmes? Doth not the greatness of all Vertue, The Rule of Righteousness, The Gracefulness of Charity, The Consummation of prudence. The Law of patience, and every thing that may be called good flow from the psalmes; The Knowledge of God; The perfect Prediction of Christ to come in the flesh; The Common Hope of the Resurrection; The fear of punishments; The promise of Glory; The Revelation of Mysteries; Yea, all good things are hid and heaped together in these Psalmes, as in some great and common Treasury.

Non omnis magnitudo virtutis, non norma Justitiæ, non pudicitiæ decor, non prudentiæ consummatio, non patientiæ regula; non omne quicquid dici potest bonum, procedit ex ipsis; Dei scientia; perfecta prænunciatio Christi in carne venturi, & communis Resurrectionis Spes; Suppliciorum Metus; Gloriæ pollicitatio; Mysteriorum Revelatio: Omnia prorsus in his velut magno quodam & communis Thesauto recondita atque conserta sunt bona. *August. Pearls Pearls of Consolation: And 3. The Gemmes of Prayer. The Psalmes is, 1. A Treasury of Gods works, for there they are offered to our view. 2. A most sweet Field, and largest Bedsay, where we may behold many most beautiful flowers. 3. A Paradise, not only having a manifold fragrancy of flowers, but also the fruits themselves. 4. A most wise Book, wherein precious Jewels are hid, which can only be found of them who can endure the storms of Temptation. 5. An heavenly School, wherein we speak to God our Teacher. 6. A Compendious Summe of the whole Scriptures. 7. A Ladder of Divine Grace, wherein the most pleasant face of our kindest Father shines forth. 8. A most artificial Anatomy of our Soul shewing all the Senses Affections, Lusts, Motions, and the Remedy of those Motions. So he.

To conclude, the Psalms are a Summary Abridgement of Theology; the תורה Hagadah or Peculiar treasure of the Old Testament; the Fore-runners and Harbingers of the New Testament; the Epitome of Law and Gospel; and the well-stored Paradise of the whole Scriptures. They are the Anatomy of Mens Hearts, a perfect Discovery of spiritual diseases therein, and most rich Shop of all Remedies against the same. By these the doubtful one is directed, the trembling one is erected, the weak is strengthened, the tempted is established, the deserted is refreshed, the destitute is enriched, the afflicted is relieved, and the every way perplexed is comforted.

All these things speak aloud the singular Excellency of this Book of Psalms.

Sect. VI. The General Partition or Distribution of this Book of Psalmes.

This sweetest Book of Psalms (which is a Cabinet of the richest Jewels, every Psalm being a distinct Jewel) may upon several Considerations admit of several Distributions or partitions. As,

I. According to the Instrumental Authors, Amanuenses, or Penmen of the Psalmes. Being written, not by any one, but by several Holy men of God, and at several times. For,

1. Moses wrote Psal. 90. as the Title shows; A Prayer of Moses the man of God.

2. DAVID wrote very many psalms, viz. I. All those, which have his name prefixed in the titles of the Psalms, as, Psal. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 68, 69, 70, 86, 101, 103, 108, 109, 110, 122, 124, 131, 133, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145. II. All those, which the New Testament, or any other Scriptures ascribe to David, as, x Psal. 2. y Ps. 95. z Psal. 72. And it is very probable, from the Subject matter of many other psalms which have either no Title at all, or a peculiar Inscription expressed in the Title, not agreeable to David (having reference to Davids Psalms were penned by David [a] and 63. and 65. and 68. and 69. and 70. and 71. and 72. and 86. and 101. and 103. and 108. and 109. and 110. and 122. and 124. and 131. and 133. and 138. and 139. and 140. and 141. and 142. and 143. and 144. and 145. and 146. and 147. and 148. and 149. and 150. and 151. and 152. and 153. and 154. and 155. and 156. and 157. and

2,8,16,18,19,20,22,24,40,45,47,85,93,96,97,98,99,110,117,118.

6. A Mixture of these together in one and the same Psalm. Divers Psalmes being made up of Information, Exhortation, Consolation &c. And such are accounted, Mixt-Psalms, as Psal. 23,24. 37,46,55 and many such like.

2. Gods people, and we Act towards God, either In

1. Repentance for sin. And such Psalmes are called, Penitential Psalmes, anciently. And there are seven that are accounted Penitential Psalms, viz. Psal. 6,32,38,51,102,130,143. See on Psal. 6. Sect. 3.

2. Prayer, for our selves or others, for good or against evil, &c. Whence such Psalms are called, Psalmi Ἐυχτικοί, viz. Petitory, or Praying Psalmes. As, Psal. 3,4,5,6,7,10,12,13,17,20,21,25,26,27,35,38, 39,40,51,55,56,57,58,59,60,61,63,64,67,69,70,71,72,74,75,79, 80,83,84,85,86,88,90,94,102,109,120,123,132,137,139,140,141, 142,143.

3. Praise, and Thanksgiving; For Divine Excellencies in God, or Mercies received from God. Such are Psalmi Ἐυχαριστικοί, viz. Gratulatory, or Thanksgiving Psalms. as, Psal. 8.9.18,29.30.34.48.65. 66.68.76.81.82.92.93.95.96.97.98.99.100.130.104.105.106.107. 111.113.115.117.118.122.124.134.135.136.147.148.149.150.

4. Both Prayer and Praise joyntly in the same psalmes. And these are Mixt-Psalms, Praying-Prasing-Psalmes. as, Psal. 16.28.21.33. 36.41.72.108.116.126.138.144.

III. According to their various Denominations, given them in the New Testament, viz. PSALMES, HYMNES, SPIRITUAL SONGS, Ψαλμοῖς καὶ ὕμνοις, καὶ ᾠδαῖς πνευματικαῖς, ᾄδοντες καὶ ψάλλοντες ἐν τῇ καρδία, &c. Ephes. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. From these three Denominations all the Integral Parts of this Book are distinguished by some into 1. Psalms. 2. Hymnes. 3. Spiritual songs. Of this last number one said well; f Sure I am that David's Psalms are Spiritual songs, if ever there were any spiritual songs in the World. But for better understanding of these three Denominations, briefly note these few things, viz.

f Mr. T. Foord of Exon. in his Singing of Ps. the Duty of Christians, &c. Serm. 1. p. 17.

1. That, these three Greek words, do answer to three other Hebrew words used in the Titles of the Psalms, viz. Ψάλμοι, Psalms, to מזמורים Mizmorim: ὕμνοι, Hymnes, to תהלים Tehillim: and ᾠδαὶ πνευματικαὶ, Odes Spiritual, or spiritual songs, to שירים Shirim. This hath been g spoken to already, and the Etymon or Notation of the words opened.

g See before in Sect. II.

2. That, these three Hebrew-words are found in the Hebrew-Titles of the Psalms: and these three Greek words are also found in the Greek-Titles of the Psalmes in the Greek version of the LXXII. Interpreters. As 1. מזמור Mizmor, Ψάλμος, A Psalm: Psal. 3. and 4. and 5. and 6, and most frequently throughout the Book. 2. תהלה Tehillah, Ὕμνος, An Hymne, Psal. 145. in which psalm though the LXXII. have not Ὕμνος, An Hymne, but Αἶνεσις, A Praise, which for sence are one and the same, Hymne signifying Praise: yet the very word Ὕμνος is in Greek in the Titles of Psal. 6,54,60.66. and in the close of Psal. 71. 20. 3. שיר Schir ᾠδὴ, An Ode, A Canticle or A song: Psal. 30. and 45. and 46. and 65. and 68, and 108. and 120, to 135. And the Apostle in those passages in the New Testament, viz. Ephes. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. seems evidently to follow & make use of those three Greek Denominations used by the LXXII. Greek Interpreters, in the Titles of the Psalmes. And the LXXII. have all these three Names together in the Title of Psalm 75. Εἰς τὸ τέλος ἐν Ὕμνοις Ψάλμος τῷ Ἀσαφ ᾠδὴ πρὸς τὸν Ἀσσύριον. ——With Hymnes, a Psalme of Asaph, a Song unto the Assyrian. Which renders it the more likely that the Apostle borrowed these three Names from the Septuagint Greek Version of the Titles of Psalmes.

3. That, learned Writers have various Apprehensions about these Denominations and the Differences of them one from another. They distinguish them especially three ways. I. In regard of their Subject Matter. Psalmes (thinks h Hierome) are of things Moral, to be practised or avoided: Hymnes of things Divine, as of Gods Power, Majesty, Providence, &c. Spiritual Songs of things Natural, but in a spiritual way; As of the Harmony, beauty, order, &c. of the Creation. Or, as Beza i judgeth Psalmes contain various and mixt Arguments; As Lamentations, Complaints to God, Narrations of our Conditions before God, Expostulations, &c. Hymnes are ἐξομολογητικοὶ, Laudative, peculiarly containing the praises of God. Odes, or Spiritual songs, are of some peculiar and special Matter of Praise, shorter, and of an higher strain of Divine Poetry. II. In regard of the Manner or way of Tuning and Singing them, as well as the Matter contained in them. Psalms (thinks k Zanchy) were sung with other Instruments besides the voice. Hymnes only set forth Gods excellencies and Praises. Odes or songs contain not only Praises, but also Exhortations, Prophecies, &c. and these sung onely with the voice. To this effect also l Calvin. m Junius thinks, psalmes were tuned with instruments: Hymns with voice: Odes the Genus to both. III. In regard of the Authors and Penmen of them,, as well as in the former respects. Psalms are those which were penned by David and others in Meetre to be sung in the Temple in a Musical way: Hymnes are those extemporal praises which break forth from an heart filled with the Spirit and observant of Gods goodnesse occasionally, as the Hymnes of Debora, Anna, Zechary, Mary, &c. Odes or Songs were such as were premeditated not without some Art; as the songs of Moses, &c. to this effect Grotius n.

4. That, notwithstanding these Differences or Distinctions Excogitated by learned Writers, these three Denominations in Hebrew and Greek are not so exactly and precisely different one from another, as som curious Criticks do pretend. For, 1. These three Hebrew and Greek words are promiscuously used in the Psalms, and in the Titles of psalmes one for another. As in Judg. 5. 3. and in 1 Chron. 16. 6. compared with Psal. 150. 3. which is the same psalm. Thus מזמור Mismor, A psalm, is rendred by the LXXII. ᾠδὴ An Ode or Song in Psal. 38 Title. And שיר Schir n Hug. Grotius in Annot. ad Matth. 26, 30. & ad Ephes. 5. 19. & ad Colos. 3 16.

Schir, usually rendred by Ὠδὴ An Ode, A Song; is sometimes rendred Ψαλμὸς A Psalm, as in Psal. 45. title. Psal. 47. title. And by Ἐξομολόγησις or Αἶνος As Isai. 42. 10. And תְּהִלִּים Tehillim, praises is the General Title of the whole Book of Psalms wherein are both Psalmes, Hymnes and Spiritual Songs: and תְּפִלָּה Tefillah is rendred Προσευχὴ an Hymne: As in 2 Chron. 7. 6. and 29. 30. Psal. 72. 20. and 86. 6. and 90. 1. and 102. 2. Two of these words, or Denominations are sometimes joyntly prefixed in one and the same Title, as in Psal. 29. 1. מִזְמוֹר שִׁיר Mizmor, Schir, A Psalme, A Song: In the Greek Ψαλμὸς ᾠδῆς A Psalme of a Song. The like see in Psal. 45. title. 65. title. 66. title. 87. title. 88. title. But in other Psalmes it is מִזְמוֹר שִׁיר Schir Mizmor. A Song, a Psalme: Greek Ὠδὴ Ψαλμοῦ an Ode or Song of a Psalme: As Psal. 65. title, and 83. title. 3. In the Greek version of Psal. 75. title, the three Greek Denominations (used by the Apostle, Ephes. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16.) are put all together: Εἰς τὸ τέλος, ὑπὲρ Ὑπνων, Ψαλμὸς τῷ Ἀσάφ, ᾠδὴ πρὸς τοὺς Ἀσσυρίους. I. e. Unto the end, in Hymnes, a Psalme of Asaph, a Song to the Assyrians. 4. Unto these adde, That תְּהִלִּים Tehillim, is the Common Title of all the Psalmes and Songs, &c. in this whole Book. מִזְמוֹר Mizmor is the particular Title of most Psalmes. And שִׁיר Schir, a Song, is the Title of both Songs and Psalmes promiscuously, As of Psal. 87. 92. 66. compared with Psal. 120. to 135. Nor do the Greek Denominations admit such a critical difference. For Ψαλμὸς, A Psalme, is from Ψάλλω To sing: And Ὕμνος An Hymne, From Ὑμνέω To sing praises: And Ὠδὴ An Ode, A Song, &c. from Ἀείδω To sing. And the Apostle applyes two of these words ᾄδοντες καὶ ψάλλοντες. Singing and making melody. To all the three Denominations, Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, Eph. 5. 19.

5. That therefore it seems most likely, The Apostle mentioning all these three Denominations intended especially these things. viz. 1. To teach us, by mentioning these several words, that all our Singing, however stiled, or of what sort soever, should be of a Divine and Spiritual Nature, for glo-o Zanchy is much for the Singing of Scripture-Psalmes onely in the Church vid. Hieron. Zanch in Com. Eph. 5. 19. 20. p. 203. De musica in Ecclesia.

1. The Inscriptions or Titles Expresly Mentioning some Penman or other, Do chiefly point at five Penmen or Amanuenses which the Holy Ghost made use of in writing the Psalmes, viz. Moses, David, Asaph, Heman and Ethan.

1. MOSES his name is prefixed onely to Psal. 90. A prayer of Moses the man of God.

2. DAVID's name is prefixed to seventy three Psalmes, viz. Psalms 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 30. 31. 32. 34. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. 40. 41. 51. 52. 53. 54. 55. 56. 57. 58. 59. 60. 61. 62. 63. 64. 65. 68. 69. 70. 86. 101. 103. 108. 109. 110. 122. 124. 131. 133. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 143. 144. 145. But Davids name is prefixed to these variously. For,

1. Some are Entituled; of David. As these fourteen, viz. Psal. 11. 14. 18. 25. 26. 27. 28. 34. 35. 36. 37. 61. 69. 103. 138. 144. Now of these fourteen Psalmes. 1. Some are Entituled, Of David: without any other addition at all, understanding; An Hymne, Song, Psalme, Prayer, &c. of David, viz. Psal. 25. 26. 27. 28. 35. 37. 103. 138. 144. 2. Some are Tituled, Of David; with some Addition annexed. viz. 1 Either with Addition of the Direction of them as to the Musick onely. As Psal. 11. 14. 61. 69. 2 Or of the direction of them as to the Musick, and of some description of David. As, Psal. 36. 3 Or of the Occasion of Davids penning it. As, Psal. 34. 4 Or of both Direction of it as to the Musick; Description of the Penman; Denomination of it, A Song; and occasion of writing it. As, Ps. 18.

2. Some are intituled, A Prayer of David. As these two Psal. 17. 86. And one, (with Addition of another Denomination, and of the Occasion) is intituled, Maschil of David. A Prayer when he was in the Cave, viz. Pſal. 142.

3. One is called Shiggajon of David. The Occaſion being added, viz. Pſal. 7.

4. Some are entituled, Michtam of David; that is, Davids Jewel, or Golden-pſalme. And this, 1. Without any other Addition. as Pſal. 16. 2. With Addition of 1 The Direction as to the Muſick onely, viz. Pſal. 58. 2 The Direction as to the Muſick, and the Occaſion of writing them alſo. as Pſal. 56. 57. 59. 60.

5. Some are entituled, Maſchil of David; or, An Inſtruction, or Inſtructing pſalme of David: viz. Theſe ſix, Pſal. 32. 52. 53 54. 55. 142. But differently, viz. 1. One, without any other Addition, Pſal. 32. 2. Two of them with the Addition of the Direction as to the Muſick, Pſal. 53. 55. 3. Two of them with Direction as to the Muſick, and Declaration of the Occaſion of writing them Pſal. 52. 54. 4. One of them, with another Denomination, and the Occaſion, &c. Pſ. 142.

Beſides theſe ſix Maſchils of David, there are eight more Maſchil's. So that we have in all xiiii Maſchil's : viz. Pſ. 32. 42. 44. 45. 46. 52. 53. 54. 55. 74. 78. 88. 89. 142.

6. Some, yea moſt are entituled, A pſalme of David. As theſe 33 following, viz Pſal. 3. 4. 5. 6. 8. 9. 12. 13. 15. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 29. 31. 38. 39. 40. 41. 51. 62. 63. 64. 70. 101. 109. 110. 139. 140. 141. 143. But very differently. For of theſe,

1. Eight are intituled onely thus, A pſalme of David. Pſ. 15. 23. 24. 29. 101. 110. 141. 143.
2. Twenty are thus entituled, with Addition of Directions as to the Muſick, viz. Pſ. 4. 5. 6. 8. 9. 12. 13. 19. 20. 21. 22. 31. 39. 40. 41. 62. 64. 109. 139. 140. In the Muſical Direction, two of theſe are particularly commended to Jeduthun: viz, Pſ. 39. 62 As alſo is one of Aſaph's pſalmes: viz. Pſal. 77
3. Two are thus entituled, with Addition of the Occaſion: viz. Pſal. 3. 63.
4. One thus entituled, the Uſe or Scope of the Pſalme being added: viz. Pſ. 38.
5. One thus entituled, The Muſical Direction, and Occaſion being annexed: viz. Pſ. 51.
6. One is thus entituled, The Muſical Direction and Uſe being added: viz. Pſal. 70.

7. One is Denominated, Davids Hymne, or, An Hymne of David, or, David's Praiſe: viz. Pſal. 145.

8. Three are intituled, A pſalme, a Song of David. The Occaſion of the Pſame being added to one, viz. Pſ. 30. The Direction as to the Muſick, to the other two, viz. Pſ. 6:, 68.

9. One is entituled; A Song, A Pſalme of David, viz. Pſ. 108.

10. Four are entituled, A Song of Degrees of David: viz. Pſal. 122. 124. 131. 133.

Beſides which there are other 11 Songs of Degrees: viz. Pſal. 120. 121. 123. 125. 126. 127. 128. 129. 130. 132. 134. In all, XV. Songs of Degrees.

3. ASAPH's Name is prefixed to twelve Pſalmes: viz. Pſal. 50. 73. 74. 75. 76. 77. 78. 79. 80. 81. 82. 83. Of all which Aſaph ſeems to have been Penman and not onely Singer. Now of theſe,

1. Four are entituled, A pſalme of Aſaph: viz. Pſal. 50. 73. 79. 82.
2. One is intituled, A Song, a pſalme of Aſaph: viz. Pſ. 83.
2. Two are intituled Maſchil of Aſaph, Pſ. 74. 78.
4. One, To the Maſter-Muſician, Al-taſchith, A Pſalme, a Song of Aſaph viz. Pſ. 75.
5. One, To the Maſter-Muſician on Neginoth, A Pſalme, a Song of Aſaph: viz. Pſ. 76.
6. One, To the Maſter-Muſician, To Jeduthun, A Pſalme of Aſaph: viz. Pſ. 77.
7. One, To the Maſter-Muſician upon Shoſhannim Eduth, A Pſalme of Aſaph, Pſ. 80.

8. One

8. One, To the Master-Musician, A Psalme for the sonnes of Korah: viz. Psal. 88.

4. HEMAN: whose one Psalme is prefixed to the Fifty-eighth Psalme: Entituled, A Song, a Psalme for the Sons of Korah, to the Master-Musician upon Mahalath Leannoth, Maschil of Heman the Ezrahite.

5. ETHAN: Whose one Psalme is prefixed to the Eighty-ninth Psalme: Entituled, Maschil of Ethan the Ezrahite.

2. The Inscriptions or Titles which expressly mention the Penman of all of those Psalmes, are XXXVIII. viz. The Titles to Psal. 42. 44. 45. 46. 47. 48. 49. 66. 67. 72. 84. 85. 87. 88. 90. 98. 100. 101. 103. 106. 111. 112. 113. 120. 122. 135. 136. 138. 139. 145. 146. 147. 148. 149. 150.

Now these Titles are very various. For,

1. One is entituled onely thus, A Psalme: viz. Psal. 98.
2. One thus, A psalme for Confession: viz. Psal. 100.
3. One thus, A psalme, a Song for the day of Sabbaths: viz. Psal. 92.
4. Two are entituled, A psalme, a Song. The Direction as to the Musick being added thereunto: viz. Psal. 67, 87.
5. One thus, To the Master-Musician, A song, a psalme: viz. Psal. 66.
6. Eleven are Directed, as to the Musick, To the sons of Korah: viz. Psal. 42. 44. 45. 46. 47. 48. 49. 84. 85. 87. 88. Of which,
   1. One is evidenced to be penned by Heman the Ezrahite: viz. Psal. 88. A Maschil.
   2. Three are Maschil's. Two entituled thus, To the Master-Musician, Maschil, for the sonnes of Korah: viz. Psal. 42. 44. One thus, To the Master-Musician upon Shoshannim, for the sonnes of Korah, Maschil, a Song of the well-beloved-Virgins: viz. Psal. 45.
   3. Three are entituled thus, To the Master-Musician, a psalme for the sons of Korah: viz. Psal. 47. 49. 85.
   4. One thus, To the Master-Musician upon Gittith, A psalme for the sons of Korah: viz. Psal. 84.
   5. One thus, To the Master-Musician, for the sonnes of Korah, a song upon Alamoth: viz. Psal. 46.
   6. One thus, A Song, a Psalme for the sonnes of Korah: viz. Psal. 48.
   7. One thus, To the sonnes of Korah A Psalme, a Song: viz. Psal. 87.
7. One is entituled, For Solomon, viz. Psal. 72. Of this David was Penman, as is hinted there in verse 20.
8. One thus, A Prayer for the Poor-afflicted, when he shall be overwhelmed and shall pour-forth his Meditation before-the-faces of JEHOVAH: viz. Psal. 102.
9. Fifteen are entituled, a Song of Degrees: viz. Psal. 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134. Of these, four are intituled, a Song of Degrees of David: viz. Psal. 122, 124, 131, 133. One is entituled, a Song of Degrees for Solomon: viz. Psal. 127. The rest are entituled onely thus, a Song of Degrees. So that of these Songs of Degrees, Eleven mention no Penman at all.
10. Finally, Ten have this word prefixed, Halelu-jah: that is, Praise-ye-the-LORD: viz. Psal. 106, 111, 112, 113, 135, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150. And every one of these also in like manner endeth with Halelu-jah, except Psal. 111. which endeth thus, His praise endureth for ever: Tending to the advancement also of the LORD's Praise.

Thus this precious Book of Psalmes, Begins with the Blessednes of the Godly, A most fit beginning (said P Ambrose) Psal. 1. 1, 2, &c. And that Blessednesse, in and through the Messiah, by Faith; Psal. 2. 11 &c. 12. And it Ends with Halelu-jah: The high language of the Godly-blessed, here on Earth, and hereafter in Heaven for evermore.

Thus the whole Book of Psalmes may be Distributed in reference to the Inscriptions or Titles of the Psalmes. The Exposition of the Titles see in the respective Psalmes.

Quam aptum, quam opportunam principium.—A præmio cæpit ut pondus futuri certaminis elevaret: Meritedem præmisit, ut unusquisq; præsentium rerum solicitudines ac labores corde transilitus, ad emerendam beatitudinem futurorum avida festinatione contenderet. Ambr. in Psal. 1. Enarrat. p. 462. Tom. 4 Basil 1577.

II. In

II. In reference to the manner of their Deſcription or Writing, the Pſalms may be Diſtributed into, 1 Alphabetical: and 2. Not-alphabetical.

1. Pſalmes Alphabetical, are thoſe, which are written according to the Order of the Letters in the Hebrew Alphabet: the Verſes, or ſeveral Periods thereof, beginning with the ſeveral Letters of th Alphabet in Order; The firſt with א, The ſecond with ב, The third with ג, &c. And there are in all ſeven ſuch Alphabetical Pſalmes: viz. Pſal. 25, 34, 37, 111, 112, 119, 145. And in theſe the Alphabet is expreſſed ſomewhat variouſly and now and then the method is ſomewhat interrupted in ſome of them, as ſhall afterwards be noted in the Explication of thoſe pſalms particularly & reſpectively. No whether this q Alphabetical way of writing theſe pſal. was at firſt intended as a help to memory onely; or for any ſubſerviency to the Muſick; or for any other advantage, is ſomewhat difficult to determine. But this is very Obſervable, that thoſe pſalmes, which are written in this Alphabetical Form, are among the reſt very eminent and notable. And by this Hebrew Alphabet Schollers may the better remember thoſe pſalmes in the Hebrew. And hence, it is not unwarrantable, nor unuſeful to Pen the Engliſh pſalms, or any other Verſion thereof, &c. in the Engliſh, or other Alphabet, for the help of memory.

2. Pſalmes Not-Alphabetical, are all the reſt. They not being written in Hebrew according to this Alphabetical Order.

q Sunt & aliquot alii Pſalmi Alphabetici, ſed non omnes eodem modo. Ea res unam ad muſicam pertineat, an vero tantum ad memoriam juvandam, incertum eſt: Et Rabbini fatentur ſe nihil ſcire de hac re. Certum illud eſt, eos omnes Pſalmos, qui ſic ſunt, inter alios eminere. Sim. de Muis in Arg. ad Pſalm 25.

III. In reference to the Collecting, or Digeſting of the pſalms into ſeveral leſſer Books within this one Book of Pſalmes; This Book is very aneiently divided into five books by the Hebrews: Making the pſalms, as it were, Another Pentateuch, or Five-fold-volume. David's Pentateuch, anſwering to Moſes Pentateuch, viz.

I. The firſt Book is, from the beginning of Pſal. 1. to the end of Pſ. 41. ספר אחד Sepher Achad; comprising in all 41 Pſalms. And ending thus, —Bleſſed be the LORD God of Iſrael from everlaſting & to everlaſting; Amen and Amen, Pſal. 41. 13. And it is obſervable, that all theſe Pſalms are by the Titles hinted to be David's pſalms, except four: viz. Pſal. 1. 2. 10. 33. And pſalm 2. is declared to be David's pſalm, in Acts 4. 25 26. Hereupon it's probably conceived that this Firſt book was collected by David, as almoſt all the pſalmes were written by him.

II. The Second book is, From the beginning of Pſ. 42. to the end of Pſ. 72. ספר שני Sepher Sheni: Containing in the whole 31 pſalmes: and cloſed up thus;——And bleſſed be the Name of his Glory for ever, and let all the Earth be filled with his Glory: Amen and Amen. Ended are the Prayers of David, ſon of Jeſſe. Pſal. 72. 19, 20. And 19 of theſe 31 pſalms were penned by David; as the Titles of them, and Pſ. 72. 20. do evince. Probably alſo David might collect this book.

III. The third Book is, From the beginning of Pſ. 73. to the end of Pſal. 89. ספר שלישי Sepher Sheliſhi: Comprehending in all 17 pſalmes: and concluding thus;—Bleſſed be JEHOVAH for ever: Amen and Amen, Pſal. 89. 53. And of theſe 17. only one is aſcribed to David; One to Heman; one to Æthan; three other are directed to the ſons of Korach, no Penman being hinted; but Eleven are aſcribed to Aſaph. Probably Aſaph might collect and diſpoſe in Order this Book.

IV. The Fourth Book is, From the beginning of Pſal. 90 to the end of Pſ. 106. ספר רביעי Sepher Rebighni; made up of 17 pſalmes alſo: And ſhut up thus;——Bleſſed be JEHOVAH the God of Iſrael, from eternity and unto eternity: and let all the People ſay, Amen, Halelu-jah, Pſal. 106. 48. and of theſe 17. onely one is aſcribed to Moſes, two to David, the reſt are either un-titled pſalms, or in their Titles mention no Penman at all. It's hard to conjecture who collected this Book.

V. The Fifth book is, From the beginning of Pſal. 107. till the end of Pſal. 150. ספר חמישי Sepher Chamiſhi: Having in it in all 44 pſalms: and terminating the whole Book thus; Let all breath Praiſe JAH; Halelu-jah, Pſal. 150. 6. And it is obſervable, that 25 pſalmes of theſe 44 are in the Titles aſcribed to David, and not one of all the reſt aſcribed to any other Perſon, moſt of them being un-tituled. And who can tell how many more of theſe were penned by David? this book (as was formerly hinted) is ſuppoſed to be thus collected in the dayes of Judas Maccabæus. But whether then, or before: and by whom, whether by David or Ezra, or ſome other, is altogether uncertain. r Sect. III.

This is the Partition of this Book of pſalms according to the Hebrew, thus ſub-divided into five leſſer books. Touching this Diſtribution, let me note a few things, viz.

1. That, all the 150 pſalms are but one entire book, or Volume, as * Hierome alſo notes. For, 1. The New Teſtament is wont ſtill to alledge it as only one Book ſ——And David himſelf ſaith in the Book of pſalmes, &c. t——For it is written in the book of pſalmes, &c. 2. The hebrew Bibles proceed in one continued enumeration of theſe pſalmes, till they come to the 150. never beginning their Enumeration again at any of theſe leſſer books: unus liber, quinque libelli.

* Hier. Sophronio p. 78 Tom. 3. Baſil. 15. 53.
ſ Luke. 20. 42.
t Acts 1. 20.

3. That, notwithſtanding, this Diſtribution of the book of pſalmes into five Little books is Ancient. Hierome ſaith, u With the Hebrews the Pſalter is divided into five Volumes. And elſewhere reckoning up the Hagiographi in order, he ſaith, x And the Firſt Book begins with Job: The Second with David, which they comprehend in five inciſions, but one Volume of pſalmes. Epiphanius ſaith, y Yet neither let this paſſe thee, O lover of good, That the Hebrews have divided the pſalter into five little-books, that it might be as it were another Pentateuch. z Greg. Nyſſen alſo affirms the whole Pſalms to be diſtributed into five parts; declaring alſo th Act and reaſon of that diſtribution.

u In 5 Volumina Pſalterium apud Hebræos diviſum, &c. Hier. in Ep. Marcellæ T. 3. p. 65.

x Et primus liber incipit ab Job: Secundus a David, quem quinque inciſionibus & uno Pſalmorum volumine comprehendunt. Hier. in Præfat. ad lib. Regum. Tom. 2. p. 17. Baſil. 1553.

z Greg. Nyſſen. Tract. 1. in Pſalm. cap. 5.

3. That, All theſe five Books are terminated almoſt in the ſame manner and words. And in them all there ſeems to be a plain borrowing of the Expreſſions, from thoſe wich David's pſalm, at the bringing up of the Ark, was concluded withal; viz. a Bleſſed be JEHOVAH the God of Iſrael, from Eternity and unto Eternity: And all the people ſaid Amen, and Praiſed JEHOVAH. Now, whether theſe Concluſions were Added to the ſeveral Books by the Penmen of the pſalmes themſelves, Or by him or them that were Collectors of the pſalms into theſe Five books, is ſomewhat doubted. If the former, whereunto my judgement inclines, then poſſibly this diviſion might ariſe from the peculiar cloſe of theſe five pſalmes, viz. Pſal. 41. 72. 89. 106. 150. Eminently obſervable in and among all the reſt of the pſalmes. If the later, whereunto b ſome propend, then poſſibly, the diſtribution was firſt made, and afterwards theſe concluſive paſſages added, in imitation of that of David forementioned. But Genebrard is of opinion, that this Diſtribution did ariſe from the five-fold-Argument, and the diverſity of of the Authors or Penmen, when there was any notable change. For, [illegible] The first book is of [illegible] and adverse things; and so forward in those [illegible] The second of joyful successes; and in great part [illegible] both the fears of Kings and Authors (if indeed [illegible] they were singers only) in the midst are found [illegible] things forrowful and adverse. Bucer. St. de Mess. lect. 2. [illegible] That the Psalms were disposed into Order, not with any respect to the History, but only to Particular Mystical mysteries. That haply those Psalms [illegible] Meetre was the cause, or at least [illegible] And yet Psalm 150. which was the last which David penned, is not placed last of all the Psalms, because they that disposed this Book of Psalms into Order, thought fit to close, and as it were, seal up this Volume with Psalmes concerning the Praises of God.

c Dicam quod mihi nunc denuum venit in mentem suspicari; psalmorum habita ratione Historiæ, sed numerorum duntaxat Poeticorum aut Musicorum esse in Ordinem digestos: Ita ut ij forsan Psalmi in eundem locum fuerint conjecti, quorum eadem esset ratio Metrica, aut quorum saltem Musici numeri convenirent. Forsan, dico: nihil affirmo. Sim. de Muis Com. in Psal. 72. 20.

d Hicque psalmus (viz. 72.) postremus est omnium quos unquam Scripsit: ideoque librum unum libris Psalmorum claudit. Neque tamen qui Psalmos in ordinem digesserunt, istum librum postremo loco collocarunt; quod totum Psalmorum Volumen, Psalmis, qui Dei laudes continerent, judicarint esse claudendum ac veluti obsignandum. Sim. de Muis in Argumen. Psal. 72.

Sect. VII. An Account of things performed in this Version of the Psalmes into English Meetre, out of the Hebrew: And in this Exposition of the Psalmes.

This Book of Psalmes (written e for our Edification and Consolation as well as all other Scriptures) was in the Original Hebrew penned, not in Prose, (as most other Books of the Old Testament,) But in succinct Poetical measures (and some of the psalms in f Rithmes) that they might be sung in the Temple of old, 2 Chron. 29. 30. compared with 1 Chron. 15. throughout. This is sufficient warrant to us, For translating or turning the Psalmes, Hymnes, and spiritual songs of this Book, out of the Hebrew into English Poetical Meetre and Rithmes also, that we may sing them with understanding, and therewith make melody in our hearts unto the Lord, Eph. 5. 18, 19. Col. 3. 16. 1 Cor. 14. 15.

That Poetical or Metrical Version of the Book of Psalms into English, by T. S. I. H. and others, which hath now for a long time been of general use in these 3 Nations was of good use to the Churches in England, Scotland, &c. in those darker times wherein it was compiled, in the Dawnings of their Reformation from Popery. But since those times, spiritual Light and Experience much increasing in these Nations; the more intelligent sort have observed; 1. That the Compilers of that Version, being strangers to the Hebrew, have very often left out the matter, yea, in most places omitted the Emphasis of the Hebrew, and in sundry places mistaken the true sense and meaning of the Holy Ghost; 2. That, in passages not a few, they have needlesly inserted expressions very gross and barbarous; 3. That, the whole Version is) for the smoothness of the Meetre) carried so far remote from the Hebrew-text, and filled up with so many Additionals of their own.

Therefore, Having heretofore made an Experiment, what might be yet further done in this kind for the just satisfaction of the pious, and zealous desires of judicious Ministers and Christians, and imparting a Specimen or Sample thereof unto many of them; I have been at last so far overcome by their frequent importunities, as to publish this my Metrical Version of the whole Book of Psalmes also, with an Exposition thereupon; In like manner and method as I have g formerly presented to publick view, The Scripture-songs, dispersed here and there in the books of the Old and New Testament. And I have thought it most proper to inferre this my Version and Exposition of the Psalms in its own place in this third Edition of The Key of the Bible, for the compleating of that Work, This Book of Psalms being the only Book of Old and New Testament, which was left unexpounded in the second Edition of that Key. Now touching things performed in this Metrical Version and Exposition of the Psalmes, I offer this brief Account * &c.

g Vid. In my Key of the Bible, of the second Edition Lond. Ann. 1649.

* See also afterwards in Sect. 8. Thes. 2. Inference IV.

1. This Metrical Version, or Translation, very closely approacheth to the Hebrew. The Hebrew text is the Fountain, all Translations are but as streams flowing from that Fountain; and the nearer the streams are to the Fountain, the more pure and desirable they are. To this end the grand and primary Intendment in this Version hath been, to bring it to the greatest nearness possible unto the Hebrew: that as much of God, and as little of man, as may be, might appear therein; and the spirits of Gods people might consequently receive the more abundant satisfaction and consolation in this Sacred PSALM-Melody. More particularly,

1. Here you have the proper immediate and genuine rendering of the Hebrew, without remote Expressions or Circumlocutions. And where the propriety of our English Tongue, or current of the Meetre would not so conveniently bear that exactness, the proper and exact Version is put in the Margin, and some other (as neer to it as could be had) into the Meetre, with Letter-references. That even in singing we may readily cast our eye upon the propriety of the Hebrew-words or phrases, for the advantage of our Meditation and Devotion. How much this conduceth to compleat the Translation, and to promote Edification, let the wise-hearted prudently consider.

2. Here you find the whole Text entirely expressed, without injurious Omissions: and if any the least particle be in avoidably left out of the Meetre, which is extream sparingly, it is set in the Margin. For, I judge it a temerarious boldnesse, and inexcusable unfaithfulnesse in any Translator of Holy Scripture, knowingly and wittingly, to baulk the rendering of any words. This is not to Translate, but to Correct, yea, to corrupt the Text; which is intolerable. And therefore, all the Inscriptions or Titles prefixed, and all the Postscripts suffixed to the psalms; as also all the Selah's, and Higgaion-Selah, (being all of them parts of the Hebrew text, and very useful in respect of the sense, though not so suitable to be sung,) are printed in Prose distinctively in their own respective places in an old English Character, to signifie they are not to be Sung with the rest.

3. Here you see the pure Text un-mixed with needless Paraphrastical Additions. So that in singing the psalmes thus translated, we may worship the LORD our God more sweetly and satisfactorily according to Divine, not Humane Manifestations. By this close adhering to the Original, This Version is rendered much shorter than many others, And where the proportion of the Meetre, or propriety of the Hebrew Tongue (which much studies brevity, and oft-times leaves words to be understood for the perfecting of Sentences) did necessarily enforce upon some supplemental Additionals: Those words supplyed, are; 1. Either Implicitly comprized under the force and Emphasis of the Hebrew word, and linked thereto with a Makkaph (־). As, Psal. 1. 4, But as-the-small-chaff-dust: כמוץ As the dust; properly signifies, as-the-small-dust-of-chaff. So Ps. 3. 1. My-distressing-enemies, צרי My troublers: properly, My-straiting-foes, or distressers. So Psal. 18. 1. I'le-love-thee-dear: ארחמך I-will-love-thee; properly signifies, I-will-love-thee-dearly: or I-will-love-thee-with-inmost-bowels. This course is frequently observed. 2. Or, The additional words, which are not comprized under the genuine signification of the Hebrew, are differenced plainly by an Italick Character from the rest of the Text; that we may plainly see what is Textual, what Additional. And much care hath been used in adding such words as are most Homogeneal or suitable to the respective places. And if the learned in the Hebrew will please to take any other Metrical Version of the psalms in English, and comparing it with the Hebrew exactly, will but make an experiment in any two or three Psalmes, by noting what Hebrew words are not translated but omitted, and by under-scoring all the other words which are super-added, more than what is in the Hebrew; then they shall easily perceive what care hath been taken in this Version, and how much it differs in this point from other Translations.

In Summe; Read the whole Version, as it is here made up both Textuals and Additional words now and then: And so you have A Metrical or Poetical Version. Read the Version without the words super-added, and printed in Italick Letter: And so you have a perfect Prose Translation. Read the Text with the Marginal words: and so you have the Proper Emphatical Grammar Criticisme according to the propriety of the Hebrew-Original. And all this helps us abundantly, with the more judgment and comfort in singing to make melody in our hearts unto the LORD. Ephes. 5. 18. Col. 3. 16.

II. The Meetre of this Version is so ordered, 1. That, Barbarisms, Obsolete and antiquated Expressions, and light frothy Poetical flashes are studiously therein declined. 2. That the verse runs for the most part with much smoothness, the accustomed Poetical quantities of our English words being heedfully observed; and the verse expressing a perfect sense or conveniently leading unto that part of the sense which is comprized in the verse or line following. 3. That the verse is adorned with fit (and for the most part, with double) Rythmical Terminations. Notwithstanding, the smoothnesse of the verse is to be preferred before the Rythme: and the closeness of the Version to the Hebrew fountain is to be regarded, mong the spiritually wise, before them both.

III. The Tunes are in this Version so contrived, That they are, 1. Of much variety; to prevent tedious irksomness. 2. Of ordinary facility; being only such as are common and easie, and sometimes two Versions, the one easier than the other; That so many of the Psalmes may be sung in our English Congregations. The b Old Metrical Version having put many Psalms, and that without Aliter's, into such intricate Tunes, that few Congregations can sing them: which is a very great inconvenience. 3. Of peculiar Affinity to the Scope and Matter of the Psalm. To avoid unsuitableness, Chearful tunes, being Accommodated to Psalmes of Comfort, Joy, and Thankfulness: Sad and solemn Tunes, to Psalmes Mournful and Penitential.

b See in old Metrical Version, Ps. 120. 121. 122. 124. 125. 126. 127. 130. 136.

IV. Finally, That nothing might be wanting to this Version, that was necessary to the Edification of Gods People, in this Celestial Psalm-Melody; The sense of every particular Psalm is laid open briefly in a plain familiar Exposition annexed respectively. That persons of the meanest apprehensions heedfully perusing the same, or at least The Summary Contents, before singing; may not only sing with the Spirit: but with the understanding also, as the i Apostle requires. In which Exposition, i 1 Cor. 14. 15.

1. The Summary Contents are prefixed to every psalm, in very few words. Which notably hint the matter of the whole Psalm, and of the chief branches thereof, whereby fit Psalms may be chosen, and when chosen they may be sung with better judgement.

2. The Kind, Sort, or Nature of the Psalm, is laid down after every psalm.

3. The Penman, which the Holy Ghost made use of for writing the Psalm, is (so far as can be found out, by that, or other Scriptures) mentioned.

4. The Occasion of writing the Psalm is (what may be) discovered.

5. The Scope or End intended in each Psalm, is also propounded. And touching the Scope, Chrysostome said truly; k As without the foundation the Building is invalid: so without finding out the Scope, the Scripture is unprofitable.

k Ὥσπερ ἄνευ τοῦ θεμελίου ἡ οἰκοδομὴ οὐδὲν ὄφελος, οὕτω καὶ ἄνευ τοῦ σκοποῦ ἡ γραφή. Joan Chrysost. in Exposit. Psal. 3. p. 4. Tom. 3. Paris. 1636.

6. The Logical Analysis, or Principal parts of every Psalm, according to their plain, natural, and genuine Order in the Context, are succinctly Explicated: wherein the careful and attentive Reader may easily observe the more obscure and intricate passages in the Psalms, as well as the whole Series of the Text, so far illustrated, as to lead him to the clear and right sense thereof. By all which, this Heavenly Experimental and Comfortable Book of Psalms is so cleared and expounded, that not only young Students in Theology, but even private Christians of vulgar capacities, may in good measure comprehend the meaning, and have insight into the mysteries of this Devout Heart-ravishing Book.

This present Metrical Version, and Analytical Exposition of all the particular Psalms in this Heavenly Book. 8. In the last place it seems very necessary to close up this Preface with some brief Discourse touching Psalmody, Psalme-melody, or Singing of Psalmes. And this, 1. Partly, because many doubts and Scruples have risen among Christians about singing of psalms. 2. Partly, because Singing of psalmes, as it is a Duty of much sublimity and Excellency, so it is a Duty of no small Difficulty to be rightly performed l. 3. Partly, because singing of psalmes, duly managed is a most advantagious and beneficial part of Gods worship, both to Christians in private m, and to the Churches of God in publique n. And what I intend to say about this Subject I shall lay down in certain distinct Theses or Positi-

Thesis. I.

Singing of Psalmes with voice is an Ordinance of Christ, and a Duty of Christians now under the New Testament.

Touching the Antiquity of Singing Psalmes and Spiritual Songs, &c. it is very great. It is of ancient, in the dayes of David; See 2 Sam. 23. 1, 2. and 22. 1. &c. 1 Chron. 16. 7. &c. and 25. throughout. The Book of Psalmes throughout. As the dayes of the Judges, Judg. 5. 1. &c. Yea, as the dayes of Moses not onely after the giving of the Law at Mount Sinai, Deut. 31. 19. to the end. with 32. 1. to 44. But also before the giving of the Law at Horeb. Exod. 15. 1. &c. so that it seems in some respect to be a part of Gods natural worship, and not meerly to depend upon Institution. And as Singing of Psalmes and other Spirituall Songs was very ancient; so it was both most highly commended and much required and used under the Old Testament b. But of these things there being no Scruple at all, I have laid down the Position with respect to Singing Psalmes onely under the New Testament, about which all the Doubts and Scruples are. Here therefore consider 1 The Explication; 2 The Confirmation of the Thesis.

b See Psal. 33. 1, 2. and 92. title, 3. &c. and 147. 1.

I. For Explication of the Thesis, two things are to be cleared; 1 What is meant by singing of Psalmes with voice. 2 What sort of singing with voice it is which is now Christs Ordinance and the Christians Duty.

1. What is meant by singing of Psalmes with voice? Answ. This may be resolved, Negatively, and Affirmatively.

Negatively. 1. Hereby, is not to be understood, the Ordinary Pronuntiation onely: but something further. 2. Understand not singing with the voice onely: As Exclusive to the Hearts joyning with the voice. For, Making Melody to the LORD in our Hearts; Singing with Grace in our hearts to the Lord; Singing with the Spirit and with the understanding also, are required as the principal Melody to the Lord p. And without the Conjunction of mind and heart with the audible voice, vocal Singing is but Hypocritical, q. Hereby, understand not, such vocal Singing of Psalmes; As is onely private, of one man alone r. Or of a few persons together r. Or as is onely publique, of an whole Church or Congregation together s. But understand both private and publique Singing of Psalmes with audible voice. Both are Christs Ordinances, and Christian Duties required of the Faithful, as Occasion shall be offered, now under the New Testament.

p Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. 1 Cor. 14. 15. Jam. 5. 13. Act. 16. 25 Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16.

Affirmatively. By Singing of Psalmes with the voice, understand; A musical articulation, or melodious modulation or tunning of the voice in pronouncing of Psalmes, &c. that so we may have more space, for meditation, for expressing our spiritual affections of joy or grief, &c. for edifying one another, and for glorifying the Lord. This is the nature of Singing Psalmes in the General. Now herein are hinted to us the General uses, advantages, or benefits of Singing Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, viz. Vocal Singing of Psalmes, &c. 1. Gives more space of time and deliberate Scope for spiritual Meditation upon that which is sung t. The words being as it were produced and drawn out at length, the thoughts have the longer opportunity to fix, ponder, dwell, and be detained thereupon in a more deliberate and distinct Meditation. And this use we should constantly make of Singing Psalmes:

made known to them by his visible works of Creation and Providence, though they never come to the knowledge of Scripture-Psalmes or Songs.

2. Singing of Psalmes, &c. with voice, is commanded to Christians and Churches by the Writings of the New Testament; and therefore is their undoubted Duty now under the New Testament. This Duty is commanded, I. More privately, to particular persons, severally, when they are cheerfully disposed: Is any merry? Let him sing Psalmes m. II. More publiquely, to Christians joyntly, yea, to Church-Assemblies. As, 1 To the Saints and Church at Ephesus; —— But be ye filled with the Spirit: Speaking to your selves in Psalmes, and Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord n. In which words note, First, The persons here spoken to, and charged with this Duty, viz. The Saints at Ephesus, and the faithful in Christ Jesus o. This takes in all the Christians there; even the whole Church. Secondly, The Exhortation or Command it self; in three words, Λαλοῦντες, Ἀδοντες, Ψαλλοντες Speaking, Singing, Making-melody. These denote the Acts required of them. Thirdly, The Subject-matter which they are to sing, about which these Acts are to be exercised, In Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual songs. Fourthly, The Mode or Manner in which all this is to be performed, viz. Profitably, for one anothers spiritual good, and edification; there singing being stiled, a Speaking one to another in Psalmes, &c. that is, A Speaking so in Psalme-singing together, as to teach and admonish one another therein, according as the parallel place expounds it p. Sincerely, with the heart. Fifthly, The Object to whom this worship is specially to be directed; To the Lord. Sixthly, The Occasion of this Exhortation and charge here, viz. That singing Psalmes may evidence they are filled with the Spirit, this being a very spiritual Exercise, and flowing from the Spirit q: As also that both these may be an Antidote against drunkennesse, drunken mirth, drunken Songs, &c. So that vocal singing of Psalmes, &c. is here clearly enjoyned to the Ephesians. 2 To the Colossians, the Saints and Church of God at Colosse. Though the Apostle had notably dehorted them and warned them in this very Epistle by many Arguments against Legal and Jewish Ceremonies, as abrogated by Christ r: yet it's very observable, that in the same Epistle he much urgeth and presseth Singing of Psalmes: giving them thereby clearly to understand, that Singing of Psalmes was no Jewish Ceremony, nor abrogated by Christ; but still to be continued under the New Testament; Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdome, teaching and admonishing one another in Psalmes, and Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord s. Here note, First, An Exhortation of them to be well acquainted with the Holy Scriptures, Let the Word of Christ dwell in you, &c. Secondly, The manner how they should acquaint themselves with the Scriptures, the Word of Christ, viz. Familiarly and intimately; Richly; In all spiritual wisdome touching matters of Faith and Obedience. Thirdly, The use of this their Acquaintance with the Holy Scriptures exemplified in one eminent spiritual Duty whereunto they shall thereby be enabled, viz. Edifying one another, Teaching and Admonishing one another in Psalmes, &c. Fourthly, The way and manner of right singing of Psalmes, &c. it must be, With Grace; In their Heart; To the Lord. Fifthly, The Parties charged with these Duties, The Saints and faithful Brethren in Christ at Colosse t. Now this Teaching and admonishing one another in Psalmes, &c. necessarily requires and imports an audible voice in singing. 3. To the Church of Corinth. To this Church the Apostle commands, that they sing with the Spirit, and with the understanding also u: that is, Not onely with their own understanding, (for all that sung with the Spirit did so,) but with the understanding of the Hearers, that so he that occupied the place of the unlearned, might be edified by such giving of thanks, and say Amen: as one hath rightly observed *.

3. Singing of Psalmes, &c. with audible voice hath been practised by Jesus Christ and his holy Servants in the New Testament. When Christ first instituted the Lords Supper, He and his Apostles sweetly closed up that Sacred Ordinance with joynt singing of an Hymne or Psalme x. And Paul and Silas, in prison, about midnight praying, Sang an Hymne to God (ὑμνοῦντες τὸν Θεὸν:) And the prisoners heard them y: therefore they sung with audible voice. Herein therefore we are to learn of Christ, and to follow him: yea, and to follow his Apostles and Servants, as they followed Christ z. And not only Christ and his Apostles, but also the Primitive Apostolical Churches were wont in their publique Assemblies to sing Psalmes: As the Church of Corinth; How is it then Brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a Psalme, hath a Doctrine, &c. let all things be done to edifying a. They sung Psalmes in an unknown Tongue, (many in that Church had the Gift of Tongues) but he exhorts them to sing in a known Tongue, that others that were unlearned might be edified, and enabled to say, Amen: What is it then? I will pray with the Spirit, and will pray with the understanding also: I will sing with the Spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also: Else when thou shalt blesse with the Spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned, say Amen at thy giving of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest? for thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not edified, b &c. The Church at Ephesus, is commanded and directed by Paul, To speak to themselves in Psalmes, c &c. And the Church at Colosse, To teach and admonish one another in Psalmes, and Hymnes, d &c. Which Apostolical charge, no Question, these Churches did accordingly perform; as the Centuriators do well observe e.

And as Singing of Psalmes was used in the Purest Primitive Apostolical times in the Church-Assemblies: So it was continued all along in the Successive Churches f, hitherto; though it is too evident that some corruptions and vanities by little and little crept into this, as into other parts of Gods worship, in after-times.

Jam. 5. 13. 3. They that are filled with the Spirit, are ready to be spiritually affected and led by him in his own wayes. Rom. 8. 14. Gal. 5. 25. 5. Singing of Psalms and edifying one another thereby, is one eminent end why the Word of Christ should dwell in Christians, richly, in all wisdome &c. now under the New Testament. Consequently singing of Psalmes ——— is the Duty of Christians, and an Ordinance of Christ now under the New Testament. Col. 3. 16.

6. Singing of psalmes by believers under the New Testament, is oft-times Prophetically foretold and foterequired in the Old Testament. And therefore singing of psalmes is clearly an Ordinance of Christ, and a Duty of Christians under the New Testament: the antecedent is evident in sundry instances of the Old Testament. As, ——— O sing unto the LORD a new Song; sing unto the LORD all the Earth: sing unto the LORD, blesse his Name n. And again; Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, O all the Earth. Serve the LORD with gladnesse: come before his presence with singing o. In both which places, all the Earth must refer to the Gentiles as well as to the Jews: all the Nations must sing unto the LORD, that is, The Jews at that present: and the Gentiles afterwards when they should be called and converted to the LORD: then the Gentiles also should worship the LORD with singing of Psalms. So that these passages are tacit Prophecies of the calling of the Gentiles p, and of their New Testament-worshiping of God by singing psalms. Add hereunto that notable passage; O come let us sing unto the LORD: let us make a joyful noise to the Rock of our Salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving: and make a joyful noise unto him with Psalmes q. This Psalm is undoubtedly a Prophecy of Christ, and of the worship that shall and ought to be performed to him solemnly in Sacred Church-Assemblies under the New Testament: and especially (as some think) on the LORD's-day-Sabbaths, the Sabbatisme or Rest of the New Testament. For, the Apostle interprets ... Old Testament, till remain and continue Duties under the New Testament; viz. The Duties of Gods natural Worship required in the First Commandment, As Duties meerly inward and spiritual, as Knowledge of God, Faith, Affiance, Love, &c. and Duties partly spiritual and inward; partly corporeal and outward, As Hearing Gods Word, praying to him, and praising in Prose or Meetre by singing of psalms, &c. The Duties of the Second Third and Fourth Commandments, as to the Substance of those Commandments, which are undoubtedly moral, &c. Only those Duties of Gods Worship under the Old Testament, which were, 1 Meerly Typical, shadows of future good things; As Priests, Sacrifices, Altars, &c. Or 2 Meerly positive and alterable, as keeping The Seventh-day Sabbath; Or 3 Judicial, so farre as Judicial, as stoning to death the Sabbath-breaker; Or 4 Peculiarly limited to the Jewish Church and people, and those times of the Churches minority, As the manner of the Covenant-Administrations, &c. these things onely are abrogated and abolished now under the New Testament, and are not obligatory to Christians.

Isa. 52. 7, 8. * Rom. 10. 12, 13, 14, 15. x

ſhine? Therefore, as the practiſing of all things required under the old Teſtament without diſtinction, was a deſperate revolting to Judaiſme and to Moſes, and rejecting of Chriſtianiſme and of Chriſt himſelf: So the rejecting of all things required under the Old Teſtament without differencing ſome from others, would be a dangerous rejecting of Chriſt as well as Moſes, of Chriſtianiſme as well as Judaiſme.

Obiect. But ſinging of Pſalmes with voice, was onely a Type of ſinging of Pſalmes with Grace in the heart; and ſo is abolished.

Anſw. 1. Nor Scripture, nor any ſound reaſon can evince ſinging of Pſalmes with voice to be Typical in this, or in any other reſpect. 2. By the ſame Reaſon, praying with the voice was a Type of praying with the heart; and ſo praying with the voice is now to be laid aſide: for ſinging of Pſalmes is (as hath been ſaid) a kind of praying. 3. Had ſinging of Pſalmes with audible voice been Typical, David would not have prophetically enjoyned it under the New Teſtament on the Lords-day-Sabbath y. Paul and James z would not have exhorted Chriſtians unto it under the New Teſtament for their manifold ſpiritual advantage thereby. Nor would Chriſt, and his Eleven have ſung an Hymne after the Lords Supper a, which is a Feaſt of the New Teſtament. Nor would Paul and Silas have practiſed it among the Gentiles b. 4. The light of Nature which never inſtructs by Types and ſhadowes, doth as well teach us to praiſe the LORD by vocal ſinging in times of our rejoycing; as to cry unto God with vocal Prayers, in times of our calamities c.

2. Hence, They that oppoſe or neglect, in its ſeaſon, ſinging of Pſalmes, &c. to the LORD, do evidently oppoſe or neglect a New-Teſtament Ordinance of Chriſt, and a Duty of Chriſtians. And how unſafe both theſe courſes are, let every Chriſtian judge.

Obiect. In the former Scriptures Eph. 5. 16. and Col. 3. 16. the Apoſtle exhorts Chriſtians to ſpeaking to themſelves in Pſalmes, and to teaching and admoniſhing one another in Pſalmes, &c. So that they were to make uſe of Pſalmes in ſpeaking, teaching, and admoniſhing, &c. not in ſinging. He there mentions not ſinging till he comes to making melody in the heart, ſinging with Grace in the heart; and this is ſinging with the Spirit.

Anſw. 1. The Apoſtle in Eph. 5. 18, 19. preſcribing a remedy againſt drunkenneſſe, ſaith; Be ye filled with the Spirit: that's the moſt effectual remedy in the world againſt drunkenneſſe, or any other ſin. And then he ſhewes them; how, being filled with the Spirit, they ſhould and would act, exerciſe, or expreſſe themſelves, viz. in ſpeaking to themſelves in Pſalmes, &c. as if he had ſaid, when men are filled with Wine, in their drunken cups, &c. they ſpeak one to another they know not what, they ſing prophane, filthy, wanton Sonnets, &c. or paganiſhly they ſing Songs to their Idols, &c. but you Chriſtians muſt not do ſo, But be ye filled with the Spirit, and ſpeak ye one to another in Pſalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, &c. Thus rejoyce you with heavenly melody in your hearts to the LORD. And the latter words in both thoſe places, Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. are exegetical to thoſe in the beginning of the verſes, explaining what he means by ſpeaking, teaching, and admoniſhing——viz. thus edifying one another in ſinging Pſalmes. And it's an excellent way of ſpeaking to themſelves and to one another, when Chriſtians ſing Pſalmes. 2. It is granted, That the Pſalmes are a choice part of Scripture; and Chriſtians may and ought to teach and admoniſh one another out of them, as out of other Scriptures d; And this the Apoſtle in theſe places Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. may imply and preſuppoſe: But therein he plainly intends ſomthing further, viz. A diſtinct way or manner of ſpeaking, teaching, and admoniſhing, &c. for mutual edifying, viz. In their ſinging of Pſalmes, &c. as they do by joyning in prayer or like duties. Therefore ſome do well note e, That, Speaking, teaching one another in Pſalmes, Hymnes, &c. as is done in ſinging, is one thing; Speaking, teaching, and admoniſhing one another out of Pſalmes, &c. is another. Had Paul intended onely or principally this latter, he would not have ſaid, Ψαλμοῖς——in, or with Pſalmes, &c. as here he doth; but καὶ ἐξ Ψαλμῶν out of the Pſalmes, or from the Pſalmes: as in the phraſe for ſuch a duty; —— Philip beginning (ἀπὸ τῆς γραφῆς ταύτης) from that Scripture, preached to him Jeſus f.—— Paul expounded to them teſtifying the Kingdom of God, & perſwading them the things concerning Jeſus (ἀπὸ τε τῦ νόμυ Μωσέως καὶ τῶν προφητῶν,) both out of the Law of Moſes and the Prophets g. 3. Though ſinging be not mentioned till the latter end of thoſe two verſes, Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. yet it referres to, and expounds the former part of thoſe verſes. To limit ſinging onely to the heart, and inward melody of the ſpirit, is utterly beſides the Apoſtles intent in theſe verſes, contrary to the nature of ſinging, and deſtructive to all edification or advantage to others by ſinging. Where do we read of ſinging in all the Scripture without the voice? How can one mans heart-melody profit another, which cannot hear it? How groſs and ignorant a Contradiction in the Adject, and abſurd nonſenſe is it, to talk of ſinging in heart without the voice?

3. Hence, Let all Chriſtians own and exerciſe themſelves in ſinging Pſalmes, &c. as in their New Teſtament Duty, and Chriſts Ordinance. Sing Pſalmes, &c. privately and publiquely, to the LORD. Sing Pſalms, in your Families with other Family-Duties, ſo you ſhall render them as little Churches: Sing Pſalmes in the Churches ſo ſhall you make them as a little Heaven on Earth.

Theſis. II.

The Subject-matter of Chriſtians ſinging now under the New Teſtament, ſhould peculiarly be the Scripture-Pſalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs.

May be evinced by theſe enſuing Arguments or Reaſons, viz.

1. Becauſe, The Denominations of the Subject-matters which Chriſtians and Churches under the New Teſtament are exhorted and required by the Apoſtles to ſing, viz. Pſalmes, Hymnes, and Songs, Are the very Scripture-Denominations which are prefixed to David's Pſalmes, and other Scripture-Pſalmes. For, 1. Theſe three Greek words are borrowed from the Greek Verſion of the LXXII. upon the Pſalmes: (The Apoſtles in the New Teſtament much following the Verſion of the LXXII. as the learned well know.) Ψαλμοὶ Pſalmes, is uſed by the LXXII. in the Titles of Pſal. 3. 4. 5. 7. 8. 9. and moſt frequently in the Titles of other Pſalmes. Ὕμνοι Hymnes, is uſed by the LXXII. in the Titles of Pſal. 6.—in Hymnes upon the eighth, &c. Of Pſal. 54.—in Hymnes of inſtruction to David. Of Pſal. 60.——in Hymnes to David. Of Pſal. 66. in Hymnes a Pſalme to David. And in the cloſe of Pſal. 71. according to the Greek, but which is 72. according to the Hebrew, verſe 20. The Greek ſaith, Ended are Hymnes of David ſonne of Jeſſe. Ὠδαὶ, Odes, or Songs, is uſed by the LXXII. in the Titles of all the Pſalmes of Degrees from Pſal. 120. to 135. (according to the Hebrew account,) and in the Titles alſo of many other Pſalmes. Yea, all theſe three Names, Pſalmes, Hymnes, and Songs, are uſed by the LXXII. in the Title of Pſal. 75.—— Ἐν Ὕμνοις, Ψαλμῷ τῷ Ἀσαφ, Ὠδὴ

3. Because, Christ and his Apostles by their Example instruct us to sing Scriptures, Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. And when they had sung an Hymne, they went forth, &c. What Hymne was this which Christ and his Apostles sang? I find here among learned men especially three Opinions. I. Some think this Hymne was that heavenly Prayer which Christ made at that time, which is recorded in John 17. as Beda, and Gronovius. But this Opinion I dislike; 1. Because, it is not proper nor usual to call a Prayer an Hymne. 2. Because, Christ only uttered that Prayer, John 17. but both Christ and his Apostles joyned (for the word is plural, ὑμνήσαντες) in singing that Hymne, Mat. 26. 30. II. Some think that Christ composed some New Hymne for that Occasion. But this satisfies not, 1. Because, It is not said, that Christ did sing any New Hymne; but onely that they sang an Hymne. 2. Because, it is most likely that had Christ compiled any New Hymne, some of the Evangelists, especially John, would have recorded it, seeing they do not omit but relate things of far lesse moment than this about the Worship of God. III. Others, (both learned and well acquainted with Jewish Customes, do rather judge, that this Hymn was that knot of Eucharisticall Psalmes betwixt Psal. 112. and 119. which six Psalmes the Jews were wont to sing after their eating of the Passeover. Some think this Hymne began with Psalm 111. and so consisted of eight psalmes, till Psal. 119. And the Jews were wont to call this Hymne, THE GREAT HALELU-JAH. For mine own part, I am much of Opinion that this Hymne which Christ and his Apostles then sang, was some one or more of Davids Psalmes; and rather this their GREAT HALELU-JAH

LU-JAH, than others. And my grounds are, 1. Because, It is indefinitely said; They sang an Hymne t, viz. after the Passover and Lords-Supper. It's spoken of, as a thing familiarly used and known, and needing no further declaration of it, what Hymne it was. And the people of God by this phrase could not easily understand any other, then some one or more of David's Hymnes: because such were ordinarily used in the Worship of God in the Temple, Synagogues, &c. and it is most likely Christ would use that Worship of God which was then of force, Himself being made under the Law u, and affirming of himself. That it became him to fulfill all righteousness x. And the whole Book of Psalmes is stiled, סֵפֶר תְּהִלִּים The Book of Hymns. 2. Because. If Christ and his Disciples had sung any other Hymne, then some of the Hymnes in the Book of Psalmes which were used to be sung in the Temple and Synagogues, the Evangelists would not have omitted such an Hymne indited peculiarly for the Lords Supper, but have related it for the Churches use and benefit in all after times. 3. Because, Among the Hymnes in the Book of Psalmes, it seems most likely that Christ would sing that Hymne which was then in use among the Jewes after the Paschal Supper. Now Paulus Burgensis converted from the Jewes, and therefore well acquainted with the Jewish wayes of worship, with other learned Writers do averre, That the Jewes were wont after their Passeover solemnly to sing these Eucharistical Hymnes forementioned x. To this Example of Christ and his Apostles, adde also the Example of Paul and Silas, who at midnight sung an Hymne to God in prison, Acts 16. 25. which Hymne, according to common understanding, must be taken for one of the Scripture-Hymnes, unless something in the Text or Context should direct us to interpret it otherwise.

4. Because, wheresoever the New Testament alledgeth Psalmes, it intends Scripture-psalmes, Davids psalmes, &c. Thus, when Christ distributes the whole Old Testament into a Trichotomy, it is into the Law of Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms a. For the singular Excellency of the Psalmes, he makes them a distinct Volume or Book of themselves Thus; David himself saith in the Book of Psalmes, The Lord said unto my Lord b, &c. Again; —— For it is written in the Book of Psalmes, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein, and his Bishoprick let another take c. Further; —— As it is written in the Second Psalme, Thou art my Sonne, this day have I begotten thee d. —— Wherefore he saith also in another Psalm; Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption e. Still the Psalmes alledged in the New Testament, are intended only of the Scripture-Psalmes of the Old-Testament. When therefore the Holy Ghost in the New Testament requires us to sing Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. what Psalms can we rationally imagine he intends but the Scripture-Psalmes, so familiarly and frequently mentioned in the New Testament.

5. Because, the Scripture-psalmes were written for those ends and purposes, which the Apostle requires us to intend and aim at in singing of psalms under the New Testament, viz. Praising and Giving thanks unto the Lord, Teaching or instructing one another, Admonishing one another f, and chearing up our hearts in godly rejoycing g. For, 1. Praising and giving thanks to the Lord, takes up a very great part of the Book of psalms. One is entituled, Davids psalm of praise, Psal. 145. tit. Many (as some think) are entituled, Halelu-jah, praise-ye-the-LORD, As Psal. 146. 147. 148. 149. 150. with sundry others. What raised praises and Thanksgivings are dispersed throughout the whole Book! as Psal. 8. 19. 29. 30. 34. 96. 98. 100. 103. 104. 105. 106. 107. &c. yea the whole Book hence hath its Denomination, סֵפֶר תְּהִלִּים Sepher Tehillim, i.e. The Book of Hymnes, or Praises. 2. Teaching and Instructing is another end of Scripture-psalms. Many psalmes for the Subject-matter of them are Doctrinal or Teaching psalmes. As, Psal. 1. 15. 19. 24. 37. 119. and many others. Some are entituled, Maschil, An Instructing psalm. As Psal. 32. 42. 44. &c. There are in all 14. Maschils; as hath been formerly noted h. 3. Admonishing, is another end of Scripture-psalmes. Sundry psalmes are reprehensory, or Monitory, &c. Reproving for sin and corruption. As, Psal. 10. 14. 37. 49. 50. 52. against Doeg. 53. 58. against corrupt Judges, &c. Sundry psalmes also are Hortatory unto Duty. As, Psal. 37. &c. Admonition hath in it, both reprehension for sin, and Exhortation to Duty. 4. Another end of Scripture-psalms, is Comforting and cheering up our selves in the LORD, that we may rejoyce and triumph in him. Many psalmes are of such Argument. As, Psal. 96. 98. 146, &c. These are the ends why psalms were written and recorded in Scripture: and these are the very ends why we are to sing psalms to God by New Testament-command; and they are all Moral Ends, of constant and perpetual concernment to Gods Church and people in all Ages. They therefore that cry down singing of psalmes now under the New Testament, decry a Moral Duty, and sacrilegiously endeavour to rob both themselves and others of these excellent moral ends and benefits, redounding by the well-performance of this Duty,

6. Finally; Because, If the Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. be not the very Psalmes, &c. which we ought to sing as the New Testament requires i, and as the Old Testament enjoynes on the Sabbath-dayes k under the New Testament: then we have no Psalmes, Hymnes, and spiritual Songs to sing, which we can comfortably and safely acquiesce in, as fully i Eph. 5. 19 Col. 3. 16.

k Ps. 95. 1 2. &c.

fully acceptable to God, and for the quality or manner of it impossible. For, 1. Where (except in Scripture) can we find any such things described or certainly set out, as the Apostles Psalms, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs? How or by what rule shall we know and distinguish Psalmes from Hymnes, and both from Spiritual Songs, especially we speaking the Tongue of Scripture-Psalmes, and there also are clearly and expressly distinguished? Now unless Scripture-Psalmes, &c. nor Old nor New Testament nor light of Reason, doth lead us thereto (which of any other Poetical Compositions, 2. How shall the Church and people of God come by any other Psalmes, &c. wherewith they may sing to the Lord, when they reject and cast off singing of Scripture-Psalmes? Either we must have them by Extraordinary, or Ordinary Gift. 1. Not by Extraordinary Gift, enabling men to utter Psalmes suddenly, as conceived by extraordinary inspiration. For experience tells us there is no such Gift in any Church on Earth. Indeed there once was such a Gift in that Primitive Apostolical Church of Corinth, at the first planting of the Gospel among the Gentiles and they sing Psalmes in a strange language, filling the Heathen with admiration, &c. but since the Gospel is received, these and other extraordinary Gifts have ceased. If any that pretend to such Gifts (who are not learned) can suddenly utter Psalmes, &c. in strange Languages, it would much convince us, that such extraordinary Gifts are not totally abolished. 2. Not by ordinary Gift, enabling men to prepare and compose Set-formes of Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. for the Churches use from time to time. For then Christ would have ordained some Officers in the Church to have attended this work, as he hath appointed Ministers to attend the Ministry of the Word and Prayer; &c. Deacons, to take care of the poor, &c. Or else would have inclined some member of the Church or other with a Spirit of Psalmody (as one saith) for framing Psalmes suitable to the Churches occasions and conditions from Sabbath to Sabbath n. But we have no footstep of either of these in Scripture or Experience.

3. As for those Poems, which both for matter and forme are meerly of Humane Invention and Composition, be they never so exquisitely framed, yet are they not to be compared with Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. For at best these are but Humane and fallible, liable to much frailty, infirmity, errour and vanity; and therefore the heart of a Christian can never fully acquiesce in them, as most acceptable to God. And therefore to substitute those Humane infirm fallible Compositures, in stead of the Divine, infallible, and perfect Scripture-Psalmes, &c. is abominably to set up and preferre Vanity before Verity, and Mans Inventions before Gods Institutions.

Thus the Second Thesis is evident.

Inferences, hence,

I. Then, Some Duties of Gods Worship tyed under the Old Testament, are not Aniquated or abolished, but rather confirmed and continued under the New. As here, Singing of Psalmes, which was usual under the Old Testament, is confirmed and perpetuated by the Apostle. But of this formerly o.

II. Then, A stinted Prescript or Set-forme of Prayer to God, or Praise of God, is lawful and warrantable. For, the Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes and spiritual Songs, which we are enjoyned by the Apostle and by David to sing now under the New Testament, are most of them Prayers to God, and Praises of God: And so they are Set-formes of such Prayer and Praise.

not to have the like stamp of Divine Authority in Old or New Testament.

Here sundry Objections are made, which as followeth may receive their brief Solution, as,

1. Object. Had Paul in Eph. 5. 19. and Col. 3. 16. meant Scripture-psalms, &c. or Davids, he might as easily have named Scripture-psalmes, &c. or Davids: As David named his, Psalms of David, Songs of David, &c. when he delivered them to the Master-Musicians, &c. to be sung.

Answ. 1. Had Paul intended to exclude Scripture-psalms, &c. he might as easily have excluded them by name, and have limited the Churches to psalms, &c. of the Spirits extemporal suggestion. 2. Can any man of a good conscience give a sound and satisfactory Reason why the Apostle should name psalmes, Hymnes, and songs, which are the very Denominations of the Scripture-Ditties, unless to direct us to sing the Scripture-psalmes, Hymnes, and spiritual songs? 3. Davids Name is not prefixed to all the psalmes written by him. And though at first, it was requisite the particular psalms should be made known to be inspired to some Prophet of God, by his name prefixed or some other way: yet now the whole Book of psalmes being received as of divine inspiration, there's no necessity of mentioning alwayes the Penmen's Names. And the psalms are often alledged in the New Testament without mention of any Psalmists Name.

2. Object. But, The Psalmes, Hymnes, and spiritual songs here appointed by Paul to be sung, are the words of Christ which are to dwell in us richly, &c. a. not the words of Davids, &c.

a Col. 3. 16

Answ. 1. And are not the words of David, and the words of every Penman of Holy Scripture, and the whole Scripture of Old and New Testament, the words of Christ? 1 Is not Christ the word, the essential Word of God, by whom he reveals his will unto us, through his Spirit b: and so becomes the Author or efficient cause of the Scripture by his Spirit c? Is not Christ the Son of God, that person that appeared to Moses under the Old Testament, and instructed him about sacred things, as Tertullian d contends: Yea, as the Proto-Martyr Steven in his Sermon notably asserts e. 2. Is not Christ the primary Object or Subject-matter, as well as the Author of the Scriptures? The whole Scriptures are as swadling-bands of the blessed Child Jesus. In the Old Testament Christ is Veyled: In the New Revealed: In both testified; See John 5. 39. Act. 3. 22. 24. and 10. 43. The whole Scripture is but as the Cabinet; Christ the Jewel contained in that Cabinet. 3. Is not Christ the end and Scope of the whole Scripture? how ignorantly then are the words of David, &c. opposed to the words of Christ. 2. The Word of Christ is to dwell richly in us f by the Apostles direction: not that the whole Word of Christ is to be sung, for only that part is to be sung which is comprized under Psalmes, Hymnes, and spiritual songs; but that by the Word of Christ dwelling richly in us, we may be the better enabled to teach and admonish one another in singing psalms, &c. This being one excellent use and improvement of the Holy Scripture, and to sing fit and pertinent psalms requires good skill in the Word of Christ.

3. Object. To devise new spiritual songs, fit to teach and admonish one another, will require our being filled with the Spirit. Eph. 5. 18. 19. and to have the Word of Christ dwell in us richly in all wisdom, Col. 3. 16. But the Apostle needed not to have exhorted to either of these, for the singing of Scripture-psalms already set in ordinary tunes. A very small measure of the Spirit and Word of Christ may suffice for that.

Answer. 1. The Apostle in these two Epistles g doth not speak of their devising or inventing of any new spiritual songs; but of singing Scripture-Psalms, Hymnes, and spiritual songs already devised and recorded in the Bible, as hath been already proved. 2. It requires a large measure of the Spirit and of the Word of Christ to be dwelling in us, To suit and sing the Scripture-psalms, to such ends and in such manner, as is here appointed. 1. To select and fit the Scripture-psalms, &c. fitly unto every emergent occasion; As, To the Subject-matter of Sermons; To occasions of grief, mourning, humiliation, repentance, &c. To occasions of joy, gladness, thankfgivings, &c. To teaching of such or such Doctrines, To admonishing for such or such sins; To exhorting to such or such Duties, &c. 2. To sing psalmes to right ends; As Praising the Lord, Teaching and admonishing one another, comforting and cheering up our own hearts, &c. h. 3. To sing psalmes also in a due manner, with Grace in the heart i; So as to regard the inward heart-melody to the LORD, more than the voice-melody to the ear, &c. These things require not a smattering but a plentiful measure of the Word and Spirit in us, for the due performance and management thereof.

4. Object. The Scripture-psalmes were, as to the singing of them, appropriated to the Temple-worship: as appears; Partly, By the Titles of many psalmes appointing them to be sung by Temple-Officers and Musical Instruments; Partly, By our Saviours and his Apostles not singing of them, and therefore the singing of such Scripture-psalmes, &c. seems to be abolished with the Temple.

Answer. 1. The Scripture-psalmes were sung in the Temple doubtlesse after the Temple was erected; and by Musicians, and with Musical Instruments appointed for the Temple, as the Titles of some of them do import: But though it be granted they were used in the Temple, it doth not therefore follow that they were appropriated onely to the Temple. For, some of them, as the Songs of Moses, and of Deborah k, were sung long before David's time; Some of them were appointed to be sung, before the Temple was erected; as Psal. 105. great part of it, and Psal. 96. &c. at the bringing up of the Ark into the City of David l. Psal. 92. and 95. on Sabbath-dayes; and many others upon other occasions. Some were sung after the Temple was destroyed and burnt, as Psal. 74. see ver. 3. to 10. And Psal. 44. though directed to the sons of Korach, yet is thought by the Apostles alledging of it m, to be especially intended of the times of the New Testament: because, except in the Primitive times, the like innocency met together with the like calamity is not to be found among the children of Israel, whilest the Temple was standing. Therefore Scripture-psalms not being appropriated to the Temple, were not, as to the singing of them, abolished with the Temple. 2. Jesus Christ and his Apostles (as hath been evinced already) did both sing Scripture-psalms, Hymnes, &c. themselves, and also have enjoyned Christians to do the like n. And therefore herein we are to obey and imitate them.

5. Object. As Paul directs Timothy about publick Prayer in the Church, 1 Tim. 2. 1, 2, 3, 4. but prescribes no form of Prayer to be used: so he directs singing of psalms, Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16, but prescribes no Form of psalmes to be used. And generally those Objections that are made against a Set-form of Prayer, as That it is contrary to the Second Commandment, that it stints and quencheth the spirit, &c. strike alike against all set-formes of psalmes as unlawful.

Answ. 1. It is granted, that the Apostle directing Timothy about publick Church-prayer, 1 Tim. 2. 1, 2, 3, 4. prescribes no Form of Prayer: And it must on the other hand be granted also, that neither there nor any where else in his writings doth he prohibit the use of a Form of prayer. Nor doth any other Scripture prohibit it: Nay, the Scriptures evidently allow it: as, in the form of the Priests blessing the people o; and in that form of Prayer which the Lord taught his disciples; When ye pray, say; Our Father, &c. p. And if it be lawful, and a duty, as hath been proved, to sing Scripture-psalmes, then it is lawful to use a Set-form of Prayer;

And therefore, whose practice in good and agreeable to Scripture, cannot be necessary to the Second Commandment, nor can be fully exercised in singing of Scripture-psalms, for the Spirit, for those extraordinary gifts mentioned before of a Minister quenched, and through the Spirit in every one of the Congregation, so that they are tyed up to his particular forms of prayer, &c.

q See before in Inference II. the Lawfulnes of Set-formes r Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16.

2. It is manifest that the Apostle directing Christians to sing psalmes, prescribes no Forms to be sung. For, whilest he directs them to sing Psalmes, Hymns, and Spiritual songs, he plainly points out to them what Psalmes, &c. he would have them sing, those being the very Titles and Denominations of the Scripture-psalmes, as hath been proved. Therefore the psalmes which the Apostle would have Christians to sing are Scripture-psalmes; unlesse any should be so devoid of reason, as to say, that Scripture-psalmes are neither Psalmes, Hymns, nor Spiritual Songs.

6. Object. But the Church of God is fit to be edified by the proper and personal gifts of the present Members which they have received from the Spirit of God, Eph. 4. 7, 8, 11, 16. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. Rom. 12. 4, 6. 1 Cor. 12. 7. And we have invincible examples in the Church of Corinth, of exercising personal gifts, as well in Singing as in Praying and Prophecying: 1 Cor. 14. And we have gifts in these times of composing spiritual songs, for the Churches edification. In this way therefore of personal gifts the Church is to be edified, and not by singing of Scripture-psalmes.

Answ. 1. The Manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withall, 1 Cor. 12. 7. but (still he must endeavour that profit of others in his own sphere and place, whether private or publique. No member of the body must be unprofitable: but private members must not usurp the publique employments of publique Officers. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. Rom. 12. 4, 6. 1 Cor. 12. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 28, 29, 30. II. The edification of the Church is to be carried on both publiquely and privately by other means also, besides the proper personal spiritual gifts of the present members. Are not the Writings of the Prophets and Apostles (though they be dead) most eminent means of the Churches edification? As it is said of Abel, being dead, he yet speaketh t. So may it not be said of them, they being dead, yet speak, yet pray, yet sing, &c. to our edification? and shall not the New Jerusalem be founded and built partly by some influential help of the old Apostles of the Lamb u; and are not reading the Word, hearing it read, meditating thereon, and every other Ordinance of Christ, useful for edification of the Church? III. The Instance of singing in the Church of Corinth by personal gift of the present members, will not enforce us now to sing in the Church only by a personal gift of the members present. For their gift of singing was wholly extraordinary and miraculous, joyned with the gift of Tongues. The gift of Tongues was used by them four ways; 1. In speaking mysteries, 1 Cor. 14. 2. 2. In praying, ver. 14. 3. In singing, ver. 15. 4. In blessing and thanksgiving, ver. 17. Now if any among us have such an extraordinary gift as they had, they may sing extraordinarily, as they did. But till then, their practice can be no president for us. IV. Though some amongst us have a gift of composing a spiritual psalm or Song, yet must he not therefore bring it and sing it in our Church-assemblies, no more than he that hath a gift to conceive a Prayer or compose a Sermon, must presently come to pray and preach in the Church. None but he that is duly called u thereto should meddle with publique Administrations. Nor, is it safe to neglect the eminent infallible inspirations of Gods holy Spirit in Scripture-psalms, &c. for any

2. That there's a necessity of translating Scripture-psalmes &c. into Meetre, and that such Meetre as they may best be sung to edification. For, 1. Psalmes, &c. only in plaine or Prose translation, cannot well be sung in ordinary Congregations; but psalmes in succinct Meetre, in certain Measures, may be easily, harmoniously, and profitably sung, as experience evidenceth. 2. The singing of psalms in Prose, as used in Colledges, Cathedralls, and other places, seems to be lesse grave, serious, melodious, edifying: The words being hurried over with so much haste and precipitation, especially where periods are long, that there's no time for meditation upon what is sung, which is one chief advantage of singing. Nor can any thus sing without a book. 3. The Hebrew psalmes, &c. were put into Meetre, or certain fixed Measures, for singing: as among the Learned some have notably demonstrated z. Which justifies, our translations of them into Meetre also, in order unto singing.

3. That the Metrical version of the Scripture-psalms Hymnes, &c. should be so ordered as may be best sung to most spiritual advantage and edification a. And to the compleating of such a Metrical Version, these things are very desirable and requisite: viz. I. Exact nearnesse of the Version to the Original, so far as is possible. That so as much of God, and as little of man as may be, may appear therein. This will greatly satisfie the godly judicious, and heighten their spiritual melody to the Lord. To this end, 1. All remote paraphrases, and Circumlocutions, should be carefully avoided, and the plain genuine sence of the words and phrases (as far as the Propriety of our English Language will bear it) laid down, to the true sence and intent of the Holy Ghost. 2. All omissions of words should be studiously shunned. 3. All additions of words or phrases should be diligently declined. 4. Whersoever Alterations, Omissions, or Additions could not easily be avoided: That in all Alterations, the propriety of the Hebrew or Greek words or phrases be put in the Margin; That in all Omissions, the word or particle omitted, be supplyed in the Margin, that whilest a man sings he may instantly cast his eye upon the Margin, and so help his devotion and meditation; And, That in all Additions, the Additional words be printed in a different Character, to distinguish them from the Text, and be still congruous to the subject-matter whereunto they are superadded. II. Convenient smoothnes of the Meetre, or verse. Thus it shall be read or sung with more delight. And therefore, 1. All old obsolete barbarous expressions should be declined. 2. The due quantities of our English Syllables (without which the verse will run very ruggedly and unpleasantly) must be well observed. 3. And the Rythmical terminations of the verses (which with a kind of graceful grace set off & adorn the Version, especially to the more harmonious minded) should be discreetly and soberly ordered. III. Proper suitableness of various and easie Tunes, wherein they are to be sung, is very necessary. Tunes should be, 1 Proper and suitable to the Nature and Subject-matter of the Psalmes, viz. More grave, sad, solemn tunes should be suited to Penitential, Lamenting, Mournful Psalmes, as Psal. 6. 22. 38. 51. 88. 90. 102, &c. More pleasant chearful tunes to Psalmes of Praise, &c. as Psal. 30. 45. 126. 118, &c. 2 Various. The Psalmes are of very various matter. And variety brings a kind of delight and refreshment to the Singers. 3 Easie. That every one of them may be sung, as there shall be occation, for edification. There's not one of them, but is very useful for edifying. Therefore if any Psalme be translated in an unusual or difficult tune to gratifie more Expert Singgers: yet should it also be translated a second time in an ordinary and easie tune for the benefit of all. And experience tells us That sundry choice Psalmes are put into such hard unusual tunes in our common Translation of singing-Psalmes b, that most Congregations in these three Nations cannot at all make use of them in singing and making melody therein unto the Lord. IV. An Exposition of the Nature, Scope, and Parts of the Psalmes, that they may be sung understandingly.

b viz. Psal. 120. 121. 122. 124. 125. 126. 127. 130. 136.

Now in this Metrical Version of the Psalmes here following, all these things are studiously intended and performed c. And herein how far all other Metrical Versions of Psalmes which are yet extant, do come short, is left to the judicious and impartial Reader to consider and determine.

c See before in Sect. VII. numb. 1.

V. Then, The Metrical Version of Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. the more exactly it agrees with the Original Hebrew and Greek of Old and New Testament. (provided it be conveniently smooth, agreeable to the propriety of our English Tongue, and fitted for suitable and easie tunes) the better it is. For,

1. The Original words, being immediately inspired of God, are incomparably the best of all; Are most Divine, most pure, most infallible, &c. And therefore, the nearer any Version approaches to the Original words, to the Fountain d, the more Divine, pure, and infallible, &c. it must needs be, and consequently every way the better: the more remote it is from the Original, the more Humane muddy, fallible, &c. it is, by reason of the more humane mixtures therein.

d Dulcius ex ipso fonte bibuntur aqua.

2. That Metrical Version of Psalmes must needs be best, which is most conforme unto the Rule and Standard of all Translations: but that Rule and Standard is the Original.

3. That Metrical Version of Psalmes which most fully attains its end, is best: but that Metrical Version which comes neerest to the Original Hebrew and Greek of Old and New Testament, most fully attains its end. viz. The glorifying of God, and edifying of our selves and others in singing of Psalmes, e &c. For, Then we are best satisfied, that we sing, not so much humane Composures and Ditties, as the Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs indeed. Then our understandings are the more Informed, our hearts and affections the more Raised and Spiritualized, to sing with Grace, delight and inward melody unto the Lord, in materials of his own devising and inspiration. And therefore let us most prize and use those Versions, that most closely approach to the Originals.

e Eph. 5. 18, 19, 20. Col 3. 16.

VI. Then, Christians have need to be well versed in Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes and Spiritual Songs that they may sing them profitably. As the Mother of Zebedees children with her two sons were blamed by Christ for asking they knew not what f: So may they, that are unskilful in the Scripture-Psalmes, be condemned for singing they know not what. Scripture-Psalmes, &c. are to be sung: but how can he sing them rightly, that's greatly unacquainted with them? There's scarce that case or condition of a Christian in the world, but there is some Scripture-Psalme or other most agreeable thereunto: but here's the skill, to find out Psalmes suitable for every case, and to apply them accordingly. This requires good Christian-judgement in, and acquaintance with, the Scripture-Psalmes: as that a man competently know the Nature, Subject-matter, Scope, and chief parts of the Psalmes. In all which the ensuing Explication will be a singular help. Therefore thou that would'st sing Scripture-Psalmes judiciously, profitably, &c. peruse and meditate much upon them, be a skilful Artist in them, for the best improvement of them.

f Mat. 20. 22. Mar. 10. 38

VII. Then, In singing Psalmes, let the Churches of Christ in publick, and Christians in private, make peculiar use of Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs. With these, Praise the LORD thy God, solace thy self, and edifie others. Scripture-Psalmes are incomparably the most excellent Psalmes in the world, for Author, Matter, Forme and End. The Singing of Scripture-Psalmes now under the New Testament, is an Ordinance of Christ, and a Duty of Christians. Therefore, Sing these Psalmes, Hymnes and Spiritual Songs in publick and private, &c. but sing them as Scripture-Psalmes should be sung. To this End, I shall 1. Lay down certain Rules or Directions for the right singing of Scripture-Psalmes. 2. Resolve certain Cases, Practical Questions, or Doubts about singing of them.

Rules or Directions for right singing of Scripture-Psalmes.

1. Have grace in the Heart. When the Apostle directs us, to sing Psalmes, Hymnes, &c. with Grace in our hearts unto the Lord g, he necessarily presupposeth the having of Grace in our hearts. For how can Grace be Actually used, unless it be first Habitually had? Grace is so necessary to the well-performing of every holy duty, both for the Qualifying of the Person h, and for the Original of the Action i: that without it nothing can be acceptable to God. God first hath respect to our Persons, and the Ground or Rise of our Actions: and then to our Actions and Performances. A Graceless man can never make melody to the Lord in singing Psalms, nor please God in any other performance. None could learn that Song, (which is put for all Gods pure Christian-Worship) but the 144000. redeemed from the Earth, None can praise the Lord but the upright k.

2. Sing with the Spirit: with the Assistance, Guidance, and active Furtherance of the Holy Spirit of God. As the Corinthians were directed in their extraordinary Singing l, to sing with the Spirit, viz. with that extraordinary Gift of the Spirit which they then had; so we in our ordinary Singing answerably should sing with the ordinary assistance of the Spirit of God. For as in Praying, so in Singing (much of which is prayer) the Spirit helps our infirmities with groans that cannot be uttered m. 3. Sing with the Understanding: so as others may understand thee, much more that thou mayest understand thy self n. Philip's Question to the Eunuch; Understandest thou what thou readest o? is a good Question for every Christian when he sings; But do I understand what I sing? Do I understand the Nature of this Psalm, whether it be Doctrinal, Prophetical, Historical, Hortatory, &c.? Do I understand the matter of this Psalm, The Scope of it, &c? Do I understand how to extract my portion out of this Psalm, though writ upon other occasions? The Command is, Sing ye Praises with understanding p. To sing, pray, &c. without understanding, is to offer the Sacrifice of fooles q. And in the time of the Law, a blinde Sacrifice was abominable to God. To help thy Understanding

(1.) It must be with the heart, and not only with the voice. Singing and making melody to the Lord in your heart r. Singing must be Cordial as well as Oral: other wise it will be no better than an hypocritical lip-labour, an exercise of bodily exercise s. We must often consider, how God calls for the heart; My son give me thine heart t. And as God is a Spirit, so he will be worshipped in Spirit x. We must glorifie him both in our body and in our spirit, which are Gods y. And therefore, as we say with David; Awake, up my Glory z. ——— (that is, my tongue, as an eminent glory of man above other creatures, and a singular instrument of his glorifying God.) ——— I will sing and give praise even with with my glory a. So we must say with him; Bless the LORD, O my soul, and all that is within me bless his Holy Name, b &c. ——— O God mine heart is fixed, I will sing and give praise even with my glory c. Or with the blessed Virgin Mary; My Soul doth magnifie the LORD, and my Spirit rejoyceth in God my Saviour d. The Glosse rightly prefers the real heart-melody before the formal Voice-musick: saying;

(2.) It must be also with Grace in the Heart. So the Apostle directs; Singing with Grace in your hearts to the Lord e. Grace must not onely be in the heart of the acceptable Singer: but must also be acted and exercised in the heart in all acceptable singing. Grace in the heart is the best Key or Musical tune to any Scripture-Psalm, Hymne or Spiritual song: without which inward Melody, all Vocal Musick though never so sweet and Harmonious, is but meer discord, jarring, and empry howling in the ears of the Lord. The heart and affections should be filled with the Spirit f, should have a lively tincture of Grace, Heavenlinesse and Spiritualnesse upon them, should be as it were spiritually touched with the matter sung, as the Needle is touched with a Loadstone and moves according. Then the heart will sing with spiritual raptures, elevations, and raised meditations indeed. Therefore when thou goest to sing, say; Awake up my heart, awake up my grace, my faith, love, joy, zeal, &c. as David said, Awake up my glory, &c. I my self will awake right early g, when he was singing. The voice of active Grace in singing is most sweet, most melodious to the Heartsearching God.

Eph. 5. 19
Psal. 57. 8, 9.

5. Sing with prudent accommodation, or suiting of the Psalm, to the present condition of the Singers, to the present Ordinances, worship of God, or To the present works or Providences of God, so much as may be. As Solomon said of a word fitly spoken (Heb. spoken upon his wheeles,) It is like Apples of Gold in Pictures of Silver h: So may I say of psalmes fitly selected and accommodated to present purposes, they are set and sung upon their wheels, and are like Apples of Gold, &c. This accommodating, fitting, or suiting of Scripture-psalmes to several purposes, requires a good measure of skill and care herein. The Minister is to do it in Church-Assemblies: The Master of Family in his private Family: and every Christian for himself in private when he is disposed to sing Psalmes.

Prov. 25. 11.

(2.) Suit Psalmes to the present Ordinances and Worship of God in hand. As on Sabbath days, sing Psal. 92. 95. 84. 42. 103. After Administration of the Lords Supper, sing Psal. 22. 28. 103. 118. Or some psalm of the Great Hallelujah between Psal. 111. & 112. and Psal. 119. which as most probable Christ and his Apostles sung after the Institution of the Lord Supper as hereafter is shewed in the Explication of Ps. 111. 5. 4. Before or after a Sermon of the happiness of the godly, wretchednesse of the wicked, sing Ps. 1. 37. 112. After or before a funeral-Sermon, sing part of Psal. 2. 89. 90. 102. 49. Before or after the handling of Christs Kingly Office, sing Psal. 2. 45. 110. 96. 97. 98. 99. Of his Priestly Office, sing Psal. 110. Of his Prophetical Office, sing Psal. 40. &c.

(3.) Suit Psalmes to the present Works and Providences of God, publick or private. As in dayes of publick morality, &c. sing Psal. 93. In dayes of Famine, sing Psal. 33. 34. In time of War, sing Psal. 27. 46. Luthers Psalm in time of publick and eminent danger, Psal. 68. In time of victory over enemies, sing Exod. 15. Judg. 5. Psal. 18. Psal. 124. In time of publick desolations on the Church of God, &c. sing Psal. 44. 74. 79. 80. 83. When Gods publick Ordinances and pure Worship fail, &c. sing Psal. 42. 83. 84. In time of Gods observable judgements upon the ungodly, &c. sing Psal. 9. 105. 106. 136. In time of eminent mercies by Sea and Land, sing Psal. 107. 115. 116. 118.

6. Sing with holy and heavenly Meditation upon the Subject matters sung. One eminent use and advantage of singing is to dilate & draw out the voice the more leisurely and deliberately, that so the thoughts may have the more time to act and expatiate in Meditating on what is sung. Hence the Psalmist resolves to sing and to Meditate on God in singing, and that such his Meditation should be sweet i. Singing raiseth the heart, Meditation fixeth the heart: How sweet is it when both do meet together! But still be careful that thy Meditation in singing be, Devout, Speedy and Pertinent. 1. Devout, full of spiritualnesse and holinesse, tending to elevate the heart and affections, and to awaken and actuate all thy Graces. 2. Speedy, no longer than the singing of the sentence will bear: otherwise it may prove a distraction k. The thoughts are quick and speedy as lightning: they may profitably touch or take the heavenly matters as they go along, and away. 3. Pertinent to the matter sung, and not diverting from it. Distraction and a Dream comes by suffering the thoughts to wander. As the jarring string marres the outward Musick: so the impertinent thoughts spoil the inward melody l. When therefore thou singest, let thy thoughts and Meditations keep close to the matter: As, when thou singest Doctrines; Think how they teach thee and others the Truths of God: When thou Singest Prophecies; Think how exactly they have been fulfilled, or shall be accomplished hereafter. When thou singest Admonitions against any sin; Think how may this shame me and others for like offences? or, what a mercy is it to me, that I am kept from these iniquities? When thou singest Exhortations; think how dull am I and need quickening? When thou singest Histories, Think of Gods wonderful Patience, Providence, Goodnesse, Mercy, Justice, &c. of old; &c. When thou singest of the Faith, Integrity, Love, Zeal, Repentance, i Psal. 104. 33, 34.

Obedience, &c. of others; Think, O that I had such lively Graces! O that my Graces were so lively, active! When thou Singest of others sinnes; Think, did David thus lament his sinnes, how then should I lament mine? Did such persons so offend, whither should I have fallen, had not the Lord wonderfully perserved me? When thou Singest of Threats, Curses Judgments, &c.; Think, of thy mercy that hast escaped them, of others miseries that have felt them, of Sins mischief that deserves them, and of Gods Justice and Severity that pronounceth and inflicts them, &c. But still keep close to the Subject-matter in hand.

7. Sing with impartial Application of all things Applicable to thy self. So Sing, as in others Sinnes to reade, remember and aggravate thine own; In others Temptations learn how to manage thine own; In others Graces, see how to try and discover thine own; In others Duties, learn how to provoke and manage thine own; In others Mercies and Thankfulnesses; consider how to render for thine own, &c. Thus in all things have a special reflection upon thy self, as once the Apostle in another case said, Lord, is it I? Master, is it I m?

m Mat. 26. 22, 25.

8. Sing Psalmes to these right Ends for which Singing of Psalmes was intended and ordained. The Rightness of the End highly exalts and magnifies the Action. We must not sing Psalmes for Custom, Formality, Company, or outward Musick, delighting our external senses: but we must sing for higher and nobler ends and purposes. As,

(1.) To teach and instruct our selves and one another by Singing n. Some of the Psalmes are in the Hebrew entituled Maschil, i.e. An Instruction, or An Instructing-Psalme. Such is the Nature and use of it. There are in all xiiij. Maschil's o, all of them affording excellent Doctrines and Instructions. Again, many of the Psalmes are Doctrinal p, viz. That in whole or in great part Teach some choice Doctrines. Thus Psal. 1. teacheth, That the godly man is the happy man, the wicked man is the wretched man. Psal. 19. teacheth, That the Book of Nature doth very notably set forth Gods glory: but the Book of Scripture far transcends herein. Psal. 34. teacheth, the singular and most vigilant Providence which God hath over his people that fear him, especially in the time of their troubles and distresses. Psal. 91. teacheth, The impregnable safety and security of all them that trust in God, under the wing of the Almighty, &c. Thus other Doctrinal Psalmes have their particular Doctrines whereby we may in singing particularly teach our selves and others, by serious Meditating thereon. But besides, our singing of Psalmes together affords sundry General-Lessons unto us. Teaching us, 1. To endeavour after the like spiritual frame of heart in singing, as the holy Psalmists had in penning them. 2. What sweet Harmony and unity there should be among the Saints, singing all at once as with one heart and voice: as joyntly concerned and sharing in the same joyes, the same sorrows, the same priviledges, the same duties, &c. An admirable emblem of Heaven it self. 3. How sweetly and chearfully they should walk and act together. 4. To have comfortable and thankful frames of spirit in all variety and contrariety of conditions, as once Job had q, and Paul and Silas had, that could sing Psalms in the inner prison at midnight, in the stocks r. Things most deplorable, as well as most comfortable, being the matter of Scripture-Songs, &c, And it's not impossible that a good Christian may in some sence rejoyce in the Lord evermore s.

(2.) To admonish one another by singing t. As, many Psalmes are Doctrinal; So many others are Monitory; 1 Admonishing and warning against sin, in whole or in part, as Psal. 4. ver. 2, 3, 4, and 10. and 14. and 50. and 52. and 53. and 58. and 82. 2. Exhorting and inciting unto Vertue and Duty: As all such Psalmes as in whole or in part are Hortatory: as Psal. 2. ver. 10. &c. exhorting all Kings and Judges to submit to and serve, &c. the Lord Christ. Psal. 37. exhorting to confidence in God and patient waiting upon him, notwithstanding all various dispensations of the Lord towards the godly and the wicked. Psal. 92. and 95. exhorting how to praise and glorifie God on the Sabbath-day, how to Sing-Psalmes to him, worship him, and hearken to his voice in his Word. Psal. 96. 98, 99. 100. with many others, exhorting to praise God. Now when we sing such Monitory Psalms together (which are accordingly to be sung as occasion shall require,) we in a notable manner admonishe one another, both against Sin, to eschew it; and unto Duty, to pursue it: according to the matter of such Psalmes: Thus Julian the Apostate took himself to be admonished and reproved when the Christians in his hearing sung the 97. and 115. Psalmes, declaring the vanity of Idols, and confusion of such as worship them; as is recorded by Socrates, Theodoret and Nicephorus in their Eccles. Histories.

(3.) To the acting and exercising of the Spirit of God in us, in and by such spiritual melody. The Spirit of God, filling the heart of a Christian, delights to exert and put forth himself in singing of Psalms. But be ye filled with the Spirit, speaking to your selves in psalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, &c. u, Sing Psalmes therefore, thereby to expresse and exercise the Spirit of God in you: yea, to cherish and increase the Spirit of God in you. For, (as some think x,) The exercise of the Psalmes is a meanes of increasing in us the Spirit. If we be joyful they increase joy, Jam. 5. 13. Is any merry? let him sing Psalmes. If heavy, they refresh us. Paul and Silas sung a Psalme at midnight. As the Devils song is of great force to fill with wickedness, wantonnesse, &c. So Gods Song is of great force to make us be filled with his good Spirit. It commeth from the Spirit and maketh the Spirit take increase in us. The Tree of Grace taketh increase by the Fruit it beareth, So he.

(4.) To the exerting, exercising and improving of the graces of God in thee. The Apostle requires that we should sing with grace in our hearts, and make melody in our hearts to the Lord y. Then we make melody in our hearts to the Lord, when the graces of a sanctified heart, as Faith, Love, Repentance, Zeal, Sincerity, Joy, Thankfulnesse, Holy desires, &c. do act towards the Lord in singing of Psalmes. As, when we sing Psal. 31. 46. 118. and 125. and 37. and 91. &c. to actuate and quicken our Trust, Hope, and Affiance in God: when we sing Psal. 18. and 116. &c. to excite our Love to God: when we sing Psal. 6. and 25. and 38. and 51. &c. to renew our Repentance towards God: when we sing, Psal. 25. and 139. to improve our sincerity and integrity before God: when we sing Psal 27. part of it, and 42. and 63. and 84. &c. to expresse and inflame our fervent desires after God, and after communion with him in his Ordinances: when we sing Psal. 33. 34. 47. 95. 96 &c. to expresse our joy and thankfulnesse to God for his excellent perfections, and gracious dispensations.

(5.) To extoll and praise the Lord with joy and gladnesse. The LORD is the principal object to whom we are to direct our Psalme-worship; Singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord z.——Singing with grace in your heart unto the Lord a. Him we are to exalt, bless, magnifie, &c. and this with joy and gladnesse. In the Old Testament this was required, Ye shall rejoyce before the Lord, &c b. Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoyce with trembling c.—— Glory ye in his holy Name, Let the heart of them rejoyce that seek the LORD d. And the not serving of the LORD with joy and gladnesse of heart for the abundance of all things, is severely threatned e. In the New Testament we are also directed, To rejoyce evermore; To rejoyce in the Lord alwaies, and again to rejoyce f. Now how

(6.) To conquer, refresh, and cheer up the Soule. Singing of Psalmes hath a singular influence this way. Is any merry? Let him sing Psalmes. The matter of Psalmes sends sweetly to quicken the languishing of the heart, and to heighten the joy of a merry heart. Paul and Silas imprisoned and in the Stocks at midnight refreshed themselves with singing of Psalmes to God h. The primitive Christians in times of their great persecutions, were wont to cheer up and comfort one another in singing of Psalmes, as Tertullian i testifies. Resolutions of certain Cases of Conscience, or Practical Doubts about singing Scripture-Psalmes.

1. Case. Why may we not onely read Scripture-Psalmes, and so meditate therein, as we do with other Scriptures without singing? Or, wherein is there any ease or advantage of singing, above meer reading of them?

Resol. 1. The Scripture-psalmes are to be read, as well as any other parts of Scripture, upon occasions, for our spiritual benefit k: but they are also sometimes to be sung, as well as read, for our further spiritual benefit l. We must not make the Ordinances of God to thwart one another, or fight one with another: Reading must not be urged to decry Singing; nor Singing to decry Reading. Both are Gods Ordinances, and are of singular benefit in their place, for Meditation, &c.

2. Singing of Scripture-psalmes aright, as hath been directed, hath in some respects a preheminence above Reading. Singing hath chiefly a threefold use and advantage above the bare Reading of Scripture-Psalmes, viz. 1. It's a greater furtherance to holy Meditation upon the Subject-matter sung. Singing dilates, protracts, and drawes out the voice for a much longer time than bare Reading; and so gives more time and scope for Meditation, and for more deliberate fixing of our thoughts on the Subject-matter. This is a great advantage. David hints this, when having sung of the works and providences of God most sweetly, he adds towards the close, My Meditation of him shall be sweet, I will be glad in the LORD m. He sang for the furtherance of his Meditation upon God, and for the sweetning of it towards him. The more our Meditation dwells and fixeth on God, the more sweetnesse we finde therein. 2. It more pathetically moves, stirres, and raiseth up the affections towards God and the things sung. As Jeremiah lamenting, said, Mine eye affecteth mine heart n: So may we say, in Singing, Our voice affecteth our hearts. The acting of the outward Senses, have a strange and secret influence upon the inward Affections. As in prayer, we pray sometimes with the heart, as Moses did, but speak never a word, and our hearts are moved; again we pray both with heart and voice, and by our voice the heart is more moved and the affections more actuated: thus in singing of Psalmes, our affections are strangely raised, elevated, rapt, and as it were sometimes intranced through the vocal melo-

I believe that godly men (who are such indeed) have formerly seen more of God in any exercise than in this. To my thinking there is not a more lively resemblance of Heaven upon Earth, Than a company of godly Christians singing Psalmes together. M. T. Ford of singing of Psalmes. Serm. 49. print. Lond. 1653.

3. Case. But how can we sing Scripture-Psalmes, which were penned for other times, occasions, and persons, and neither are suitable to Our persons, affections or conditions, nor Our hearts to them? Some being Histories of things done under the Old Testament, as Psal. 78. 105. 106. 135. &c. Some being Prophetical Psalmes for particular Ends, whereof we have no concernment, as Psal. 22. Some being Predictions and Prophecies of things to come, as Psal. 2. 22. 110. &c. Some being peculiar to former times, and states of particular persons, or the Church of the Jewes, as Psal. 3. 39. 41. 44. 74. 79. 82. 124. 126. 129. &c. In which cases are not parallel. Some being interwoven with direful imprecations and curses, as Psal. 58. 59. 69. verse 22. &c. how can we sing such psalmes, when we are commanded, Blesse and curse not? Some are Admonitions and Reprehensions to particular persons, as in Dedic. Psal. 52. To Saul's Courtiers, as Psal. 58. &c. how are we concerned in such psalmes? Some psalmes have passages touching legal Sacrifices and Services which are abolished, as Psal. 51. 16. and 69. 31. &c. Hence some have feared they should sin like in singing. Some are utter Exhortations to singing, as Psal. 148. and 149. How can we sing them?

Resol. These Doubts and Scruples have troubled very many, and deterred them from singing psalmes. And therefore I shall resolve them, 1 More Generally; 2 More Particularly.

1. More Generally, touching the unsuitableness of Scripture-psalmes to your affections and conditions, &c. objected, I offer these considerations.

1. That, the unsuitableness of some psalmes to thine affections and conditions, &c. are no more a just cause to thee to forbear singing them, than the unsuitableness of them and of other Scriptures to thy condition, are a just cause to thee to forbear reading them. What though thine own sonne rise not up in rebellion against thee, as did Absalom against David when he penned Psal. 3. Or thou art not sick and under the deep sense of Gods wrath, as he was when he wrote Psal. 6. Or thou hast not an House to Dedicate, as David had when he wrote Psal. 30. Or thou art not put to that miserable shift of changing thy behaviour and feigning thy self mad, as he did when he changed his behaviour before Achish, &c. Psal. 34. Or thou hast not fallen into Murder and Adultery, as he had, whereupon he wrote Psal. 51. Or thou never wast in Babylon, or delivered thence as they were, in reference to whom Psal. 137. and 126. were penned, &c. What then? Do not these and like psalmes concern thee at all; Or canst not thou sing them, but thou must tell a lye in so doing? This is a great and grosse mistake. Upon the same grounds thou maist as justly forbear to read them or hear them read. Yea, to read other parts of Scripture, because they do not exactly represent thy condition. Then, thou must forbear to read the Books of the New Testament, because thou didst never see Christ in the Flesh, thou didst not converse with any of his Apostles, thou never wast at Rome, Corinth, &c. thou did'st never fight with beasts at Ephesus, or suffer harm from Alexander the Coppersmith, or leave thy Cloak at Troas, or wast banished into into the Isle Patmos, or there received Revelations from Christ. But who sees not the absurdity of such Conclusions?

2. That, in all the psalmes and all the Scriptures of Old and New Testament were written for the manifold good of thee, and of every Christian q, though every of q 2 Tim. 3. 16. 17. Rom. 15. 4. them do not lively delineate thy very state and condition: So all & every one of the psalms may be for manifold advantage sung by thee, though they do not exactly represent thine estate and affections. Thy work is to finde out the good which therein the Lord intends thee, & accordingly to extract it: As the diligent Bee sucks some sweetness out of every flower.

3. That, there's no psalme, nor passage in any psalme, but may be very profitably applied, accommodated and made use of by any good Christian that hath Wisdome and Grace, either to Instruct, Admonish, Exhort, Comfort, &c. especially in a way of Meditation. No psalme is unsuitable to him, that is not in heart unsuitable to that good Christian Frame & Duty that belongs to him. Some psalmes set forth the Attributes, Works and Providences of God. These minister to us occasion of admiring, adoring, loving, trusting, blessing, and praising God. Some, describe the Person, Offices, Humiliations and Exaltation of Christ: These assure us that Jesus Christ our Saviour was yesterday, to day, and will be ever the same r; On whom we are to place our Hope, Faith, Love and Affections; with whom if we uprightly suffer we shall be glorified together. Some, set forth the wayes and conditions of the Church and people of God, their Graces, Duties, Sufferings, Deliverances, &c: These lay befor us Matter of Instruction, Imitation, Compassion, Hopeful Expectation and Consolation. As when it's said; By the Rivers of Babylon there we sat down, yea, wept s, &c. We may thence learn; That Gods Church and people may fall into great calamities, yea, be carried captive into a strange land: That gracious hearts cannot chuse but be deeply affected when the Church is sadly afflicted, &c. When it's said: Lord, mine heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty, t &c. We should thence think; how detestable a proud heart and look is, and how acceptable an humble heart and look is to God: and how careful we should be every of us to eschew the one and pursue the other, &c. Some psalmes set forth the sinful wayes of wicked men, and Gods Judgments upon them: these may caution us against their wayes, occasion us to blesse the Lord that hath not left us unto like courses. Some psalmes to the life represent our hearts, affections, conditions, &c. as if they had been written purposely for us: these furnish with matter and words, whereby we may present our own condition before the Lord.

4. That, the psalmes thus improved, applyed, and sung, we shall not sing lyes or falshoods before the LORD, but out of Divine Truths we shall extract much spiritual advantage.

5. That, there's hardly any condition of Gods people, but it may be notably suited with some Scripture-Psalmes u.

u The Church in all ages consisted of a number of Believers, and their faith is alwayes one and the same; and this makes all that apprehend Gods promises, to be like to one another in Graces, Meditations, dispositions, affections, desires, spiritual wants in the feeling and use of afflictions, in course of life and Conversation, and in the performance of duties to God and man. And therefore the same Psalmes, Prayers, and Meditations are now as fit for the Church in these dayes, and are said and sung with the same use and profit to the Church in these dayes, as when they were made. Mr. Perkins in his Com. on Heb. 11. 9. 10. p. 76. Lond. 1651.

2. More particularly.

1. When we sing Doctrinal Psalmes, mark the Doctrinal Truth laid down, and sweetly meditate the reon. There's no Spiritual Doctrine but is profitable.

2. When we sing Prophetical Psalmes, think of the wonderful and infallible fore-knowledge of God that knows things to come as well as present, Of his infinite Sovereignty that ordains and appoints things future irresistibly, and what cause we have to believe his Prophecies and Promises, and undoubtedly depend thereon,

3. When we sing Historical Psalmes, let us admire Gods Providential dispensations, triumph at his goodnesse, mercy, patience, &c. towards his people, tremble at his judgments, severity, and terrible indignation against the wicked, and learn to love righteousnesse, and hate wickednesse more and more.

4. When we sing psalmes that seem peculiar to some mens conditions rather than our own, If they describe their Graces or Duties wherin we come short, let's quicken our selves by their example, as by Psal. 42. 63. 84. &c. If they set forth their sins from which we have been preserved, as in Psal. 51. then let's blesse the Lord that hath kept us, having the same root of sin in us, and let us tremble and fear least we fall so much the more. If they delineate their distresses and afflictions with their deliverances, then think what a mercy it is that we have not been implunged in the like calamities. What cause have we in prudence to reckon upon and prepare for such like troubles, and to carry our selves under them answerably.

5. When we sing Psalmes Admonitory, wherein sin is sharply reproved, or the Sinner direfully threatned and cursed, Then, consider the infinite purity and holiness of God that cannot abide sin, but even for it abhorrs the Sinner; Observe the Justice and Severity of God, and tremble to offend him; Lament and tremble at the woful condition of the wicked that lie under the dreadful Curses of God; Bless God that by Christ hath redeemed thee from all Curse and Condemnation: Beware of allowing thy self in any known sin, which brings down the Curse of God.

6. When we sing Psalmes that have Reflections upon Levitical Sacrifices, then in force, but now under the New Testament abolished. Then let us cast up an eye to Christ the Anti-type of all those Sacrifices, by whose blood we are purged, and by whose merit we are redeemed; And let us imitate their zeal in offering up unto God all sorts of spiritual sacrifices the more cheerfully in spirit and truth, according to the tenour of the New Testament.

7. When we sing Psalmes that are almost nothing else but Exhortions to the Praises of God. Let us wisely consider herein, 1. The difficulty and sublimity of this duty of praising God, and our own dulness thereunto. 2. The usefulness of these, and like quickning Exhortations, to the furthering of us unto the duty: Hence David x begins and ends sundry psalms with such Exhortations. 3. The acceptableness of Praises unto God y, he counts it a singular glorifying of him. 4. This pathetical Exhorting unto the praising, is a singular elegant way of Praising him. As if the Psalmist had said; The Name of our God is above all blessing and praise. I am not able to reach it. O come all ye Angels, all ye Saints, all ye sons of men, all ye creatures in Heaven and Earth, come, come and help me to make his praise glorious. O magnifie ye the LORD with me, and let us exalt his Name together z.

2. As for 1 Cor. 14. This Case concerns not Psalm-singing in Churches [illegible] for his personal Edifying. That granted on all hands to be lawful. From that of Paul's

2. The singing of a particular person in the Church of Corinth, (the gift being extraordinary, by an extraordinary spirit) in a strange tongue, not known by the rest, nor by him, nor any others, being unable to understand him without an Interpretation. And therefore this extraordinary practice ought not, cannot be drawn into a Rule or Pattern for an ordinary course of singing.

e 1 Cor. 14. 15, 16, 26, 27.

3. Notwithstanding any thing here objected, the joynt singing of the whole Congregation together is not at all debilitated, but remains still a duty. For,

1. Though singing Psalms be acknowledged in some sense an act of Prophecy, yet doth it not thence follow that we must sing but by one, and not together. It is not an Act of Prophecy, strictly and properly taken, but denotes Teaching of one in Office, expounding and applying Scripture for edification: they that so prophesie must do it (as Paul directs) one by one f. But as an Act of Prophecie largely taken, as Prayer may be reduced to Prophecie, so it was said of Abraham; He is a Prophet, and he shall pray for thee g. Or as Moses and Jeshuah, &c. are said to prophecie with harps, being Singers; so that phrase praying or prophecying some understand praying or singing h. And in this large sence the whole Congregation may prophecie together, that is, sing together: and the Apostle to the Corinthians directs nothing to the contrary. 2. Though the whole Church singing together, be acknowledged to be Teachers, what inconvenience is there in so acknowledging? For, the Apostle directs us to teach the Psalmes i. And there's a twofold teaching, Mere proper, and ex officio, by Office; so the Minister teacheth in preaching the Word, and in appointing the Psalm. Mere communi and ex charitate, of charity, so every member may teach one another, and in a sort, doth it in singing of Psalms. 3. The joynt-singing of the whole Congregation together orderly and regularly, is so far from making any confusion in the Church, that rather it excellently demonstrates the unisone, Harmony, Consent and Unity of the Church in the Worship of God. As the Regular striking of many strings of a musical Instrument at once makes the sweeter musick; or as the joynt-praises of the Angels at Christs birth made the more harmonious and delicious melody l. 4. We are not without both Scripture-Commands, and Scripture-Examples for joynt-singing of Scripture-psalms, &c. by the whole Congregation. Scripture-Commands are evident both to Ephesian and Colossian Churches m. Scripture-Examples are no less evident; For who can doubt but these two Churches followed the Apostles Commands and Directions? And Christ with his Apostles sung an Hymne to God after the first Institution of the Lords Supper n. Not to insist upon Paul's and Silas's joynt-singing-praises to God in prison o.

2. That, the publique Ordinances and Duties of Religion are of two sorts, viz. 1 Some, more common and general, belonging to all sorts of men by vertue of Gods moral Commandement, and light of Nature. And these are called duties of Gods Natural worship, which every man from the right consideration of Gods Nature is bound to perform to him, as his Creator and Benefactor. As, hearing Gods Word and Will, in any sort revealed to him See Mar. 16. 15. Mat. 28. 18. In Antioch in Pisidia the whole City almost (whereof the greatest part were Pagans) came together to hear, Act. 13, 44. Pagans often heard the Apostles and others preach. Prayer, for what mercies are wanting; and Praises for what mercies are enjoyed, are parts of Gods Natural Worship, as I have formerly h shewed, belonging to all, Godly and Wicked, Christians and Pagans. These are the Duties of all: though only true Believers can perform them as they ought. All the Earth, and the Kingdoms of the Earth are called upon to sing Praises to the Lord, Psal. 96. 1. and 100. 1, 2. and 68. 32. And as there are peculiar grounds to the people of God in Christ why they should praise him, Eph. 1. 3. &c. 2 Cor. 1. 3, 4, 5. &c. So there are common grounds why all sorts are to blesse & praise him, as Creation, Providence, &c. Gods greatness, &c. Psal. 100, 1, 2, 3. and 145. 6, 10. and 107. 6. 10 32. and 95. 1, 2, 3. and 150. 2. to 6. Praise (saith one) is the Natural Duty of all: The proper Duty of Saints: The perfect Act of Angels —— And though (in his judgment) singing be a part of instituted Worship, yet it is onely an addition of order, and a regulation of a Natural Duty. And as there is no man but is bound to pray for mercies, so none are exempted from praising God for mercies, though they sing in a lower Tune than Saints. So he. 2. Some Ordinances and Duties of Religion are more proper and peculiar to the Church and People of God, As the Administration of the New Covenant-Tokens, and Censures. See Matth. 28. 18, 19, Act. 2. 38, 39, 40, 41, &c. and 8. 36, 37, 38. with 1 Cor. 5. 11, 12, 13. Now therefore, seeing singing of Scripture-Psalmes is one of those Common Duties which belongs both to good and bad, The good have no just cause to be offended that the bad do sing with them, for its their Duty to sing: and they should demean themselves very Atheistically should they not sing to God. And shall a good man desert his Duty of singing, because a bad man performes his Duty in singing with him? God forbid. Then they cannot hear together, nor pray together. And that would be lamentable.

h In Sect. VIII. Confirm. of Thes. I. partic. 1.

i Mr. C. Sydenham of singing Psalmes. ch. 7. Lond 1654.

3. That, though a carnal man, and hypocrite, or prophane person by his singing of Psalmes, may, through his ill management thereof, pollute that Ordinance to himself so farre, that God may abhor both him and his spiritual Sacrifices, and though his principles and practice, heart and life, are so contradictory to many things which he sings, that he sings lyes and falshoods, and so provokes God by his Hypocrisie: must the Ordinance of singing be consequently polluted to the sincere Christian that sings with him, so that he must forbear singing to avoid fellowship with him in his sin? No such matter. This is a meer non-consequence. In this Case I say as Augustine said to Parmenian the Donatist. Parmenian asks, How canst thou remain incorrupt, if thou art sociated with the corrupt? Augustine answers, It is so, if a man commits evil with them, or favours them that do commit it; but if he do neither, he is no way sociated; but specially if he adde a third, that he reprove what is ill done, &c k. ——— we say, that he who doth not evil, nor consents to him that doth it, and reproves the doer, he converseth firm and perfect among the unrighteous, as the Corn among the Chaff l. For, as one m hath well observed, It's not the local contact or conjunction, but the moral conjunction in heart, will, and conscience, that defiles. What is impure to them that are defiled, is not impure to them that are pure, Tit. 1. 15. 16. And therefore I must not out-runne or desert my Duty of singing Psalmes, Praying, &c. because another defiles it: but rather look better to my self that I defile it not, and reprove him one way or other for defiling it. Must I leap out of Noah's Ark, because Cham is there? Must I not offer my Gift, because another comes disorderly to offer his, before he be reconciled to his Brother? Must not I come into the Marriage-Supper, because there's one there without a Wedding Garment? This is no good Divinity; this were to rectifie one disorder by another.

k Quomodo, inquit, incorruptus poteris permanere corruptis? Tom. 7. l Nos dicimus quod qui non facit malum, nec faciendi consentit, & facientem arguit, firmus atque integer inter iniquos, tanquam frumentum inter paleas, conversatur. Aug. ib. m Mr. *R. si foelatur, quis malus i. e. si mali aliquid cum eis committit aut committentibus favet, &c. Aug. contr. Epist. Parm. l. 2. c. 21.

4. That, Finally, Its some Glory to God and Renown to Christian Religion, when even prophane and ungodly men afford an ourward conformity and compliance thereunto, though it is their sin and misery that they cannot sing nor perform other Religious Duties as they ought. For, thus; The Mater of their Duty is performed which God requires; They are taught, admonished, and convinced by the Duties they do; and the Majesty of God and of his true Religion is advanced even among the Enemies of both. And therefore if bad men by singing Scripture-Psalmes honour God a little: Let not good men dishonour him by forbearing this Duty, but rather endeavour to honour him much by performing it aright.

Thus of the second Thesis.

Thesis III.

Christians are so to sing Scripture-Psalmes, Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, as therein to speak one to another to mutual profit and Edification. Here consider,

1. That Christians ought to sing Scripture-Psalmes to mutual profit and Edification, is evident; n Eph. 5. 19.

1. By the Apostles Directions. n Speaking to your selves in Psalmes, &c. To what end are they to speak thus to themselves in Psalmes, but in order to their mutual profit and edification thereby? And elsewhere the Apostle expounds his meaning, saying, Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdome, teaching and admonishing one another in Psalmes, and Hymnes, and Spiritual Songs, &c o. Mutual teaching and admonition are much to mutual profit and edification. Another adds; ——— Is any merry? Let him sing Psalmes p. As if he had said; This is the way rightly to season, regulate, and order his mirth, by singing Psalmes to spirituallize it. And this is the way to cherish and encrease his mirth being so spirituallized. Thus Paul and Silas in prison cheared up each other by singing-praises to God q.

o Col. 3. 16

p Jam. 5. 13

q Acts, 16. 25.

2. By the Lords general Scope, Intent, and End in all affairs of Religion, which is Edification and profit. The General Rule is; Let all things be done to Edifying r. For, consider. r 1 Cor. 14 26.

All the New Testament-Officers, both extraordinary and ordinary, are given by Christ for the edifying of his Mystical Body, Ephes. 4. 8, 11, 12, 13, &c.

All the New Testament-Ordinances are intended for the Churches edifying. As Preaching, Praying, Singing of Psalmes, Sacraments, Censures, &c. 1 Cor. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 26. Col. 2. 11, 12. 13. Gal.

Col. 3. 17. 1 Cor. 11. 23, 24, 25, &c. and 14. 16, 17. 1 Cor. 5.

All Spiritual gifts and endowments given to any now under the New Testament, are bestowed for the profiting and edifying of others. The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. 1 Cor. 12. 7.

All the Members in the Body of Christ are set there, for the mutual good and benefit of one another, and for the well-fare of the whole Body. 1 Cor. 12. 14. to 28.

All things are for profit and edifying: and so must singing of Psalmes be in the Church of God.

II. How Christians ought to sing Scripture-Psalmes, &c. to mutual profit and edification?

Answ. This hath been at large declared already in the former Direction for due singing of Scripture-Psalmes &c.

III. Inference.

1. Then, The singing of Scripture-Psalmes, is rightly to be looked upon and used by Christians as a profitable and edifying Ordinance. Profitable, for Meditation, Psal. 104. 33. 34. For Teaching, For Admonition, Col. 3. 16. Eph. 5. 19. For Exerting and Exercising of the Spirit and his Graces in us, Eph. 5. 18, 19. Col. 3. 16. For inward Refreshment and Consolation, Jam. 5. 13. Act. 16. 25.

2. Then, To neglect, despise, or oppose the singing of Scripture-Psalmes, &c. is to neglect, despise, and oppose one of Christs profitable and edifying Ordinances. Nor is there one Scripture-Psalme, &c. in Old or New Testament, but is many wayes very good and precious to the use of edifying, as are other Scriptures t. What a shame then is it to many in our times that they have cast off this so profitable a Duty of Singing Psalmes? It (saith one) the misery of the present age, that those Ordinances that men have practised, albeit without the knowledge of the true grounds thereof, or without the life and sence of the comfort of them, or without the sincere love of them, they have therefore afterwards in the hour and power of Temptation cast them aside, and so forsaken the holy Institutions of God, to embrace and please themselves in their own imagination u. Another also tell us; I observe, that few thrive well, after they once neglect or scruple singing of Psalmes. They begin at this commonly, but seldom end here: but proceed from evil to worse, till they come at last to live above Ordinances and Duties (as they call it) but indeed live without them, and so live like beasts in the shape of men. Let others think as they please, I never knew Christians thrive better in grace and knowledge, than when repeating Sermons, singing of Psalmes, and such like exercises were more in fashion than they have been of late, x &c.

3. Then, to sing Scripture-Psalmes, &c. in such sort and manner, as tends not, conduceth not to the spiritual profit and edification of the Church of God, is to loose and pervert one main End and Scope of this Ordinance of singing of Psalmes. Now this is done by the Papists divers wayes. As, 1. By their singing Psalmes in Latin, which many of the Congregation understand not. Paul gives better Directions, To sing to others understanding and edifying y. 2. By their singing of Psalmes with such Descants, Divisions, Repetitions, Battologies, Strains of Voices, and affectation of outward melody, That few or none besides themselves that are of the Choire can tell what they sing, so as to joyn with them to any spiritual profit, their singing so extreamly degenerating into a meer formal, sensual Melody, and (as Jerome calls it) Theatrical Musick z.

Chap. IV.

The Lord ... Heart ... Song.

I. Why Christians in singing Psalmes should be most carefull to make melody in their heart to the Lord?

1. Because this is the Melody which the Lord by his Apostle principally requires and calls for, Saying, ——— singing and making melody in your heart unto the Lord a. And again, ——— singing with grace in your heart unto the Lord b. Now what the Lord chiefly calls for, his People should chiefly take care for.

a Eph. 5. 19
b Col. 3 16.

2. Because, Heart-melody is the best melody. Voice-melody is sweet to the bodily ear of man: but Heart-melody is sweet to the spiritual ear of God. And that's best melody, which is most melodious to God before whom all Voice-melody without the Heart-melody, is no better than meer lip-labour, bodily exercise, and hypocrisie; not onely unprofitable but abominable c. As farre as the Heart and Soul excels the Body, so farre doth Heart-melody transcend Voice-melody. And if he comes not to serve the Lord both with Body and Soul, which are his d; but especially with the heart which is best and most excellent.

c Col. 2. 5. 8, 9. 1 Tim. 4. 8.
d 1 Cor. 6. 20.

3. Because, Heart-melody is most spiritual, and consequently most suitable and acceptable to the Nature of God, who is a Spirit, and delights to be worshipped in Spirit and in Truth e. Voice-musick may most suit and delight man, that's very corporeal; but Heart-musick most suits and delights God, that's wholly spiritual.

e Joh. 4. 24

4. Because, The Lord and his Glory is the principal Object and End, which Christians ought to propound to themselves in singing Psalmes and all other Duties f: and therefore both singing and all other Duties should be so managed, as may best attain this end. And doubtlesse the Hearts sincere concurrence with the Voice in singing, tends most to the glorifying of the Lord in that Duty.

f 1 Cor. 10. 31.

II. How Christians should make Melody in their heart unto the Lord in singing Scripture-Psalmes, &c.

That Christians may make melody in their Heart to the LORD in singing Psalmes, these things especially are requisite: viz.

1. An holy frame and constitution of Heart and Soul. The musical Instrument must be first well framed and fashioned before it will afford any melodious sound to man: So the Heart must be new framed and moulded by the renewing and regenerating Spirit, e're it can make any melody to God. The Heart must be new, e're it can sing the Lords New Song. We must become an Holy Priesthood, e're we can offer up this and other Spiritual Sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ g: An holy Nation, a peculiar people, e're we can shew forth the praises of him that hath called us h, &c. We must be first Gods workmanship in Christ, created to good works, e're we can perform them and walk in them i, as in singing of Psalmes, or any other. A Carnal man can never make spiritual Melody to the Lord.

g 1 Pet. 2. 5.
h 1 Pet. 2. 9.
i Eph. 2. 10.

2. An holy and heavenly tuning of the Heart for this spiritual Melody. It's not enough that the Instrument be well framed, but it must be also well strung and tuned for outward musick: So its not enough the heart be put into an holy frame and constitution by habitual Grace, but there must be also an holy and spiritual tune put upon the heart by the gracious dispodisposition and fixed preparedness of the heart to this inward Melody. A present disposition and preparedness of Grace gives the best tune into the heart. O God (saith David) mine heart is fixed (Heb. firmly prepared), I will sing and give praise, even with my Glory k, &c. But first his heart is fixed, and put in tune, then he sings and makes melody to the Lord. Thine heart is as a choice Instrument of many strings. Every Faculty of the Soul, as Mind, Conscience, Memory, Will; every affection of the heart, both in the concupiscible and irascible part, as Desire, Love, Joy, &c. Fear, Hatred, Grief, &c. are as so many strings; and the ready disposition or preparedness of Grace in every of them to sing praises, &c. to the Lord, are as the heavenly tune whereunto they are to be set. Screw them up all to an heavenly tuneableness: let there be no jarre nor discord in any of these strings, let them all be unisone and harmonious, all pointed towards the Lord, The mind to know him, the will to chuse him, &c. then the spiritual melody will be very sweet.

k Psal. 108. 1,2,3, &c.

3. An actual using and exercising of thine inward heart, faculties, affections, and graces, as well as the outward Voice, in singing Psalms, &c. unto the Lord. The musical Instrument, though never so well made, strung or tuned, yet affords no musick till you actually use and touch it, according to the Art and Rules of Musick: So the heart, though wrought unto an holy constitution, and tuned by a gracious disposition, yet yeilds no spiritual Melody to the Lord, till all be actually used and exercised in singing psalmes to God, according to the Rules of the Spirit. ——— singing with grace in your heart unto the Lord l. Therefore in singing, still engage thine heart, exercise thy faculties and affections, exert and put forth thy graces: and then thou shalt present an whole Consort of grateful melody unto the Lord.

l Col. 3. 16.

III. Inferences.

1. Then, How farre are they from making sweet and acceptable Melody to the Lord in singing of psalms, who regard onely or principally the vocal Melody, neglecting utterly the cordial Melody! What cares the Lord for empty sounds? they are odious to him. Take away from me (said he to Hypocrites) the noyse of thy Songs, for I will not hear the Melody of thy Viols m. And of such Christ said; Ye Hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying, This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is farre from me. But in vain do they worship me, &c n. Many are ensnared with the outward Musick so farre, as to neglect the inward Heart-melody. Beware of this temptation.

m Amos 5. 23

n Math. 15. 7, 8, 9.

2. Then, How Superstitious and Idolatrous are the Papists, that sing their Psalmes, Hymnes and Songs to the Virgin Mary, S. Peter, S. Paul, and other Saints! The Scripture teacheth us to invocate, pray, and sing psalms only unto the Lord o, and to perform all our religious worship to him only, Math. 4. 10. Rev. 22. 8, 9.

o Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16.

3. Then, Let all good Christians look chiefly to the Lord, and to their hearts, to make Melody in their hearts unto the Lord, in all their singing of Scripture-Psalmes. Let your hearts be religiously framed, tuned, and acted, together with all your faculties, affections and graces, when you go about this heavenly exercise. If you sing of God, let your hearts admire and adore him: if of Christ, let your hearts be enflamed with desire and love after him: if of Sin, let your hearts hate and abhor it: if of Judgment, let your hearts fear and tremble at them: if of Mercies, let your hearts rejoyce and blesse God for them: if of things below, let your hearts behold the invisible things of God in the things that are visible: if of things above in Heaven, let your hearts be raised Heaven-wards, earnestly panting and longing to be there with Christ, which is farre best of all p.

Sect. III. The Order, and Excellency of this Pſalme.

[1] This Pſalm is ranked Firſt in Order, both in the Original Hebrew, and in the beſt approved Verſions or Tranſlations both Ancient and Modern [g]. This next enſuing Pſalm alſo being in the New Teſtament, ſtiled, The ſecond pſalm, Acts 13. 33. implies this Pſalm to be the Firſt: there being no pretence for the priority of any other beſides this. And therefore thoſe Ancient Writers, both Jewiſh Rabbins and others, who have accounted this and the next pſalm to be but one pſalm, and that the firſt pſalm [h], have been much miſtaken; yea, the Subject-matter of theſe two Pſalmes is ſo greatly different, that thereby they are apparently diſtinguiſhed. Auguſtine had rather call it, One pſalm, than the firſt pſalm; becauſe it brings in the proper voice of God ſpeaking: And therefore it hath no Title, whereby it ſhould be called, The Firſt; leſt it ſhould be judged better by order of number, and not by Authority [i]. But this ſeems to be ſaid by him more wittily, than ſolidly. This it (as one is much moved) a moſt excellent Pſalm, and therefore (ſaith D. Kimchi) put in the firſt place. Doubtleſſe this choice Pſalm is firſt prefixed to all the Reſt, as a proper Preface or Entrance unto this whole Book of pſalmes: For in this firſt Pſalm, Man's chief End, True Happineſs, and the right way to this End, True Godlineſſe, are clearly Propounded. As in all the reſt of the Pſalmes they are ſweetly and fully expounded. The whole Book being an heavenly Map of true Piety and true Felicity.

Sect. IV. The Kind, Penman, Occaſion and Scope of this Pſalm.

This firſt Pſalm, if conſidered according to the Subject-matter of it, is purely Didaſcalical or Doctrinal; A teaching Pſalm throughout; as many others, in whole or in part, are [l]. And this Pſalm chiefly teacheth this Doctrine, That Mans true happineſs is onely to be found in the way and courſe of true Religion and Godlineſs. If this Pſalm be conſidered, as to the outward Form or Manner of Penning it, it is ἀνεπίγραφος, An untituled Pſalm: Having no Title at all prefixed to it in the Hebrew-Original. And with this, there are in this precious Book XXV. Pſalmes in all, that have no Hebrew-Titles or Inſcriptions prefixed to them viz. Pſal. 1. 2. 10. 33. 43. 71. 91. 94. 95. 96, 97. 99. 104. 105. 107. 114. 115. 116. 117. 118. 119. 136. 137. and 147. The Penman or Amanuenſis of the Holy-Ghoſt who wrote this Pſalm, whether David [m], or Ezra after the Captivity, or ſome other holy man of God, cannot certainly be evidenced by this or by any other part of Holy Scripture. The Authority of it, and of the whole Scripture, is from the Divine inſpiration, 2 Tim. 3. 16. 17. 2 Pet. 1. 21. The Occaſion of writing this Pſalm in particular, is as uncertain as the Penman. The Scope or Intent of the Holy Ghoſt in this Pſalme is, To teach us, the wonderful happineſs of the truly Godly, but the oppoſite unhappineſſe of the wicked. And the intent of him that ranked this Pſalm firſt in Order,

In digesting the Psalmes into one Volume, (whether it was Ezra after the Jews return from Captivity, as some n think, or some other) is supposed to be this; That this Psalm, as a fit Preface to all the rest of the Psalms, might incite all the godly unto constant delight and Meditation in the Law and Word of God o.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

This Psalm most elegantly describes unto us, two thing, viz.

I. The extreme different condition of the godly and the wicked: The Happiness of those: the unhappiness of these.

1. The Happinesse of the Godly is, 1 Generally propounded: And 2 Particularly Expounded or illustrated. I. Generally propounded, ver. 1, 2. And here the truly godly man is also described, both Negatively and Affirmatively. 1. Negatively, by his entire renouncing of all evil. This is laid down in a threefold Rhetorical Climax, or elegant climbing form of speech, rising higher and higher. viz. 1 Of Actions; This blessed godly man walks not, stands not, sits not p. 2 Of things; In the Counsel, In the Way, In the Seat. 3. Of Persons; viz. Of the Wicked, Of Sinners q, Of Scorners. ver. 1. 2. Affirmatively and Positively, by his cordial and constant pursuing of the contrary good. Where note two things; 1 His hearty affection to the word of God; His delights in the Law of the LORD. 2 His constant exercise in the Word of God; He meditates in his Law day and night r, ver. 2. II. Particularly illustrated by the similitude of a Tree, 1. Richly planted: 2. Seasonably fruitful: 3. Constantly flourishing. Like which the godly still prospereth in all his wayes, ver. 3.

p Considerandus est ordo verborum, abiit, stetit, sedit. Abiit ille, cum recessit a Deo. Stetit cum delectatus est peccato. Sedit, cum in sua superbia confirmatur, redire non potuit. Aug. Enar. in Psal. 1. Tom. 8.

q Plus est via, quam Consilium; plus item stare, quam ambulare; plus etiam peccatores, quam impii seu improbi. Per peccatores enim designat perfrictæ frontis homines, quos nullius jam sceleris pudet, & hoc ipsum delectat peccare, etiam si causa non sit. Quos idcirco peccatores nominat, & quidem Hebraicæ voce חטאים Chataim, quæ nomen substantivum est, quo obfirmatus peccandi habitus notatur. Sic Sodomitæ Gen. 13. 13. & Amalekitæ, 1 Sam. 15. 18. appellantur. Hunc vocem aliquid gravios significare quam præcedentem, putat Ezra ad hunc locum: eamque esse priscorum sententiam affirmat. Sim. de Muis Com. in Psal. 1. 1.

r ——Aut sine intermissione intelligendum est: aut Die, in lætitia; Nocte, in tribulationibus. Aug. Ennarr at. in Psal. 1, Tom. 8.

2. The contrary unhappiness of the wicked is delineate, 1. By their opposite resemblance to Rootlesse, Fruidesse, Liveleſse chaffe-dust, scattered away with the wind, ver. 4. 2. By their utter seclusion, both 1 From the priviledge of standing up in judgement. And 2 From holy and happy fellowship with the righteous, Heb. 12. 22, 23. ver. 5.

II. The original cause of this their so far different state: viz. The LORD's far different respect and carriage towards the righteous and the wicked. 1. He knoweth the way of the righteous: therefore its implied it shalt every way be happy and prosperous. 2. He knoweth not (as is consequently implied) the way of the wicked: and therefore (as is expressed) The way of the wicked shall perish, ver. 6. By [Way] understand metaphorically, the Manners, Disposition, Course of Life, Studies, Actions, &c. of godly or wicked. By the LORD's [Knowing] &c. understand, not his knowledge of simple intelligence, intuition, &c. whereby he knowes all things good and bad, Act. 15. 18. Rev. 2. 2. 3. 9. 13 19. and 3. 15, 16. Heb. 4. 12, 13. but his knowledge of predestination and Approbation s, whereby he approves, loves, regards, defends, helps, promotes, prospers, rewards, &c. the way of the righteous, Gen. 18. 19. John 10. 14. But contrariwise knowes not the wicked and their works, Mat. 17. 23. and 25. 12.

Sect. III. The Order, Kind, Penman and occasion of this Psalm.

He is a bold man (said Hierome) that after Peter would interpret this Psalm, or think of this Psalm any other thing then Peter hath spoken in the Acts of the Apo-

Apostles m. Taking these our aime for the right compounding of this Psalme, from the New Testament light, wherein this Psalme is sundry times alleaged, we may clearly and solidly judge as followeth, viz.

As to the Order of it, That this is the second Psalme ——— As it is also written in the second Psalme, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Act. 13. 33. And therefore that Opinion of the Hebrewes mentioned by Hierome, That this and the former make up but both one Psalme, because As the former begins, so this Psalme ends with Hallelujah; is an unfound and erroneous Opinion, as being expresly repugnant to the Letter of the New Testament. Nor is there any validity at all in the Reason brought for it.

m Psal. 2. 1. Tom. 8. Vid. andr. Rivet. Com. in Psalm. Propert. in Argum. & Parall. Ps. 2. n Iste Psalmus in beatitudinem terminatur, unde superior incipit: & ideo apud Hebræos pro uno habentur. Hier. in Com. ad Psal. 2. 12. Tom. 3.

As to the Kind or Sort of it, That (if we look at the Subject-matter of it) it is mixt, being Prophetical and Doctrinal, but chiefly Prophetical. Under the Type of David and his Kingdome, Prophecying of Christ and his Kingdome. The letter of it, at least in part, intends David and his temporal Kingdom, as the Type verse 6, 7, 8, &c. compared with Psal. 89. 20. to 29. But the mistery, or mystical sense of it is Jesus Christ our Messiah the true David Hos. 3. 5. Ezek. 34. 23, 24. and 37. 24. and his spiritual Kingdom in his Church, and over all for his Church, Luk. 1. 32, 33. Eph. 1. 22, 23. as the Antitype. As appears by the New Testament's often applying of this Psalme to Christ, Act. 4. 24, 25, 26, 27, 28. and 13. 32, 33. Heb. 1. 5. and 5. 5. Rev. 2. 26, 27. This Psalme therefore in the Nature of it Is principally Prophetical: And yet it cannot be denyed to be in part, Doctrinal, touching Christs Kingdome; Consolatory to the Church and Members of Christ: and Hortatory to the Kings and Judges of the Earth, verse 10, &c. So that it is of a mixt Nature. That (if we respect the outward Form of it) it is, as the First, An untitled Psalme o. A Psalme without any Inscription prefixed in the Hebrew. If we look at the end of it, it is Consolatory.

See on Ps. Sect. 4.

As to the Penman by whom the Holy Ghost committed it to writing, That it was David. God was the principal Author, David the instrumental p ——Lord, thou art God, ——Who by the mouth of thy Servant David hast said, Why did the Heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things? The Kings of the Earth stood up, &c. Act. 4. 24, 25, 26, &c.

As to the Occasion of Davids penning it, we have no particular certain discovery thereof. Though it may probably be conjectured, that David (out the troubles and opposition he had in his Kingdom, and his settlement at last upon the Throne in despite of all, so that his Dominion reached not only to Jewes, but to forreign people, took occasion to prophesie (by the Guidance of Gods Spirit) of Christs Kingdom, the opposition against it, and the establishment and propagation of it, even unto the Gentiles &c. so that here the Calling of the Gentiles is foretold.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalme, Is; Prophetically to describe and magnifie the spiritual Kingdom of JESUS CHRIST the Messiah, under the Type of Davids, As firmely and immoveably established by God, both in and over his Church, and over the Gentiles and the utmost ends of the Earth, for and to his Church, in despight of all Christs enemies Jewes or Gentiles, and their utmost Oppositions. And to advertise Kings and Judges, much more all inferiour persons, to submit themselves to him and his Regal Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principall parts.

The Holy Ghost in David in this Psalme, 1. Prophecieth, And 2. Exhorteth or Admonisheth.

I. Prophecieth, viz. 1. Relateth, Sets the propheticall declaration and determin, under the typical Administration of David and his Kingdom.

1. The prosecuting rage and folly of Gentiles and Jewes, Kings and Rulers against the Lord, his Christ and his Kingdom. Where note, 1. The Nature, Variety, and Multitude of his enemies; 1 Gentiles, 2 People, viz. Jewes, 3 Kings, 4 Rulers. 2. The Acts of hostility and persecuting enmity, properly and peculiarly exercised by these enemies severally; 1 Gentiles, rage, 2 People, imagine, or conspire, 3 Kings stand up, 4 Rulers, take counsel together. 3. The Adjunct Causelessnesse and Frustlessnesse of all these Acts and Attempts, laid down elegantly in way of interrogation; Why? A vain thing? 4. The Object of all this their persecuting enmity and malice; 1. The LORD. 2 His Annointed, David, in the Type: Christ in the Truth, vers. 1, 2. 5. The Design chiefly intended by these enemies in all these their Actings; To shake off the Rule, Authority, Power, and Soveraign Government, which the LORD and his Christ had over them; and to free themselves from all service, obedience, and subjection to them; bands and cords being signes of subjection, &c. Jer. 27. 2, 6, 7. Job 39. 15. Ezek. 4. 8. Hos. 11. 4. ver. 3.

2. The LORDs deportment against all these enemies and their attempts and in his Appearing vigorously for his Annoynted. Here the LORD is most elegantly personated and represented, 1. As securely laughing at their folly, and deriding them: Himself sitting in Heaven, out of their reach, observing all their wayes, being in a readinesse to crush them, and avenge himself and his Christ of them at his pleasure, ver. 4. 2. As severely threatning them; To speak to them in his wrath; and To fright them in his Heat, or hot anger, ver. 5. 3. As utterly disappointing them: By Annointing his King (Typically, David: Antitypically, Christ,) upon his Holy Hill of Sion. (A figure p of the Church of God): And this, notwithstanding all their forementioned Rage, Plots, Endeavours, and Machinations to the contrary ver. 6. 4. As firmely Approving this his King by inviolable Decree. Here, David, or Christ, is brought in as Declaring this firme Decree of the LORD: wherein are expressed two things, viz. First, A Description of the person designed and chosen to possesse and govern this Kingdom; Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Which principally agrees to Christ, he being Gods Sonne naturally and peculiarly, Heb. 1. 5. And he being singularly the begotten of God, vers. 7. By which words the Apostle prove Christs Resurrection from the dead, declaring him to be the Son of God with power, Act. 13. 32, 33 Rom. 1. 4. And by which he also affirms Christs Priest-hood, Heb. 5. 5. Secondly, a Description of the Kingdom given to David, in the Type; to Christ, in the Truth. This Kingdom is set forth, 1 Partly, by the intermediate cause going before the possession of this Kingdom, viz. His Intercession, Ask of me. 2 Partly, by the ampliitude of his Kingdom granted to him: even over Heathen and utmost parts of the earth. 3 Partly, by the quality of this Kingdome, its to be his inheritance and eternal possession, ver. 8. 4 Partly, by the manner of his Rule, viz. he will rule the Rebellious severely, with the Rod of Iron, &c. This is illustrated by an elegant similitude. He will consequently rule the obsequious graciously, clemently, &c. This is synechdochically to be understood by the former, ver. 9.

This is urged, 1 Partly, from the great danger that will otherwiſe enſue, viz. Both of the Sons anger; And of their ſudden deſtruction, periſhing in the way. 2 Partly, from a comparing of the contrary happy condition of all ſuch, as conſide in him, flie-to-him-for-refuge or ſhelter, ſo doing fealty to him, ver. 12.

The Kind of this Pſalme, 1. As to the outward Mode or Forme of penning it, is A Titled Pſalme: And it is the very firſt of all thoſe Pſalmes in this Book, that in the Hebrew hath a Title prefixed h. l Per Titulum intelligitur uniuscujusque Psalmi intellectus. Quid est Titulus, nisi Clavis? Ut ita dixerim; in Domum non ingreditur, nisi per Clavem: ita & uniuscujusque Psalmi intellectus per Clavem, hoc est, per Titulum intelligitur, in cujus Persona cantatur: aut in Persona Christi, aut in Persona Ecclesiæ, aut in Persona Prophetæ *Hieron. in Proam. ad Com. in Ps. of the Church, or in the Person of the Prophet l. And doubtlesse this present Psalme could never have been fully understood without the Title: But by the Title, both Penman, Time, and Occasion of writing it, as also the Scope and whole Sense of the Psalme, are rendred most plain and ease, and all upon most undoubted certainty. 2. As to the Subject-matter contained in this Psalme, it is History. The Psalme is a most earnest Pathetical Prayer of David, for Gods Salvation and Deliverance of him from the dangers and mischiefs of Absalom's rebellious conspiracy. It is but short, yet most pithy and fervent. The extremity of his Affliction, so much the more excited his Devotion. Augustine interprets this Psalme of of Christ, and Judaism, but not judiciously.

Penman of this Psalme, was David: as the Title indicates; A Psalme of David.

Occasion of Davids penning this Psalme, was, His own Son Absalom's unnatural Rebellion and Trayterous Insurrection against him: and Davids fleeing, for safety of his life, from the face of Absalom; as the Title signifies. His strong affections to Absalom, were one occasion of his strong & sore afflictions from Absalom. The History of this Rebellion: and how this was one judgment among others inflicted upon David for his defiling Bathshebah and murdering of Uriah, see in 2 Sam. 15. 10. &c. in chap. 30. compared with 2 Sam. 12. 9, 10, 11, 12. To this point speaks Chrysostome both appositely and elegantly; David flees from his sonne, because he had fled from Chastitie: He flees from his sonne, because he had violated chaste marriage. He fled from his sonne, because he had fled from Gods Commandement, which saith, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not commit Adultery. Because he had brought another's Shee-lamb into his own House, and had killed her Shepheard: The Hee-Lamb that was of his own House did with-horn-push him the Shepheard: He had brought Warre into another's House: and Warre is raised up against him out of his own House. This is not my imagination, it's the LORD's saying, &c. 2 Sam. 12. ——Thou hast divided another's House with the Sword, and I will exercise the Sword, against thee in thine own house. Behold I will raise up evil against thee out of thy house. Not from any where else without: but from thy house. Whence is the fountain of sin, thence is the stock of punishment. Because therefore he became an exile and fugitive from Gods Commandment: for this cause he fled from his sonne. Thus he. O this was a woful occasion of David's flying from the face of Absalom, and of his penning of this Psalme, as is signified in this sad Title: A pious Prophet, flees from a prophane wretch; a righteous King flees from an unrighteous Subject; a godly Father, flees from his own ungodly Son: when David's fled from the face of Absalom. O whether, and to what extremities will not scandalous sins bring even the dearest of Gods Saints and Servants! The Valiant and Victorious David, now runs away. Painters, Statuaryes, Engravers, People, Princes, Cities and Villages (said one) do admire Conquerours: but who describes the image of him, that flees and fights not, as here David doth of himself? ——O let this History be the rectification of thy life. Let this persecution of the righteous, be the confirmation of thy minde, viz. against all unrighteousnesse.

m Ἔφευγε τὸν ὑὸν αὐτῦ ὁ Δαβὶδ, ἐπειδὴ τὴν ἀγνείαν ἔφυγε τὸν ὑὸν, ἐπειδὴ τὸν σώφρονα γάμον ἐμίσει, &c. ὅταν ἡ πορνὴ τῆς ἁμαρτίας, ἐκείθεν ἡ στολὴ τῆς τιμωρίας. &c. Joan Chrys. in Exposit. Psal. 3. p. 4. Tom. 3. Paris. 1636.

o Joan. Chrys. ibid. p. 3.

Scope of David in this Praying-Psalme, is; 1, Immediately, To importune the LORD, from consideration of the extream grievousnesse of his distresses through his sonne Absalom's rebellion, and of his secure dependance upon the LORD alone therein, To arise and save him from his Enemies and deep afflictions; as also to blesse his People Israel, among whom now many of them were sadly and sinfully entered in to joyn with Absalom in his unnatural Insurrection. 2. Mediately, To vent and ease all Princes, To take heed of stirring against another's house or family, lest thereupon the LORD raise up affliction unto them out of their own Family: And yet even under such afflictions are to depend, but humbling themselves under his hand to fly to him by Faith and Prayer for succour and salvation out of all extremities.

Sect. IV, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title or Inscription prefixed in the Hebrew, declares, 1. The Denomination, or particular sort of this writing, A Psalme. Of the sense of which Word, formerly p. The Penman of it, David. 3. The Time when, and Occasion whereupon David wrote it, When he fled from the faces of Absalom his sonne. This is, The Key of the Psalme. p In the Pref. Sect. II.

The Psalme it self, being a pathetical prayer of David, contains

I. His sad complaint unto the LORD against his Enemies. In regard of 1. Their Multitude; How multiply'd! Many, Many, 2. Their Quality, (1.) Disturbers: that brought him into extream straits and distresse, that he scarce knew what way to turn himself. (2.) Insurrectors: that did rebelliously and trayterously rise up against him their rightful King, verse 1, 2. Their cruelty and spiteful insolency insulting over his very Soul and Life, as utterly desperate, yea, even past the help and relief of God himself. This he marks with a Selah, verse 2.

II. His professed affiance and confidence in the LORD alone nevertheless, against all these his Enemies and the great dangers brought upon him by them, verse. 3. &c. which affiance is described,

1. By Gods Relations or Offices of favourable protection and support towards him in distresse and danger, apprehended by Faith, viz. 1. Against all his Enemies violence and injuries: His Shield. The All-sufficiency of which Shield is insinuated in the Phrase; A Shield about me. Securing him round on every side. 2. Against all reproach and ignominy: His Glory. 3. Against all present abject meannesse of his condition, or danger of ruine in his low estate; The up-lifter of his head, verse 3.

2. By his former Faith-supporting Experiences of the LORD's great goodnesse to him, viz. 1. In hearing his Prayer. Which is amplified, (1.) By the fervency of his Prayer, heard; He called or cryed to him with his voice. (2.) By the place whence the LORD vouchsafed to hear him; From the Hill of his Holinesse, i. e. From his Sanctuary, below: but especially from his Holy of Holies, Heaven above: which noted favor he marks with a Selah, verse 4. 2. In sustaining and protecting him in great security. Which security under Gods Protection is set forth by 1 His Lying down. 2 His Sleeping. 3 His Waking. And all in safety and security, verse 5.

3. By his Faith's Triumph in God over all his slavish feares, against greatest Armies and Multitudes of Enemies, even ten thousands surrounding him, v. 6.

III. His Petitions ushered in and enforced upon the foregoing Considerations. Which are,

1. For himself. That God would please now also to Arise and Save him, viz. From Absalom and his Adherents, and from all the afflictions, distresses, and dangers wherein they had involved him. This his request he further urgeth: 1. From Gods sufficiency to do it; being JEHOVAH. 2. From the dear Relation and Covenant-interest betwixt God and David, whence David, perswaded himself of Gods willingnesse to do it; My God. 3. From Davids former eminent experiences of Gods delivering him from all his Enemies. Having (1.) Disgracefully subdued for him all his Enemies. Smiting them on the Cheek-bone, intimates, with reproach, disgrace, &c. as Job. 16. 10. (2.) Utterly broken-to-shivers the Teeth (the hurtful power) of the Ungodly, verse 7. 4. From the Nature and Office of God, to whom the help and salvation of his people chiefly and peculiarly appertains; Salvation to the Lord, verse 8. in the begin.

2. For Gods People Israel, (many of whom were seduced and misled into sinful compliance with Absalom in his horrid Rebellion,) That Gods blessing might be upon them. This request also he notes with an Emphatical, Selah q, verse 8.

q This is the first of those Psalmes wherein this word Selah is used, Here therefore once for all, it may not be amisse to adde something touching the sense and use of it. And I had rather do this in others expressions, then in mine own words. It is used thrice in this short Psalm, viz. in *ver.*2,4,8. and it is elsewhere used in sundry other Psalmes, and in the Prayer of Habakkuk, chap. 3. and not elsewhere. And this is very observable, That wherever it is used, that place or passage is very observable, and calls for some special elevated observation or meditation thereupon——. Mark the words of some learned Authours, viz.

De Voce Selah, non conveniunt inter se interpretes. Quidam tradunt, Affirmationis Notam esse, tantundemque valere, ac vere, aut Amen. Alii accipiunt pro seculo. Sed quia סלל attollere significat, Probabilis est eorum Opinio, qui hac voce Elevationem in concentu notari putant. Quanquam simul tenendum est, Canendi modulos sententiæ aptatos fuisse, atque ita concentum cum re, vel subjecta materia (ut loquuntur) fuisse conjunctum. Sicuti nunc, postquam conquestus est David spem suam probrose fuisse derisam, acti nihil eum juvaret a Deo protegi; in hac blasphemia insistit, quæ ejus animam graviter vulnerabat: sicuti paulo post, ubi sibi subjecit fiduciæ confirmationem, eandem vocem iterum repetit. Joan. Calvin. in Comment. ad Psal. 3. 2.

Q. Quis usus est istius clausulæ Sela? R. Significat hæc vocula Elevationem, aut Exaltationem. Notabat igitur olim exaltationem vocis in modulatione musica. Quia vero Musica sacra convenientiam habuit cum rebus Subjectis, idcirco notat etiam elevationem quandam sensus, una cum affectibus animi congruis. Ita ut non inepte dicatur Interjectio, Asseverationi, Exaggerationi, Admirationi, & Exultationi deserviens. Guil. Amesius in Lection. ad Psal. 3. Quæst. 7.

In fine hujus versus Hebraice est סלה Sela, quæ vox ab Interpretibus varie redditur: Ad aliis, In seculum; Ab aliis, Sic est; A Græco, διάψαλμα; a Kimchi denique pro nota elevandæ vocis in Cantu accipitur. Cujus opinionem potissimum sequor. Quanquam hic sine periculo erratur: cum ea res nihil aut parum ad sensum permeat. Sim. de Muis in Com. ad Psal. 3. 3.

Sela] This word is not any where but in the Psalmes, and in Habukkuk. Some hold it to be a Terme of Musick, to mark a pause, or some elevation of the voice, or changing of Tun. Others will have it to be a sign of Exclamation or Exaggeration. Jo. Diodate in his Annotat. on Psal. 3. 2.

Selah] This Hebrew word signifieth Elevation, or lifting-up: whether of the mind to mark; or of the voice, to strain it; or of both. And for the matter, it seemeth to import an Asseveration of a thing so to be, and an Admiration thereof. For the manner, it is a Note of singing high, and therefore it is used onely in Psalmes and Songs. And alwayes at the end of Verses, excepting some few places, Psal. 55. 20. and 57. 4. Hab. 3. 3, 9. where it is set in the midst. The Chaldee paraphrast, and some other Hebrews, have turned it; For ever. Our Doctors of blessed memory have said that every place where it is written, Netsach, Selah and ghned, there is no ceasing (or end) of that thing: saith R. Menachem on Levit. 25. The Greek Version makes it a musical notion, Diapsalma. Hen. Ainsworth in his Annotat. on Psal. 3. 3.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

The Kinde of this Psalm, 1. As to outward form or Manner of penning it, is, Entituled. There being a Title prefixed to it, in the Hebrew. 2. As to the Subject matter of it, is mixt. Being Penitory, as ver. 1, 6, 7, 8. Reprehensory, as ver. 2. Instructive and Hortatory, as ver. 3, 4, 5. For, herein the Psalmist, praying to the LORD for sundry blessings to himself in his great afflictions, reproves, instructs, and exhorts his enemies, procurers of his afflictions, to betake themselves to better courses, &c. Hierom makes this Psalme a Prophecy of Christ n: and Augustine somewhat leanes that way n but both of them without any just or sufficient ground.

Penman of this Psalm was David, as the Title declares.

Occasion of Davids penning it, is not expressed in the Title, as was in the Title of the third psalm. Hence, Interpreters become of divers Opinions about it: fetching their conjectures from the substance of the psalm. Generally most agree, That David wrote this psalm when he was and had been long under persecutions by his Enemies. But which persecutions and of which Enemies, is the Question. Some o think David wrote this psalm, as the third, upon Occasion of Absalom's rebellion: herein following Kimbi's Opinion. Others p think rather upon King Saul's long continued persecutions of David: which seems to be hinted in that reprehensory Expostulation in this Psalm; How long, O sonnes of men, &c. verse 2. Some q think it uncertain and indifferent to referre it to either: and that the sence of the psalm will suffer no detriment, taking it either way. Some r disliking both these Opinions, conjecture from some words in the psalm, That David wrote this Psalm, when he was now about to begin Warre with his forreign Enemies, mentioned in 2 Sam. 8. for that, the Enemies here mentioned, ver. 2. were not Israelites, sonnes of God: but Forreigners, sonnes of men. But this phrase [sonnes of men] doth not alwaies in Scripture import Heathens or Forreigners to the Church: but sometimes is used for Israelites within the Church, the more to check and rake down their pride, &c. as in Psal. 58. 1. In midst of this variety and uncertainty it is hard to determine. I incline most to referre it to King Sauls persecution of him, which was long and serious, and had almost wearied out David, ver. 2. had he not been supported wonderfully by sweet experiences of Gods peculiar love and favour, ver. 3, 6, 7, compare herewith 1 Sam. 18. 8, 9, 10, 29. 19. 10, 11. and 24. 15. But let every one herein enjoy his own judgment.

Scope of David in this Psalm is, 1. Primarily, To obtain of the LORD (as the sole Patron of his righteous cause against all his Enemies) audience and Divine favour: & especially, in lifting up the light of his well-pleased countenance upon himself and Gods people, as matter of his greatest joy, peace and security, ver. 1, 6, 7, 8. 2. Secondarily, To check and convince the Enemies of his royal glory and Kingdome, of their vanity and falsehood in opposing him, whom the Lord had so marvellously separated to himself for the Kingdome and whose prayers he would hear. As also to direct and exhort them, upon due consideration, to repentance and reformation, betaking themselves to truly religious courses, ver. 2. to 6.

Sect. IV. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title hath in it, 1. The Direction of it, as to the Musick: to be sung with stringed-Instruments. 2. The Denomination of it; A psalm. Of a Metrical sort. 3. The Penman; David. [See the Pref. in Sect. II.

In the Substance or Body of the psalm it self.

I. David, by way of Exordium or Preface, begs for Audience, and Gracious Acceptance. Whereunto he is encouraged, 1. From the Nature and Office of God: being the just Patron and Protector of his righteous cause, 2. From his former Experience of God's working enlargement for him in straits, ver. 1.

II. David, in an Apostrophe or turn of his Speech to his Adversaries (by way of Digression,) sharply reproves them, ver. 2. to 6. 1. Debasing them and their haughtiness; O ye sonnes of men. 2. Convincing them of their long continued evil and malice against him, in indeavouring so long to cast ignominy and shame upon his Royal Glory and Dignity, whereunto God had Anointed him. All their attempts being 1 Vanity, 2 Lyes, and Falshood: which he marks with a Selah, verse 2. 3. Informing them, 1 That, God had marvellously separated the Gracious one to himself, viz. David himself to be his King. 2 That God would hear his prayer, viz. for himself, against his Enemies, ver. 3. 4. Directing them to Repent and Reform their evil wayes. (Some s think that in ver. 4. 5. David speaks rather to his friends then to his foes: but the continued Series of the words seems plainly to carry it still to his Enemies.) Particularly, 1 So to tremble and be moved with awe, viz. of God; as to cease u their sinful practises. 2. To consider their ways, Speaking with their own hearts, in most secret retirement, on their Bed. 3. To study quietnesse, which he notes with a Selah, ver. 4. 4. To crifice to God righteous Sacrifices. 5. To place their trust in the Lord: and not in vain, or vanities &c. verse 5.

III. David Prayes for the Light of Gods favourable Countenance, upon himself and Gods people;—— upon us. Amplifying and Urging this request, 1. From the opposite, low, and confused wishes of the worldly multitude, ver. 6. 2. From the surpassing sweetness and joy of Gods favour, experimented upon his own heart, farre above all worldlings joy in their Harvest and Vintage, ver. 7. 3. From the great peace and security wherein he can confidently repose himself under Gods Love and Protection, verse 8.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion, and Scope.

The Kinde of this psalm, 1 As to the Outward Form or manner of penning it, Is an Entituled psalm q, as the third is: 2 As to the Subject matter of it, is A Prayer. q See on Psal. 3. Sect. 3.

Penman of it was David, as the Title intimates, A psalm of David.

The Occasion of Davids penning this Prayer, is hard to be determined particularly. Authors have several conjectures from some passages and expressions in the psalm and Title. 1. Some think David here prayed for the Church of God (which himself, as Head of the People, represented) that God would defend her against her innumerable enemies, both false-hearted Hypocrites, and violent Tyrants r. And they seem to ground their Opinion upon the word [Nechiloth] in the Title, which they render, super hæreditatibus; i. e. upon Inheritances, that is, For the Church or People of God, which are his Inheritance, as also God is theirs, as Augustine s notes. Thus some Jewish Writers have rendred it (as Sim. de Muis t notes) though other of them disallow it, and rendred it [Companies] viz. Hosts or companies of enemies opposing Israel. The Greek renders it ὑπὲρ τῆς κληρονομούσης, for the Heir: which Chrysostome u follows, and interprets it of the Church, as Heir of the everlasting Inheritance. The Latin, and Jerome, have it x; Pro ea quæ hæreditatem consequitur: i. e. for her that obtains the inheritance. And they that go this way are of opinion, That this word contains the Argument of the psalm: and that the word is used here in the plural number, that it may comprehend all the twelve Tribes, and so the whole Church gathered out of all Nations y. But these opinions seem not so solid, as to satisfie. For, (1) The Version of the word [Nechiloth] either Heires, or Hoasts Companies, &c. is not so approved. (2) Nor is there any mention here in the psalm of Heires or Inheritances. (3) This makes the Titles of the psalm ænigmatical, as if it had a riddle or some strange mystery in it. And I say with Calvin z: I like not these ænigmatical Inscriptions. They are too farre fetched and forced, (4) Besides, the word נחילות Nechiloth, comes from Chalil a pipe; Isa. 5. 12. And it signifies Wind-Instruments that have hollowness in them, as Flutes, Hoboyes, Corners, Trumpets, Recorders, Organs, &c. As נגינות Neginoth, Psal. 4. tit. signifies Stringed-instruments, viz. The Viol, Harp, Hapsidor, Virginals, Lute, &c. as many a think. 2. Some think David penned this Prayer when he fled from Absalom, and was vehemently exagitated and vexed by Achitophel and such like Pests. Or, when he fled from Saul and was coursly used and accused by Doeg, and such wicked attendants upon Sauls Court b. 3. Some are of Opinion, That David wrote this psalm when King Saul gave his Daughter (that was espoused to David) unto Adriel, 1 Sam. 18. 18, &c. For, those observers of David and false-hearted flatterers, mentioned, ver. 8, 9. seem to denote the subtilty of Saul and his Courtiers in that affair of marriage c. 4. But some unsatisfied with any of these, think; That David vid vid in this psalm complaines against the injuries of his enemies, and only by some one Particular point: but more (literally) of various Persecutions wherewith Saul & his adherents afflicted him from time to time. Thus that judicious Calvin. In all this variety of Conjectures, it is hard to fix upon this or that Particular Occasion. But in the Generall, this is clear by the currant of the Psalme; That here David prayes for his own Preservation & Direction, but his enemies destruction upon Occasion of their malice, ability, cruelty, wickednesse, &c. whereof he had had too much experience, whether in the days of Saul, or Absalom, &c. whereunto Pareus seems chiefly to incline.

Scope of David in this Prayer, is; For himself, to beg Audience, Protection, and Guidance from the LORD, that neither subtile Hypocrites nor cruel Tyrants might by fraud or force prevail against him: And against his crafty and cruel Enemies to imprecate their destruction and overthrow, even by their own Counsels.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

The Kinde of this Psalme, 1 As to the Form or Manner of Penning it, is Entituled; Having in the Hebrew a Title prefixed, as many others have i: 2 As to the Subject-matter of it, Is a Prayer k, A most sad Lamenting Prayer of the Psalmist, in his extream sickenesse, as is commonly thought: though some (as after will appear) think otherwise. Hierome l saith; It is a Psalme of Penitence, and he denies not to be amended and corrected, but not in anger, not in fury, because because he was weak, and his bones vexed, &c. This Psalme hath been anciently reckoned among the Penitential Psalmes (as they are called.) And there are seven Psalmes stiled Penitential, whereof this is the First, viz. Psal. 6. 32. 38. 51. 102 130. 143. These seven from their Nature and Subject-matter, or at least from their Use, have been commonly called Penitential Psalmes: For, (as one m observes) these seven Psalmes were wont to be sung when Penitents were publickly reconciled to the Church. And (as another notes) because this Psalme contains a manifold Doctrine of greatest things, touching Sin, Gods wrath against Sins, Punishments, Repentance, and Faith accepting remission of sins, of all which it is necessary they should think who are Converted to God, Therefore it was sung and recited in the Church of every one daily among the Penitential Psalmes, as they call them. For the life of a pious person ought to be a Perpetual Repentance n. And here, in this Psalmist, we have an eminent pattern of Penitency; I am weary with my sighing, every night make I my bed to swim, I water my Couch (Heb. I melt my bedstead) with my tears, ver. 6. Let them hear (said Chrysostome) who live in low-condition, what manner of Repentance the King, who was cloathed with Purple, manifests. Let us hear and be pricked. He did not simply labour, but also he laboured unto wearinesse, sighing; He not simply wept, but he even washed his bed with tears; not one, and a second, and a third day, but even every night o, &c. Nevertheless it may not be concealed; That some of these Psalmes (as Psal. 6. 162. and 143.) are not as to the Subject-matter of them, of a clear plain Penitential Nature: No sin being in them plainly and expressly confessed, lamented, deprecated, or the pardon thereof begged. And there are some other Psalmes, wherein sin is confessed, bewailed, deprecated, or the pardon thereof earnestly implored, as Psal. 25. 31. 39. 41. 69. 119. 141. which yet are not numbred among the Penitentials. Possidonius reports of Augustine; That in his familiar discourses he was wont to say; That after Baptisme received, even the praise-worthy Christians and Ministers should not depart out of the Body without due and competent repentance. Which also himself did in his last sickness of which he dyed. For he commanded Davids Psalmes of Repentance Which are very few, to be written for him; And tho e Quaternions placed against the wall, He lying in his bed in the dayes of his infirmity, beheld, and read, and wept constantly and abundantly: And took heed lest his intention should be hindred by any, &c p.

Quod etiam ipse fecit ultima qua defunctus est ægritudine: Nam sibi jusserat Psalmos Davidicos, qui sunt paucissimi de Pœnitentia scribi, ipsosque quaterniones jacens in lecto contra parietem positos, diebus suæ infirmitatis intuebatur, & legebat, & jugiter ac ubertim flebat: & ne intentio ejus a quoquam impediretur, cavebat, &c. Posid. de vita Augustin. cap. 31. Tom. 1. oper Augustin.

Penman of this Psalme, was David: as the Title informs us.

Time when, and Occasion whereupon David penned this Prayer, can hardly be particularly defined upon any certainty. Some q think David wrote this Prayer upon Occasion of some extream dangerous and mortal Sickness or Disease that was upon him: because he mentions, the terrifying of his bones, craves healing, &c. ver. 2. and because the word אמל there used signifies, to be sick. Or at least that he wrote this Psalme as a Form of Prayer to be at hand to such as should fall into any dangerous sickness. Calvin r thinks their reasons not cogent, because these words of sickness, healing, &c. may be taken Metaphorically. Therefore, he and others conceive, That David by his enemies was brought into some extream danger of death and destruction, which so deeply affected his Spirit, that he thereby also fell into some mortal corporal disease, reflecting upon his sins and apprehending the dreadfulnesse of Gods wrath, &c. And this opinion seems of all other best, because David having obtained audience and assurance of relief from the Lord against his distresse, in the three last verses by an Apostrophe turns his speech to his enemies, and thereupon triumphs over them, and prayes against them; which intimates, that they were the chief causes and occasions of these his mortal dangers and distresses. But what enemies, or what disease, in particular we may here understand: is uncertain.

q So the Heb. Doctors.

Scope is to shew; That David in his deepest distresses and most deadly dangers, was most of all afraid of Gods wrath therein, yet found relief and comfort by presenting his complaint in fervent Prayer to the Lord. And answerably, That the people of God, involved in extreamest distresses and dangers of death, and most of all perplexed therein under apprehensions of Gods wrath, yet flying to the Lord for succour by faith with fervent cryes and teares, shall at length find comfortable acceptance, audience and deliverance. The extremities of their distresses may be deep, but never desperate.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, Denomination, Occasion and Scope.

The Kind of this Scripture, 1. As to the Form of Penning it, is; Entituled. Having in the Hebrew a Title q prefixed. 2. As to the Subject-matter of it, is, A Prayer. A Prayer against false accusers, slanderers.

q See Psal. 3 Sect. 3.

Penman of it was David: as the Title declares.

The Denomination of it's somewhat unusual; Shiggajon of David ——: the word being used in the Title of Songs, only here, and in Hab. 3. 1. The Heb. word is derived from Shagah, which is used for Delight, or wandring in Pleasure. Prov. 5. 19, 20. hence comes Shegioth, errors, Psal. 19. 12. And Shiggajon here, which properly signifies, Aberration, or Ignoration: And (as Buxtorf r notes) it may import, An Erratick-Song, A various mixt song, &c. to be sung with all variety of Musical Tunes and Notes, thinks Junius. Perhaps with all variety of Musical Instruments. And consisting of various Subject-Matters. According to which (saith H. Ainsworth) we may name this Song, Davids Delight, or Solace. Or in the other signification, Davids Error; As setting forth the summe of his cares, which made him almost to go astray. The Chaldee Expounds it; Davids interpretation of the Law s. So he. It is confessed by the learned in the Hebrew-Tongue. to be a musical term or word, unknown to the Hebrews themselves. And most Writers are very doubtful what the true meaning of it should be. For, as divers Authors do declare t, Some think, it was the beginning of some well known Song, according to which this Song was to be tuned: as Ezra. Vatablus, Avenarius, Shindlerus. Some, that it was some kinde of symphony, or consort: as Kimchi. Some, that it was a Musical Instrument, whereon the fingers did wander this way and that way whilest the strings were struck. Some, that it was a certain kind of melody, that is, of Song: as one should say, a Sapphick, or Phaleucian verse. So Calvin. Some, that שגיון Shiggajon is a profession of innocency; Or a denial of the Calumny, of one not acknowledging the crimes objected. For שגה Shagah; signifies, to erre, To do any thing, or to sin through ignorance or incogitancy. So Mollerus. The truth is, its hard to say certainly what the meaning of the word is; About it, one may be ignorant, doubt, or mistake, without any danger to Faith or Manners.

Occasion of Davids Penning this Song, is more Material to be considered. The Title points it out, thus; ——which he sang to the Lord, upon the words of Cush sonne of Jemini. The word כוש Cush signifies, an Æthiopian, a Black-moore, &c. It was first the name of Cham's sonne, Gen. 10. 6. 1 Chron. 1. 8. From whom both Arabians and Ethiopians, as also Ethiopia have received their names, (as Buckstorf notes u,) compare 2 King. 19. 9. with 2 Sam. 18. 21. Jer. 13. 23. But who this Cush was which is here mentioned, Interpreters are not agreed. 1. Chrysostome x thinks this Cush was Hushai the Archite Davids friend, who in the time of Absholom's rebellion defeated the Counsel of Achitophel, and sent to David not to remain in the wilderness, lest Absholom should surprize him, 2 Sam. 17. 15, 16, &c. Augustine y also leans this way: though afterwards (as his manner is too frequently and groundlesly in the Psalmes) he turnes all into an Allegory. But Hierome sharply refells this Interpretation as arising from the ignorance of the Heb. Language. And addes reasons against it, too large to recite z. 2. Some take this word Cush here, Appellatively. And so they interpret it 1 Either of King Saul. That he is called Cush, i.e. an Ethiopian, from his bloody, vile, and cruel manners, and that this whole psalm was written against Saul, who persecuted David and fell into the ditch that he had digged. And he was of the Tribe of Benjamin, whereunto the family of Jemini belonged, 1 Sam. 9. 1, 2. of this opinion is Hierome a. And (saith Mush) almost all the Rabbines, besides Ezra, think that Saul is noted by the word Cush, which sounds an Æthiopian, i. e. A wicked and prosligate man, that will no more change his manner and disposition, than an Æthiopian his skin, according to that of Jeremy, ch. 13. 23. And whilest he names him Cush, he alludes to Kish Sauls Father, Which the Chald. Paraphrase also intimates; which in stead of Cush son of Jemini, hath Sal the Son of Kish which were of the Tribe of Benjamin. Nor matters it that one is written by Caph, the other by Koph, thus he. 2 Or of Shimei, a man of the family of the house of Saul, who cursed and cast stones at David, flying from Absholom his sonne, 2 Sam. 16. 5, 6, 7, 8. And that he was called Cush, because he was black, and an enemy to Israel, the Church of God. As among the Latines Niger a black man, is put for a Reprobate; Hic niger est, hunc tu Romane caveto, Thus c Mollerus. Hierome also joynes Saul and Shimei together as both here intended d. 3. But some e had rather take this word Cush properly, as the Proper Name of some Kinsman or Favorite of K. Saul, who as a pick-thank Parasite or flattering Courtier, had falsly accused David to K. Saul, as if he had devised to kill him, or contrived some other desperate mischief against him. Of which base and false slanders David purgeth himself convincingly before Saul himself, in 1 Sam. 24. 9, to 16. And here in this psalm he seems to appeal to the LORD himself touching his innocency in this matter, Psal. 7. 3, 4, 5. And hereunto the psalm most fitly agrees. And this Opinion seems best to set forth the Occasion of this Psalm. If any think that Doeg (who unworthily accused David, 1 Sam. 22. 9. &c.) was this Cush; Let him enjoy his judgment: the Psalm may agree thereunto.

Davids Scope in this Prayer, is; to appeal unto the LORD touching his integrity and innocency as to the things or crimes laid to his charge falsly by his detracting Adversaries: and to intreat him to protect and deliver him from all his cruel, false, and reproaching Persecutors, doing righteous judgment towards him and them.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title contains, 1. The Denomination of this part of Scripture; Shiggajon f. 2. The Penman of it; David. 3. The Occasion; which he sang to the Lord upon the words of Cush sonne of Jemini.

f Besides what hath been noted touching this word in the former Section, I find one of somewhat a singular Opinion in interpreting it, which yet is not to be contemned, viz. That Shiggajon contains the general Argument of the psalm, and notes the Oberration and peregrination of David, when he was exiled from the Court, and wandred here and there that he might provide for safety of his own life, &c. Generale Argumentum Psalmi in dictione שגיון Shiggajon, quæ notat oberrationem & peregrinationem Davidis, quando primum exulabat ab aula, & huc illuc oberrabat ut vitæ suæ consuleret. Hæc interpretatio optime convenit Tempori, Occasioni, & ipsi Psalmo. Joan. Foord in Expos. Psal. 7. Titul.

The Psalm it self, which is A Prayer against his cruel and slandering Persecutors, containes.

I. Davids Petitions to the Lord his God. Which are.

1. For the Lord's manifestation of his mercy upon himself, in preserving and delivering him from his Persecutors. Which request he urgeth, 1. From his Relation to him; my God. 2. From his affiance in in him, and relyeth upon him; and 3. From the Lion-like fierceness of his Enemy, against him. 4. From his own destitution of help, help-lessness, verse 2. 5. From the justice and Iniquity of his cause. And here is Recitulence his utter indecency and guiltiness in regard of all those things wherewith his enemies maliciously charged him, verse 3, 4. 2 He qualifies this, demonstrating his innocency, by his releasing of his enemy when in his power, as 1 Sam. 24. 9. to the end, and Chap. 26. 7, 8, 12. thus recompensing good for evil, verse 4. 3 He hypocritically submits himself to the uttermost mischiefs his enemy could bring upon him, if he were guilty, ver. 5. This hath in it the force and force of an Imprecation.

2. For the Lord's declaration of his Justice upon his Distressers. Here, 1. He motives God to certain judiciary Acts, gradually expressed. As To awake up. To rise up. To lift up himself in anger. To return to the High-place (viz. To his Throne of Judgment. Thrones are usually set upon high, 1 Kings 13. 19.) verse 6, 7, 8. 2. He urges the LORD hereunto, (1.) From his distressers manifold rage. (2.) From Gods own appointment of the judgment desired, ver. 6. (3.) From the Praises that shall generally redound to God, once sitting on his Throne of judicature, ver. 7. (4.) From Gods Office, which is to do Judgement, ver. 8. (5.) From Gods Omniscience and Justice, rendering him the fittest Judge, ver. 9.

II. David's Profession of his full affiance and confidence in the LORD; That he will mercifully protect the righteous, ver. 10. And deal severely with the wicked. Because, 1. God is a just Judge. 2. God is daily angry with the wicked, ver. 11. 3. God makes many preparations of judgment against the wicked, if he repent not and return from his evil, verse 12, 13. 4. God already blasteth all his wicked devices, ver. 14, 15. God retorteth all his mischief upon his own head, ver. 15, 16. For all which his righteous proceedings, David resolves to render thankful praises to the LORD, ver. 17.

Sect. IV. The Kind, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

The Kind of this Psalm, 1. As to the Form or Manner of Penning it, is, Extruded: Having in the Hebrew a Title prefixed. 2. As to the Subject matter of it, is, Mixt of Doctrine or History and Prophesie. Being a Doctrinal or Historical and Prophetical praying of God for his excellent Glory shining forth, much in the Creature; more, in Man; most of all, in Christ. Thus some among the Ancient k, most among the Modern Writers l, do in effect interpret this Psalm: though in some particular interpretations & accomodations there are some diversities among them. 1. Some indeed account this Psalm meerly Prophetical: and so are forced to turn a great part thereof into groundlesse Allegories, as ver. 3, 4, 7, 8. thus Hieronymus m. But this way of interpreting it, cannot be so solid: because there are sundry passages in the psalm plainly Doctrinal and Historical, setting forth Mans Eminent Prerogative by Creation above all the Creatures here below, as ver. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. And to turn all these into Allegories, would be to offer too much violence to the words. 2. Few, if any, interpret this psalm of Man, or Mankind alone. For, That were evidently to oppose the unquestionable Authority of the New Testament, which, more than once alledging this psalm, refers the passages to Christ, or to things concerning Christ: compare Psal. 8. 2, with Matth. 21. 16. also Psal. 8. 4, 5, 6. with Heb. 2. 6, 7, 8, 9. 1 Cor. 15. 27. Ephes. 1. 22. 3. Most judge this psalm to be of Mixt Nature, Doctrinal Prophetical, and Eucharistical, As setting forth and highly extolling the wondrous-Excellency of the LORD's Name in all the Earth, and his glorious Majesty above the Heavens. In the works of Creation, and particularly in Man by Creation highly advanced above all Sublunaries, but above all in Jesus Christ the Head and Glory of Mankind, by whom Humbled and Exalted, Mankind is again restored to his Con-created dignity, which he lost by the fall of the first Adam. So then (as one intimates) This psalm is to be understood, of Christ the Head, and of Mankind, especially of the Faithful, as his Members n. Hence, one thus gives the summe of the latter part of this psalm; A Prophecy of Christ his Humiliation, Glory, and Dominion o. And Chrysostome accounting this psalm, at least in part, Prophetical, hath sundry

The middle-wall is taken away, The Partition is looſed, Things-at-diſtance are united, Darkneſſe is extinguiſhed, Light hath ſhined, Death is ſwallowed-up. The Prophet thinking of all theſe things, and greater things than theſe, cryes out, ſaying;* How wonderful is thy Name in all the Earth! &c. So he.

Penman of this Pſalme was David, as the Title ſignifies.

Time when, and Occaſion whereupon David Penned this Pſalme is not ſo certainly and undoubtedly known. 1. One thinks q that David wrote it after he had ſmitten the Philiſtines, and taken the City Gath out of their hands, 2 Sam. 8. 1. and 1 Chron. 18. 1. Or when he had overcome all his enemies mentioned in 2 Sam. 8. That then he ſung this as a Triumphal-Pſalme unto the LORD. But that David in this Pſalme was a Type of Chriſt, in whom thoſe things are ſpiritually fulfilled which here were literally done by David. So he. 2. Another opinion is r; That theſe three Pſalmes (wherein על הגתית Gnal Hagittith, upon Gittith, is found in the Title) viz. Pſal. 8, and 81. and 84. were Penned to be ſung at the Vintage, when their Grapes were gathered and preſſed, and their Fats did burſt forth with New Wine. Foraſmuch as גתית Gittith may ſeem to come from גת Gath, A Wine-preſs. See Joel 3. 13. Nehem. 13. 15. And according to this the Greek tranſlateth it;——The Wine-preſſes. 3. Tremellius and Junius choſe this Interpretation (among many) and like it beſt. viz. There are onely three Pſalmes that have this Inſcription, Pſal. 8. 81. and 84. All which David ſeemes to have written, when thinking to have brought up the Ark from Kiriath-jearim to Sion, he left it at the houſe of Obed-Edom the Gittite, becauſe of the breach made upon Uzzah: and that he took occaſion from the then preſent affaires to write theſe three Pſalmes, There-fore he wrote this eight Pſalme (in his judgement) and ſung it, when he brought the Ark from the City of Woods (i. e. Kiriath-jearim) to the houſe of Obed-Edom, 2 Sam. 6. 10, 11. 1 Chron. 13. 5. to 13. The 81. Pſalme, when God by his breach upon Uzzah teſtified his Glory and the ſeverity of his judgements, to keep the people in their Duty and Religion more effectually, 2 Sam. 6. 1. to 10, 1 Chron. 13, 5, to 13. And Pſal. 84. when the Ark was now to be brought thence unto Sion, 1 Chron. 15. 25, &c. and 16. 1. wherefore theſe Pſalmes are ſaid to be written at the Gittheanway, commoration, ſtation, obſervation, or if there be any thing elſe to expreſſe what I would. So ſ Junius. And this Opinion is rendred the more probable, 1. Partly, becauſe there is ſuch mention of Muſical Inſtrumens, Singers &c. at the bringing up of the Ark, 1 Chro. 13. 8. and 15. 28. And Interpreters here are in ſome ſuſpence, whether the word Gittith t in the Title may not import, ſome Muſical Inſtrument, or ſome kind of Tune, or the beginning of ſome known and famous Song. 2. Partly, becauſe after the Ark was brought to Sion, and placed there in the midſt of the Tent which David had pitched for it, Another Pſalme was appointed to be ſung. See 1 Chro. 16, 7, &c. with my Expoſition on Pſalme 105, Sect. 3. whence it's very probable that from firſt to laſt many Pſalmes were ſung in that Extraordinary Solemnity of bringing up the Ark from Kiriath-jearim to Sion. 3. Partly, becauſe Jeſus CHRIST the great Antitype of the Ark, is the chief Subject-Matter of this Pſalme as Interpreters do well obſerve from the Allegations thereof in the New Teſtament, In whom eſpecially Gods glorious Excellency is here moſt highly extolled; even unto admiration. Let the Judicious weigh all things.

*To the-Master-*Musician a upon Muth-Labben, A Psalm of David.

I.

1. THe Lord with all mine heart b I'le laud:
I'le all thy wonders blaze.
2. I will joy, and in thee be glad:
I will likewise sing-praise
Unto thy Name, O thou Most-high.
3. When my foes with disgrace
Turn'd back; They stumbled instantly.
And perish'd from thy face.

4. Because thou hast my Judgment done,
And didst my doom express:
For thou didst sit upon the Throne
c A Judge of Righteousness.
5. The Heathens thou rebukest-sore
The wicked hast destroy'd:
Their Name for ay and evermore
Thou hast wip'd-out as void.

6. The desolations, O foe,
Quite-ended are for ever.
Thou cities hast destroyed also;
Their memorial is perished with them.
7. The LORD for ever shall endure,
As judge he doth prepare
His throne for Judgement sure.
8. And he shall judge the world with law
And righteousness.
9. And he will high the Lord will be Unto [the Succourable;
At times in straits, a Refuge-stable.
10. And they that know thy Name
Will trust in Him; for thou, Lord, thy Seekers leav'st not to shame.

11. O sing-ye-praise unto the Lord,
h Who doth in Sion dwell:
His practices square and
Among the people tell.
12. For he that searcheth after i blood
Calls them to memory:
Of k meek-afflicted-ones, our God
Hath not forgot the cry.

II.

13. O LORD, unto me gracious be,
View l mine-afflicted-state
From those that hate me, thou that me
Up-liftest from Death's gate.
14. That I to Sion's daughters gates
Thy praises all a may-spread:
And in thine Health which consolates
May be exulting-glad.

15. Sunk down the Heathen-people did
Into the pit they wrought:
In that same Net which they have hid,
Their own false foot is caught.
16. Known is the Lord, in all these Lands,
By judgment he hath done:
In th' operation n of his hands,
Snar'd is the wicked-one. o Higgaion
Selah.

17. Undoubtedly the wicked shall
Be turned into Hell:
And there the godless Heathens all
That God forget, shall dwell.
18. For, p evermore the needy-one Forgotten shall not be:
Nor poor-mens expectation
Quite-perish q endlessly.

19. Rise LORD, O let not r man prevail,
Judge Heathens in thy sight.
20. Let Heathens know they be f men-frail,
LORD, put them in such fright,
Selah.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion, and Scope.

The Kind of this psalm, 1 As to the outward Form or Manner of Penning it, is; Entituled. A Title being prefixed to it in the Hebrew. 2 As to the Subject matter of it, is; Mixt. Being Eucharisteal, and Eutical: made up of Praise, and Prayer.

Penman of it, was David: as the Title indicates.

Occasion of Davids Penning this psalm can scarce be particularly defined upon any certainty. In the General, it seems evident from the Subject matter and Current of the psalm, that David wrote it upon Occasion of some Eminent Deliverance and Salvation which which the Lord had wrought for him, in some great strait, from his enemies. See verse 3. to 11. But about the Particular Occasion learned Authours have various Conjectures: most of them drawn from their various Interpretation of some words in the Title. Which Title, among the Obscure Titles of the Psalmes is one of the most obscure and intricate t. As one observes. The Difficulty rests especially in those words על מות לבן Ghual-muth Labben. I. Some do sever or divide the former word על מות Ghual-muth, upon the Death: and assert that it is two words contracted into one. But then they disagree about the interpretation of the latter word לבן Labben. For 1. Some of the Hebrew-writers render it; upon the death of the Sonne, i. e. of Absalom. But Rasi likes not this interpretation, (saith u S. de Muis) because it is not written הבן Habben, but לבן Labben, and because there's nothing in this Psalm that favours that Opinion. 2. Some take the word לבן Labben properly, for the proper name of some man, called Labben. But who this Labben should be they cannot well resolve. Whether some chief among the Commanders in the enemies Army that was slain: or some Chief-Singer, mentioned (say they) in 1 Chron. 15. but no such name is found in that Chapter, unlesse Ben, verse 18. be intended. Both these are rejected x, as unsatisfactory. 3 Some think לבן Labben to be נבל Nabal, by transposition or Inversion of the Letters, which are the same in both and that this Psalme was written by David after the Death, or upon the Death of Nabal the Carmelite, the foolish husband of that prudent Abigail. But such transposition is not here necessary: And if the word be taken for a Man, it seems to point out the death of some enemy to Israel; whereas we read not that Nabal hurt any Israelite. but onely churlishly and covetously denyed refreshment to David and his men y. 4. Some think לבן Labben the same as if it were written with י thus לבין. And that so it points out Goliath: who is called איש הבינים Ish Habbenajim, vir intermedius; or, vir medietatum, i. e. A middle man, &c. 1 Sam. 17. 4. viz. An intermiddle-Champion between the two Armies of Israel and the Philistines, who challenged any man of Israel to come and fight with him, and end the controversie betwixt Israel and the Philistines by a single Duel. And to this effect they would have this Psalm to be Carmen ἐπινίκιον A Victorial Song, Penned upon Occasion of Davids slaying this Goliath. Thus the Chald. Paraphrast renders it; upon the death of the man that went out between the Camps z. Kimchi, and others also thus interpret it: Sim. de Muis somewhat inclines to this Opinion. But the History easily refutes this Opinion; For in this ninth Psalme, verse 11. 14. There's mention of Sion, of the Gates of the Daughters of Sion, of praising the LORD therein, of the LORD dwelling in Sion: when as Sion was yet in the hands of the Heathen when Goliath was slain. And saith Mollerus, All these Interpretations a skilful Grammarian may easily and without trouble refute b, &c. II. Others do take this על מות to be but one word, and so read it, Ghualmuth. And yet these do not agree among themselves about the sence of it. For, 1. Some render it, Secret, Hidden, &c. —— For the hidden things of the Sonne: or, For the secrets of the Sonne. So the Greek Version of the LXXII; So the vulgar Latin; So the Ethiopick c. Hierome d also renders it, pro absconditis filii, for the hidden things of the Sonne viz. not of Absalom, but of Christ, as he understands this Psalme, discoursing of it at large. Thus also Lyra e expounds it, counting it one word, and saith he saw these words severed in no Copy, 2. Some interpret the former word; For youth: in which sence the word is used in Psal. 48. 15. He will guide us in youth. The other word לבן Labben, they render, white, candid, &c. As if the Psalme were written, for white youth, i. e. for the Church, which is a faire and flourishing youth. Which Interpretation, saith Moller f, though plausible, and congruous to the Argument, yet because לבן agrees not in Gender with the former word, Grammer is repugnant to this Opinion. 3. Some take it for a Musical Instrument, and לבן Labben for the name of a Singer, mentioned 1 Chron. 15. But this name לבן Labben is not found in that Chapter, but onely בן Ben, ver. 18. 4. Finally, Some count these words to be the beginning of som famous and well-known Song, to the Tune whereof this Psalme was to be Sung: A Tune much like our Counter Tenour. This Calvin and others like best g. And this in midst of all these uncertainties may be as probable as any. But here every one is at liberty to enjoy his own judgment: and there is no great peril of erring in a matter of this Nature.

Scope of the Psalmist in this Laudatory and Petitory Psalme, (there's no colour for making it a Prophetical Psalme in whole or in part,) is; To praise the LORD for his righteous proceedings against his, and his peoples enemies, vers. 1. to 13. And to intreat the LORD for his gracious assistance against all wicked foes, Heathens, and others, for time to come, vers. 13, &c.

Psalme touching Christ the Son of God, scattering all his enemies, especially Antichrist, and Possessing the Kingdom. In the Polyglott Bible, the Greek Version of the Lxxij both Vatican & Alexandrian, render it; ὑπὲρ τῶν κρυφίων τοῦ υἱοῦ, i. e. upon the secrets of the Son. The Syriack thus; Concerning Christ taking the Throne and Kingdome, and profligating the enemy. The Arabick thus; Touching the Mysteries of the Son, as to Christs Glory, his Resurrection, Kingdome, and the death of all disobedients. It seems to me (saith one) As the former Psalme was of the Propagation of Christs Kingdome, So this is of the Destruction of Antichrists, H. Ainsworth in his Annotat. on Psal. 9. 1. —— Pro absconditis filii ——] Licet Aquila pro absconditis filii Adolescentiam filii posuerit, tamen sciendum in Hebræo haberi, pro morte filii. Denique & Symmachus in hunc modum transtulit; pro victoria de morte filii. Totus igitur Psalmus per Tropologiam ad Christi pertinet Sacramentum. Unde & Lxx interpretes, Christi Passionem & Resurrectionem, quæ ignota prius mundo fuit, per verbum Absconsionis celare voluerunt: ne a Gentibus illo tempore facile noscereturr, &c. Hieronym. in Comment. ad Psal. 9. 1. Tom. 8.

But unlesse we had some just ground from the Subject-matter of this Psalme it self, or from some other part of Holy Scripture, neither of which are evident, it seems very hard and strange to rank this among the Prophetical Psalms.

Psalm X.

Sect. I. The Order and Number.

The Order and Enumeration of the Psalmes begins here to vary in some Versions or Translations from the Original Hebrew, &c. For although the Hebrew Text a makes this a distinct Psalme from the former, & the Xth Psalme in Number and Order, which Division and Enumeration is rightly and justly followed from hence to the end of the Book, by the Chaldee Paraphrast, by Pagnin and Montanus, by Junius and Tremellius, by Calvin, H. Millerus, D. Pareus, our best English Translation, and many others: yet sundry other Versions and Translations, do annex this 10th psalme (which is untituled) unto the 9th psalme as part thereof, accounting them both to be but one Psalme, viz. the IXth in Order and Number. Thus the ancient Greek Version of the LXXII (differently from the Hebrew) accounts this Xth psalme together with the IXth to be but one: by reckoning the 11th psalme to be the 10th, and the 12th to be the 11th, and so forward. Likewise it makes the 114th and 115th psalmes but one, and by this meanes looseth two of the number. Yet again to make up the number of 150 psalmes, the Greek di-

Sect. IV. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

The Kind of this Psalme, 1. As to the Form or Manner of penning it, is, Untituled: Having no Title prefixed in the Hebrew. See on Psal. 1. Sect. 4. 2. As to the Subject-matter of it, is, Ecclical: wherein the Psalmist, graphically delineating, and to the life painting out, the notorious insolency, out-rage, and malice of the wicked against the Lord and his gracious people, deeply complaines and prayes against them, beseeching the Lord to take his oppressed people into his Protection, and break in pieces their persecutors power and impiety, And at last as it were triumphantly concludes through Faith, that God will appear for his poor afflicted people, against their proudest Persecutors, and most tyrannical bloody Oppressours. The Psalme most emphatically *characterizeth and represents the proud, cruel, outragious and devillish dispositions and practices of the wicked, (especially if in prosperity) against the Godly: and is a lively Portraicture of the sad condition of Gods Church and People in this world among the wicked, against whose intolerable oppressions, insolencies, and cruelties, their best remedy is flying to the LORD for protection and justice, by Faith and Prayers whereby either they obtain deliverance from, support under, mitigation of, or advantage by their sufferings one way or other. Some (as a one observes) account this psalme to be Propherical, and that it prophecies of Antichrist the Roman papacy. And saith he, Though it speak of all the Enemies of the Church in general, yet in special and κατ' ἐξοχὴν it seems to note him. And the Church never had a more cruel enemy: and the Idea propounded in this Psalme doth excellently expresse his Tyranny. So he. But for my part I can hardly conceive any such special Prophecy to be intended by the Holy Ghost in this Psalme: but rather a General Character of wicked mens dispositions and deportment towards the Church and dear People of God.

a Hen. Moller. in Prælect. ad Ps. X Argum.

Penman of this Psalme is not here or elsewhere certainly signified unto us. But most probably it was David to whom it was no strange thing to be exercised with such high insolencies and cruel outrages of the ungodly.

Occasion of penning this Psalme is not easie to be discovered, in Particular: but in the General, it is very evident by the Subject-matter of it, It was written in an extream evil time to the Church and People of God, and upon Occasion of their deep sufferings and distresses under the intolerable pride, insolency, subtilty, malice, tyranny, outrage, persecutions, and cruelty of prophane wicked wretches abounding with outward prosperity in this world. The time (saith b one) is uncertain: but this is certain, that it agrees almost to every time. The afflicted condition of Gods people under the wicked, described in this Psalme, being the common and constant lot of the Church and sincere servants of the LORD, almost in all times and ages, when once the ungodly obtain the upper-hand.

b Tempus incertum est: sed hoc certum, quod omni fere tempori quadrat. Jo. Foord. in Exposit. Psal. 10.

Scope intended in this Complaint and Prayer, is; To intreat the LORD, to appear at last for his poor-afflicted-people wofully oppressed by the outragious insolencies, persecutions, and cruelties of audacious, Lyon-like atheistical wicked-ones; and to rise up for the succour of his distressedones, but for the ruine and restraint of their wicked Persecutors, & that they may be caught in their own devices. And in all times, Gods Church and People being exercised with like persecutions, insolencies and outrage of the wicked, may make use of this most suitable Psalme, making the Lord their onely Refuge by Faith and Prayer in their calamities.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Untituled Psalme, or Prayer, are laid down The Psalmists 1. Complaint, 2. Petitions, and 3. Profession of confidence in the LORD touching the requests presented.

I. His Complaint is very sad and lamentable. He Complaines, I. Of the LORD's with-holding and delaying his help to his afflicted people in distresses, in troublous times. This is set forth under two Metaphors, viz. (1) Of Distance. (2) Of hiding himself from them, ver. 1. II. Of the pride and insolency of the wicked, in their hot-pursuing, or violent persecuting of Gods poor afflicted, ver. 2. at begin. In this Complaint note; First, An Imprecation against these proud Persecutors, that they may be caught in their own devices, ver. 2. Secondly, Certain Arguments or Reasons of this Imprecation. These are drawn, 1. Partly, From the pride and insolency of these wicked wretches. Which their pride is Described, and Aggravated, (1) By their Self-applause in, or for their Soules lust. (2) By their blessing of the Coverous. (3) By their prophane provoking of the Lord, blaspheming and despighting him, ver. 3. (4) By their haughty contempt of the Lord, proudly refusing to seek him, or his will. (5) By their Atheistical devices. They even study Atheisme: devising, if it were possible, to perswade themselves there is no God, vers. 4. (6) By their slighting of Gods Judgements, or not considering and understanding them, by reason of their constant prosperity, puffing them up. (7) By their proud and disdainful puffing at their foes, ver. 5. Flattering themselves, from their present condition, with imaginations of their their perpetual prosperity and felicity, ver. 6. Partly, from their wicked works themselves practises against Gods poor-afflicted ones. Which are detected and aggravated, (1) By the deceitfulness and fraudulency of their words, compounded with Oaths and Curses. What ever good shews their actions they pretend towards Gods people, yet they intend their ruine, ver. 5. (2) By their crafty and cruel deeds against the Godly. In which respect they are elegantly compared, 1. To fabulous bloody Thieves lurking in holes and by-corners near the ends of Towns or Villages, to do mischief to the innocent, ver. 8. 2. To cruel and crafty Lyons cunningly crouching in their Dens to compasse their prey, ver. 9, 10. 3. To a Fowler or Hunter craftily spreading his Net, &c. ver. 9. (3) By their Atheistical thoughts and imaginations in their hearts, that God sees none of their their villanous courses, ver. 11.

II. His Petitions are earnest and Pathetical, viz.

1. That God would at last appear for his poor oppressed People, against these wicked miscreants, their Enemies. Which appearing is, 1. Desired, by certain Acts of the LORD; declared, viz. 1. Arising. 2. Lifting up of his hand. 3. Not forgetting the poor, ver. 12. II. Urged, 1. Because, their wickedness reproacheth, and blasphemes God and his Justice, ver. 13. 2. Because, The Lord exactly beholds all the wicked doings of these men, to take vengeance upon them. 3. Because, Gods poor-afflicted complains his whole case to God: leaves all to him. 4. Because God by Office and Property is an Helper of the Fatherless, ver. 14.

2. That God would utterly crush these wicked Persecutors power and Injurie, ver. 15. This is urged, 1. From the Eternity of Gods Kingdome and Dominion. 2. From their former notable experience of his driving out the Canaanites, and destroying them, ver. 16.

III. His Profession of his hope and Confidence, That the LORD will accordingly appear for his oppressed Church and people, against the insolency and out-rage of all their wicked Persecutors. And this, 1. By firm-preparing his peoples heart, viz. To pray, and wait. 2. By lending an ear to their requests ver. 17. 3. By judging his Orphant and Oppressed. 4. By delivering them from the daunting terrour of all proud Persecutors and wicked Tyrannical Oppressors, ver. 18.

David, I. Declares, his Enemies 1. Reproach of him, ver. 1. 2. Preparations against him, ver. 2. 3. Destroying his foundations of Hope, ver. 3. II. Triumphs against his Enemies in God alone. Considering, 1. His Supream Dominion. 2. His Providence, ver. 4. 3. His equity in his discriminating proceedings with the righteous and the wicked, ver. 5, 6, 7.

Sect. II. The Analysis of the Psalme.

1 In the Lord I put my trust:
How say ye to my soul,
Flee as a bird to your mountain?
2 For, lo, the wicked bend their bow,
They make ready their arrow upon the string,
That they may privily shoot at the upright in heart.
3 If the foundations be destroyed,
What can the righteous do?
4 The Lord is in his holy temple,
The Lord, his throne is in heaven:
His eyes behold, his eyelids try the children of men.
5 The Lord tries the righteous:
But his soul hates the wicked and him that loves violence.
6 Snares, fire, and brimstone, and an horrible tempest,
Shall be the portion of their cup.
7 For the righteous Lord loves righteousness;
His countenance doth behold the upright.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

The Kinde of this Psalme is, 1. As to the outward form of Writing it, Entituled: 2. As to the Subject-matter or Argument of it, Doctrinal, Querulatory, and Consolatory. Doctrinal, teaching; That the condition of the godly in this life, is like that of a silly bird flying from place to place for fear of the Fowler: That the wicked are maliciously set against the righteous: That the Lord notwithstanding puts a vast difference betwixt the godly and the wicked. Querulatory, complaining of the reproach and mischief done to the righteous by the wicked. Consolatory, wherein David comforts himself against all his enemies reproach, mischief and malice, by his confidence in the Lord, ver. 1, &c. Chrysostome highly and elegantly magnifies this Grace saying; h Great is force of Hope in the Lord: It is a Garrison inexpugnable, a Wall inexpugnable, a Confort unassaultable, a calme Port, a Tower invincible, a Weapon irresistible, a Power that cannot be overcom, and finding passage out of intricate-perplexities-where-no-way-is. By this, the unarmed have overcome the armed, and women men, and children have easily prevailed over them that have been exercised in warlike affairs. And what wonder if they have overcome enemies, when as they have overcome the world it self? For, the Elements not knowing their own nature, have been changed into that which was profitable to them; and the wilde-beasts were no longer wilde-beasts, nor the Furnace a Furnace, Dan. 3. For Hope in God composeth all things. Teeth were sharp, and the Prison strait, there was inhumanity of Nature, and Hunger irritating Nature, No partition betwixt them, and their murthers nigh the Prophets body, Dan. 6. But Hope in God, which is stronger than any Bridle, rushing into their mouths, did draw them back. These things have he said to such as bade him flee for safety; I hope for safety in the LORD: how say ye to my soul, Flee, &c? So he. Some interpret this psalm Allegorically, as if it were written against false h Μεγαλη ἡ ἐλπὶς τὸ ἐν Κυρίῳ· ὀχυρωμα ἀνάλωτον, τειχος ἀπροσμαχητον, πυργος ἀνίκητος, ὅπλον ἀήττητον, δυναστεια ἀκαταγώνιστος, λιμὴν γαληνὸς, &c. Joan. Chrysost. in Expos. Ps. 10. ad init. T. 5

falſe teachers and heretical perſons; that deſtroy the foun dations of faith by their errours, violently oppoſing pious and ſound Teachers, &c. Thus Hierome, i The tenth Pſalm is ſung againſt Hereticks and ill Believers. I truſt in the LORD] The Voice of the Church againſt Hereticks, or of Chriſt againſt Devils. But I ſee no reaſon at all to depart from the plain Grammatical, to an Allegorical ſenſe; in interpreting of this pſalm: as one k hath alſo well obſerved.

Penman of this pſalm was David, as the Title ſignifies.

Occaſion of Davids writing this pſalm is not here particularly declared. But in the General, it is moſt probable from the matter of this pſalm, that it was written upon Occaſion of Davids exile from King Sauls Court, when he fled to mountains, rocks, caves, woods, &c. to ſhelter himſelf from Sauls cauſeleſs perſecutions: who hunted him as a Partridge in the Mountains, 1 Sam. 26. 20. This ſeems here hinted, ver. 1. One l thinks this was written about the beginning of King Saul's perſecutions of of him, when David was with Samuel at Naioth in Ramah, 1 Sam. 19. 18, &c. And it is not unlikely, that ſome of Saul's flattering Courtiers, obſerving Saul's malice againſt David, might ſcornfully ſay to David, Flee as a Bird to thy Mountain, &c. Davids Condition deſcribed in this pſalm, moſt livelly repreſents the condition of Gods Church and people in this preſent evil world.

Scope intended, is; To Teach, that though Gods upright people are ſadly exerciſed here on earth, with the reproachful, malicious, and miſchievous practices of the wicked, yea, even to the ruine of the foundations of all ſublunary help and hope: yet they have comfortable confidence, and Hope-for-ſafety in the LORD; That he will all-ſufficiently protect them againſt all their enemies fraudulence and violence, but plenteouſly pour out his vengeance upon all their wicked and cruel Perſecutors.

Sect. IV. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

The Title ſignifies, 1. The Direction of this Pſalm as to the Muſick of it. 2. The Penman of it; David.

The Subſtance of the pſalme contains.

I, David's Narrative of his afflictions from his Enemies, 1. By their bitter and ſcornful reproaches; Flee as a bird to your Mountain; viz. Flee David and thy Retinue: For here's a double reading in the Hebrew; Flee-thou; or, Flee-yee. Againſt which he expoſtulateth, aggravating this Reproach by his own oppoſite affiance or Hope-for-ſafety in the Allſufficient LORD, How ſay ye to my Soul, Flee, &c. ver. 1. 2. By their various ſubtile and cruel preparations againſt the upright of heart, ver. 2. 3. By their utter demoliſhing all the viſible foundations of his ſupport and ſafety, as when the foundations of an houſe are pulled away. All this is aggravated, as being wholly undeſerved by the righteous; the righteous what hath he done? ver. 3.

II. David's Triumph in the LORD alone, when all earthly foundations fail. He triumphs, 1. In the Lords Supream Dominion. 2. In his moſt accurate all-ſeeing Providence over all perſons; His eyes ſee, his eye-lids try the Sonnes of man. A metaphor from men, who almoſt cloſe-ſhut their eye-lids, when they would exactly diſcern any object, eſpecially at a diſtance, ver. 4. 3. In his Equity, and Diſcriminating Diſpenſations towards the Righteous and the Wicked. (1) The righteous he proves: viz. Partly, By their perſecutions from wicked men: as Pſal. 66. 10. 11. 12. Partly, By other afflictions, Job 23. 10. Zech. 13. 9. 1 Pet. 4. 12. (2) The wicked he extreamly hates, ver. 5. And will teſtifie at laſt this his hatred of them, by plaguing them with dreadful ſtormy ſhowers of Divine wrath and vengeance, (Herein alluding to Sodom's overthrow by ſhowers of fire and brimſtone, Gen. 19. 24. prefiguring eternal fire and torments in Hell, Jude 7. Rev. 20. 10.) ver. 5, 6. 4. In the cauſe why the LORD vouchſafes to the righteous ſuch favourable Aſpects of his Countenance; viz. His moſt righteous Nature loving Righteouſneſſes, and his free grace and good-pleaſure of his will towards them, ver. 7.

Sect. III.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion, &c. and Scope.

The Kind of this Psalm, is [illegible] as the stile of penning it, Imitates: A Title being prefixed to it in the Hebrew: [illegible] Prayer, A Psalmary Psalm, Mingled [illegible] Prophecy of Christs reign [illegible] ground for it.

Penman of it was David, [illegible] Title inscribeth.

Occasion of David's penning it is not declared in the Title or elsewhere: But [illegible] the Psalm is very probable that David penned it in the days of wicked Saul, when good men were few, and those greatly oppressed by the wicked: when false-hearted flattering lying Hypocrites and Tyrants were advanced and encouraged, most insolently oppressing and domineering over the poor afflicted people of God according to their own ungodly lusts; and when all things were grown to a wretched corrupt condition in the Kingdom. Some think David wrote this Psalm upon Saul's slaying by Doeg 85 of the LORDs Priests, 1 Sam. 22. 18. Or when David was betrayed to Saul by Doeg and the Ziphims so that he could scarce rest any where in the Land in quiet, 1 Sam. 23. & 24. And that Saul's false-hearted dissembling tyrannical Counsellours here principally intended. This is a Psalm which may well be accommodated (said one) to all times, wherein the wicked are advanced, and the godly oppressed by them, and especially to those sad times of the daring wealth, wherein such great and sad mischiefs are foretold to befall the Church of God [illegible].

Scope of David in this Psalme, is; To implore the LORD's own help and Salvation in evil times, when all humane succour failed, For the suppression of the Pride, outrage and insolency of the lying, flattering boasting, Tyrannical Oppressours of Gods people, and for protecting of his own poor afflicted and oppressed people, according to his purely-refined and most faithful Promise, from that faithless, mischievous, and wicked Generation.

Sect. IV, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title containes, 1. The direction of it, as to the Musick; To the Master-Musician or Shemineth, or, the Eighth, viz. The eight-stringed-instrument. Or, Some Grave note, as the Base, &c. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 3. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalme it self is a Prayer. Wherein

I. David prayes to the LORD to save and help him, and the godly, in those evil dayes, against their false-hearted, insolent, wicked oppressors, then in request, &c. verse 1. begin. Help LORD, abruptly, elegantly.

II. David urgeth and enforceth his request by sundry Arguments. Drawn; 1. From the necessity of the Petition, and of the Mercy desired, especially in that evil state of things. This Necessity is evinced, (1) Partly, By the Paucity of good-men, that would relieve and help him. Which good-men are described by their adjunct Piety (or Mercifulnesse, Loving kindnesse, &c.) and Fidelity, ver. 1. (2) Partly, by the multitude of wicked-men afflicting and distressing the Godly. These wicked ones are here notably characterized, 1. By their falshood, or false-speaking. 2. By their faunings and flatteries. 3. By their double heartednesse, verse 2. II. From his own Confidence of Gods justice upon these wicked-ones, whose ruine he foretels and threatens, under cutting away, or cutting off their lips and tongue, ver. 3.

[illegible] Psalme is [illegible] Prayer, with assurance that the LORD will keep and preserve his people, every of them eternally from this wicked Generation, &c. where note, 1. The Author of this Mercy; The LORD himself. 2. The greatnesse of the Mercy shewed. This is set forth, (1) Partly, in the variety of the LORD's Acts therein; Keeping them. Preserving them. (2) Partly in the extent of it; To them, i. e. To every one of them particularly. (3) Partly, in the Perpetuity of it; For ever. (4) Partly, in the greatnesse of the evil and calamity from which they shall be preserved; viz. From this Generation, i. e. this vile, faithless, godless Generation, verse 7. The greatnesse of which evil is aggravated. 1. By the infolency of the wicked, walking about and domineering on every side. 2. By the Cause or Occasion thereof, The exalting of basest vilenesse of the sonnes of Adam. [illegible] Vanity, properly signifies; Lowness, Vile, &c. Hence it is used to signifie The basest vilenesse. Which may be here applyed, in the Abstract, To Extream vilenesse is set; Or, in the concrete, to vile, vilest persons, which by way of Aggravation may be called, basest vilenesse; As the Proud-man is called in Psal. 36. 12. Pride. The wicked walk about insolently, haughtily, &c. when vilenesse is exalted, or, vile-persons are advanced that may countenance their [illegible]

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

The Kinde of this Psalme, is; 1. As to the Forme of writing it; Entituled. Having a Title prefixed in the Hebrew. 2. As to the Subject-Matter of it; Querulatory and Petitory. A Complayning-Prayer. It is somewhat of like Subject and Argument to the last foregoing Psalme, save that, There, the distresses of Gods people more generally; Here the distresses of David more particularly, are insisted upon; There, he prayes for the restitution of a better state to the whole Church: Here, for the preservation and deliverance of himself. As Parens g

Penman of this Psalme was David, As the Title intimates.

Occasion of Davids writing it, seems by the Subject-Matter of the Psalme to have been some deep and long distresses wherein he was involved by reason of his Enemies, even almost to his utter ruine. And it is supposed b he wrote it towards the end of Saul's persecutions of him, when he fled from him for safety into the Land of the Philistines, 1 Sam. 27. 1. &c. Under these afflictions, through the LORD's long deferring of his help and deliverance, he had much perplexity in his Soul touching the LORD's deserting him and hiding his countenance from him: But at last flying to the LORD by Prayer for deliverance, he got the Victory over his Troubles and Temptations, being perswaded to acquiesce in the LORD, and to rejoyce in hope of complete salvation, which in some measure was begun unto him.

Scope of David in this Psalme, is; To poure out his complaint and the troubles of his heart unto the Lord touching the LORD's hiding of his Countenance from him, and his Enemies exaltation over him, for so long time together: And to intreat him, to Behold, Hear, and Deliver him from all his Enemies and long afflictions.

Sect. IV. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Psalme (which is also prefixed to Psalme 19. 20. 21. 31. 40. 41. 64. 109. 139. 140. and with some further addition to Psalme. 51.) contains, 1. The direction of it, as to the Musick; To the Master-Musician. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 3. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalme it self being a prayer, consists of 1 Complaints: 2 Petitions: And 3 A Conclusion.

I. Complaints. David sadly laments and complains, 1. In reference to the LORD, of his long and long forgetting him, and hiding his face from him in his deep distresses, verse. 1. 2. In reference to himself, of his long and tedious conflicting, 1 Partly, with doubtful distracting thoughts of mind. 2 Partly, with dayly grief of heart. 3 In reference to his enemies, of their being so long exalted over him. ver. 2.

II. Petitions, David earnestly Petitioneth to the LORD, 1. To view him and his distresses. 2. To hear his requests. 3. To enlighten his eyes, that is, to refresh them and rejoyce him with the light of his pleased countenance, that had been so long overclouded and ecclipsed towards him. See on Psal 4. 6, 7. These his Petitions he urgeth, 1 From the dear relation betwixt God and him, O LORD my God. 2 From the bitter event that would follow upon Gods longer deferring of the desired relief; lest I sleep the death, verse 3. 3 From the sad effects and consequences of such his Death, viz. His enemies glorying and insulting thereupon, contrary to the expectation of the Godly, and the glory of God himself, verse 4.

III. A Conclusion. David concludes this his Prayer, 1. Professing his trust in his mercy, or loving-kindness, viz. For the blessings desired. 2. Promising to rejoyce in Gods Salvation, viz. When it shall be obtained. 3. Resolving to sing unto the LORD, when he shall reward him, or deal bountifully with him. Or because in some measure he hath already rewarded him, verse 5.

Psalme XIV.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David, I. Teacheth and discovereth the Extream corruption and wickednesse of every natural man? 1. Describing it, verse 1. 2. Demonstrating it to be so great, verse 2, 3. 3. Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master-Musician, A Psalme of David.

THe fool within his heart hath said
There is no God: a corrupt they are,
Their practice b they-have-loathsom-made;
And doing good none doth appeare.

2. The LORD from Heavens looked-down

4. d Have they no knowledge all, that breed
That work iniquity abhorr'd?
Eating my folk as they eat bread,
They have not call'd upon the Lord.

5. There e they fore fear'd; For God is ever
In Generation of the Just:
6. The poor man's Counsel ye disgrac'd
Because the LORD is his safe-trust.

7 From Sion who'l give Sa'vation;
When his dear folk's Captivity
The LORD shall back return with wealth,
Exult shall Jacob, Israel joy.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion, and Scope.

The Kinde of this Psalme, 1. As to the Forme or manner of writing it, is Historical; A Title being prefixed to it in the Hebrew. 2. As to the Subject-Matter or Argument of it, it is Didactical or Doctrinal, and Consolatory. Teaching, that the hearts and lives of all meer natural men, are most Atheistical, Corrupt, Prophane, and cruel to the People of God, &c. And therefore the Apostle Paul alledgeth this Psalme, Rom. 3. to prove that no natural man can satisfie or fulfil the Law of God, so as to be justified thereby, all both Jewes and Gentiles being by nature under sins Dominion and curse. Nevertheless, it is Comforting: in that God doth not leave all mankind to perish in their natural corruption and sinfulnesse, but hath a remnant reserved which make the LORD their trust, rejoycing in their Salvation and Redemption out of Sion by Jesus Christ g.

Penman of this psalme, was David: as the Title intimates.

Occasion of David's writing it, is hard to be particularly indigitated. Some refer it to the times of King Saul, and think that here is described the confused and forlorn state of Judea, which Saul brought in when he began to rage. For then, all piety and integrity was fled away from men, as if the very memory of God had been extinguished h. But Pareus i thinks this psalm should not be restrained to Saul and his Courtiers: And there are two reasons against that Opinion; For, 1. In Sauls time the Ark was not brought to Sion, (to which verse 7. seems to have respect,) for then the Pagan Jebusites dwelt there. 2. The Apostle Rom. 3. extends it further, even to the general multitude of the ungodly. In the General, from the Argument of the psalm, we may thus conceive of the Occasion of it; The psalmist observing the General Atheisme, Prophanity, and Impiety of men, denying Gods Providence, and cruelly oppressing and devouring the dear people of God, as if they onely were Lords of the Earth, ver. 1, 2, 3, 4. Sets himself to comfort the Church and afflicted people of God, with hope of Redemption from this their Captivity and Salvation from this misery, by David reigning in Sion: but especially with spiritual Redemption and Salvation by Christ the true King of Sion typified by David, ver. 7. k, And thus this psalm is Doctrinal, Consolatory, and in part Prophetical.

Scope herein intended, is; To teach and declare, what Atheisme, Corruptnesse, Prophanity, and Cruelty against Gods People hath generally overspread all the sons of man by nature; And to comfort Gods Church and people against all the cruel Tyranny of the wicked, by Gods presence and protection vouchsafed his People, and by the fore-pro-

I. Sheweth and Aggravateth the grievous corruption and abominable wickednesse of every Natural man, whereby Gods glory is reproached, and his Church Oppressed, ver. 1. &c. to 5. Here, 1. The Subject of this wickednesse is Indigitated, by a diligent Consideration: The Fool. Every wicked man, never earnest unto in Gods account a fool, as no spiritual. Nabal, the Fool, is derived from dying, fading, or falling away as a leaf or flower, Isa. 40. 8. 1 Pet. 1. 24. So the Fool of man, fallen in Adam, is without the fear of God. Eph. 4. 18. as a dead Carkasse, called Nabalath, Lev. 11. 40. and hath lost the love and life of Reason, Wisdome, Honesty, Godlinesse, &c. II. The Cursing of this Fool is Described, Denyed, and Condemned in a Triple. 1. Denyed, (1.) Verbo, By the Mouth of it. Evidenc both in the Root, and Fruit of it. In the Root of it, Heart-Atheisme; Hath said in his heart (being shamed to speak it out in his mouth, or Blasphemie much) there is no God. He saith not, There is no Lord, as denying the essence of Gods Soul, as God, As denying the Rule, Providence, and Judgment of God; thinks Sion. de Mais in Psal. 14. 1. In the outward Fruit of it; Commission of abominable corrupt Acts. And Omission of all true spiritual good. (2.) Facto, By the aggravating nature of this corruption over all by Nature, as the Apostle Rom. 3. 11, 12. urgeth it. There is none doing good, v. 12. Demonstrated convincingly to be so extream, by the Testimony of the LORD himself, most accurately observing from Heaven, if there were any that understood and sought God, v. 2. but finding, all declined, all unprofitable, useleſſe, stinking, None doing good, not one, v. 3. 3. Contested against. As attended with deep Aggravations. The wicked being, (1.) Most brutish generally and universally. (2.) Most cruel against Gods People. (3.) Godlesse, v. 4. (4.) Afflicted with terrours, through the LORD's protesting presence with his People, v. 5. (5.) And shaming, or scorning and deriding the councel of Gods poor afflicted, for making the Lord his refuge, and hope-for-safety, v. 6.

II. Represenceth hereupon A pathetical wish of the Godly, or of the Psalmist, For the Salvation of Israel out of Sion, viz. By David from their temporal, especially by Christ from their spiritual miseries, See Isa. 59. 20. Rom. 11. 26. This wish is (as some n think) in the nature of a Prophetical Prediction. This is amplified, By the effects that shall ensue upon that desired Salvation, viz. Israels thankful joy and gladnesse at the return of Gods People Captivity from under the thraldom temporal of wicked oppressors, and bondage spiritual under Sin, Satan, and other Spiritual miseries, v. 7.

The Kind of this Psalm, 1. As to the Form or Manner of Penning it, is; Entituled: An Hebrew Title being prefixed to it in the Orginal. And the same Title is prefixed to Psalm 23.24.29.101.110.141.143. 2. As to the Argument or Subject-matter of it, is; Doctrinal and Casuistical. For here one of the greatest Doctrines, or weightiest Cases of Conscience, is Propounded and resolved, viz. Who are true Citizens of Sion? Or, who are true Fellow-Citizens with the Saints, and of the House-hold of God, Ephes. 2.19? Or, Which is the true Church, and who are the true Members of the Church Militant on Earth, and shall be of the Triumphant in Heaven, &c? This Question is by the Psalmist propounded to the LORD, and by the LORD resolved here, for the certain, infallible and unquestionable determination thereof, to the full and final Conviction, Information, and Satisfaction of every person herein, not from Man, but from God himself: and the Resolution is; That, he is the true Church Member, and shall abide therein immovably, who leads a godly and righteous conversation towards God and Man. This is the true Qualification of the person justified: though not the Cause of his justification. And therefore hence, and from such like Scriptures, the Papists do but in vain and groundlesly seek to prove their Justification by Works: This being quite besides the Scope and Intendment of the Text m. This Doctrine or Case of Conscience is here laid down by way of Dialogue, for the greater clearnesse: The Prophet David propounding the Question to the LORD, v. 1. And the Lord returning him Answer by his Spirit, v. 2, &c.

m D. Perer. in Advers. ad Psal. 14

Penman of this Psalm was David, as the Title declares.

Occasion of Davids Penning it particularly, is not so obvious. Some n think David wrote this Psalm after he had brought the Ark of God to Mount Sion: grounding this Opinion upon the Question, ver. 1. and Psal. 24. 3. And that those Fools and Atheists spoken of in Psal. 14. &c. gave David Occasion of writing this Psalm, in the 37*th.* year of Davids reign or thereabouts, when God had shewed him the place in Mount Moriah where the Temple was to be built, 1 Chron. 21. 1. and 2 Chron. 3. 1. It is somewhat difficult to be particularly definitive herein. In general, It seems probable enough from the Argument and Subject-matter of the psalm; that David, observing how many pretended by their outward professions, Sacrifices and outward Ceremonial Observances to be true Church Members, &c. who yet did not walk answerably by Holyness and Righteousness in their Lives and Conversations, thereupon took Occasion to describe a true Citizen of Sion, a right Church-member indeed, by his godly and righteous life: that so no Hypocrites and meer Formalists in Religion might flatter and deceive themselves with meer empty pretences and shadows of Religion, without the life and power.

n Joan. Foord. in Expos. Psal. 15. tempus

And it is an Observation o, not to be neglected; That these three Psalmes, 14. 15. 16. seem purposely to be thus ordered; That in the first it may be taught, That all men by Nature are under Sin, and none can satisfie or exactly fulfill the Law of God: In the second, That not a shadow only, but the perfection of Obedience to the Law is required of God: To this the third, viz. Psal. 16. is subjoyned, which seeing perfect obedience cannot be performed of us, propoſeth Christ to be considered, who by his Passion and Obedience hath satisfied for us, and so is become the End of the Law to us for righteousness through believing, Rom. 10. 4.

Scope here intended, is; To propound by Divine Authority an Evident Character of a true Church member, viz. Of such a person, as in this world present shall sojourn in Gods Tabernacle, remain a while here as a Member in his Church Militant; and in the world to come shall dwell in his Holy Hill, abide for ever as Member in his Church Triumphant: Even he who leads a godly and righteous conversation. And consequently, this Psalme incites all to live well p. This Psalme (saith Calvin) teacheth upon what condition God chose the Jews to be a people to himself, and placed his Sanctuary in the midst of them: to wit, That they might, by living justly and rightly, testifie themselves to be his Peculiar and holy People q.

Sect. IV. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title hath in it, 1. The Denomination of this Scripture; A Psalme. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalme it self, is as a Dialogue betwixt David and the Lord: and contains,

I. Davids important and weighty Question, LORD who shall sojourn &c. that is, O LORD, who as a true Church-Member, shall converse and have Communion with thee in thy Church Militant, for a while, in this world present? and who shall enjoy eternal eternal bliss with thee in thy Church Triumphant in Heaven, in the world to come? The moving Tabernacle, being a Type of That: and the fixed place of Worship in Mount Sion, a Type of This. This Question is by David propounded to the LORD himself that the Solution thereof may, beyond all exception, be Authentique and Satisfactory, verse 1.

II. The LORD's satisfactory and most Authentique Solution or Answer, verse 2. &c. Which is, 1 Partly Doctrinal. 2 Partly Promissory.

1. Doctrinal. Teaching and declaring, who and what manner of person a true Church-member is and ought to be, and this by sundry Characters, or discoveries of a good life. viz. He must be one, I. Who towards God, walks perfect. That is, in true faith and obedience, without Guile and Hypocrisie, as Gen. 17. 1. Deut. 18. 13. Mat. 5. 48. II. Who towards man, doth exert and exercise true Love and all Acts of righteousness. And this, 1. By pursuing and practising the good, that may profit him. As 1 working righteousness. 2 Speaking truth sincerely, v. 2. 2. By declining & forbearing the evil, that may prejudice him. As, (1) slaundering by Tale-bearing. (2) Injuriousness, or wrong-doing. (3) Reproaching his neighbour, verse 3. (4) Flattery. Not covering the vallany and abominable wickedness of any ungodly wretches, having respect to them for their greatness, wealth, or any other worldly concernments, in a fawning flattering way: but contrarywise having a most high esteem of the true fearers of the LORD, as Acts 10. 34, 35. (5) Perjury, verse 4. (6) Usury. (7) Bribery, verse 5. begin.

2. Promissory. Promising to him that so walks as above, unmovable unshaken stability in the Church both in this world and for evermore, ver. 5.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occaſion and Scope.

The Kind of this Pſalme, 1. As to the Forme of Penning it, is: Entituled: Having this Title, according to the Hebrew prefixed; Michtam of David. This Title alſo, with ſome Additions, is prefixed to Pſalme 56. 57. 58. 59. 60. The Greek Verſion of the Lxxii ſeem to have read the Heb. word, not מכתם Miktam, but מכתב Miktab, The writing of Da: and they render it hereupon Στηλογραφία τῷ Δαυίδ, The writing or Inſcription to David, or of David; viz. An Inſcription in ſome ſolid matter, as Mettle, or Marble. Hence (as that learned A. Rivet k notes) ſome conjecture, That this Pſalme was engraven in Braſs or Marble, and ſo left by David as a Monument to the Levites divided by lots As among the Greeks and Latines, the verſes writ in honour of any one and cut in Marble were called Epigrams. And indeed this Pſalme is ſo Excellent, that it deſerves to be engraven on Mettle, Marble, or Pillars, or in Cedar, (Pſalmus cedro dignus) for the laſting and perpetual memory thereof. But becauſe this word is conſtantly in all the Titles of thoſe Pſalmes, invariably read מכתם Miktam, generally all Modern Writers l do follow Paulus Burgenſis his Interpretation: That Miktam ſignifies, An Ornament made of pureſt Gold, kept as a κειμήλιον, and worn about the neck: A Golden Chain, a Golden Jewel; And is derived from כתם Cetbem, which ſignifies, A Maſs of pureſt Gold, Fine-gliſtering-Gold, Pſal. 45. 10. Excellent Gold, moſt precious Gold; Or A Pearl. So that this Pſalme being ſtiled מכתם לדוד Miktam Le-David, denotes the ſingular Excellency of this Pſalme: As if it were called; Davids Golden-Pſalme, Davids-Pearl, Davids-Jewel, Davids-Delight, &c. And indeed this Pſalme well-deſerves this Encomium, this Denomination: being for the Matter of it moſt ſweet, delectable, excellent, ſublime, &c. touching Chriſt his Mediation, Humiliation, Exaltation, Reſurrection, &c. But there are ſome m who take this Miktam to refer rather to the Muſick, than to the Matter of the Pſalme: As if it denoted, , Either ſome Mufical Inſtrument; or, The beginning of ſome Famous and known Song according to the Tune or Note whereof this Pſalme was to be ſung, To which Calvin n inclines. However, hereby we may ſee how difficult it is to underſtand theſe Titles of Pſalmes perfectly. 2 As to the Argument or Subject-matter of this Pſalme, it is Mixt, being Petitory, Laudatory, and Prophetical. And it is an excellent Prophecy of CHRIST's Mediation, Death, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion; As the Apoſtles in the New Teſtament ſignifie to us, compare Pſal 16. verſ. 8, 9, 10, 11. with Acts 2. 25. to 32. and 13. 35, 36, 37. And as, thereupon, Interpreters do unanimouſly agree. To interpret it meerly of Chriſt, as ſome ſeem to do, will not be ſo juſtifiable: becauſe here are ſundry paſſages which do evidently agree to the Pſalmiſt. To expound it meerly and ſolely of David, would be repugnant to the Apoſtolical Interpretation. Therefore the middle way, betwixt theſe two Extreames, is moſt eligible, viz. To underſtand and interpret it of both David and CHRIST Of David immediately, as the Type of Chriſt, of whom according to the fleſh Chriſt came, and was then in his Loynes, Act. 2. 30. Of Chriſt himſelf mediately and principally as the Antitype of David, though in the current of the Pſalme the perſon is not diſtinctly changed from David to Chriſt. It may alſo be accommodated to the Church and people of God, who are to be conforme to Jeſus Chriſt both in Death, Burial, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion.

Some, have not impertinently, obſerved touching theſe three Pſalmes, 14. 15, 16. o That Pſal. 14. Convinceth all men of their Natural Corruption and Miſery, compare Pſal. 14. 2, 3, 4. with Rom. 3. 10, 11, 12. That Pſalme 15. requires in all true Churchmembers ſuch Qualifications, as are utterly beyond corrupt Natures ability and activity. And That this ſixteenth Pſalme directs to Jeſus Chriſt as Humbled and exalted; in order to the removal of our Natural miſery, and acquiring of ſupernatural felicity.

o H. Moller Arg. Pſ. 14.

Penman of this Pſalme was David, as the Title declares.

Occaſion of David's Penning it, is not particularly diſcovered and defined. But Interpreters p do conceive that David Penned it upon Occaſion of his great and grievous Oppreſſions under the Tyranny of Saul. And about that time, when David through fear of Saul fled into the Land of the Philiſtines, and about the fifth year of his Exile there, 1 Sam. 27. 1. This Opinion ſome embrace, from Davids Petition for preſervation, as committing himſelf of truſt unto the LORD peculiarly, verſ. 1. and from his prayſing the LORD, who gave him Counſel, his reins alſo inſtructing him in the night ſeaſons, ver. 7. which is by ſome interpreted, of Gods warning him by Oracle to fly into the Philiſtines Land, and of his going thither by the ſecret inſtinct of the Spirit of God in him. But having no certain Scripture-Information touching the Time and Occaſion of Davids writing it, we muſt leave it in ſuſpence. It being better to reſt doubtful of things ſecret, than to contend about things uncertain q.

Scope intended by David in this Pſalme, Is; To intreat the LORD God (His Lord, The portion of his Inheritance, and of his Cup, verſ. 1. 2, 5.) To preſerve and keep him in ſafety from all evils and enemies both in life & death, & for ever: Foraſmuch as he had placed his truſt upon the Lord, & not upon any thing of his own, & abhorred all falſe Gods & all manner of Idolatrous worſhip of them, &c. To bleſſe and praiſe the LORD, for his many Mercies already received: Triumphing with hope and joy of Gods protection, preſence and guidance both in Life and Death, and for ever. And under theſe things To prophecy of Chriſts Mediation, Humiliation, even to Death and Grave, (but not to ſee Corruption there) And his Exaltation by his Reſurrection from the Dead, and Glorification of him at Gods right hand, with fulneſs of joy and endleſs pleaſures in the higheſt Heavens, In which Humiliation and Exaltation David and all the Members of Chriſts Myſtical Body ſhall be conforme unto him, as Rom. 8. 17. Sect. IV. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

The Title repreſents to us. 1. The Denomination of this writing; Michtam. Of this word, ſee formerly in Sect. 3. 2. The Penman of it; David.

The Pſalme it ſelf principally conſiſts of David's 1. Prayer, 2. Praiſe, and 3. Profeſſion of truſt or affiance in the LORD againſt all evils.

I. David's Prayer is contained ver. 1. to 5. wherein note;

1. The Mercy prayed for, Gods Conſervation or Preſervation of him: viz. His conſtant and univerſal preſervation of him throughout his whole life. This preſervation comprehends All the effects of Gods Providence, eſpecially of his ſpecial Providence over his owne, but principally eternal life, which is to be expected from none other. This Mercy is amplyfied, 1. By the efficient Cauſe, or Author of it; The-ſtrong-God, אל. Jehovah. As Aquila and Theodotion render it, 2. By the Subject Recipient, for whom this preſervation is begged, viz. David himſelf; me.

2. The arguments whereby this his Petion is urged. As, I. Becauſe, His hope-for-ſafety is in the LORD God. Wherein conſider, 1. The Act of his Affiance; I truſt, I-hope-for-ſafety. 2. The Object whereupon his Affiance is repoſed; in thee. Which (ſaid ſome) is emphatical, and though it do not expreſs, yet it notably implyes an excluſive; in thee onely, ver. 1. II. Becauſe, The LORD is his Lord. There's a dear mutual Relation and Obligation between them. III. Becauſe, David renounceth all his own worth, diſclaimeth all his own good, relying on the LORD's meer Grace and Goodneſſe, ver. 2. IV. Becauſe, David deports himſelf towards men, Good or Bad, differently and as becomes him in the ſight of God, 1. Towards the Good, he behaves himſelf with a benevolent Affection. Here conſider, 1 The Deſcription of theſe Good. Partly, By their Sanctity: to the Saints on Earth. Thus they are diſtinguiſhed from the Saints in Heaven. Partly, By their eminency and peculiar excellency above others, as Pſal. 45. 13. 2 His Affection to theſe Saints, &c. All my delight in them, viz. To aſſociate with them, to do good to them, &c. ver. 3. 2. Towards the Bad, he behaves himſelf with vehement abhorrency and deteſtation of their Impiety and Idolatry. Here, (1) Theſe bad are deſcribed. By their Idolatrous practices; they haſten after another God, or rather, as the Hebrew word ſignifies, they exchange their God, viz. they endow him with Gifts, Sacrifices, Worſhip, &c. This is Idolatry againſt the firſt Commandment. (2) The miſchief of Idolatry upon Idolaters is pointed out; Their ſorrowes ſhall be multiplied. (3) The Pſalmiſts renouncing of all Commerce or Communion with Idolaters, both in their Idolatrous Worſhip and Sacrifices; their drink-offerings of blood will I not offer. And in the very Profeſſion or ſhew thereof, or naming them with the least approbation; nor take up their names into my lips.

II. Davids praiſing and bleſſing the LORD, is laid down, ver. 5. to 8. in ſundry thankful Acknowledgments to the Lord. Here we have.

1. His act of bleſſing the LORD reſolved upon. This is interwoven among his Arguments of Praiſe.

2, The Arguments or Motives inducing him to praiſe the LORD, are drawn from the benefits conferred upon him. And they are of two ſorts, I. Such benefits as are without him, which yet he enjoyeth and uſeth. As, 1. The LORD's becoming the Portion of his Inheritance and of his Cup: viz. Giving himſelf to him: and with himſelf all ſufficiency of neceſſary good things. 2. The LORD's Conſervation or Suſtentation of his lot beſtowed upon him, verſe 5. 3. The pleaſantneſs of his Inheritance or poſſeſſion ſet out to him by line, verſe 6. Thus, the Author and ſuſtainer of all good things, and the Elegant deſcription of them, is repreſented in a threefold Metaphor drawn from (1) An Inheritance, (2) A Lot, (3) A Poſſeſſion: which referre to the ſame thing, viz. to an Inheritance, which is, 1 Acquired, 2 Divided by lot, and line. 3 Retained and poſſeſſed. And all thereby have in God. II. Such benefits as were within him, viz. 1. The Lord's illumination of his mind, by Counſelling him, viz. touching God, and all his benefits conferred upon him. 2. His inward reins, viz. his will and ſecreteſt Affections (by the inſpiration and ſanctification of Gods Spirit) nurturing and inſtructing him in the nights (viz. in fitteſt and freeſt ſeaſons for ſerious Meditations,) to elect and acquieſce in God, &c. verſe 7. The ſenſe of theſe Metaphorical phraſes and expreſſions, are very appoſitely interpreted by that learned Rivet u, herein worthy to be conſulted by the diligent and inquiſitive Reader.

III. Davids Profeſſion of his hope and truſt in the LORD continually, againſt all evils and enemies, yea againſt Death and Grave, ver. 8. &c. (Here, David being an eminent Type of Chriſt, prefigures and foretells prophetically, Chriſts Humiliation even unto Death and Grave, yet not to ſee corruption; and Chriſts Exaltation in riſing from the Dead, Aſcending into Heaven, and being Glorified at Gods right hand: unto whom herein both David and all his elect Members muſt be conformed)

This his hope and truſt in the LORD, is I. Propounded: I ſet the LORD alwaies before my face. II. Confirmed, by the Reaſon of it; viz. God's protecting preſence at his right hand, to help, to ſuccour, preſerve and comfort him. III. Illuſtrated or Amplified by the effects of the LORD's Protection confided in, viz. 1. Immoveable ſecurity from all dangers and evils, and ſtability of all felicity of body and ſoul; I ſhall not be moved, ver. 8. 2. Support and Comfort even againſt Death it ſelf, through hope of his Reſurrection, founded upon Chriſts Reſurrection and Exaltation, ver. 9, 10, 11. Here, (1) His comfort againſt Death is illuſtrated, by the fruits thereof in this life; Rejoycing, in his heart. Exultation in his Glory, his tongue. And after this life, The reſting of his fleſh in hope, ver. 9. (2) The ground of this his Comfort, Chriſts Reſurrection, is deſcribed; Partly, By Gods ſpeedy delivering of his Soul, (i.e. either his Life, or his dead Body,) from Hell x, i.e. from Grave, or power and ſtate of death? Thou wilt not leave my Soul in Hell: ſo long as others. Partly, By

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David I. Craves audience, verse 1. to 5. II. Prays for, 1. Protection against his Enemies, verse 5. to 13. 2. Deliverance from them, verse 13. to the end.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

A Prayer of David.

1. O LORD, do thou my a just-cause hear,
Attend unto my-cry:
Unto my Prayer lend-an ear,
b From lips that do not lye.
2. c Forth from thee let my judgment flow;
Let thine eyes view d the right.
3. Mine heart examined hast thou,
Hast visited me by night:

e Thou-hast-me-accurately-tride,
But found'st no faultiness:
I purposed (through thee my Guide)
My Mouth shall not transgress.
4. Touching the works of earthly-men,
By thy lips holy word
I have observ'd-and-kept me clean
From f spoylers paths abhorr'd.

5. Stay thou my goings steadily
In thy g paths-beaten-plain,
That so my foot-steps constantly
h Unmoved may remain.
6. O God, for-that thou wilt me hear,
To thee I call and pray:
To me do thou incline thine ear,
O hear what-I-do-say.

7. Thy mercies i wondrously-disclose,
Thou that k the faithful band
From those that up against them rose
Dost save by thy right-hand.
8. As tender l Apple of the eye
Me keep from harmful things,
Do thou conceal-me-secretly
In shadow of thy wings,

9. From face of wicked that me waste,
Of these my m deadly foes.
Which round about me compass-cast.
10. n Their-fat doth them inclose,
They with their mouth do o proudly speak.
11. They now did us surround
In our foot-steps: Their eyes they p make
To bend-down to the ground.

12. To Lyon-fierce q their likeness sits,
That greedy is to teare,
And as a lurking-Lyon sits r In holes that secret are.
13. Rise-up, s him disappoint, O LORD,
O make-him-down-to bow:
And from the wicked-one, Thy Sword,
My soul deliver thou,

14. From mortal-men, thine Hand, O LORD,
From mortal-men of strife
Of this t frail-world; That-up have stor'd
Their Portion in this u life:
x Whose womb thou fill'st with thine hid-store,
Repleniss'h'd are their sonnes
And they lay-up y what-they-have-more
For all their-little-ones.

In righteousness shall see;
When with thine image I awake,

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, Occasion and Scope.

This psalm is, 1. As to the Form of it Entituled; 2. As to the Matter of it; A Prayer; as both the Title, and Series of the psalm evidence.

Penman of it, was David.

Occasion particular is not clearly apparent: Probably David took occasion, (through the guidance of Gods Spirit, to pen it,) from the causelesse and cruel hatred, malice and persecutions of King Saul z, or some other his bitter enemies. And it is supposed to be written about that time when David first fled from King Sauls Court, for safety of his own life. Of which see 1 Sam. 20. 41, &c a.

David's Scope in this Prayer is: to intreat the LORD's protection against, and deliverance from all his fierce cruel persecuting Enemies, which are only the Hand and Sword of the LORD, see ver. 8. to 15.

Sect. IV. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title declares, 1. The Nature, or Kind of this psalm; A Prayer. 2. The Penman; David. Onely this Psalm 17. and Psal. 86. are thus entituled.

The Substance of this psalm, is David Prayer. Herein

I. David begs Audience, That the LORD would attend to him and to his Cause. This he urgeth from, 1. The righteousnesse of his Cause. 2. The sincerity of his Prayer, v. 1, 2. 3. His own integrity, both 1 In heart, 2 In word, And 3 in actions: Confirmed by Gods own Experimental and accurate probation of him, v, 3, 4.

II. David Prays more particularly, For Gods Protection against, and Deliverance from his enemies. I. The LORD's Protection petitioned for, is (1) Branched out into sundry particular requests, As, 1. That his steps may be stablished in Gods paths from sliding, or moving, v. 5. 2. That his special request may be granted, verse 6. 3. That Gods Protecting-Mer-

Mercies may be made manifest

Psalm XVIII.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David, delivered from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul his grand enemy, in testimony of his singular thankfulness, declares; I. His endeared affection to the LORD, v. 1. II. His triumphant confidence in the LORD, v. 2. III. His enlarged Praises of the LORD for his deliverance, v. 3, &c. Describing, 1. The Depth of his Miseries, v. 4, 5. 2. The way or manner how the LORD delivered him, v. 6 to 29. 3. His Prosecution of this deliverance, v. 29 to 43. 4. The enlargement also of his Kingdom, v. 43 to 46. 5. His protestations of gratitude, verse 46. to the end.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master-Musician, A Song of the Servant of the LORD, of David, who spake to the LORD the words of this Song, in the day the LORD had delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul, And he said;

I.

1. O LORD, my strength, a Ile-love-thee-dear.
2. The LORD's my Rock, b my fortress
My God, and my Deliverer, (tryde,
My Rock in whom I will c confide:

My shield, Of my Salvation
The Horn likewise, My Refuge high.
3. The praised LORD I call'd upon,
And saved from my foes was I.

4. Me fright did streams of d Belial,
And e pangs of death about-me-went.
5. Surround me did the pangs of Hell,
The Snares of Death did me prevent.

6. I in my straits call'd on the Lord,
And to my God cry'd in my fears:

II.

7. His secret place he did make darkness, h tents,
About him round his Pavilion was.
i Dark waters, clouds of the skies store,
In thicks shrouds of the sky store.

8. From shining [illegible] was clear,
Before his presence were k hail-fire,
His thicked clouds away did pass,
Hail-stones, and burning coals of fire.

9. And in the heavens also thundred
The LORD, l the highest his voice gave,
Hail-stones and burning coales of fire.

10. Yea he did send his Arrows out,
And he l did them disperse about,
And forth his Lightnings he did shoot,
And n dreadfully he brought them under.

11. The waters channels then appear'd,
And world's foundations bare did
At thy rebuke, O LORD, were par'd,
At blast o'r of thy nostrils breath.

III.

16. He from on-high sent, did me take,
From o waters great me draw did he.
17. From my strong foe me free did make,
p From mine haters, too strong for me.

18. q They me surprized in my dark day,
Yet was the LORD a staff to me.
19. r Because in me his pleasure lay,
He s me enlarg'd, he set me free.

20. According to my righteousness
Me recompensed hath the LORD;
According to mine hands pureness,
To me he rendred a reward.

21. For I the Lord's paths kept aright,
Nor from my God t did lewdly stray.
22. For all his judgments x in my sight,
x Nor turn'd I from his statutes way.

23. Likewise with him before his Eye
I perfect was, in heart sincere,
And I from mine iniquity
Did keep my self with greatest care.

24. According to my righteousness
The Lord rewarded me likewise,
According to the y spotlessness
Of my pure hands before his eyes.

25. With gracious gracious-be-wilt-thou;
With perfect man, deal'st perfectly.
26. With pure, thy self-thou-pure-wilt-shew;
And with the froward wilt-be-wry.

27. For, folk afflicted save wilt thou,
But lofty eyes thou so shalt bring.
z Heb. or Candle. 28. For, thou my z Lamp hast lighted anew,
My Lord God made my darkness bright.

And did by thee run through an Hoast.

And perfect d makes my way I tried.

Bestow'd on me likewise thou hast:
And thy right-hand hath me upheld,
And me thy meekness hath f increast.

f heb. multiplyed. 36. g My steps wide under me didst make.
Mine Ancles also did not slide.
g Heb thou didst enlarge my passage under me. 37. My foes I did pursue, and h take;
Nor turn'd, i till them I had destroy'd.

h Heb. overtake them. i Heb. till I had made an end of them. 38. I wounded them, k they could not rise:
They did fall down beneath my feet.

Unto the War with valour meet:

Thou under me didst-make-to-bow,

Yea me thou hast advanc'd indeed
From them-that up-against-me-rose;

u Heb. I will Praise thee. 49. Therefore O LORD u thy-praise-proclaime
Among the Heathen-folk will I,
And unto thy renowned Name
I will sing psalm triumphingly.

Make great; And mercy doth display
To David his Annointed-one
And to his Covenant-Seed, for aye.

x Heb. magnifyeth the salvations

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, Occasion, and Scope.

The Kind of this Excellent Song, recorded also in 2 Sam. 22. 1, &c. some few words being changed, is; 1. As to the Form of it; Entituled. 2. As to the Subject matter of it, is chiefly made up of Praises and thankful acknowledgements to God, with the intermixture of some Prophetical Predictions, v. 43. 44. 45. 49. Rom. 15. 8, 9. So that it is of a mixed Nature: Eucharistical and Prophetical.

Penman of it, was David.

The Occasion, The LORD's delivering of him at last from all his enemies, and especially from King Saul his most constant, cruel, & mortal enemy. The time when: viz. In the day of his deliverance. Compare the Title with 2 Sam. 22. 51. and 23. 1. whence it seems more than probable, that David penned this Song not long before his Death, after God had setled his Kingdom: for immediately after this Song it is there said; Now these are the last words of David. This Song then is a thankful Abstract, or, Abridgement of David's, Triumphs over all his enemies not long before his Death: Davids Victory, or Victorial Song; wherein he most thankfully commemorates the Power, Wisdom, Justice, Goodness, Providence and Benefits of God, manifested to him throughout his life.

y Hen. Muller. in Prolest. ad Ps. 18. Argum. Sim. de Muis in Arg. Ps. 18.

Davids Scope here intended, is; With triumphing thankfulness to praise God for his full deliverance from King Saul, and from all his enemies before his death: and for enlarging his Kingdom even unto the Gentiles, which he hopes shall be still increased, v. 43, 44, 45. Herein David was a notable Type of Jesus Christ z, the great King of Jews and Gentiles, who should at last subdue and tread all his enemies under his feet, and settle his Spiritual Kingdom in everlasting peace even among the Gentiles also. Thus Paul applyes this Song to Christ: compare v. 43, 44, 45, 49. with Rom. 15. 8, 9.

z Jo. Calv in Arg. Ps. 18. Hen. Moller in Arg. Ps. 18. D. Paræus in Advers. in Ps. 18.

Sect. IV, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title of this Song, are; 1. The Musical direction of it. 2. The Denomination of it; A Song or, psalm: for the word is wanting in the Hebrew. 3. The Penman; David, the servant of the LORD. 4. The occasion; The Lords deliverance of him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. 5. The time when he spake these words; In the day wherein the LORD delivered him.

In the Body of this Song, here are in reference to Davids deliverances,

I. Davids most dear and inward affection to the LORD, his strength, v. 1.

II. Davids triumphant confidence in the LORD, described here by an heap of sweet Metaphorical expressions; Rock, Fortified-Refuge, &c. setting forth the All-sufficient Protection, safety and deliverance which he had in and from God, whereupon his Faith still relyed, v. 2.

III. Davids thankful Praises to God for his Deliverances from his enemies, when he called upon the praised LORD, v. 3. Herein David, I. Points out Emphatically his deep misery in which he was involved, v. 4, 5. II. Declares how the LORD delivered him out of all these miseries by degrees, viz. 1. By hearing

hearing his Prayer, verſ. 6. 2. By many Miraculous and glorious tokens of Gods preſence, more favourable to David, than moſt terrible to his enemies, verſ. 7. to 16. 3. By the wonderfulneſs of his deliverance, David (like another Jonah, chap. 2. 6.) as drawn out of many waters, verſ. 16. 4. By the Cauſes of the LORD's thus delivering him, (1) Impulſive, Gods pleaſure and delight in David, verſ. 19. (2) Meritorious, That hereby the Lord might graciously reward him according to his innocency and integrity before him; God being wont to deal with men according to their deportments towards him, verſe 20. to 28. III. Triumphs most thankfully and joyfully for theſe his Deliverances, in many Heroick and Elegant Expreſſions, like a mighty Conqueror victoriously trampling upon the necks of all his enemies, verſ. 28. to 43. IV. Acknowledgeth not only his deliverance from his enemies, but alſo the Enlargement of his Kingdom even to the Heathen, who hearing of his fame did quake and ſubmit to him, wherein he was a ſpecial Type of Chriſt, whoſe Kingdom over the Gentiles, as well as Jews, is here prophetically foretold, verſ. 43. to 46. V. Concludeth all, with ſweet Proteſtions of preſent, and Promiſes of future gratitude: not only gratefully, but Prophetically, verſe 46. to the end, compared with Rom. 15. 8, 9.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occaſion.

This excellent Pſalme is of a Mixt Kind, made up of Doctrine and Prayer.

Penman of it, David.

Occaſion of Davids Penning it is not laid down here, or elſewhere: and therefore it is hard to be certainly determined. The Apoſtle Paul in Rom. 10. 18. alledgeth part of verſe 4. according to the Greek Verſion of the LXXII Interpreters, thus; But I ſay, have they not heard? yes verily, Their ſound went into all the Earth, and their words unto the ends the of World. Hence, ſome Expoſitors x underſtanding this of Paul touching the Sound or Preaching of the Goſpel, have underſtood the firſt part of this Pſalme Allegorically, turning it into an Allegory. But what need is there of flying here to Allegories. For we may ſay; 1. Either, That the Apoſtles Allegation is only an Alluſion to that of the Pſalmiſt. That as the Pſalmiſt ſaid of the Heavens, Firmament, Day and Night; That their line is gone out into all the Earth, &c. ſo it may be ſaid of the Preaching of the Goſpel to the Gentiles by the Apoſtles, That their word is gone out to the ends of the world. See Act. 2. 4, 5, &c. Rom. 15. 19. Paul himſelf had preached the Goſpel round about from Jeruſalem to Illyricum, which (as Parens noteth) is above

As in Mat. 2. 15, 23. 2 Cor. 8. 14, 15. compared with Exod. 16. 28. 2. Or rather 3. That the Apoſtle doth properly alledge both Phraſe and Senſe of this Text to prove, That God had preached himſelf, his Glory, Power, &c. by his works of Creation univerſally to all the Gentiles. Which Preaching, though it were not fully ſufficient to their ſalvation, much leſſe abundant meanes thereto, as ſome a have londly doted: yet, being not fully followed by the Gentiles, it ſhall be ſufficient to their Damnation, and to the leaving of them without excuſe, Rom. 1. 18, 19, 20, 21, &c. Acts 14, 15, 16, 17.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Pſalme is, 1. Partly, To teach and declare, How the Nature, Glory, Power, and Excellencies of God are diſplaid, Generally unto all the World by the Ordinary Book of Nature, eſpecially by the Heavens, the Revolution of day and night, The Motion and Influence of the Sun: Particularly unto the Church by the Extraordinary and Supernatural Book of Scripture, far more clear and perfect than the Book of Nature: and without which the Book of Nature is not effectual to Salvation. 2. Partly, To begg of the LORD cleanſing from ſecret ſinnes, Preſervation from preſumptuous ſinnes, And acceptation of his addreſſes to God.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The direction of this Pſalme as to the Muſick of it. 2. The Denomination of it; A Pſalme. 3. The Penman; David.

In the Body or Subſtance of this Pſalme, are 1. Doctrine, touching God. 2. Prayer, unto God.

I. Doctrine touching God: viz, How God reveales himſelf to be known and worſhiped, and the twofold way thereunto, Natural, and Supernatural, in his two great Books or Volumes: In his Book of Nature, by his Works or Creatures; In his Book Supernatural. His Word and Scriptures. In that, more darkly, to all Man-kind: In this, more clearly, to the Church onely.

1. Gods Glory revealed in the Book of the Creatures, is ſet forth by inſtances of ſome Particular Creatures, on which the Glory of God is more eminently enſtamped. As, 1. The Heavens. 2. The out-ſpread firmament, verſ. 1. 3. The Seaſons of Day and Night, ordered by the conſtant Revolutions of the Heavens. Speech, words, &c. by an elegant Proſopopeia being aſcribed to them, becauſe they conſtantly and univerſally (all the wide World) over diſplay Gods glory, verſ. 2, 3, 4. 4. The Sun, that illuſtrious part of the Heavens, elegantly deſcribed, 1 By his place, 2 By his glorious Ornament. 3 By his ſpeedy courſe and Motion round about the Heavens. 4 By his all-piercing Heat and Influence, verſ. 5, 6.

2. Gods Glory revealed in the Book of Scriptures, the Word and Law of God, is ſet forth more fully and clearly, to the Church. This Law or Word of God is I. Poſitively deſcribed by ſix ſeveral Denominations or Titles; Amplified by ſix ſeveral Properties, and ſix ſeveral Effects towards us. Every Title having his peculiar Property and ſpecial effect remarkably appropriated thereunto reſpectively, ver. 7, 8, 9. II. Comparatively preferred before, 1. Gold, much fine Gold, for worth: (Gold of Havilah, Gen. 2. 11, 12. of Ophir, 1 King. 9. 21. or of Uphaz, which is chief of all, Jer. 10. 9. Dan. 10. 5. Job 28. 15. Pſal. 119. 72.) 2. Honey, or Liquor of Honey-Combes for ſweetneſs, ver. 10. III. Notably commended, 1. From his own preſent advantage by the Word, clearly warning him, 2. From the future great recompence that ſhall be to all right obſervers of the Word, verſ. 11.

II. Prayer unto God, occaſioned upon conſideration of this exactneſſe, purity and perfection of the Word of God. Herein are, 1. An emphatical confeſſion of every mans unintelligible errours, laid down by way of Interrogation. 2. A threefold earneſt Petition, 1. For cleanſing from ſecret faults, ver. 12. 2. For Preſervation from proud preſumptuous ſins, and their dominion over him, urged from the ſpiritual commodity that would thence enſue to him, viz. Partly, Hereby, his integrity ſhould be diſcovered. Partly, hereby his guilt of much or great treſpaſe ſhould be prevented, ver. 13. 3. For acceptation of his words and meditations before the LORD, acknowledged to be his Rock, on whom he relied for ſafety; and his Redeemer, from whom he expected all ſpiritual deliverance, ver. 14.

Or (as that learned Rivet b hath obſerved) This Mixt Pſalm is Partly Doctrinal, Partly Petitory, it teacheth the true Knowledge and Worſhip of God: and ſhewes the twofold way of bringing man thereunto; viz. The whole Frame of Nature; and the divine Revelation to the Prophets. Both which he ſo conjoynes, that he may enough ſhow the firſt to be inſufficient without the ſecond, in mans lapſed and corrupt ſtate: the ſecond to be neceſſary that the firſt may be profitable, and that from both we may draw things conducible to our ſalvation. And becauſe, even after Gods benigne Revelation of Sacred Doctrine in Holy Scriptures, yet our defects and infirmities both in Knowledge and Practice remain, The Prophet after humble acknowledgment of his weakneſs, adds Prayers for remiſſion of ſins, and increaſe of Grace and divine Protection.

b Andr. Rivet. in Argum. & c. Pſal. 19.

Whence we collect, That the whole Pſalme may moſt commodiouſly be diſtributed into three Parts, according to the threefold ſchool, to which he calls and leads us by his Example.

1. The firſt Part treats of the Firſt School, or Kind of Inſtruction, which is univerſal or common to all men, by the Contemplation of the Creatures.

2. Of the particular School, proper to the Church, with whom God hath depoſited-in-truſt his Oracles, which he hath not done to any Nation without the Church.

3. Of the School, of ſpecial Grace, inward, effectual, ſolid and perpetual, which is referred to the Unction of the Spirit, which teacheth us all things in a true and ſaving way. So he.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion.

This Pſalme as to the Kinde of it, is A Prayer of the Church for her King, for King David eſpecially Penman of it was David, who ſpeaks of himſelf here in the third perſon: David, as a Prophet, is guided by the Spirit to direct the Church to pray for him, as King.

Occaſion, probably was Davids encountring with divers ſtrong and well-armed Enemies as the Ammonites and Syrians g, who came againſt him with many Chariots and Horſes, wherein they truſted, whereof they boaſted: which yet David notably took and deſtroyed. Compare verſe 7, 8. with 2 Sam. 10. and 1 Chron. 19.

And to raiſe Iſrael, to have a principal regard to the proſperity of Chriſt and his ſpiritual Kingdom againſt all oppoſing evils and enemies, under the Type of David and his temporal Kingdome: as Calvin h hath well obſerved.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion.

This pſalm is of a mixt Kind, made up of Praiſe and Prayer, but chiefly of Praiſe. And as the former pſalm was penned to be a Form of Prayer to the Church touching her King, &c. So this pſalm is Penned as a Form of Praiſe and Thankſgiving, wherwith the King and the Church might thankfully exalt Gods praiſes for his great and manifold goodneſſe to be King againſt all his enemies o. And under this Kingdom, Glorious Majeſty, the Enemies, Victories, &c. of David, ſeem here to be ſhadowed out, the Kingdom, Glory, Enemies, Conqueſts, &c. of Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, that true David, that King of Kings, wherein the Church of God eſpecially triumpheth p. That paſſage of, Life for ever and aye, ver. 4. ſeems to have its moſt proper accompliſhment in Chriſt.

David was Penman of this pſalm. He ſpeaks of himſelf in the third Perſon, as directing the Church by his Spirit of Prophecy how to bleſs God for him.

The Occaſion is not particularly pointed out, but from the Subject-matter of the pſalm it is very probable, it was Penned upon Occaſion of Gods advancing David to the Regal Throne, & putting a Royal Crown of Fine-Gold upon his Head, notwithſtanding the malevolence of all his Enemies. See verſe 2, 3, 4, &c.

The Scope of this Pſalm is, To Praiſe and Magnifie the LORD for his ſingular Salvation and manifold Benedictions vouchſafed according to their earneſt Prayer in Pſalme 20. unto David their King, and to expreſſe their Confidence of the Deſtruction of all Gods and his Enemies.

Sect. II. The Title, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm's Title is a Royal Memorial of Prayer, or, A Prayer; A Prayer of Prayer, or, A Prayer of Prayer.

David, (as subduing the Person of Christ, of whom he was an Embleme, type, A Prayer (Tit.) This suites a Psalm of prayer.

The occasion of his penning is uncertain. But it is a very clear and Authentick Prophesy of Christ, and his Deep Humiliation in sundry degrees, with the fruits thereof. He is to be considered, Partly of David as the Type of Christ, and so things therein being applicable to David, (but principally of Christ himself, most perfectly therein being prayer and Psalm unto Christ alone, or to Christ more than to David, or, before, or, without, or, against Christ) and partly of Christ himself. For, [illegible] some Expressions in this Psalm [illegible] Compare v. 1. with Matth. 27. 46. and Mark. 15. 34. Christ's Enemies also [illegible] some speech with him; compare v. 8. with Matth. 27. 43. The Evangelists and Apostles accommodate others to Christ; compare ver. 7. with Matth. 27. [illegible] ——and v. 16. with Mat. 27. 30. Mark 15. 24. Luke 23. 33. John 19. 23. 37. ——and v. 18. with Luke 23. 34. John 19. 24. ——and verse 22. with Heb. 2. 12.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope is, Prophetically to foretell their deep Humiliation & extream sufferings of Jesus Christ, He being Prophetically represented, as Complaining and Lamenting sadly under his Sufferings, and as intreating the LORD God his Father not to leave him in these his extream straits, but seasonably to deliver him out of all, that the Jewes should see his Exaltation and Deliverance, mayabound both among Jews and Gentiles.

Sect. IV. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Direction of the psalm as to the Musick of it. 2. The matter, or subject of it; upon Ajeleth Hashachar, The Hind of the Morning. Christ, as some Expound it: Or it denotes some Musical Tune or Instrument, as others. 3. The Denomination; A psalme. 4. The Penman; David.

In the Body of the psalm, of this choice Prophetical Prayer, which is a clear and lively Representation of Christ Crucified, we have

1. Christ's earnest Prayer to his God in his deep Humiliation, importunately begging, 1. That he might not be deserted or forsaken of his God in his extream distresses, v. 1. to 19. This is Amplified and urged by many sad complaints interwoven with a Narrative of his great Sufferings, As, 1. His Desertion in some sort in his straits by his God, ver. 1. 2. His Prayers unsuccessfulnesse: Though presented with 1 Faith, 2 Fervency, and 3 Constancy, v. 1, 2. And directed to 1 God, 1 Holy in Himself; 2 In Covenant with Israel, and thereupon inhabiting Israels Praises, 3 And a tryed Succorer of Saints of old trusting in him and Praying to him, v. 3, 4, 5. 3. His great Humiliation; A Worm, &c. 4. His extream contempt from men, v. 6. 5. His Taunts and scornes from them, ver. 7. 6. His confidence in God is upbraided by them: but yet their upbraiding is condemned, and his Confidence confirmed by former Experiences of Gods goodnesse to him, verse 8. to 12. 7. His Apprehension and Condemnation by them: they for their might, multitude, and brutishnesse, being likened to many Bullocks and strong Bulls of Bashan; For their cruelty, to a rending and roaring Lion, verse 12, 13. 8 His Passion; Crucifixion, z Here in the Hebrew are two Readings. In most Copies in the Text כארי As a Lyon, my hands &c. In the Margine כרו (or כארו the letter א being redundant per Epenthesin, for כרו) They, digged, or pierced mine hands, &c. which makes perfect sence, and agrees with the Story of the New Testament Mat. 27. 35 Mar. 15. 24 Luk 23. 33 Joh. 19. 23, 37.

on, z piercing his Hands and his Feet; and other concomitant and consequent evils, As their Staring upon him, Parting his Garments, Casting Lots upon his Vesture; ver. 14. to 19. II. That He might be rescued and delivered from all these miseries. This is urged by Arguments drawn, 1. From God, accounted and relyed upon as his Strength, ver. 19. 2. From the Nature of his afflicting Persecutors, Metaphorically compared to A Sword, A Dog, The Lions mouth. 3. From his own former Experience of Gods hearing him in Extreamest hazards, verse 20, 21.

II. Christs zealous praises promised to God upon assurance of his grant of his former requests, v. 22. to the end. Herein note, 1. The promise of thankfulnesse, v. 22. 2. The performance of this promise, Set forth, By his inciting the Church to Gods praises with him ver. 23. By his Exemplary praises for their imitation. By sundry cogent Arguments perswading hereunto: As, His respect to his Afflictions; His Hearing of his Cry; His Spiritual Feasting of the Meek, &c. with the satiating sufferings of Christ; And His giving Eternal Life to his own in Christ, verse 24, 25, 26. 3. A Prophetical Prediction, 1 Of the Conversion of the Gentiles, in all Nations, to the LORD, verse 27. 2 Of the Kingdom of Christ the LORD over all; both Rich, and Poor; The fat-ones of the Earth, and them that dwell in the dust, next step to death, and not able to help themselves, ver. 28, 29. 3 Of a Seed, and a Generation which the LORD Christ shall have, to serve him, and declare his Righteousnesse to posterity, verse 30, 31.

Job. 19. 23, 37. And both the Vatican and Alexandrian Septuagint, render it, ὤρυξαν, &c. They digged my hands, &c. This Marginal Reading is followed as the truer, by most. And some Learned Writers confesse that כרו or כארו hath been found in some Ancient Copies כארי in the Margin: And yet כארי by a Grammar Anomalie, may signifie the same that כרו They pierced. Such Anomalies being sometimes found in the Hebrew Text, As Ezra 10. 16. 44. Psal. 10. 15. Brough. Richardson in Psal. 22. 16. The Chaldee Paraphrast, and some others, joyne both readings together, thus: As a Lion they pierced my hands, &c. Mordentes-sicut-Leo-manus, &c. But this may not be allowed.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

The sweet and comfortable Psalme is Doctrinal and Eucharistical. David was Penman of it. The Occasion not particularly described: yet probably was, the tranquility and Prosperity of his Regal condition; when now his enemies being subdued, his Kingdom was calmed and established in his hands, all satisfying blessings with Peace, surrounding him on every side. For, as one k well observes, Here are neither Prayers nor Complaints of any enemies, evils or miseries: but meer thanksgivings for the affluence o Gods blessings, with hopes of the like for the future.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein, is, Under the pleasant Allegory of A Shepheard and A Sheep, Thankfully to Teach and Declare (in the person of David, sustaining the person of the faithful,) How safe, comfortable, and universally happy their condition is (though in greatest wants and dangers,) who have the Lord as their Shepheard, Providing for them, Conducting and Protecting them. How applicable also it is to the Lord Christ the great Shepherd of the Sheep, Heb. 13. 20. who laid down his life for his Sheep, to redeem them from Death, the Devil and all misery, John 10. 15. brings them into his fold, John 10. 16. feeding them with the fatnesse of his house, and filling them with all temporal and spiritual blessings.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title (the same with that of Psal. 15. &c. See on Psal. 15. Sect. 3.) denotes, 1. The Denomination, A Psalme. 2. The Penman, David.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occaſion.

This Pſalme ſeems to be of a mixt Kind or Nature, chiefly Doctrinal, but partly Prophetical. Penman of it was David; David's Pſalme. Occaſion is not ſo clearly laid down. But, from the matter of it, Some p do probably conjecture that it was compoſed upon occaſion of his bringing up of Gods Ark from the houſe of Obed-Edom to its place prepared for it, in Mount Sion, 2 Sam. 6. 17. which by the Prophet Nathan he had underſtood ſhould be the place where Solomons Temple ſhould be built.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The intended Scope of it may be conſidered, Literally and Myſtically. 1. Literally, according to the Letter and Type of the Ark, it is; to teach the Jews, That though the whole World be the LORD's Dominion, yet his ſpecial Kingdome was among them above all people in the World, affording them the Ark of his preſence in his holy Hill Sion. And therefore the Elders of Jeruſalem, as ſome q, or the Gates of the Temple, as others r think, are here ſpoken unto, that they may give all cheerful entertainment to the Ark, that ſpecial token of Gods preſence, Exod. 25. 21, &c. Num. 10. 35, 36. and 7, 8, 9. Pſal. 80. 1. and 99. 1. Some joyne both together ſ 2. Myſtically, According to the Spiritual Myſtery and Truth intended, it is; To ſet out the Kingdom of Chriſt, Generally over the whole World, but Peculiarly over his Church and Saints, deſcribed by their properties, and dignified with great priviledges; and to incite all to open the gates of their Hearts, with up-lifted joy, to entertain this King.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is a most Pathetical, affectionate, and zealous Prayer of the Psalmist, brought into some deep distresses and extream straits by reason of his Enemies. In regard of the outward Forme or Manner of writing it in the Hebrew, it is stiled An Alphabetical Psalme, and is the first Alphabetical Psalme in the whole book of Psalmes; It's called Alphabetical, because most of the Verses begin with the Letters according to the Order of the Hebrew Alphabet: Except verse 2. wherein the second word hath ב and verse 5. which hath in it two Hebrew Letters ק and ו and verse 18. which hath ר instead of ד and verse 22. which hath ד formerly used in ver. 16. All the rest of the verses are begun with the Letters of the Hebrew Alphabet in order. The like manner; but with some difference, is in six other Alphabetical Psalmes, viz. Psal. 34. 37. 111. 112. 119. 145. Whether this Alphabetical manner was intended, as any way subservient to the Musick, Or as an Help to memory only, or for some other end, is hard to determine, and the Rabbines confesse they are herein wholly to seek: But this is very evident & observable, that those Psalmes which in the Hebrew are penned in this Alphabetical Forme, are among the rest very choise and eminent. Hence also, The Metrical English Version of some Psalmes according to the Order of the English Alphabet, is not unjustifiable.

r Some, to make the Alphabetical Order perfect in this Psalm would have the verses so set not to be rightly distinguished: As the 2. and 5th, and קוב seem wanting in the beginning of ver 8. And the last verse to be only the latter part of the foregoing verse. Richardson on Psal. 25. ſ Sim. de Muis in Argument. ad Psal. 25.

Penman of this Psalme was David, as the Title shewes.

The Occasion of this Psalme in the General seems to be, Some great distresse that befell him from his Enemies oppressing him. See verse 2, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. But whether David Penned this Psalme particularly, upon Occasion of Sauls Hostile persecutions of him; or of his own son Absalom's rebellion against him, (which ſ some think most probable, from verse 11. Thou wilt pardon mine iniquity for it is much, or great: which is thought to have reference to his Sin in the Matter of Urijah, rather then to his numbring of the people, or any other sin;) or of some other enemies opposition: is very hard positively to Determine.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended, is; To intreat the Lord's Protection against, and Deliverance from, all his deep distresses, and hiner enemies occasioning them: As also to beg the LORD's gratuitous Pardons of all his iniquities, procuring justly these sharp Castigations.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalme consider, 1. The Inscription; Of David. This is the first Psalme having merely this Title. The Selah some Interpose is prefixed to Psal. 26, 27, 28, 39, 140, 143, and to divers others with some Additions. This Title declares David to be Penman of these Psalmes. 2. The Substance of the Psalme is Holy Prayer. A most excellent heavenly Prayer. Wherein is

I. Davids Petition addressed to the LORD; with
1. For the LORD's Protection of David against his enemies; That he might not be ashamed and confounded by them, nor they maliciously have occasion to triumph over him. This is urged, 1. From Davids Elevation of his very Soule to God only, not looking after other Helps and Hopes. 2. From Davids reliance or hope in God, verse 1, 2, 3. From the desirable fruits or effects which hence would ensue, (1) To all that wait on God. They thus shall not be ashamed to Davids confusion. (2) To all his causeleſſe perfidious enemies; they hereupon shall be ashamed, verse 3. II. For his Divine Direction of David, in his Wayes, Paths, and Truth; that so his enemies and afflictions may not cause him to wander or tread awry. This is urged. 1. From Gods Nature and Office. He is the God of his Peoples safety. 2. From Davids confident expectation upon God, verse 4, 5. III. For the LORD's peculiar favours towards distressed David, ver. 6. 1. His remembrance of his bowel-mercies and loving-kindnesse to David, which have been from eternity, ver. 6. 2. His not remembring, but pardoning an Act of Oblivion upon, Davids trespasses, the procuring causes of present distresses. 3. His remembring of David according to his gracious-kindnesse, or kinde-mercy, verse 7.

II. Davids singular Encouragements for obtaining of these his former Petitions, flowing, 1. From God's sweet Nature, viz. 1 His Goodnesse. 2 His righteousnesse, or uprightnesse. Therefore the LORD will teach wandring sinners his wayes, and the meek conduct in judgement, verse 8, 9. 3 His loving-kindnesse. 4 His Truth and Faithfulness to the keepers of his Covenant and Testimonies, ver. 10. 5. His own Glorious Name. For which he will pardon his iniquity, his great iniquity; which needs much mercy, great mercy, verse 11. 2. From Gods precious Promises to them that fear him, verse 12, 13, 14. 3. From his own constant eye towards God and expectation from him, verse 15.

III. Davids concluding, or shutting up of his Prayer with a double Suite, viz. I. More particular, For himself. That God would, 1. Look upon him; 2. Shew grace to him desolate and afflicted, v. 16. 3. Bring him out of his distresses, his hearts distresses being enlarged, v. 17. 4. View his affliction and molestation. 5. Remit all his sins, verse 18. 6. View his enemies, in regard of their multitude, and violent hatred, verse 19. 7. Keep and deliver him from confusion; he trusting in God, verse 20. And according to integrity and uprightnesse waiting upon God, verse 21. II. More General, For the whole Israel or Church of God. That God would redeem it out of all its straits or distresses, verse 22.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme

This Psalme in the Kinde or Nature of it, is A Prayer. Penman of it, as the Inscription intimates, was David. The Occasion of it, as may probably be conjectured from the current of the Psalm, seems to be King Sauls alienating his affection and deportment from David, upon the false calumnies and aspersions which Sauls Courtiers in enmity against David had suggested n, whereupon David at last left the Court. Herein therefore, David Appeals to God as Judge of his Integrity and Innocency; expounds before him his course of life, how he studied Integrity, shunned the society of evil persons, resolved upon purity of divine worship with all zealous affection; Deprecates the state of sinners and bloody men; Professing his Integrity, prayes for deliverance; And promiseth thankfulness to the LORD.

n Sim. de Muis in Arg. Psal. 26. H. Moller. in Arg. Psal, 26.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Psalmist in this Prayer is, To intreat the LORD to judge him and appear for him, according to his Integrity before him, and affiance in him, and to preserve him from the sins and sorrows of the wicked, vers. 1. &c. 9. 10.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title or Inscription of this Psalme points out to us the Penman, David. See Psal. 20. Sect. 5.

The Psalme or prayer it self containes

I. Davids Appeal from all his injurious adversaries, imputations and oppositions against his Name or Life, to the exactest judgement, scrutiny and sentence of the LORD himself, verse 1, &c. The Causes of this his Appeal are Declared and Amplified: I. Declared, viz. 1. His integrity of life. 2. His affiance in the LORD, verse 1, 2. II. Amplified, 1. By their efficient cause, viz. Gods Loving-kindness, verse 3. 2. By their Effects, Properties or Companions, viz. 1. Shunning, yea, hating all sinful society with hypocritical and wicked persons, verse 4, 5. 2. Resolving upon cleanness and purity of divine worship, for true and right end, ver. 6, 7. 3. Testifying his singular affection, and holy zeal to the House and Worship of God, ver. 8.

II. Davids Petitions to the LORD; 1. Not to gather or repute him among sinners, bloody-persons, mischievous ones, and Bribe-takers: either in regard of their sin or punishment, v. 9, 10. 2. To redeem him from them, and shew-grace unto him, verse 11.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

of David

1. THe Lord a mine health is, and my light
Of whom should I be traid?
The Lord is of my life the might:
For whom shall I dread?
2. Against me b when ill-doers rose

In this I confidently trust,
If War against me rise.
4. One thing I asked of the Lord
This ever seek I will,
That I in House of God the Lord

The Lord's delightfulnesse entire
Therein to view alway,
And in his Palace e to enquire
5. For in the f harmful day,
Hee'l hide me in his Tabernacle:
Hee'l hide me from assault
Within his Tent's g close receptacle:
On Rock he'l me exalt.

6. And now mine Head with safety crown'd
Shall be exalted high
Above my foes about me round,
And in his Tent will I
h Joy's Sacrifices sacrifice:
I'le sing and i praise the Lord.
7. Lord when I cry, hear thou my voice:
k Me hear, me grace afford.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalm.

This Psalm is of a mixed kinde, made up of Doctrine, Prayer, and Exhortation. Its full of holy Meditations, Petitions, and Encouragements. Penman of it, as the Title evinceth, was David. And David (think some) did compose this Psalm, when he was old, when his Sons were grown men, saying, Thou shalt grow mature with us in years, when thou growest as the light of Israel, 2 Sam. 21. 17. The current of the Psalm agrees somewhat with that History; but yet I see not ground enough to fix it upon that particular time. Occasion of Davids writing this psalm, seems in general to be some great perils or dangers wherein David was involved by his enemies, and against which his soul was invincibly rallied and fortified by Faith in God, and whence in some measure he was delivered. Whereupon he earnestly begs that one great Privilege of constant enjoying Gods house, and communion with him there; that so he might be safe and secure from all his Enemies, committing himself by sundry Petitions to the Lords sole Direction and Protection against them.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this psalm is; Thankfully to declare, 1. What impregnable magnanimity, confidence and encouragement David had, (and a true believer may have) in the LORD alone, against all dangers and enemies whatsoever. 2. And how earnestly he therfore desired still to enjoy Communion with God in his House and Ordinances all his dayes, committing himself to his sole Tuition, against all perils and adversaries whatsoever.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

Besides the short Inscription, denoting David to be Penman of this psalm: See Psal. 25. Sect. 4. In the Body or Substance of the psalm it self are, 1. A Declaration. 2. A Prayer. 3. An Exhortation.

1. A Declaration, 1. Of Davids invincible Magnanimity and Confidence in the LORD, against all dangers and enemies. Amplified 1. By the proper foundation of it, viz. The LORD's being 1 His Light. 2. Salvation. 3. The Strength of his Life. 2. By the invincible acting of it, trampling triumphantly upon all occasion of fear. Interrogations here are emphatical, ver. 1. 3. By his former experience of Gods safe Protection against his many and cruel enemies, ver. 2. 4. By his fixed courage and security even against an whole hoast, and Insurrection of War against him, ver. 3. II. Of Davids vehement zeal and love to Religion, and constant communion with God in his House and Ordinances of divine Worship. This, in effect, That one thing, that only thing, which had been in his former desires, and should be in his future endeavours. Amplified, 1. By the more immediate ends of this his Desire, viz. 1 viewing the Lord's delightfulness. 2 Enquiring early in his Palace, ver. 4. 2. By the Motives inciting him hereunto; viz. 1 Gods safe and secret Protection of him in his Tabernacle in day of evil. 2 Gods advancing and exalting him above all his enemies. Both which ministred to him matter of triumphant Praises to the LORD, ver. 5, 6.

II. A Prayer for sundry benefits. As, 1. That the Lord would hear, accept, and answer him, in his crying to him and seeking his face, A Duty of Gods own Appointment, ver. 7, 8. 2. That the Lord would in no regard hide his face from him, turn aside from him, or forsake him. And he is confident the Lord will not do it, though Father Mother should forsake him, ver. 9. 10. 3. That God would teach and guide in his way, because of his prying and observing enemies, ver. 11. 4. That God would not deliver him to the will and lust of his enemies, who were so false, cruel, and terrible to him, that nothing but confidence in God could have upheld him. ver. 12, 13.

III. An Exhortation, Encouraging himself, and every Believer confidently and couragiously to wait upon the Lord in all difficulties, who thus fortifies the hearts of his people ver. 14.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm is of a Mixt Kind, made up of Prayer and Praise, Its Petitory and Gratulatory.

Penman of it, David: as the Title intimates.

Occasion of Davids Penning it, is not so obvious. Probably it was written 1, In the dayes of King Saules causeless persecutions of David, when many took part with Saul against David, and not a few that pretended peace to David, devised mischief in their malicious hearts against him; not considering the Remarkable Acts of God, and passages of his Providence, palpably declaring the will & pleasure of God to establish David on the Throne. See ver. 3, 4, 5. Or at least, in the beginning of Davids Reign, whil'st things were much unsetled.

| Probabile autem est de Saulis Persecutionibus hic tractari, Jo. Calv. in Arg. Ps. 28. Hujus Psalmi scribendi tempus videtur convenisse temporibus Saulis, quando David bis vitæ Saulis pepercit: Primo, in spelunca, 1 Sam. 24. 4, 5, 6, &c. Secundo in colle Charitæ, 1 Sam. 26. 12, 21, &c. Joan. Fourd. in Expos. Psal. 28. Tempus.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope herein, is; 1. To intreat the LORD for his own and the Churches Well-fare, and for his just judgements upon their enemies. See ver. 3, 4, 5, 9. 2. As also to praise the LORD, for his defence and aid unto himself, and for his Protection and Salvation to his Church in his Anointed one, viz. Especially, in his Christ, the Antitype of David. See ver. 6, 7, 8.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this psalm, besides the Title, (denoting David to be Penman,) we have, 1. Davids Prayer. 2, Davids Praise.

I. Davids Prayer, wherein he earnestly presenteth to the LORD, I. Petitions for himself, viz. 1. For Acceptance and Audience in his Prayers: That God would not turn away from him, as deaf, not hearing; Or as dumb, not answering. Urging this request, 1 Partly, from Gods Office; being his Rock. 2 Partly, from his own Affiance in God as his Rock. 3 Partly, from the extremity of his straits, if God should not hear him he should be no better than a dead man. 4 Partly, from the regularity of his addresse to God; Lifting up his hands towards the Oracle of his holynesse, viz. Towards the Typical Holy of Holies, where God dwelt between the Cherubims, and whence he promised to give answers to his people, Exod. 25. 22. Numb. 7. 89. Psal. 5. 7. 1 King 8. 38. and 9. 3. Dan. 6. 10. Or towards the true Holy of Holies, Heaven it self, Ps. 20. 6. All this is in verse 1, 2.

2. For distinguishing Mercies, differencing him false-hearted workers of unrighteousnesse and wicked persons: that he may not be drawn with them, or involved with them in sins or judgements, ver. 3. II. Imprecations against his enemies, viz. That they may justly be rewarded according to the evil works of their hands, ver. 4. Because, they would not discreetly-attend to the work of Gods hands: And particularly did not observe his eminent Providences in advancing David to be King. Whereupon he foretells their ruine, v. 5. II. Da-

II. Davids Praise, wherein he thankfully blesseth the LORD, I. For his favours to himself, 1. In hearing the voice of his Supplications, v. 6. 2. In keeping him according to his trust reposed in him, v. 7. II. For his mercy to his Church; in saving and strongly defending his Church, and her Anointed: Of his Church by her Anointed, viz. Typically, David; truly, Christ himself, ver. 8. Wherupon he closeth up this psalme, with a sweet supplication for the Churches Salvation, Benediction, Feeding, and Advancement unto Eternity, v. 9.

Psalm XXIX.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

A Psalme of David.

1. YE sons of mighty Potentates,
Give ye unto the LORD,

Give ye unto the Lord.
2. Give ye unto the LORD the Glory
Of his Name; with renown
In a beauty of the Sanctuary
Ye to the LORD bow-down.

3. On Waters is JEHOVAH's voice,
The God of glory thunders:
On many waters with great noise
The LORD displayes his wonders.
4. The thundering voice of the LORD
Sounds forth with Potency:
The thundring voice of the LORD
Sounds forth with b Majesty.

5. The LORD's voice Cedars breaketh-small:
c The LORD to-shivers-breaks
Of Lebanon the Cedars tall.
6. d Them leap like Calf he makes:
And e like the young of Unicornes
Shirion and Lebanus
7. The LORD's voice doth bright-flames of fire:
Divide, and flash to us.

8. The LORD's voice, full of dreadfulnesse,
Doth make the Desert quake:
The LORD doth make the Wilderneſse
Of Kadesh greatly shake.
9. The voice of the Almighty LORD
Makes Hinds f to Calve-for-fear,
Likewise the Forrests richly flor'd
It-maketh-to-be-bare:

But in his Temple g all accord
His glory to display.
10. The Lord at flood sate; and the Lord Shall sit as King for ay.

11. The Lord will his people shall Give strength and it increase:
The Lord will bless his people all

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion &c.

This Psalm, as to the Matter and Kind of it, is Laudatory; tending to extoll the Praise of the Lord, both upon Natural, and Spiritual Considerations.

Penman of it, and David on the Title thereof.

The occasion of his Penning it, is not particularly evident. Some think it, and not without some probability, that this psalme was appointed to be sung in the Tabernacle or Temple upon occasion of Thunder, Lightning, and such great Tempests; being Penned by David, as is conjectured, in some extream turbulent and tempestuous season of weather. To interpret this voice of the Lord Allegorically, of his voice in his Word, seems not so justifiable i.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The intended Scope is, To incite and exhort all mighty Potentates, and consequently much more all inferiours, duly to extoll and praise the Lord: To give him his Names due Glory, See verse 2. 9. and this, both from considerations of his instructions of Nature, particularly of his Thunder; and from his Acts of Grace to his Church.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

Besides the Inscription, declaring 1. The Denomination or Nature of this Scripture; A psalm; 2. The Penman; David, for psalm 1. Sect. 3. touching the self same Title. In the Body of the psalm note, 1. An Exhortation: 2. Arguments inforcing it.

I. An Exhortation to the Potentates of the World, consequently to inferiours, to ascribe unto the Lord Glory and strength, to give him his Names due Glory and Worship in the beauty of Holineſs, or Sanctuary, ver. 1, 2.

II. Sundry cogent Arguments pressing strongly this Exhortation, 1. Partly, from Gods works of Nature in the World. Especially Gods dreadful voice of Thunder being instanced in for all the rest, by a Synechdoche, as most remarkably eminent, ver. 3. to 9. Here Thunder is emphatically and elegantly described, 1. By its Nature; Voice of JEHOVAH.—— God of Glory thunders. 2. By its Place, In the middle Region of the Air; Among the waters of the Clouds, verse 3. 3. By his Adjuncts; Potency, and Majesty, ver. 4. 4. By its Effects; (1) Upon strongest Trees, Cedars of Lebanon, ver. 5. (2) Upon firmest Mountains, Lebanon and Shirion, ver. 6. (3) In flashes of fiery Lightnings, Thunderbolts, &c. ver. 7. (4) Upon the Wilderneſse and Woods, and all the bruit Creatures therein, ver. 8, 9. II. Partly, From Gods surpassing works of Grace in his Church; wherein every one speaks his Glory, ver. 9, &c. Some of his works of Grace there in being particularly pointed out, viz. 1. His Perpetual Dominion for the good of his Church, yea in times most calamitous, as at Noah's flood, ver. 10. 2. His strengthening of his People, promised. 3. His blessing them with Peace; that is, with a confluence of all good things, Promised also, verse 11.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme

This excellent Psalme is, for the Kind of it, An Eucharistical, Laudatory, or Praising Psalme, full of sweet enlarged expressions of Thankfulnesse.

Penman was not (as some think) Haggai, or any other Prophet after the Babylonish Captivity, touching the renewing of the Temple (as the Arabick Version k seems to intimate:) but David himself. His Name being prefixed in the Title: and the matter of the Psalme agreeing to Davids History.

Occasion was not the Dedication of the House of the Sanctuary, as the Chaldee Paraphrast hath it in the Title of this Psalme, and as others imagine; Nor the Renovation of the Temple, as the Arabick Version hints: l But the Dedication of the House of David, as the Hebrew Title of this Psalme plainly evidenceth; A Psalme, a Song of Dedication of the House of David; viz. King David's House in Jerusalem, The Tower of David: either, when David first took it from the Jebusites, and (having cleansed it from Heathenish pollutions) dwelt therein: or rather, when David, returning home upon the appeasing of Absalom's Insurrection, removed his Concubines (there defiled by Absalom 2 Sam. 16. 21, 22. compared with 2 Sam 20. 3.) and so purged his House from Absaloms defilements by a new dedication of it. This last seems most consonant to the History of David, and current of this Psalme. m The Dedication or Initiation of Houses, when first they were builded and to be dwelled in, was used under the Old Testament, Deut 20. 5. Teaching us under the New Testament; that our Houses, as all other our blessings, are sanctified to us by the word of God and Prayer, 1 Tim. 4. 3, 4, 5.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David's Scope intended in this Psalme, is; 1. To praise the Lord his God with enlarged thankfulness for restoring him from his deadly Enemies, dangers, and distresses; and 2. To incite all the Saints to praise the Lord with him, ver. 1, 3, 4, &c.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalme consider 1. The Title. 2. The Substance of the Psalme.

The Title prefixed is proper and peculiar only to this Psalme. Herein note, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme, A Song. This is the first thus Denominated. This double Denomination; A Psalme. A Song; is prefixed also to Psal. 65.67.68.75. 76.87. 92. And, A Song, A Psalme; to Psalme, 48. 66.83. 88.108. These two Denominations intimating, 1. Either, That this Psalme was to be publickly Sung: as some think this is the onely thing intended in this double Title. 2. Or that these Psalmes were to be tuned both with voices and Instruments Musical: In those, the Instruments going before the voices; In these, the voices going before the Instruments, thus Eusebius. But both these are rejected as not satisfying: Not the former; because not only the Psalmes thus Entituled, but also all the rest were to be sung publickly, 1 Chron. 15. 16. and the Singers are said to Prophecy (i. e. to sing) With Harpes, with Psalteries, &c. 1 Chron. 25. 1. 3. See also verse 6. Not the latter; for, as Rivet notes, the Reason is too frigid. For, This Title being prefixed but to a few Psalmes, it would follow, that onely these few were were to be tuned with Instruments and voice, all the rest should be tuned without voice, which is most unlikely. 3. Or, That the Psalmes thus Entituled are very excellent Psalmes, and Psalmes of Joy, Mirth, Victory, Triumph, &c. For when two Substantives are thus conjunctly joyned together they signifie some excellent thing. As Adam out formed of the dust of the Earth, i. e. of the purest dust, Gen. 2. 7. and the word שיר Shir, Song added to Psalme, still denotes some pleasant, famous, joyful, excellent &c. Subject of that Psalme. Thus that learned and judicious Rivet a. 2. The Occasion of it; The Dedication of David's House. 3. The Penman; David, mentioned in the Title, and speaking of himself in the first person in the ensuing Psalme.

a Rivet. in Gen. ad Tit. Ps. 68.

The Substance of the Psalme, is 1. Laudatory, and 2. Hortatory.

I. Laudatory, David himself praising the Lord, 1. For his drawing him up and delivering him from his Enemies and their inhibacies, verse 1. 2. For healing him at his request, verse 2. 3. For rescuing him from the jaws of Death, verse 3.

II. Hortatory, Herein David exhorteth all the Saints to praise the Lord with him, and for him, ver. 4. And this from two sorts of Arguments. I. More Generally, From Gods carriage towards his Saints indefinitely, His wrath being but for a night, for a moment, ver. 5. II. More Particularly, From Davids peculiar experience of the Lords dealing with him, ver. 6. to the end. Herein David relateth, 1. His own Carnal security in his outward Prosperity, and the settlement of his Kingdom, ver. 6, 7. As 2 Sam. 11. 1. &c. 1 Chron. 20. 1. &c. and 17. 1. 2. The Lords chastizing him for this his Carnal security and abuse of his prosperity: By with-drawing of his face, scourging him and his House, 2 Sam. 12. 10, 11, 12. with 2 Sam. 15. 3. Davids sudden perplexity upon this his Chastisement, verse 7. 4. Davids Expostulating prayer to the Lord, in his perplexity, to preserve him from Death, ver. 8, 9, 10. 5. The Lords hearing of his Prayer, and turning his sorrow into joy; His mourning into dancing, his Sackcloth into gladness, ver. 11. 6. The end intended by the Lord in Davids Mercies, viz. That Davids Glory, his tongue, might sing Gods praises, and not be silent. 7. Davids thankful Resolution to praise the Lord his God for ever, because of this his experimental kindness. ver. 12.

Sect. II. The Psalme out of the Hebrew.

To the Master-Musician A Psalm of David.

I.

1. O LORD a I trust in thee; Put me not Ashamed let me not be:
Thou in thy Justice me deliver.
2. Incline thine ear to me.
Me b quickly rid c A rock of Power
Be thou to me, I crave,

Me from all harmes to save.

3. For my firm-Rock thou dost abide,
And my Munition,
And thou wilt lead me and me guide
For thy Names sakes alone.
4. Yea thou wilt me bring forth and rid
Out of the Net at large
That they for me have closely-hid,
Because thou art my strength.

5. Into thine hand my spirit I
Of-trust-commit and eek;
O LORD, thou God of verity,
Redeemed me thou hast.
6. d Them that vain-falsehood's vanities

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion, of this Psalme.

This Psalme is of a Mixt Kind, being Petitory, Laudatory, and Hortatory: wherein the Psalmist Prayes for blessings wanted, Prayseth for mercies vouchsafed, and Exhorts to Duties becoming the Saints.

Penman of it, as the Title shews, was David.

The Occasion of his writing it, seems to be some remarkable strait, or straits; which his enemies had brought him into, and whence in part God had delivered him. 1. Some i conjecture (from that Expression; In my haste, or hasting-away, ver. 22. the same Hebrew word being there used, which is put for Davids hasting to fly away from King Saul and his Army, 1 Sam. 23. 26.) that particularly it was that great strait which David and his men were in, when Saul and his Army had almost surrounded them in the Wilderness of Maon: At which very instant the Lord delivered David by a singular Providential, calling off Saul and his Army by seasonable tidings to go against the Philistines then invading the Land, 1. Sam. 23. This psalme and that History excellently agree. 2. But k some think it might very well be Occasioned by Absalom's conspiracy, mentioned 2 Sam. 15. 7. &c. (1) Because he complains; That his life was spent with grief, and his years with sighing, &c. ver. 10. Therefore he seems to have written this in his Old-age, when about sixty six and about thirty six of his Reign, in the end of those fourty years, 2 Sam. 15. 7. Which fourty years seem to have begun when Samuel annointed David King, 1 Sam. 16. (2) Because, he confesseth that his strength failed because of his iniquity, (viz. probably in the matter of Uriah, 2 Sam. 11.) ver. 10. whereas in times of Saul he for most part justified himself, as Psal. 7. and 26. (3) Because he complaines, That his neighbours and acquaintance seeing him without (that is, without the House, in the street) fled from him, ver. 11. which most probably was in the dayes of Absalom, for in dayes of Saul his neighbours had not opportunity of seeing him without, in the street, when his residence was in the Wilderness in Caves, Mountains, &c. (4) Because, here David confesseth; God shewed him his marvellous kindness, in a strong City, ver. 21. viz. in the City Mahanaim, 2 Sam. 17. 24. where he was courteously received and refreshed, both he and his men, by the chief of that Country, ver. 27, 28, 29. and 19. 33. as Josephus also testifies. These things make it more probable that it was Penned upon occasion of Absalom's Rebellion, than of Saul's Persecution. But let that interpretation prevail that is most agreeable to Truth.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope herein intended, is; 1. To intreat the LORD for deliverance from his extream deep Distresse brought upon him by his Enemies; 2. To blesse the Lord for some Handsels or Earnests of his Favour this way, 3. And to encourage all the Saints to love the Lord hereupon and to be very couragious in him, in all like conditions and distresses.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title or Inscription of this Psalme, denotes, 1. The Direction of it, as to the Musick. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 3. The Penman, David.

The Substance of the Psalme containes, Davids 1. Prayer. 2. Praises. and 3. Exhortation.

I. His earnest Prayer, ver. 1. to 19. viz. 1. For himself: 2. Against his enemies. 1. For himself. That the LORD would, Hear him; Defend him against his enemies; Deliver him from his distresses; and shine favourably upon him, lest at last he should be made ashamed of his confidence in God. This is urged, Generally, 1 From his own confidence in the LORD: And 2 From Gods justice, verse 1. Particularly, 1. From the Nature and Office of God; (1) Being most able to help him: As His Rock of fortitude, His House of Fortresses, His Firm Rock and Munition, His Strength. (2) Being also most willing to relieve him, Both for his own Name, And having Redeemed him already heretofore, ver. 2, 3, 4, 5. 2. From his own Person: Described, (1) Partly, By his integrity in him towards God; Hating the Observers of the vanities of a Lye, viz. vain lying Idols; Trusting in God; Promising to rejoyce thankfully in God for mercy received, ver. 6, 7, 8. (2) Partly, By his distress upon him: 1 His beauty, strength, and life being almost exhausted, ver. 9. to a His enemies ignominiously reproaching him; 3 His friends strangely alienated from him; 4 Terrour and danger on every side surrounding him, ver. 11, 12, 13. (3) Partly, By relying on God in all these his sad straits and plunges; As his only preserver and deliverer, Having his times in his hand: Whereupon he intreats for Deliverance, The light of Gods Countenance and Salvation, ver. 14, 15, 16.

II. Against

II. Against his enemies; That they may be ashamed, silenced, and destroyed, verse 17, 18.

II. His singular graces of God. 1. Partly in regard of his great goodness generally to all that fear him and trust in him, viz. 1. Treasuring up unspeakable Good for them both for present and future, verse 19. 2. Protecting them safely and secretly, from Proud wrongs, (The Hebrew properly signifies, Rough-pride, or rough-wrong: For the Root רזה Razah signifies both, To be proud, and To put on force, Isai. 28. 28. and 58. 11. Hence the word is derived, that signifies Lofty or rough-places, Isa. 40. 4.) and strife of Tongues, verse 20. II. Partly, In regard of his dealings with David himself, particularly in his desperate extremities, viz. 1. Marvellously manifesting his mercy in his safest defence, verse 21. 2. Graciously hearing his Prayer, notwithstanding his despairing, despondencies in his distresses, verse 22.

III. His zealous Exhortation (resulting from these his choice Experiences) to all the Saints, viz. 1. To love the LORD: both for his preserving the Faithful, and plentiful rewarding of their proud enemies, ver. 22. 2. To be of good-courage in all plaints and afflictions: Promising to them herein Gods Heart-strengthning Consolations, verse 24.

Psalme XXXII.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David teacheth, I. That true blessednesse consisteth, 1. In Gods pardon of sin. 2. In sincerity of Spirit verse 1, 2. II. That, this must needs be so, from his own experience, 1. Of trouble, whilst he did hide his sin. 2. Of his ease of Conscience, when he penitentially confessed it, verse 3, 4, 5. III. That, All such, as through the pardon of sin desire to be blessed, must 1. Pray seasonably for it, verse 6. 2. Trust, as David, in Gods Protection, verse 7. 3. Be readily obedient to the LORD's instruction, verse 8. to the end.

To droughts of Summer turned was My moisture quite decaid. Selah.

At time of finding pray:
Sure, as the flood of waters b great
To him reach shall not they.

With shrill-Songs of Deliverance
Thou'lt compasse-me about. Selah.

And thee instruct will I:
I'll counsel-will-impart also,
On thee I'le fix mine Eye.

As Mule, whose mouth must be
With bit and bridle held-in for ever,
Lest they come near to thee.

10. Full many Sorrows are for'd
m The wicked to suffer;
But he that trusteth in the LORD
Him mercy shall surround.
11. Ye righteous in the LORD rejoyce n Be glad at this your part,
And shout-forth-with-triumphant-noise
All ye upright of heart.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is the second of those which are usually called, Penitential Psalmes, See Psal. 6. Sect. 3. And the very first of those which in their Titles prefixed are called משכיל Maschil: that is, An Instructing-Psalme; Or, A-Psalme-making-Prudent, causing Understanding. As here; I will instruct thee, or, I will make thee prudent, ver. 8. It instructs in sweet spiritual Mysteries and Practices. There are in all fourteen Maschil's, or, Instructing-Psalmes; viz. Psalme 32, 42, 44, 45, 46, 52, 53, 54, 55, 74, 78, 88, 89, 142. Penned by David, Asaph, Heman, Æthan, &c.

Penman of this Maschil was David.

Occasion of David's writing this Psalme, seems to have been upon his recovery from some sore Disease, ver. 3, 4. And it is conjectured, to have been after Tamars ravishment, and Ammon's death, 2 Sam. 13. through Absalom's contrivance o.

o Joan. Foord. in Expos. Psal 32. Tempus.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Psalme, is; 1. To teach that true Blessednesse peculiarly consists in the LORD's full and free remission of sinne in Justification and making mans spirit upright in him, by Sanctification: 2. As also to instruct prudently all such Persons to walk obediently before the LORD. See verse 1, 2, 8. Rom. 4, 6, 7, 8.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Inscription or Title denotes, 1. The Nature of the Psalme, in that denomination; Maschil. 2. The Penman; David.

The Substance of the Psalme treats of true Blessednesse. Herein true blessednesse is 1. Described, 2. Confirmed, 3. Illustrated.

I. True Blessednesse is described, as consisting especially in, 1. The LORD's free and full remission of sinne in Justification: laid down in three Expressions viz. (1) Taking sinne away. (2) Covering of sinne, viz. not by the sinner, but by the LORD himself. (3) Not imputing of unrighteousnesse to a man. 2. The sincerity of a mans spirit and heart, without deceit. This is unfeined Sanctification, still accompanying Justification. The Happinesses of such a man are here pronounced with a kind of Admiration; —— Heb. O the happinesses, &c. ver. 1, 2.

II. That this is true Blessednesse, and that herein it consists, is Confirmed by Davids experience: 1. Whose distresse and misery was extream upon him, consuming and even exhausting him; whil'st he concealed his sinne, ver. 3, 4. 2. Whose Conscience found ease and pardon upon his Penitential Confession of his sinnes, ver. 3, 4, 5.

III. This Blessednes, in the Pardon of sin, &c. is Illustrated and Amplified, 1, By the faithful Prayers which all the Saints shall make to God, in a time of finding, for remission of sinnes. 2. By the sweet Promise of the Lord's Protection to all justified and pardoned persons, from all floods of distress, as God had dealt with David already, and would again do with him, having his sins forgiven, verse 6, 7. 3. By the Duty required of all justified and pardoned Persons. viz. 1 That they receive divine Instructoin tendered to them, readily. 2 That, laying aside all bruitish obstinacy, they become flexible and obedient unto God; verse 8, 9. 4. By the most different condition of the wicked unpardoned, whose portion shall be many Pains; From the faithful that are pardoned, whom Mercy encompasseth round, And to whom the Lord affords, in their justified and upright condition most singular Matter of surpassing gladness, verse 10, 11.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion. &c.

This is one of those Psalmes that are Un-titled, having no Inscription prefixed in the Hebrew. See Psal. 1. Sect. 4. The Greek Version of the LXXti according to the most ancient Vaticen Copy, hath this Title; (τῷ Δαυὶδ.) To David; and according to the ancient Alexandrian Copy; (Τοῦ τῷ Δαυὶδ.) A Psalme to David. This Psalme is of a mixt Kinde, Laudatory, and Votive; wherein the Psalmist exhorts the righteous to the praises of God, and concludes with prayer to him.

Penman is not certainly known: though the Version of the LXXti seems to point at David.

Occasion also is not particularly evident. Its supposed David wrote it, when he had now obtained victories over all, or many his enemies. It is a notable triumphant, or Victorial Psalme. May be sung after Victories.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of this Psalm is, To exhort and provoke all the righteous People of God to be much in the praises of God, upon manifold considerations.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

Thus in the Old Testament: Now in the New-Testament proportionably, with all zealous enlarged affections and Spiritual expressions of thankfulnesse, ver. 1, 2, 3.

II. A Narration of Arguments, inciting unto these Praises of the LORD; drawn, I. From Gods Truth, Justice, Mercy, and Power, both in Word and Work; Particularly in Creating and fitly Ordering all things so mightily, that the whole World may justly tremble and stand in aw of him; Especially seeing it was with him, but A Word, and A Work, as Gen. 1 verse 4. to 10. II. From Gods Over-ruling and Over-turning all the ill Counsels of the Nations, Establishing his own purposes for ever, ver. 10, 11. III. From his special Love to, and care over his Church, ver. 12. Amplified, 1. By his accurate notice which he takes of all men in the World in general, and of all their actions: Therefore he will much more Providentially heed and look to the Saints in special, and all their actions, ver. 13, 14, 15. 2. By the utter insufficiency of all created Protections without God, v. 16, 17. 3. By his most vigilant Eye over the Faithful for their preservation and deliverance in their deepest danger or distresse, v. 18, 19.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occaſion.

This choice * Pſalm is one of thoſe which are called Alphabetical; (See Pſal. 25. Sect. 3.) Here being all the twenty two Hebrew Letters in order in the beginning of every verſe in the Hebrew Text, Text, except the laſt; which is compenſated aforehand in ver. 5. by two letters of the Hebrew Alphabet ה and ו; that beginning the former, this the latter ſentence in that verſe. The Alphabetical Pſalms are every one of them ſingularly eminent among the Pſalmes, like Stars of the firſt Magnitude among the the Stars. The Subject matter of this ſweet pſalm is mixt, of Praiſe, and Doctrine: and in both it is A moſt rich Cordial to the afflicted and diſtreſſed Saints.

Penman of it, was David: As the Title declares. He of a Scholer, becomes here our Tutor: of a Patient, our Experimental Phyſitian.

Occaſion of Davids Penning this pſalm is laid down in the prefixed Title: viz. Davids changing his behaviour before q Abimelech, &c. that is, Before Achiſh King of Gath, a City of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 21. 10. Every King of the Philiſtines being called Abimelech, i. e. My-Father-King, Gen. 20. 2. and 26. 1. Pſal. 34. tit. As every King of Ægypt was called Pharaoh, Gen. 41. 1. Exod. 5. 1. 1 King 11. 18. David having fled for fear of King Saul unto Gath, the men of Achiſh King of Gath, having taken David in Gath, Pſal. 56. (Thus did this holy and valiant David Un-man himſelf in his extremity of fear for preſervation of his life: So far his temptation and infirmity prevailed over him.) Upon this, Achiſh was offended at his ſervants for bringing a Mad-man to him, and diſdained he ſhould come into his houſe, 1 Sam. 21. 10. to the end. So they drave him away, and he departed, Pſ. 34. Title, with 1 Sam. 22. 1. Upon this great deliverance from his fears and dangers, David Penned this Pſalm, as alſo Pſalm 56. See that Title alſo. The Deliverance, was Gods: The infirmity in the uſe of undue means, was Davids r.

* Sicut de tota Scriptura dicit Baſilius in quadam Epiſtola; ſicut putei quo magis hauriuntur, fundunt aquas magis limpidas: ita non dubium eſt, hunc Pſalmum, quo ſæpius legitur cum quadam attentione eo magis dulceſcere: Quare ſemper in Eccleſia hic Pſalmus hominibus piis fuit commendatiſſimus, Hen. Moller. in Arg. Pſal. 34.

q Quod loco Achis ponitur Abimelech, probabile eſt, nomen hoc poſterius fuiſſe in vulgari uſu apud Philiſtinos: Sicut Reges ſuos Ægyptii vocarunt Pharaones: & Romani imperatores nomen Cæſarum mutuati ſunt a Julio qui primus Tyrannidem occuparat, Joan. Calv. in Pſal. 34. Tertul.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope herein is, 1. To Praiſe the Lord for this his great Delivrance from fear & danger under Achiſh the Philiſtine-King of Gath before whom he was brought by the Kings Servants; 2. To provoke all other the people of God, to praiſe the Lord with him; 3. And to inſtruct them, both how to walk ſo as to render themſelves capable of ſuch Experiences of Gods favour as David now found in his Extremities, And what choice bleſſings befall them who thus walk worthy of Mercies, and are really thankful.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Inſcription, are declared, 1. The Penman of this pſalm; David. 2. The Occaſion of his writing it, viz. (1) David's Changing his behaviour (through infirmity and exceſſive fear) before Abimelech, that is, Achiſh King of Gath: feigning himſelf mad. (2) Abimelech's driving him away. (3) Davids departure to the Cave Adullam, 1 Sam. 22. 1.

In the Pſalm it ſelf note,

I. Davids cheerful Profeſſion of his own thankfulneſs to the LORD, for this his great and ſeaſonable deliverance, Amplified. 1. By the conſtancy of it, reſolved and promiſed, ver. 1. 2. By the intenſive vehemency of it, his ſoul glorying in the Lord. 3. By the influence this ſhould have upon the Saints, they hearing it ſhould rejoyce, ver. 2.

II. Davids zealous Provocation of others to joyn with him in the thankful Praiſes of his God, v. 3. &c. This is pathetically urged and illuſtrated by way of (1) Narration, (2) Inſtruction, (3) And Conſolation. I. By way of Narration. He declares, 1. His own Perſonal exprience in this wonderful deliverance, which was ſuch, That the Saints in like ſtraits ſhall-be-lightned, viz. with comfort, &c. (according to the Chaldee uſe of the Hebrew word) or Shall-flow-together (as the word more properly ſignifies) viz. to God, they ſhall flow-together-as-a-River to him, that is, abundantly, for like deliverance. And they thus lightned, or thus-flowing-as-a-River to God, they ſhall inſiſt upon this deliverance of David for their encouragement: Avouching, and ſaying, This poor afflicted man called, and the LORD heard, &c. verſe 3, 4, 5, 6. 2. The Lord's ſingular care and Providence over his fearers, cauſing his Angel to encamp round about them, ver. 7. II. By way of Inſtruction, (and this ſome make the Doctrinal Part of this pſalm,) Teaching the Saints how they may ſo walk, as to be in a conſtant capacity of ſuch experiments of the Lord's favours, viz. 1. They muſt taſte and ſee his goodneſs, viz. by Faith: wherein is their happineſſe, ver. 8. 2. They muſt fear him, and then they ſhall not want any good thing. Though the ravening Lions, notwithſtanding all their ſtrength and fierceneſſe after their prey, are often impoveriſhed and an hungred, ver. 9, 10. 3. They muſt hearken to the Lord's Commands and Will by the pſalmiſt, ver. 11. 4. They (if they deſire long life, and to ſee good therein) muſt dutifully (1) Decline evil, both in word, and deed; (2) Do good; (3) Seek and purſue peace, ver. 12, 13, 14. III. By way of conſolation, ſhewing what benefits befall thoſe who thus walk worthy of Mercies, and are really thankful, viz. 1. The Lord's fatherly Eyes behold the Juſt. 2. His Eares are attent to their out-cry: when on the contrary his angry face is againſt the Evil-doers to cut off their very memorial, ver. 15, 16. 3. His hand rids them out of all their diſtreſſes, ver. 17. 4. He is neer to the broken of heart,

Shall medicate thy righteouſneſſe,
And all the day thy Praiſe.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion, &c.

This is for Kind a Praying-Pſalme.

David was Penman of it, as the Title intimates. Herein David earneſtly prayeth and complaineth of of his ingrateful and perfidious Enemies. Theſe Enemies intended were probably Sauls hypocritical flattering Courtiers, who though they fawned upon David, whileſt he was in King Sauls favour, yet when Sauls heart was turned againſt him, they with Saul craftily complot againſt him, and without a cauſe cruelly perſecute him. Upon this Occaſion this Pſalme was written, as Interpreters, Judge.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids intended Scope in this Pſalme, is; To intreat the LORD, to ſide with, ſuccour, and ſave him, from all his injurious adverſaries: but to bring them for all their evils practiſes to ſhame and confuſion.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title, David is intimated to be Penman of this Pſalme; Of David. Sundry Pſalmes have this very Title: See Pſal. 25. Sect. 5.

In the Subſtance of the Pſalme it ſelf, Are, 1. Davids Petitions. 2. Davids Complaint. 3. Davids Enforcement of his Requeſts.

I. Davids Petitions, 1. For Himſelf; That the LORD would take his part. help, ſave and deliver him from his Adverſaries. 2. Againſt his Enemies; That the LORD would withſtand them as an Advocate, as a Warriour; Confound them with ſhame; Diſperſe and ſcatter them as ſmall-chaff-duſt in dark and ſlippery wayes, the Angel of the LORD driving and purſuing them; And ruine them in their own pits and nets, ver. 1. to 11. Both ſorts of requeſts are here urged, 1. From the cauſeleſſe ſubtile cruelty of his Adverſaries, ver. 7. 2. From the Praiſe he promiſeth the LORD upon ſuch his Deliverance, &c. ver. 9, 10.

II. Davids Complaint againſt his Adverſaries. For, 1. Their violent falſe-witneſſing againſt him, ver. 11. 2. Their deep ingratitude in recompenſing ill to him, for all his love and kindneſſe to them, ver. 12, 13, 14, 15. 3. Their perfidious diſſimulation towards him, ſcoffing at him, like Paraſites for belly-chear, ver. 16. Whereupon he Pathetically burſts out into a vehement Expoſtulation, becauſe of Gods delaying his relief; begging deliverance from thoſe Lyons: that ſo he may publiquely praiſe the LORD, and they have no cauſe to rejoyce over him, ver. 17, 18, 19. 4. Their unpeaceableneſſe & deceitfulneſſe, v. 20. 5. Their triumph & Inſolency at his calamities, ver. 21.

III. Davids Enforcement of his Requeſt, Inciting and Provoking the LORD to appear and judge for him againſt his adverſaries. And this he doth by many Arguments, viz. 1. Gods accurate notice of all theſe dealings of his Enemies. ver. 22. 2. Davids intereſt in, and Covenant-Relation to God; My God, and my Lord, ver. 23, 24. 3. Gods Juſtice, ver. 24. 4. That his enemies may have no matter of inſulting over him, but rather of ſhame and confuſion in themſelves, ver. 25, 26. 5. That all who delights in Davids juſt cauſe and proſperity may ſhout-aloud in Gods praiſes, ver. 27. 6. That himſelf may have conſtant matter of Thankſgiving unto God, verſe 28.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion &c.

This Pſalme is of a Mixt Kind, conſiſting; Of Doctrine touching the badneſſe of the wicked; Of Praiſe to God for his Goodneſſe and kind Adminiſtrations towards the Creature Generally, and towards his Church Peculiarly; and of Prayer for the Saints and himſelf.

Penman hereof was David, as the Title intimates.

Occaſion of Davids writing this Pſalme ſome k think to be King Sauls wickedneſs: who, after the evil Spirit from the LORD came upon him, brake forth into new impieties, waxing ſtill worſe and worſe, 1 Chron. 10. 13. whereupon David took occaſion to deſcribe the vile diſpoſition of the ungodly, proceeding daily from evil to worſe. And probably, David entring upon his Kingdom, had theſe Meditations. For, ſeeing this expreſſion, viz. [Of David the Servant of the LORD] is uſed only in the Titles of Pſ. 18. and 36. And that Pſalme 18 had reſpect to Davids ſervice unto the LORD in his Government of the Kingdom now finiſhed, Compare 2 Sam. 22. 1, &c. and 23. 1. with Pſ. 18. title. It may probably be conceived, That this Pſalme 36. had reference to the ſame ſervice of David in the Kingdom, as it was to be enterprized and diſcharged by him. This Pſalm. 36. being his Initial Pſalm at his Entrance upon his Kingdom, As Pſal. 18. was his Final or Concluding Pſalm, neer his Reſignation of his Scepter. Some l particularly refer the Occaſion of this Pſalme, to Sauls killing the Lords Prieſts by Doeg, 1 Sam. 22. 10. &c.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope herein intended, is, 1. To deſcribe the extream growing vileneſs of the wicked; 2. To magnifie the goodneſſe and righteouſneſſe of Gods Adminiſtrations towards all creatures, but eſpecially towards his own Church and People. 3. And to implore Gods favour towards all the godly, and particularly towards himſelf, againſt all the inſolencies of the wicked, ver. 1. 5, 11, &c.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Inſcription, note; 1. The Direction of it as to the Muſick. 2. The Penman of it; David. Deſcribed and commended here for his peculiar ſervice to God, viz. In the Adminiſtration of the Kingdom of Iſrael. Or for [the Servant of the LORD, becauſe he ſtands againſt the wicked, who know not that God is the avenger of Wickedneſs, and therefore commits God and godneſs, Jo Kimchi and Ezra in.

In the Pſalme is held, we have 1. Doctrine, 2. Praiſe 3. Prayer.

I. Doctrine. David deſcribeth the extreme vileneſs of the wicked, &c. Thus the corruption of the wicked is ſuch and ſo beyond, that it aſſuredly teſtifies to the heart and conſcience of David. The wicked is deſtitute of all true fear of God, no fear of God is before his eyes, ver. 1. This his communion Rebellion and Irreligion is particularly deſcribed and confirmed. 1. By his Deeds and Endeavours, ſtretching himſelf to find out and accompliſh his iniquity: which he, and every good man, ought to hate, v. 2. 2. By his words; which are iniquity and fraud for compaſſing of evil. Aggravated by his contrary ceaſing to be wiſe to do good v. 3. 3. By his Thoughts Meditating and contriving iniquity on his Bed. Aggravated, by his proſtituting of his vile contrivements, ſetting himſelf in the worſt way, and declining no evil, v. 4.

II. Praiſe. David elegantly praiſeth the Lord. I. For his General Government of all creatures, with incomparable 1 Loving-kindneſs. 2 Faithfulneſs. 3 Juſtice. And 4 Judgment, ſaving man and beaſt, v. 5, 6. II. For his ſpecial and peculiar reſpect which he hath to his Saints: Manifolded. 1. In his moſt precious loving-kindneſſe, alluring the Saints to hope for ſafety under the ſhadow of his wings, v. 7. 2. In his moſt plentiful and pleaſant proviſions for his People: As it were inebriating them with the fatneſs of his Houſe, and making them drink the Stream of his Pleaſures. That, in this life: This, as ſome think, in the life to come, v. 8. 3. In being himſelf alone the only fountain of all Life and Light to them. No glimpſe of either being to be had but from him, ver. 9.

III. Prayer. David upon former Conſiderations prayeth, 1. For publick bleſſings to Gods People; Knowing him, and being upright in heart; viz. (1) The LORD's loving-kindneſſe. Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David, I. Propounds the Duties of the Godly, In regard of Wicked men's proſperity, and their own oppoſite Adverſity, v. 1. to 9. II. Urgeth and enforceth theſe Duties, From conſideration of the differene ſtates and conditions, notwithſtanding of the Godly and Wicked, v. 9. to 27. III. Exhorteth the Godly, 1. To eſchew evil: 2. To do good: 3. To Wait upon the LORD? 4. To keep his way, notwithstanding all the prosperity of the Wicked: and this by sundry Arguments, ver. 27. to the end.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

Of David.

I.

1. א Fret-thee not wrathfully
Against b ill-doers here:
Ar Workers of iniquity
Do thou not c envy-bear.
2. For, as the herb doth pass,
Be soon cut down-shall-they
And as greenness of budding-grass
So they shall fade-away.

3. ב Thou in the LORD confide,
And Act thou what is good:
So in the Land thou shalt abide,
And d sure thou shalt have food.
4. Do-thou-thy self-delight
Likewise upon the LORD:
And all thine hearts desires upright
To thee e he will afford.

5. ג Likewise do thou thy way
Unto the LORD f commit:
And firmly on him hope and stay,
And he 'l accomplish it.
6. He shall bring forth likewise
Thy Justice as the light:
Thy Judgement also shall arise
As g Noon-day-double-bright.

II.

7. ד To h tarry-silently
For God in every strait;
For him also continually
Ev'n pain-thy-self to wait;
For him that prospereth
His way, i fret in no wise:
Nor for him that accomplisheth
Fore plotted villanies.

8. ה k Thine ire let be surceast,
Leave-off thy wrath also:
Do thou not fret-thy self, at least
Offensive ill-to-do.
9. Because l ill-doers all
Shall be cut-off, abhor'd:
But they the Land inherit shall
That waite upon the LORD.

10. ו And yet a little space,
And th' wicked shall not be:
Yea m thou consider shalt his place,
Yet not be found shall he.
11. But meek-ones, as their right,
The Land they n shall possesse:
Likewise they-shall-themselves-delight
o In multitude of Peace.

III.

12. ז The wicked doth devise
His plots against the Just:
Against him he his Teeth likewise
Doth gnash with furious lust.

13. The LORD, his people spy,
At him p doth scorning-smile:
For he sees that his dreadful Day
q Is coming all the while.

14. ח The wicked Sword r have drawn
And bent their bow have they;
To cast the Poor and needy down,
To slay the right of way.
15. Into their Heart s shall go
Their swords with mortal stroke:
Their ready-bended Bowes also
To-shivers-shall-be-broke:

16. ט The little of the Just
Is clearly better, then
The wealthy-store, up heapt and thrust,
Of t many wicked-men.
17. For, of the impious
The Armes shall broken be:
But yet the LORD the righteous
From harm Upholdeth-free.

IV.

18. י The LORD doth know the dayes
Which perfect ones attain:
And their inheritance u alwayes
Shall stablished remain.
19. In saddest time of ill
x No shame-shall-them-betide:
And in the dayes of Famine still
They shall be satisfi'd.

20. כ But wicked wretches all
Shall-utterly-decay;
And as y the fat of Rams, so shall
The LORD's foes melt away:
They through iniquity
Do totally-consume,
They do consume continually
Ev'n z with the smoaky fume.

21. ל The wicked borroweth
And yet doth not repay
a Whereas the righteous favoureth,
And freely gives away.
22. For all his blessed-ones
b Possesse the land shall they:
But all his vile accursed-ones
Shall quite be-cut-away.

V.

23. מ A good man's goings are Establish'd by the LORD,
Likewise c to him his way so rare
Sweet-pleasure-doth-afford.
24. When he shall sliding fall,
He shall not off-be cast:
Because JEHOVAH, over all,
His hand upholdeth fast.

25. נ I was young, and am old,
Yet lest-unsuccoured
The righteous did I not behold:
Nor his Seed seeking bread.
26. Shew-favour still doth he,
And lendeth, all the day:
His Seed likewise appointed be Unto the blessing ay.

27. ס From ill d do-thou-remove,

This Pſalme for Kinde is a choice Doctrinal or Teaching Pſalme. A ſingular and ſatisfactory vindication of the Wiſdome, Faithfulneſſe, and Righteouſneſſe of Gods Providence, touching the Proſperity of the wicked, and Afflictions of the Righteous in this preſent World. Sect. IV. The Scope.

And Davids Scope intended herein is; 1. To vindicate and cleare Gods Providential Diſpenſations towards the Righteous and wicked, from all injuſtice, unlikelihoode, Inequality, &c. 2. And to perſwade Gods own people to walk with unfeigned confidence in God, placing all their delight in him, and behaving themſelves contentedly in the condition wherein he wiſely and ſaintly ſets them; reſtreining all fretfulneſſe, provocation, and impatiency in reſpect of the wicked and their preſent flouriſhing proſperity. 3. As alſo to teach them, That true happineſs and chief Good conſiſts, in his intereſt in, and enjoyment of God; not in the greateſt confluence of theſe externalls of this world, which a godly man may want, and yet be incomparably more happy, than any (even all the wicked that moſt overflow with them. Here therefore this Pſalme divers times points at the ſtrict greater difference betwixt the Righteous and the Wicked, then Proſperity or Adverſity can make. Theſe, rich in greateſt want and poverty; Theſe, poor in midſt of all their wealth and riches; Theſe, in greateſt adverſity capable by the Promiſes God of enjoying the Earth; Theſe, in their moſt flouriſhing proſperity ready to fade & wither ſuddenly, and be ſtript of all: Theſe truly happy in midſt of all their ſeeming miſery; Theſe, extreamly miſerable in midſt of all their ſeeming felicity. The laſt End of Theſe determining in Peace; the laſt end of Theſe, ſadly cloſing in their utter Abſciſſion and Perdition. Ambroſe notes, As in the former Pſalme, the wretchedneſs is declared; ſo in this the Righteous is inſtructed.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

The Inſcription only points out David as Penman of this Pſalme; Of David.

The Subſtance of the Pſalme, containes

I. The Duties of the Godly in regard of the wickeds proſperity, and their own contrary adverſity. Theſe Duties are propounded, and by ſome interwoven Arguments preſſed: 1. Negatively; They muſt not fret themſelves, or enflame themſelves with indignation and envy at them. Becauſe the wicked ſhall ſoon be deſtroyed as Graſſes or the green Bud, verſe 1, 2. II. Affirmatively; They muſt, 1. Truſt in the LORD, and do good. So they ſhall inhabit the Land, and undoubtedly be fed, ver. 3. 2. Delight themſelves selves in the LORD. So he will give them the askings of their hearts, verse 4. 5. Roll their way confidently on God, or commit it to and on him. So 1 Their way shall be accomplished, verse 5. 2 Their just Cause shall be made clearly evidencent, verse 6. 4 Tarry patiently, and wait patiently for the LORD, forbearing all fretting against the wicked prospering in his way and bringing to pass his devised wicked wiles, especially such disrespected fretting as puts upon doing evil, verse 7, 8.

II. Arguments enforcing these Duties, Drawn, 1. From the fruitless and utter destruction threatned to the wicked; see the inheritance, and great tranquility promised to the godly, ver. 9, 10, 11. 2. From the Providence of God, (1) Deriding, (2) frustrating, yea (3) Returning upon the wicked themselves, their Plots, Rage, and cruel Persecution against the just, verse 12. to 16. 3. From Gods blessing of even one Righteous mans Little, beyond many wicked mens much, verse 16. The Righteous being (1) Supported, when the wicked's armes are broken, ver. 17. (2) Constantly provided for, and cared for; especially in dayes of distresse; whilest contrarywise the wicked are utterly consumed, verse 18 19, 20. (3) Enabled to show favour and lend to others: when the wicked borrows and repayes not, verse 21. (4) Blessed on Earth; when the wicked are accursed, ver. 22. (5) Established in his way, and in his falling preserved from being utterly cast off, verse 23, 24. 4. From Davids signal experience who, from his youth up even unto his old-age, had not seen the righteous forsaken, or his Seed seeking bread; viz. Utterly destitute to the reproach of God, Godlinesse, or Gods Promises: But contrarywise, All the day showing favour and lending, and his Seed in the blessing, verse 25, 26.

III. An Hortatory Conclusion, exciting the Righteous, to eschew evil, Do good, wait upon the LORD and keep his way, notwithstanding all the prosperity of the wicked, ver. 27——34. And this is urged, 1. From promise of their perpetual habitation, ver. 27. 2. From Gods love to judgement. 3. From Gods constant preservation of his Saints, when the seed of the wicked is cut off, ver. 28. 4. From the excellent condition wherein God hath set the righteous, beyond that of the wicked. The Righteous, (1) Inheriting the Land, verse 29. (2) Uttering wisdome and judgement, verse 30. Having Gods Law in his heart, to direct his steps, verse 31. (4) Being preserved safe by the LORD against all the Plots and cruelty of the wicked, verse 32, 33. Yea (5) Inheriting the Earth, whilst the wicked are cut off, before their eyes, verse 34. 5. From the extream different ends of the Righteous and wicked: The end of those, being Peace; of these, Abolition, Destruction, and Abscision notwithstanding all the greatest glory of their former prosperity, ver. 35, 36, 37, 38. 6. From Gods Salvation, Aid, and Deliverance still vouchsafed to the righteous against their enemies in times of distress, because they fly to the LORD for safety, verse 39, 40.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme.

This Psalme as to the Kinde of it, is A Sad Lamenting Prayer of the Psalmist under some grievous corporal Disease lying extream heavy upon him.

Penman of it was David; A Psalme of David.

Occasion of Davids writing it, was some great affliction, some acute Corporal Disease and Pain violently distressing him. Under this heavy Hand of God, being apprehensive of his many and great iniquities procuring justly these Distresses, he exceedingly laments and Pathetically Prayes. x Some think David in this Psalme laments some grievous Disease inflicted upon him for his sin with Bathsheba. This is accounted The third y Penitential Psalme, wherein David Penitentially bewayleth and deeply aggravateth his sins, the causes of his sorrows. Ambrose sweetly; What is more forcible to exhort to repentance, then that the holy Prophet David teacheth us to repent of our sins? who shall disdain to humble himself before God, when the King humbles himself, &c z.

x Putat Josephus Judaicus Davidem in gravi morbo, qui ill ob peccatum cum Bethsabee Commissum inflictus esset, hoc carmen edidisse. Sim. de Muis Argument. in Psal. 38. y See Psal. 6. Sect. 3.

z Quid autem est ad cohortationem pœnitentiæ validius, quam quod Sanctus Propheta David peccatorum nostrorum nos docuit penitere? Quis enim dedignetur humiliare se Deo, cum Rex se humiliaverit? Aut quis dubitet affligere animam suam, cum Propheta tantus afflixerit, solvens precium lachrymarum pro redemptione peccati; &c. Ambros. Præfat. in Exstrat. Psal. 37. Tom. 4.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this Psalme is; To intreat the Lord not to chastize him in his wrath and burning indignation for his many and great iniquites. And therefore, confessing his sins, and lamenting his afflictions aggravated by his enemies, he beseecheth the Lord herein not to forsake him, but to make haste to his relief, See verse 1. 2, 4. 11. 21. 22. That word in the Hebrew Title לְהַזְכִּיר Le-hazeir, To-cause-remembrance: or; For-to-record: or; To-bring-to-remembrance: a seems unto some to be the beginning of some known Song. But others interpret it rather, according to the sense and signification of the word, as denoting one special end and use of this Psalme, viz. To be a Memorial-Psalme, or A Psalme of Commemoration: And this, 1. Either in respect of God, To intreat him to remember David in all these his deep distresses, according to his rich mercy, &c. As, Psal. 132. 1. and to this effect especially the 70th Psalme is also intituled, A Psalme of Remembrance, wherein David, as the LORD's Remembrancer, mindes the LORD of his Mercy towards him. 2. Or in respect of David himself; That he might not easily let this sharp correction, or his sins the procuring causes thereof, slip out of his Mind and Memory, but retain them still in fresh remembrance. And David appointed Singers of the Levites before the Ark, for-to-Record, and to confesse, and to praise the LORD the God of Israel, 1 Chron. 16. 4. The Chaldee Paraphrast hath the Title thus; A Psalme of David for a good Memorial upon Israel. The Greek Version of the Lxxij, thus; A Psalme to David for Remembrance a Sic. Ab. Ezra, & post eum Sim. de Muis in Com. in Psal. 38. Tit.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title (which partly the same with that of Psal. 70.) 3 more 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme, tuned with Musical Instrument. 2. The Penman, David. 3. The use; For-to-record, or, to cause remembrance.

In the Substance of the Psalme, are; 1. A Deprecation. 2. An Amplification of it. 3. A Penitent Conclusion:

I. A Deprecation, or Praying against the LORD's chastizing him in his wrath and fiery displeasure; and consequently he beggs that all his sharpest corrections may be in love, verse 1.

II. An Amplification of this request by divers Arguments drawn from the Causes, Effects, and Concomitant Circumstances of his Distresses. 1. The Causes of his afflictions are two, viz. 1. The Efficient Cause, Gods Justice, verse 2. 2. The Procuring Cause, The multitude, and weight of his own sins and iniquities, verse 3, 4, 5. 2. Effects of his Afflictions are many. As. 1. Putrefaction and stinking of his stripes, verse 5. 2. Extream sadnesse, making him crooked and bowing him down exceedingly, verse 6. 3. Parching inflammation, or some loathsome Matter in his Bowels, verse 7. 4. Vehement Consumption and crushing of his strength and Spirits, 8. Roaring out through deep anguish of heart, verse 8. 6. Breathing out strong desires and deep sighs to the LORD for succour, verse 9. 7. Palpitation, or trembling of his heart. 8. Loss of his inward vigor. 9. And failing of his sight, verse 10. These the effects or fruits of his deep distresse. III. Circumstances of his afflictions, are either in regard of, 1. His friends and familiars, who were estranged from him, verse 11. 2. His enemies, who plot, speak, and practise continually against him, verse 12. 3. Himself, who endeavoured to bear all so Patiently, as if he were quite senseless of these injuries, ver. 13, 14. This his Patience is illustrated, 1 Partly, by the ground of it, His hope in God, verse 15. 2 Partly, by the fruit of this Hope, viz. His Prayer to God against his Enemies, Sorrows, and Sins, (the pride and cruel persecution of his enemies being complained off,) ver. 16, to 21.

III. A Peritory Conclusion, intreating the LORD; not to Leave him nor to Absent himself at a distance from him in his Troubles: but contrariwise to make haste to his relief, verse 21, 22.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master-Musician, to Jeduthun, A Psalm of David.

1. I Said, my wayes I will observe, a Lest I sin with my tongue,
I, on my mouth lest it should serve,
Will keep a Bridle strong;
Before-me while the wicked staid.
2. From good I held-my-Peace:
With silence I so dumb-was-made,
But my pain did increase.

3. Mine heart within me hot-did-grow,
The fire reiterated flame,
Did in my Meditation glow;
Then spake I with my tongue.
4. Lord, make-me-know mine end, and shew
The measure of my dayes
What it may be: That I may know
How frail I am always.

5. Lo, thou b hast made my dayes a Span,
Likewise my time with thee
As nothing is: Sure, every man
c At-best all vanity. Selah.
6. Sure d in an image man doth go,
They vainly make a stir;
He heaps up goods, and knows not who Shall be their Gatherer.

7. But now, what wait I for, O LORD?
Mine Hope it is for thee.
8. From all my trespasses abhorr'd
Do thou deliver me:

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion, &c.

This Psalm is, for the Kind and Nature of it, A Prayer. The Penman of it, David: The Title stiles it, A Psalm of David. The Occasion of Davids Penning it, is not so certainly evident. Some, k as Ezra and others think, David wrote it in some sickness of his, as also he did the former Psalm. Others, and they of the Hebrew-Writers also are rather of opinion, David wrote it when he was under some great affliction and calamity: Therein teaching us; That, when we are oppressed with the wicked, God is not to be accused, but such miseries are to be undergone with constancy, this life and the incommodities thereof being but momentany. But I seems of our later Writers conceive from the Context and Argument here handled, that David then wrote this Psalme, when he was cast into great straits, by Absalom's conspiracy.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Whatever the Occasion was, The Scope intended in this Psalm, seems chiefly to be this; viz. To set forth; 1. How David, under some great affliction, resolved to compose himself in all silence, especially in presence of the wicked; But 2. How his heart waxing hot by his long holding his peace, he at last desired the LORD to make him know his end, and the measure of his dayes, 3. Whereupon perceiving the extream brevity and vanity of his and all mens lives, he begs pardon of his sins, silently submits to the afflicting hand of God, and increats the LORD for some cessation of his anger, that he may a little refresh himself before his Death.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Psalm, set forth, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalm. 2. The Penman of it, David. 3. The Direction of it, as to the Musick; To-him-that-excelleth, to Jeduthun. He Prophecied with the Harp to give thanks, and to praise the LORD, 1 Chron. 25. 3, 6, 9. The Chaldee Paraphrast thus sets forth the Title; To praise for the Custody of the House of the Sanctuary, by the mouth of Jeduthun, An Hymn of David m. But I can find no cause no colour for any such addition.

Yea, man walks in an image, walks up and down but like a vanishing apparition, having an imaginary rather then a real life. 3. And he makes a great stir in the world to keep up temporals, not knowing who shall inherit them, (for Absalom conspiring against him, and Ahithophel being suspected, David might vehemently doubt who should succeed him.) II. Petitory. Wherein David recollecting himself, presents certain Petitions to the Lord. And here, 1. He professeth, that (notwithstanding all this) his hopeful expectation is only upon the Lord, ver. 7. 2. He begs pardon for these and all other his trespasses. 3. He Prayes, That by his continued and great calamities, he may not become the reproach of the fool, ver. 8. 4. He resolveth to be dumb, and open his mouth no more against his affliction, because God did it, ver. 9. 5. He sues for deliverance from his Distresses; (1) Partly, for that he was almost consumed by Gods buffeting, ver. 10. And he to me did bend,
And a did to hear my cry attend.
2. And me he understood
Out of the Pit of howling-woe,
Out of the mire of clay:

6. Thou Sacrifice and Offering Didst not delight to have:
Mine Ears hast thou g bor'd, to key:
Likewise thou didst not crave
Burnt-offring, and offring for sin.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme.

This Psalme is Prophetical, laid down Prayer-wise. The whole matter is Applicable, 1. Immediately, to David, as the natural Parent of Christ according to the flesh, and a Spiritual Type of him. And Christ in Scripture is divers times called David; As Hos. 3. 5. Jer. 30. 9. Ezek. 34. 23. and 37. 24. because he is the true David. 2. Mediately, and most principally to the Son of David, Jesus Christ himself, as the Antitype and Truth. The Apostle testifies that this Psalme prophecieth of Christ, Heb. 10. 5, 6, 7. t So that it is a Prophetical Prayer, or a praying Prophecie. That learned and judicious Andr. Rivet, touching the Object intended in this Psalme, saith; There are both of Ancient and Later Interpreters, who think this whole Psalme expresseth Christs words, but some to be spoken in his own Person, some, in the person partly of Gentiles, partly of Jewes, or in the person of the Church only. So that the Church should speak in the beginning and end, but Christ in the middle. Others would have Christ always to speak, who in the Beginning glorieth of his deliverance from Death and Hell, by his Resurrection; And in the End, as it were, set on the Cross in his Passion, he begs deliverance from innumerable evils. There are others who referre all to David first, but who was a Type of the Messiah: and therefore, though there be many things in this Psalme which belong only to David, yet are there some things which are spoken of him onely Typically, and ought to be referred to the Truth in Christ. ——But I think their opinion to come nearest to the genuine sense, who think, Davids words found throughout the whole Psalme: But because David was to be Christs Father according to the flesh, therfore sometimes by a paternal right he challengeth to himself his sonnes words, and so utters them, as if they belonged to himself for the kindred of the flesh. ——And the Interpretation will run best, if referring to David what things may agree to him, we so attribute the rest to Christ with the Apostle, (Heb. 10. 7, 8, 9.) as used of David Prophetically, as he was to be Christs Father, and were to be fulfilled in his Seed u, &c.

Penman of it was David, as the Title intimates.

Occasion of Davids writing it is not Particularly evident, But in the General it seemes, by the matter of the Psalme, David penned it upon occasion of some very deep calamity, and extream distress that he was wofully implunged into, making him reflect upon his sinnes, &c. See ver. 2. 12. yet confirming his faith and hope from former experience, both private and publick, and from Christs most acceptable obedience more delightful to God then all Sacrifices, &c. He supplicates for deliverance, and deprecates his enemies cruelty and insolency.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this choice Psalme, is; Under the grievous Afflictions, Enemies, and Deliverances of David, To foretel Prophetically the great Sufferings, Enemies and Deliverances of Christ, by whose Death and Obedience all the Legal Sacrifices should be abolished; Whereupon the Righteousnes of God is preached to the whole Church, and the confusion of his enemies, and joy of those that love his salvation is petitioned for Prophetically.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Inscription are: 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 2. The Penman; David. 3. The Direction of it as to the Musick; To the Master-Singer.

In the Psalme it self, are; 1. Encouraging Arguments to Faith and Prayer, laid down. 2. Petitions presented to the LORD upon those encouragements.

I. Encouraging Arguments to Faith and Prayer, are drawn, 1. From Gods particular and peculiar favours experimented in former distresses and extremities. Wherein the LORD, 1. Heard him after long and long expectation, ver. 1. 2. Deliver him from wofull sufferings. Elegantly compared, (1) To a Pit or Dungeon of howling or sounding calamity. (2) To deep mire or clay, wherein he stuck fast; (notable Emblemes of the deep sufferings both of David and of Christ.) 3. Established his steps on safe ground, on a Rock above these dangers and evils, ver. 2. 4. Hereby put into his mouth A new Song of Praise. 5. And hence encouraged all Beholders to fear and trust in the Lord, ver. 3. II. From Gods publique benefits to all his Saints and every one of them, walking in 1. Faith, 2. Humility, and 3. Truth: Such being, 1. Most happy. Happy even to Admiration, ver. 4. 2. Gods thoughts, yea wonders of love to them, are, for multitude, beyond all expressions, ver. 5. III. From Gods highest and sweetest discovery of Love in CHRIST, as our Redeemer. Here Christ is propheticaly brought in, as speaking of three things especially to his Father: viz. 1. The total Abrogation of all sorts of Legal Sacrifices, as wholly insufficient for mans Redemption. 2. The establishment of Christ the Mediatour, the true sufficient Sacrifice, in stead of them all. Mine eares hast thou boared: viz. Thou hast made me herein thy faithful servant for ever. An allusion to the Law, Exod. 21. 6. The Greek Version of LXXII. (followed by the Apostle, Heb. 10. 5.) renders it otherwise; σῶμα δὲ κατηρτίσω μοι, A Body hast thou fitted to me: Gathering from the Consequent, what was Antecedent. For, His ear could not be thus Boared, Nor he become Gods Mediatory Servant, had not God first fitted the Humane Nature to be personally united to the Divine, that therein he might suffer and be sacrificed, Heb. 10. 5, 10. In which respect it is said; God was manifested in the flesh, 1 Tim. 3. 16. The Word was made flesh, and tabernacled in (or with) us, Joh. 1. 14. God sent his Son, made of a woman, made under the Law, to Redeem them that were under the Law, Gal. 4. 4. &c. Thus the sense of both these Phrases, is for substance one and the same, ver. 6. 3. The Readinesse of of Christ, (1) According to the volume of Gods Book, the Holy Scriptures; (2) According to the power of Gods Law engraven in his Heart in the inwards of his Bowels, To discharge; 1. His Priestly Office; Coming into the world, and especially to Jerusalem, To give himself as a Sacrifice, (Heb. 10. 5, 10. compared with Mark 10. 31, 32, 33.) To do Gods Acceptable will, that is, to be obedient to the death, &c. (Heb. 10. 9, 10. Phil. 2. 8.) ver. 7, 8. 2. His Prophetical Office, in Evangelizeing; viz. Preaching the Gospels glad-tidings to his Church fully and faithfully, ver. 9, 10.

II. Petitions presented to the LORD upon these Encouragements and Arguments, are; 1. For Gods favour, the fountain of mercy. 2. For his constant support and preservation under his sufferings, ver. 11. 3. For deliverance from his most heavy and numberless sorrowes, (iniquities being put, either for the sorrowes and pains of iniquities, as Gen. 4. 13. Or for our iniquities by imputation laid on Christ, Isai. 53. 6.) ver. 12, 13. 4. For confusion of his enemies, seeking his

1. O Happy man! That prudently
The weakling doth consider

The LORD will him deliver.
2. The LORD t will keep, and make him live;
In earth he shall be bless;
Ere him (O God) do thou not give x I have sin'd against thee.

5. Of me mine enemies do ill say;
When dye the death shall he,
And his Name y perishing-decay?
6. And if he come to see,
Utters himself falsely:
He heapeth up, O God,
He goeth forth immediately
And speaketh it abroad.

7. Together all that do me hate Against me whisper still;
Against me they do meditate
And do devise mine ill.
8. They say; On him adhereth fast
Some thing of Belial;
And he that lyeth-down at last,
Shall rise no more all.

9. Yea, z He with whom at peace I was,
In whom I did confide,
That eat my bread, The heel alas

And up again do thou me raise;
And I shall them repay.

11. By this I clearly know, That thou
In me c dost-pleasure-take;
When over me my vaunting foe
Doth not his d triumphs-make.
12. e But me, Thou in my perfectness
Didst sweetly me sustain;
And setledst me before thy face

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion, &c.

This Psalm is of a Mixt nature, made up of Instruction, Prophecy and Prayer. Instructing, touching that mans happiness, who wisely-considers and commiserating relieves, succours, comforts, &c. The poor weakling, laid extreme low, ver. 1. &c. Prophecy- ing (under the Type of Davids Poverty and afflictions, Achitophels Treachery against him therein, and his rising again out of his distresse) of the poverty and sufferings of Christ, Judas his Treachery against him therein, and of Christs Resurrection and glory following. Compare ver. 1.5.10.12. with Joh. 13.18. Psal. (viz. David) praying for himself, against his Enemies ver. 10. &c.

Penman of this Psalm was David, As the Title signifies.

Occasion of his writing it, (though not Particularly expressed, yet from the Subject-matter of it may be probably conjectured. Some think, David Penned it, when he lay afflicted with some grievous Disease of Body; So the Hebrew writers. Some (not finding such corporal sickness of David recorded in Scripture) think he speaks allegorically here of the sickness of his mind and Spirit, touching his son Absalons unnatural conspiracy against him: So Junius, &c. Some rather apprehend from the expressions in the context, that he wrote it, upon Occasion of his beginning to recover a little out of his Disease, and get a little strength again, (as seems hinted. ver. 4. to 13.) So Mollerus. Another thinks the ravishing of Tamar, and Murder of Amnon ministred occasion to David for Penning of this Psalm x. Let the judicious consider.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended herein, is; 1. To set forth his deep afflictions and distresses, His Adversaries mischief and maliciousness against him under them, especially the treachery of his familiar friend, viz. Achitophel; 2. To beseech the LORD to favour him, heal him, and raise him up again, that his adversaries may not insult over him, but God be magnified thereby. 3. And under his Typical adumbration to foretel Prophetically, The great poverty and sufferings of Christ, The Hypocrisie and malice of his Adversaries therein, especially the Treachery of Judas (compare verse 9. with John 13. 18.) But after all, Christs Resurrection and glory, to the endless praise of God.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title, note 1. The Denomination; A Psalm.

2. The Penman; David. 3. The Direction of it, as to the Musick.

In the Substance of the Psalm, are 1. A Narration. 2. A Petition.

I. The Narration is twofold; viz. 1. Of the Blessedness of the Merciful man, wholy considering the poor-weakling (viz. literally, David; spiritually, Christ himself) in his extream distresses. This his happiness is Amplified by sundry sweet Promises made to him. As, 1. Of Deliverance in day of ill, ver. 1. 2. Of Preservation of his life. 3. Of his Benediction on Earth. 4. Of his Protection from his enemies lust, ver. 2. 5. Of Divine support & refreshment in all his languishing diseases, ver. 3. II. Of his own, and Christ's deep sufferings. Herein are declared, 1. His Deportment under them towards God, praying for favour and healing to his soul, ver. 4. 2. The Deportment both of his enemies and friends towards him; both which are complained of by David and Christ. His Enemies behaved themselves maliciously; (1) Wishing his Death, yea, the Obliterating of his very Name, ver. 5. (2) Counterfeiting friendship in visiting him, meerly in scorn and derision of him, ver. 6. (3) Whispering and complotting mischief against him, ver. 7. (4) Calumniating him above his Distresses and Sufferings; as if the cause of them were some notorious dissoluteness or wickedness, and his case under them were wholly desperate, ver. 8. His Friend dealt treacherously with him, but on his part most undeservedly; (As Achitophel with David 2 Sam. 15. 31. Judas with Christ John 13. 18.) ver. 9.

II. The Petition of the Prophet, (David, and Christ.) That the LORD would be gracious to him, and raise him up out of his deep distresses. 1. That so he may justly recompense his Enemies, ver. 10. 2. That thus (his foes not insulting over him) he may be assured, God takes pleasure in him, ver. 11. This Petition is Emphatically Amplyfied, (1) By his Recognition of the LORD's sustaining him in his integrity, and setling before his face for ever, ver. 12. (2) By his thankful Pronunciation of the LORD's eternal blessedness. (3) By his Conclusion of this Psalme; yea, of this whole First Book of Psalmes, with Amen and Amen, verse 13.

PSALMES.

THE New Testament accounts the Psalmes to be but One Book, which is therein therefore stiled, ΒΙΒΛΟΣ ΨΑΛΜΩΝ, The BIBLE or BOOK OF PSALMES, Luke 20. 42. Act. 1. 20. But it is evident by Epiphanius a, Greg. Nyssen b, and Hieronyme c, That this one Book of Psalmes hath been anciently Subdivided into five distinct Books or Volumes, probably by some of the Hebrew Writers or Rabbins. And as the five Books of Moses are called Moses's Pentateuch: So these five Books of Psalmes may be stiled David's Pentateuch. About this Distribution, See formerly in the General Preface to the whole Book of Psalms, Sect. VI. This Second Book contains in all thirty Psalmes, viz. Psalm 42. to Psal. 72. inclusively; And it thus concludes. ——— Amen and Amen. Ended are the Prayers of David Son of Jesse, Psal. 72. 19, 20. Before this 42. Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion. &c.

This is The second Maſchil, or Inſtructing-Pſalme; See Pſal. 32. Sect. 3. Herein the Pſalmiſt, by his own example Inſtructs Gods people, How deep an affliction it is to a gracious Soul to be exiled from the Lord's preſence in his Sanctuary and Ordinances; How bitter an heart-breaking it is to the Godly in diſtreſſe to be inſulted over by wicked enemies as as forſaken of God; And how he is to behave and comfort himſelf againſt both. This Pſalme is mixt of Doctrine, Expoſtulation, and Prayer.

Penman of this Pſalme is not expreſſed: and therefore cannot certainly be determined upon. y R. Moſes thinks it was written in the Babyloniſh Captivity, Muis thinks this and the two following Pſalmes to be written by one of the Sonnes of Korah in the Babyloniſh-Captivity: The matter and words in theſe three Pſalmes ſeeming ſo notably to point at that Exile. But others from the Subject-matter of this Pſalme, do rather judge that David Penned this Pſalme z.

y Vid Sim. de Muis in Com. ad Pſal. 42. 1.

z Jun. Annot. in Pſal. 42.

The Occaſion of his writing it, was evidently his forced Exile from the Tabernacle and Publique Aſſembles where he was wont to have ſweet Communion with God in his Ordinances. This his Exile, was probably, either by reaſon of Sauls cruel Perſecution of him; Or his Sonne Abſalom's unnaturall Inſurrection againſt him.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Pſalmiſts intended Scope, is; 1. To eaſe his oppreſſed heart, and comfort himſelf, By Holy deſires, Expoſtulations, Petitions and Hope, Againſt his ſad Exile from Gods Houſe, Preſence and Ordinances, againſt his deep afflictions that lay heavy upon him, and his enemies inſolences againſt him in both regards. 2. And conſequently to inſtruct Gods people how to behave themſelves anſwerably in like conditions.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Inſcription, note; 1. The Denomination of it, pointing out the Nature of the Pſalme; Maſchil. 2. The Direction of it as to the Muſick.

In the Subſtance of the Pſalme it ſelf, note; The Pſalmiſts twofold complaint,

I. His ſad Complaint and Lamentation, by reaſon of his Exile from Gods Houſe, Preſence, and Ordinances in the publick Aſſemblies, Herein are laid down, 1. His Complaint it ſelf. Amplified and even aggravated, 2. By his own vehement longing deſires after God in his Houſe, &c. His Soul (1) Panting after God as the Hinde in Summer heateth deſiroufly after the Water-Brooks, verſe 1. (2) Thirſting for God; (3) Thinking the time long and tedious till the preſence of God be again recovered by him, verſe 2. 3. By his enemies bitter and cutting inſulting over him, as forſaken of God, which made him as it were feed upon nothing but his own Teares night and day, ver. 3. 5. By his remembrance of his by-paſt happineſs, when he went with the multitude of thoſe that kept the Solemn Feaſts, To the Houſe of God with voice of ſhouting and praiſe; which paralleld with his preſent Exile and privation of thoſe ſweet liberties, made him now poure out his very Soul with grief within him, verſe 4. II. His checking and comforting his drooping, dejected, and ſelf-diſquieting Soul, againſt this complaint, with hopes in God; That yet again (notwithſtanding all his preſent calamities) he ſhould have opportunity to pleaſe God, and enjoy the Salvations of his face in his Houſe, verſe 5.

II. His Complaint to God againſt his other diſtreſſes, (Peculiar Conſolations being interwoven with every of them.) As; 1. Againſt Deſpondency and Deſertion of Soul. Raiſing up his Spirit with the remembrance of God, where ever he was forced to wander from his Sanctuary, (1) Whether Eaſtward, in the Land of Jordan: (2) Or Northward among the Hermonim: (3) Or Southward, among the little Mountains bounding Judea, verſe 6. 2. Againſt the multitudes of mighty-afflictions overwhelming him without intermiſſion, calling (as it were) one upon another to fall upon him. Elegantly reſembled, (1) To deeps of waters; (2) To the Cataracts of Heaven, Gods Water-ſpouts from the Clouds; (3) To breaking Wavers and rolling Billows, verſe 7. Here he comforts himſelf, Partly, By the LORD's conſtant faithfulneſſe and kindneſſe to him night and day. Partly, By his priviledge of pouring out, both his Prayer, and his Complaints to God continually againſt his afflictions and enemies verſe 8, 9. 3. Againſt the inſolency of his enemies, daily upbraiding him as forſaken of God; which was as a Murdering-ſword or Dagger (yea, Heb. Murder) in his bones, verſe 10. Under which he comforts his ſelf-dejecting and ſelf-diſquieting ſoul, by hope in God; That yet he ſhould publickly praiſe him in the Tabernacle, as his evident and full Salvation, and as his God, verſe 11.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion &c.

This untituled Pſalme is a Prayer. The Subject-Matter of it, is exceeding like that of the former Pſalme: yea, ſundry of the very words and expreſſions of both theſe Pſalmes, are the ſame; Compare Pſal. 42. 11. with Pſal. 43. 5. Whereupon ſome have deſervedly accounted this 43. Pſalme to be an Appendix of Pſalme 42 m.

Penman, and Occaſion of this Pſalme may be judged of, as in the former.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Pſalmiſts Scope is; To intreat the LORD, ſo to plead his Cauſe againſt his perſecuting Adverſaries, that at laſt he may be reſtored again to his much longed-for Communion with God in his Sanctuary.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

This Pſalme is 1. Peritory. 2. Conſolatory.

I. Peritory. He petitioneth to the LORD, 1. To avenge him, plead his Cauſe, and deliver him from his Adverſaries. This requeſt he urgeth, Partly from his enemies vileneſs: They being (1) Unmerciful, (2) Deceitful, (3) Injurious, (4) Oppreſſing verſe 1, 2, Partly from his own intereſt in God, on whom alone he relyed as his ſtrength, and therefore expoſtulates with him about, (1) Gods thruſting him away, viz. from his favour, help, &c. (2) His own mournful condition. (3) His enemies oppreſſion, verſe 2. 2. To ſend forth, (1) The Light of his Divine Favour; (2) The Truth of his Covenant and Promiſes: which may again reſtore him to his wonted fellowſhip with God in his Sanctuary. This is amplified, 1. By an Elegant Gradation. He would be reſtored and brought, To Gods Holy Mountain: Yea, to his Dwelling-place: there; to Gods Altar: there; to God himſelf, The joy of his Exultation, The joy of his Gladneſs: 2. By the end of his requeſt, viz. That he might publickly praiſe and glorifie God, verſe 3. 4.

II. Conſolatory. He checks and comforts his ſelf-deiected, and ſelf-diſquieting ſoul, with hope in God; That yet he ſhould praiſe him in the Tabernacle, As his Evidence and full Salvation, and as his God, verſe 5.

9. But now thou thrustest-us-away,

And with our Armies in array

10. Thou backward m makest-us-retrait
From our distressing foe;
And they that us extreamly hate

11. Thou n giv'st us to our Enemies
As silly o Sheep for meat:

Thou dost us dissipate.
12. Thou p dost thy people sell unmade,

13. Thou to reproach s dost us expose

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion, &c.

This is the third Maschil, or Instructing Psalme: See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. And it is a fervent Complaint, or vehement Expostulating Lamenting prayer to God: Penned, as it were in the name of the Afflicted, and Persecuted Church of God. A very lively Map of the Saints Sufferings and Martyrdomes for the Cause of God, of Christ, and of the Gospel, both under the Old and New Testament: As the Apostle intimateth, Rom. 8. 36.

Who was Penman of it, whether David by a Prophetick Spirit foretelling the Churches future Calamities, as some h, or some of the Posterity of Korach in the Babylonish Captivity, as i others; or some other Prophet; is not clearly evident either by this Psalme, or any other Scripture.

The Occasion also of writing it, cannot be particularly determined upon: whether the Jews long afflictions in the 70. years Babylonish Captivity, wherein the godly are supposed to use this Prayer; As Musculus. Or the cruel Tyranny of Antiochus; As Calvin. Or the many distresses of the Church by the Philistines, from times of Sampson till the dayes of David: As Junius m. Or some other calamitous time that befell the Church. And therefore it is not safe to be positive herein.

i Sim. de Muis in Arg. ad Ps. 44.
k Sim. de Muis ubi supra.

m Fran. Junius not. ad Ps. 45.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Church in this zealous complaining Prayer (as the Subject-matter thereof evidenceth) is especially; 1. To Lament and bewail the many heavy Calamities that the Lord (after all his former favours to them in possessing them of the Land of Canaan) had brought upon them, by their cruel persecuting enemies. 2. To Professe their constancy and fidelity to God, notwithstanding all this Deluge and Sea of Miseries that was broke in upon them. 3. And to intreat the Lord for Salvation and Deliverance from all their pressing evils and oppressing enemies.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title, are; 1. The Denomination of it; Maschil. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick.

In the Substance of the Psalme, we have the Church, 1. Commemorating, 2. Complaining, 3. Professing and 4. Praying.

I The Church Commemoreth the former experience of Gods ancient favours to their fore-fathers, v. 1. to 9. These Favours of God are, 1 Described, 2 Improved. I. Described, divers wayes, 1. By the Reporters of them; their Fathers. 2. By the season of them; In their dayes of old, v. 1. 3. By the Matter of them; Ill-intreating and dispossessing the Heathen Canaanites out of the Land of Canaan, but implanting and propagating his People in their stead, v. 2. 4. By the Author of them; Negatively, Not their own Sword and Valour: But Affirmatively, Gods right-hand and free-favour only, v. 3. II. Improved ed as an Argument and Encouraging ground for the Churches present Supplication to the same King and God, for like Salvation now to his afflicted People, v. 4. This request being further urged, 1. From their sincere confidence in God alone, not in themselves at all against their enemies, v. 5, 6. 2. From former experience of Gods saving them, but confounding their enemies, v. 7. 3. From their thankful praises, Performed for times past, Promised for time to come upon this account, v. 8.

II. The Church Complaineth sadly of the many and heavy Calamities, which the Lord had brought upon them by their enemies, contrary to all those former sweet Experiences, v. 9. to 17. More Particularly, These evils were brought upon them, 1. By God, Deserting them and their Armies, v. 9. II. By their persecuting Enemies. By whom they were, 1. Put to flight, 2. Spoiled, v. 10. 3. Slain. 4. Pawned and scattered abroad, v. 11. 5. Sold into Captivity, more contemptibly then very slaves without price, v. 12. 6. Exposed to all manner of reproach by deeds, words, gestures, To all sorts of People, Neighbours, and Heathens, and this at all times to the utter confusion of their faces, verse 13, 14, 15, 16.

III. The Church Professeth her constant integrity with God, even in midst of all this Sea of miseries about her, v. 17. to 23. This her Integrity is, 1. Declared, by the Parts thereof: viz. 1. She forgot not God. 2. Nor deale falsly in his Covenant, for all this, v. 17. II. Confirmed. And this, 1. Partly by Amplification of the former particulars. (1) Deale not falsly against Gods Covenant, Either by a backsliding heart; Or by a swerving course: No not in greatest extremities of afflictions, v. 18, 19. (2) Forgot not God, nor spread-out her hands to Idols. For proof whereof she appeals to the Heart-searching, and Sin-revenging God, v. 20, 21. 2. Partly by Opposition rather of her contrary patient Perseverance under worst of sufferings, ver. 22.

IV. The Church Prayeth most fervently for relief. That God would stirre up himself, awake, help, and redeem her. Which requests are Pathetically enforced, by divers moving Deprecations, Expostulations, and Complaints intermixed, verse 23, 24, 25, 26.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occaſion.

This Pſalme is of a Mixt Nature, made up of Prophecy Doctrine, and Exhortation. It is the fourth Maſchil, See Pſ. 32. Sect. 3. It contains a ſweet and elegant Marriage-Song: wherein under the Type of King Solomons Marriage with King Pharaohs Daughter. The Spiritual or Myſtical Marriage betwixt Jeſus Chriſt, King of Kings, the Bridegroom; and the Church his Bride, is celebrated by the wel-beloved-Virgins; viz. Kings Daughters and other Honourable Damoſels, attending upon the Queen; ſincere Chriſtians, chaſt Virgin-worſhippers, the true friends of the Bridegroom and the Bride, in praiſe of whom they ſing this Marriage-Song. Compare, Title, ver. 6, 7. with Heb. 1, 8, 9. where this Song is expounded of Chriſt the Sonne. It's of the ſame Argument with the Song of Songs, and as it were a Compendious Epitome of it u. This Hymne (as x one well noteth) ſets forth Chriſt in his Glory: and his Spouſe the Church in her Beauty. For Chriſt is the Bridegroom, and Jeruſalem the Bride, Joh. 3. 29. Rev. 21. 9, 10. All true Chriſtians are Virgins, for their ſpiritual chaſtity, Rev. 14. 1, 4. following, and loving the Lamb, for the ſweet Odour of his Name, or Goſpel, Song 1. 2. and are beloved of him, and have this new Song of Praiſe put into their mouths. Some things herein are ſo expreſſed, that they cannot be applyed in any ſence to King Solomon, but only to Chriſt: As ver. 6, 11. Kimchi and many other Jewiſh Rabbines interpret this Pſalme only of Chriſt y.

u hic Pſalmus Propheticus eſt, conſentaneque Epithalamium, quo Chriſti cum Eccleſia Nuptiæ celebrantur. Idemque habet Argumentum quod Canticum Canticorum, ejuſque videtur eſſe Epitome. Sim. de Muis Arg. in Pſal. 45.

Penman of this choice Prophetical, Inſtructing, Hortatory Pſalme, is not here nor elſewhere in Scripture expreſſed: and therefore cannot be certainly determined upon.

Occaſion, ſeems probably to be King Solomon's Marriage with King Pharaoh's Daughter, here ſpoken of literally, leſſe principally and Typically in moſt paſſages z, but the marriage betwixt Chriſt and his Chuch being the Truth and Spiritual Myſtery principally intended, Heb. 1. 8, 9. with Pſal. 44. 6, 7.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Epithalamium or Marriage-Song. is; Under the Type and Allegory of the Marriage of King Solomon and Pharaohs Daughter, to diſplay the Excellency, Glory, and Sweetneſſe of that Great Myſtery, the Spiritual Eſpouſals and union of Chriſt and his Church, together with the matchleſſe Excellencies and mutual Offices of them both; and the happy fruits this their Nuptial union ſhall produce.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Pſalme contains, 1. The Direction of it, as to the Muſick. 2. The Denomination of it, As to (1) The Matter, or uſe of it; Maſchil. Inſtruction. See ver. 10. &c. (2) The Form of it; A Song of the wel-beloved-Virgins.

The Subſtance of the Pſalme it ſelf hath in it, 1. A Preface, 2. A Prophetical Deſcription of Chriſt the Bridegroom and of his Bride the Church. 3. A Concluſion.

I. The Preface declares, How fervently the Pſalmiſt, and every Chriſtian, deſires to ſpread abroad the praiſes of Chriſt the Churches King: 1. The Heart boyling, a good word, or thing, viz. inventing and conceiving the good matter of his praiſes. 2. The Tongue reciting it, as readily, as the Pen of a ſwift Scribe, ver. 1.

II. The Prophetical Deſcription ſets forth, Chriſt the King as Bridegroom, and the Church as his Bride, moſt elegantly; under the Type of King Solomon and Pharaoh's Daughter.

1. Chriſt the King and Bridegroom of his Church is deſcribed and commended illuſtriouſly; I. As moſt Amiable, for his lovely Properties; viz. 1. His ſurpaſſing Beauty; moſt ſpecious to behold. 2. His excellent Speech; moſt gracious to be heard. Both which are illuſtrated by the Fountain whence they flow, Gods everlaſting Benediction, ver. 2. II. As moſt formidable for his warlike Endowments. Which (by Apoſtrophe to him that is moſt mighty) he is incited to draw forth into action, viz. 1. To gird on his Sword; that is his Word. Called, from the effects, Glory, and Comely honour. This his Armour is Spiritual, ver. 3. 2. To ride proſperouſly as in a Triumphant Chariot of the Word of Truth, Meekneſs, and righteouſneſs, according to his Regal dignity. Hereupon proportionable ſucceſſe is promiſed to enſue, 1. In General, His right-hand alone ſhall atchieve terrible things in his Kingdom, ver. 4. 2. In Particular, His ſharp Arrows, that is, his lively piercing Goſpel adminiſtrations (made keen by his Spirit) ſhall wound the hearts of Chriſts enemies and make them fall under him, By Converſion, or Subverſion, ver. 5. III. As moſt Honourable, for his Regal Majeſty and Princely Accompliſhments. viz. 1. The perpetuity of his Throne. 2. The Righteouſneſſe of his Scepter; both as to his Acquiſition, and Adminiſtration thereof, ver. 6. 3. His Cordial love of Righteouſneſſe, and hatred of iniquity. 4. His Divine Unction from God his God with the gladning Oyl of the Spirit (not by meaſure, Joh. 3. 34. but) beyond all his fellows, viz. beyond all his fellows in Unction, Prieſts, Prophets, and Kings, who were wont to be annointed with material Oyle, to theſe ſingular and eminent Offices, See Exod. 30. 25.—30. 1 King. 19. 16. 1 Sam. 16. 13. And beyond all Chriſtians, Believers, Annointed to be Kings, and Prieſts, &c. to God, 1. Joh. 2. 20, 27. 1 Pet. 2. 5. Rev. 1. 5. unto their General Calling, ver. 7. 5. His Royal Robes (of Perfect Righteouſneſſe and Holyneſſe) ſo Richly and fragrantly Perfumed, that they are ſtiled very Myrrhe, Alloes, and Caſſia, i. e. abſolute ſweetneſſe it ſelf. 6. His heavenly Deſcent. From the Ivory Palaces in Heaven, from his Fathers boſome whence he firſt deſcended, his people meeting him with joyful acclamations, Joh. 3. 29. and whither he is now again aſcended for us, verſe 8.

2. The Church, The Queen and Spouſe of Chriſt is Honorifically mentioned. Being, I. Commended, 1. For her Honourable Train of Attendants. 2. For her Rich and Royal Ornaments of Gold of Ophir. 3. For her her Superlative Advancement, even at Christs right-hand, ver. 9. II. Exhorted. 1. To most heedful attention; Hearken, behold, incline thine ear. 2. To all conjugal Duties towards Christ. As, (1) That she deny all for him, ver. 10. (2) That she yeild all due worship and obedience to him, that thus the King may covet her beauty, v. 11. III. Assured hereupon, if she thus perform with Christ, That Christ will communicate great glory to her, both for Present, and Future. 1. For present, (1) in her great enlargement. The Daughters of Tyre, viz. The Gentiles. And the rich among the people, viz. Kings, Princes, Nobles, &c. shall sue to be joyned to the Church, and so to Christ, for Communion with him, v. 12. Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

*To the Master-*of-the-Musick, to the Sons of Korah, upon Alamoth, A Song.

1. GOd is our Fortitude on high,
   And a Refuge-safe from ill:
A Succour found exceedingly
   In our distresses still.
2. b Though Earth therefore change to and fro,
   No fear-on-us-shall-seiz:
And c though the Hills be mov'd into
   The heart of deepest Seas.

Yea though the mighty Mountains shake

4. There is a flood whose pleasure streams
   Shall make Gods City joy:
The Habitacles Holy-place
   Of him that is most-high.
5. In midst of it doth God reside,
   It shall be moved never:
At peering of the morning-tide
   Our God will help it ever.
6. The Heathens made a raging noise,
   The Kingdoms moved were:
He e gave abroad his dreadful voice.
   The Earth did melt for fear. e Hab. gave with his voice, or; in his voice.
7. The LORD of Armies all abroad
   Is with us mightily:
The Covenant-keeping Jacob's God
   He is our Refuge-high Selah.

   Of this JEHOVAH now:
What dreadful-desolations
   He puts on Earth below. g Hab. the works of the LORD. h Hab. making wars to cease.

   h He maketh wars expire:
He i breaks the Bow, he cuts the Spear,
   The Chariots k burns with fire. i Hab. will break. k Hab. will burn.
10. Surcease, and l know that I am God:
    Among the Heathen still
I'le be advanc'd; In earth abroad
    Exalted be I will. l Hab. know ye.
11. The LORD of Armies all abroad
    Is with us mightily:
The Covenant-keeping Jacob's God
    He is our Refuge-high. Selah.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm, in the Kinde or Nature of it, is, A victorial Song, or Song of Triumph; wherein the Church of God, having the LORD of Hosts for them, the God of Jacob their Refuge, make their boast in God against all imaginable perils. Luther was wont to refresh and encourage himself with this Psalm, against greatest Enemies, Threats and Dangers, saying; Come let us sing the 46th. Psalm, and fear no evil. Its an excellent Antidote against greatest fears and dangers, incident to Gods Church and People. Penman of it, whether it were David, Isaias, or some of the Posterity of Korah, or some other, hath framed it, as in the Name of the Church, triumphing therein, is not evident. Occasion, seems by the matter of it to be some remarkable Deliverance or Deliverances of the Church in her weak condition, from her many and mighty enemies, destroyed by the Lords assistance. Some m refer this Triumph to those famous Victories which David got over the Philistines, Moabites, Hadadezar King of Zobah, the Syrians, and Edomites, putting Garrisons in Edom, 2 Sam. 8. and 1 Chron. 18. Some, n to the deliverance of King Ahaz and Jerusalem, from Rhezin King of Syria, and Pekah King of Israel, joyntly besieging Jerusalem, 2 Kings 16. 5. Isaiah 7. and 8.

m Sim. de Muis Arg. in Psal. 46.
n Jo. Foord in expos. Ps. 46. Tem.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Song, is; Triumphantly to testifie and professe (in the Name of the Church and People of God, as it were brought in here Triumphing) the unshaken confidence and comfort of a Heb. or, Hopefull-helper.

b Heb. In the changing of the earth we will not fear
c Heb. in the mooving of the Mountains,

Gods People in the LORD's Presence, Assistance and Protection against all imaginable Dangers and Hurly-burleys of their Enemies.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title contains, 1. The Denomination of it; A Song tuned with voice. 2. The Tune, or Musical Instrument; upon Alamoth. See 1 Chron. 15. 20. Alamoth signifies Virgins, Sing. 1. 2. Hence perhaps it may import, Virgin-tunes, High shrill voices or notes. Those that refer Alamoth to the matter, derive it from Alam, Hidd: As if it denoted the Hid counsels of God concerning his Church. 3. The Direction of it, as to the Musick, &c.

The Substance of the Pslam, is; 1. Narratory, 2. Hortatory.

I. Narratory. Here being a thankful and triumphant Narration of Gods all-sufficient Protection of his Church and people, ver. 1. to 8. Gods Protection is, 1. Propounded as 1. Safe. 2. Strong. 3. Most seasonably present in straits, ver. 1. II. Amplified and illustrated, 1. By the Churches invincible Faith in that Protection, Faith unterrified with greatest dangers, evils or Enemies imaginable. ver. 2. 3. 2. By the small Instrumental means of their safety, A River: viz. Kidron, 2. Sam. 15. 23. John 18. 1. and the streams or lesser Currents Gihon and Shiloah, 2 Chron. 32. 4. 30. Isaiah 8. 6. refreshing and gladning Jerusalem, and therein the holy place of Gods Habitations, encompassing them half about, ver. 4. 3. By the Principal efficient cause of their safety, viz. Gods gracious presence in the midst of his Church, whence it is, 1. Unmoveably protected; 2. Seasonably relieved, verse 5. 4. By the efficacy even of Gods voice against all Heathens rage, and Kingdoms commotions: If his voice be but uttered, The Earth is melted, ver. 6. 5. By a triumphant exultation in, 1. The LORD's powerful Presence with; 2. His faithful Protection of his Church; ver. 7.

II. Hortatory. Here is a twofold and forcible Exhortation, I. Of the Church, unto all. To come and view the LORD's victorious exploits. 1. In dissipating and destroying all his Enemies, ver. 8. 2. In stablishing a thorough peace in the Earth, in the land, ver. 9. II. Of God himself, unto his and his Churches Enemies; 1. That they surcease from their enmity against his people. 2. That they acknowledge him to be God: yea, such a God, as one way or other will be exalted among the Heathen, and in the whole earth, ver. 10. This Exhortation, and so the whole Psalm is sweetly closed with the former Triumphant Exultation of Gods people, ver. 7. In (1.) The LORD's powerful presence with, (2.) His faithful Protection of, his Church, ver. 11.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

In this triumphant and Prophetical Psalm, 1. All People are Exhorted cheerfully to entertain God, CHRIST, and his Kingdom, ver. 1, 2, Many prevalent Arguments are urged hereunto v. 2. To the end.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master-of-the-Musick, to the sons of Korach, A Psalm.

1 CLap hands, all Peoples, joyfully
To God a with voice of triumph ring:
2. For, dreadful, is the LORD, most-high.
O're all the earthy a mighty King.

Sing-Psalm, Sing-Psalm unto our King.

7. For, God is King of all the earth,
Sing-Psalm of pure Instruction.
8. God reigns g o're all of Heathen birth:
God sits upon h his holy Throne.

9. To folk of Abraham's high God
The Peoples i Nobles gathered be:
For, Shields of th' earth belong to God,
Exhalted vehemently is he.

a Heb. or, with voice of shrilling shout-cloud.
b Heb. shall speak peoples under us, viz. subdue them by his word.
c heb. And beneath
d Heb. He shall chuse.
e Heb. high excellency.
f heb. of a Trumpet.
g Heb over the Heathens.
h heb. throne of his holiness.
i heb. voluntiers, or, Munificous, liberal Princes.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This is for Kind a Gratulatory Triumphant Psalm, provoking all People to joy and Triumph; Literally and Historically, for the Ascending of the Ark: Mystically and Prophetically, for Christs Ascending up on high, and for his Kingdom.

Penman. is not expressed, nor certainly discovered here or elsewhere.

Occasion, seems to be Ascending, or bringing up of the Ark of God into its place: 1. Either, from Kirjath-jearim, or from the House of Ebed-Edom to the City of David in Jerusalem into the Tent which David had pitched for it, David and all the House of Israel playing before the LORD on all manner of Instruments of Firr-wood, &c. and bringing up the Ark of the LORD with shouting, and with the sound of the Trumpet. 2 Sam. 6. 2, 3, 4, 5, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16. 1 Chron. 13. 8. and 15. 25, 26, 27, 28. (at which time David first delivered Psalm 105, 1. to 16. and Psal. 96. into the hand of Asaph and his Brethren to thank the LORD, 1 Chron. 16. 7. to 37.) 2. Or, from the City of David, by Solomon and all the chief of Israel into the Temple of Solomon, 2 Chro. 5. 2. &c. 1 K. 8. 1. &c. which was also with Trumpets, Cymbals and Instruments of Musick, 2 Chron. 5. 13. And this seems so to be from v. 5. where the Ark of God (called God, as Numb. 10. 35. 36. by a Metonymie, because the Ark was a special Token or Sign of Gods peculiar presence among them,) is said to ascend with Triumph, the LORD with voice of the Trumpet. Thus some Jews, and Modern Writers k. Other judicious Interpreters l account this rather a Prophetical Psalm, touching Christ and his Kingdome over both Jews and Gentiles: The whole Psalm being so suitable hereunto, and ver. 5. so. notably pointing out that eminent Royal Act of Christ, in his triumphant and glorious Ascension up into Heaven, Luke 24. 51, 52. whence he he shall come again to the last Judgment with like glory, Acts 1. 9, 11. 1 Thes. 4. 16. For my own part, I see no just cause why both these Interpretations may not be joyned together, thus: 1. Literally and immediately, the Psalme Describing Gods Kingdome and Government over all, but especially over Israel; shedding and casting out the Heathen Canaanites before them, and planting them in their Land placing his Ark of Covenant as a Token of his Presence among them, and adding the Peoples Nobles or Volunteers to the People of Abraham's God. 2. Mystically, spiritually, and Prophetically, The Psalme foretelling Christs Kingdome over both Jewes and Gentiles; Christs Kingly Ascending into Heavenly glory, and afterwards adding the Gentiles to the Jewes in one Church: The Ark being a special Type of Christ, Rev. 11. 19. The Holy of Holyes a Type of Heaven, Heb. 10. 19, 20. and The Ascending of the Ark into the Sanctuary a lively adumbration of Christs glorious Ascending up on high into Heaven it self there to appear still in the Presence of God for us, Psal. 68. 18. Eph. 4. 8. &c. Heb. 9. 24.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 2. The direction of it, as to the Musick.

In the Substance of the Psalme, are 1. A Duty propounded. 2. Arguments enforcing it.

I. The Duty, whereunto all People are Exhorted, is; Their joyful entertaining and embracing of God Christ, and his Kingdom coming amongst them. This Duty is set forth, 1. By the Object of it; viz. God, Christ, and his Kingdom. 2. By the Subject of it; All Peoples. 3. By the Manner how it is to be discharged; with clapping of Hands, with voice of triumph, or shouting, with Singing of Psalmes, ver. 1. 6.

II. The Arguments enforcing this Duty, are drawn, 1. From the Excellent Nature of this King; High, Dreadful, Great, ver. 2. 2. From the Effects of his Kingly Office. (1) Upon heathens, subduing them to his Church. Canaanites being already conquered by his power, Gentiles also should be called and subdued to Christ by his Gospel, ver. 3. (2) Upon Jewes, giving them of his meer love as their Inheritance, The Temple, Law Covenants, &c. wherein was Jacobs high excellency above all people, ver. 4. 3. From Christs triumphant Ascension into Heaven, whereof the bringing up of the Ark into the Sanctuary was a Type, verse 5, 6. 4. From the Majesty and universal Extent of his Kindome; (as Matth. 28. 18 &c.) over all the world, ver. 7, 8, 9. From the voluntary Aggretation, both of free-spirited Princes and People unto the Church of God Who joyn themselves to the LORD Christ, 1. Because, He is the great Conqueror and Protector of all. The Shields of the Earth belong to him. Or, Rulers and Magistrates (who for their Protecting of Common-wealths, &c. are stiled, Shields, Psal. 89. 19. Hos. 4. 18.) belong to him 2. Because he is of highest Glory, ver. 9.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme.

This is for Kinde an Eucharistical Psalme, A Psalme of Triumphant Praise to the LORD, upon his Divine and wonderful repulsing of some huge Army from the walls of Jerusalem, thereby eminently delivering Jerusalem from her besieging Enemies.

Penman, whether some of the Sonnes of Korach, or any other, is not evident.

Occasion, was Gods singular deliverance of Jerusalem from some huge Army of Enemies besieging it, as is notably hinted, ver. 4, 5, 6, 7. But whether these Enemies were, 1. The Philistine-Princes o, in days of David, 2 Sam 5. 17, 18, 22. (Rephaim was nigh Jerusalem, Josh. 15. 18.) 2. Or the Kings of Moab and Ammon with their Assistants q subdued by Jehoshaphat in the Valley; thence called, the Valley of Blessing, 2 Chron. 20. 3. Or Sennacherib and his huge Host q, in the dayes of Hezekiah, of which Army the Angel of the LORD in one night slew 185000. 2 Kings 18. 18. to Chap 20. 1. 2 Chron. 32. and to this History, verse 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. seem (in the Judgement of r some) notably to agree. 4. Or Rezin and Pekah in the dayes of Ahaz, s 2 Kings 16. 5, to 10. Cannot certainly be determined by the light of this Psalme or any other Scripture. And perhaps thinks Mollerus t no one Deliverance of Jerusalem is particularly expressed, That Gods constant Protection of Jerusalem, and especially of his Church (whereof Jerusalem was a singular Type, Heb. 12. 22. Gal. 4. 25, 26. Rev. 21. 2. 10.) might be more significantly represented.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope in this Psalme, is; Highly to magnifie the LORD, for his Greatness and his Goodness to Jerusalem and the Church of God, in her Ornaments, Priviledges and Protection of her, most safely and securely in greatest dangers, and against most potent Enemies.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Denomination, which is twofold; A Song, a Psalme. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick.

In the Substance of the Psalme, are; 1 A Proposition 2 A Narration. 3 An Exhortation.

I. A Proposition of the greatness of God, and of his praises in Jerusalem, in his Church, ver. 1. whereupon, for the illustration of his Greatness and Goodness to Jerusalem The excellencies of Jerusalem: are notably delineated. She is, 1. For Stile and Denomination; The City of our God. 2. For Situation; beautiful. 3. For Priviledges; The joy of all the Earth. Hath the Temple on Mount-Sion standing on the North-side. 4. For Residence and Habitation; The City of the Great King, God himself, Matth. 5. 35. verse 2. 5. For Safety and Protection; God is Experimentally known in her Palaces for an High-Refuge, verse 3.

II. A Narration of Jerusalem's, of the Churches special Protection from God, ver, 4. to 12. This Protection is Illustrated, 1. By the deep dangers she was in, through the Armies of Kings combining and coming to lay siege against her ver. 4. 2. By the great deliverance she received from God: (1) Daunting her Enemies spirits with sudden-troubles, Frightfulness, Trembling, yea with Travelling-pangs, verse 5. 6 (2) Dashing their strength as Sea to pieces, v. 7. (3) By her Assurance of perpetual Protection by the LORD of Hosts, upon this experience which she had seen, according to Gods Word, verse 8. (4) By her secure and quiet waiting for, or meditating upon Gods mercy in his Temple, ver. 9. (5) By the Dilation of his praise throughout all the Earth, according to his most Righteous proceedings, verse 10.

III. An Exhortation to all Gods people, That they exult in, observe and publish abroad, Gods wonderful benefits to Sion, to his Church: whether, 1. Past; As his judgements upon her Adversaries, verse 11. 2. Present; As her notable Fortifications: none of them being ruined or at all impaired by the Enemies attempts ver. 12. 13. 3. Or, To come; As his perpetual Guidance and Protection of her till Death, according to his everlasting Covenant-Relation to them verse 14.

Psalm XLIX.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm for Kind is Doctrinal and Hortatory: Exhorting all sorts and degrees most heedfully to attend unto the wise Doctrine and Parable therein unfolded. It teacheth especially, in midst of all surrounding afflictions even in death it self, (the wages of our sinful wayes, ver. 5. with Rom. 6. 23.) not to place our trust Either in multitude of Worldly Riches, which can preserve none from death; Or in glory of Earthly Honour, which is wholly vanishing and shall perish in the Grave, ver. 6. to 15. But only upon God, who can and will raise us from the dead, ver. 15. And consequently not to be afraid of any base wealth and glory hereafter, all which he shall be finally possessed of, when he arises, ver. 16. to the end. Wherefore this Psalm is an excellent Antidote against the greatest of the evil wherewith the godly are exercised, while the wicked prosper and flourish in all worldly wealth and glory.

Of the Penman, and the occasion of making this Psalm we have no particular discovery.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalm, is 1. To excite and encourage all sorts of people (under the exemplary faith and courage of the Psalmist here represented, ver. 5. with 15.) unaffectedly to bear all sorts of afflictions; (notwithstanding all the wealth and glory wherein worldlings do on the contrary flourish,) they having hope in God, both of Resurrection even from Death it self by him, and of blissful Reception unto him, ver. 15. 2. As also to convince them how vain and foolish a thing it is to place confidence in greatest worldly wealth, or highest earthly honours, None of which can preserve their owners at all from the Grave, or Descend with them into the Grave.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Denomination; A Psalm. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick.

In the Psalm it self, are, 1. A Preface. 2. A Proposition. 3. A Conclusion.

I. The Preface is vehement and importunate, inciting all sorts to singular Attention. Wherein consider, 1. The Persons spoken to; All People, All the worlds inhabitants, whether Ignoble or Noble, Rich or Poor. 2. The Act or Duty whereunto they are incited; Hear, give ear, ver. 1. 2. 3. The Object, or Matter about which this Act is to be exercised, is set forth in four sublime and alluring Expressions, viz. 1. Wisedoms. 2. Prudencies. 3. A Parable (משל) which notes Rule Excellency, &c. such Speeches excelling and bearing sway among others, 4. A Riddle, or a Dark-matter, or an hidden Question. Therefore all of them bespeaking their utmost Attentions, ver. 3, 4.

II. The Proposition is elegant and emphatical. The Psalmist proposeth the summe of this Wisedom, Prudence, Parable, Dark-matter, viz. His unterrified confidence (exemplary to all, especially the godly,) in midst of all encompassing evils, which the iniquity of his heels, of his steps and wayes, might bring upon him. This is laid down emphatically by way of interrogation: Why? &c. that is, I have no just cause at all to fear, &c. ver. 5. This his confidence is Illustrated and Described by the Grounds of it, Negatively, and Affirmatively. 1. Negatively, This his confidence is not grounded or bottomed (like that of carnal worldlings,) 1. Neither in the multitude of Riches. (1.) Partly, Because no worldly wealth can Redeem a man from Death and grave, Or obtain a priviledge to him of not dying, ver. 6, 7, 8, 9. (2) Partly, Because as all must dye, both wise, and foolish, and brutish persons, So when Death comes all worldly wealth will dye to them, and must be left to others, ver. 10. 2. Nor in earthly honour and glory: Either of Houses, viz. Families and Posterity, which worldlings think will continue for ever: Or of Habitations, which they fancy will abide from Generation to Generation: Or of Lands, which they call after their own Names, ver. 11. None of these are grounds of true confidence. For, (1) Man in honour continueth not, but becomes by Death like the Beasts that perish. Or, Adam in honor lodged not a night, but became as the Beast, &c. and then what man in heaven can promise himself or his any, or whatever therein? v. 12. (2) All this way of worldlings (however approved by their posterity) is not wisedome, but their folly, ver. 13. (3) They shall be brought plentifully, even as a flock of dying Sheep, into the grave, and become food for Death. (4) The upright (now trodden under foot by worldly great ones) shall have Dominion over them in the morning, i. e. Either early speedily, assoon as they are Dead. Or in the morning of the last Resurrection, then the upright shall have Dominion over greatest wicked worldlings: The Saints shall judge the world, 1 Cor. 6, 1, 2. (5) Their Form, or earthly glory shall wear away in the grave, or in Hell, as if it had never been, ver. 14. II. Affirmatively, This his confidence undaunted is grounded on God. Who, 1. Shall Redeem him from the power of the grave, at the Resurrection. 2. Will Receive him to himself, viz. into Celestical Mansions, ver. 15.

III. The Conclusion from the Premises is Hortatory. Exhorting every of us, Not to be at all dismaid at the increase of worldlings wealth and glory, ver. 16. 1. Because, All their wealth and glory is utterly sweept away from them by Death, ver. 17. 2. Because, Though they applaud themselves while they live, and think others applaud them also for doing good to themselves by their worldly courses; yet at last they shall dye and be gathered to their fathers deceased, and shall not see light to eternity: that is, They shall not still live here in Earth to see the light of this world, As, Psal. 56. 14. Job 33. 28, 30. Nor shall they see at all the light of eternal glory (Matth. 8. 12.) in the world to come, ver. 18, 19. 3. Because, Their persons though in highest honour, yet wanting understanding, are perishable like brute-beasts, verse 20.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm as to the Kind of it is Doctrinal. Wherein the LORD the God of Gods (after an awful Preface touching his dreadful Majesty in his Church) Instructeth his Covenant-people Israel, what is the True worship wherein he is delighted, not so much Carnal, Legal Sacrifices, As Spiritual and Moral Performances; And who are his acceptable worshippers, Not Hypocritical and Atheistical Transgressors, but those that Praise God and order their way aright.

Penman, As c some think, was Asaph the Seer, who penned some Psalmes, 2 Chron. 29. 30. and the rather, because it is Entituled; A Psalm of Asaph. Or, as the Chaldee Paraphrast expresseth it; by the hands of Asaph. But d others rather are of Opinion that David Penned this Psalm, (committing it only to Asaph or his sons for the keeping and tuning of it in the Sanctuary, 1 Chron. 25. 2.) and that upon this Occasion viz. After Israel had been smitten with the three years Famine, and three dayes Pestilence, 2 Sam. 21. and 24. And after the Angel of God had appeared to David, and pointed out unto him the place of Gods Habitation, 1 Chron. 21. 18. and 22. 1. Then this Psalm touching Gods true Worship and Worshippers, seems to have been written.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Holy Ghost in this Psalm, is; Convincingly to instruct Israel Gods Covenant-people, and in them the Church of God, What Worship and Worshippers are most acceptable unto God, viz., not so much the Ceremonial and External, as the Moral and Spiritual Worship; Not unreformed Hypocrites and profane Atheists, but such as walk thankfully, ordering their wayes aright.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title hath in it, 1. The Denomination, &c; A Psalm. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick, or the Indication of the Penman, לאסף may be rendred either. To-Asaph, or; Of-Asaph.

I. The Introduction to the Instruction, procuring the greater heed and attention, ver. 1. to 7. is drawn; 1. From the highest Author of this Instruction; The God of Gods JEHOVAH. 2. From the manner of his Instruction. Which is either, 1. Common to all the world, by the Works of Creation, v. 1. 2. Peculiar to his Church, to Sion. Whose beauty is highly commended; The universality of Beauty. And that Presence of God is (in allusion to Gods appearing to Israel of old at M.

Sinai, Seir, Paran, &c. Deut. 33. 2. Judges 5. 4. Hab. 3. 3.) illustrated, 1. (Negatively, what it is not. It is not to [illegible] the Ceremonial and Outward Worship, though never so costly, that the Omnipotent and All-sufficient God [illegible] upon, (although before Christs [illegible] Incarnation, Heb. 7. and 10. 1, &c. was commanded by God, and plentifully performed by Israel, [illegible]) (2) Positively, what it is. Nor the wicked that hate to be Reformed, nor Hypocritical and Atheistical wretches, going still on in their sins, because God is silent and long-suffering. But all these God will Convince, Reprove, and without timely Repentance, Destroy, v. 16. to 22. (2) Positively, Who they are, viz. They that sacrifice Praise to God, and order their way aright. These have Gods Acceptation, as Glorifying him: And shall see Gods Salvation, as glorified by him, v. 23.

Sect. II.

Ver. II. The first Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master of the Musick, A Psalme of David. When Nathan the Prophet came unto him, After he had gone in unto Bathshebah.

I.

1. O God, a thy grace on me declare,
b After thy merry-kind:
As thy compassions many are,
My c faults wipe out of mind.
2. O multiply, O wash me clean
From mine iniquity:
Likewise from all my sin again
Do thou me purify.

3. For I mine own trespasses
Acknowledge mournfully:
And still my sin before me is.
4. Against thee sin'd have I,
Against thee only, And have done,
d Before thine eyes this ill;
That when thou speak'st, thou maist be just,
e Clear when thou judgest still.

5. Lo in perverse-iniquity f My birth I did receive:
Me likewise g in impurity
My Mother h did conceive.
6. Behold, in truth delightest thou
Within-the-inward-part:
And wisedome thou hast made me know
In secret of my heart.

II.

7. With Hyssop thou me purify,
i I shall be cleansed so:
O wash thou me, And then shall I k Be whiter than the Snow.
8. O make thou me the pleasant voice
Of joy and gladness hear:
So shall the very bones rejoyce
Which thou hast crushed were.

9. O from my sins hide thou m thine eyes,
And n quite obliterate
All mine abhorr'd iniquities.
10. O God, to me creat
A clean heart: And o in me new-make
A Spirit firme to thee.
11. Cast me not from thy face, p not take Thine holy Spirit from me.

12. Thy Sweet Salvation's joy again
Restore thou unto me,
And q do thou firmly me sustain
Still with a Spirit free
13. Thy wayes trangressors then shall I Teach with a feeling heart,
And wandring Sinners readily
Shall unto thee convert.

III.

14. O God, O my Salvation's God,
From bloods do me deliver:
So shall my thankful tongue abroad
Shout forth thy justice ever.

15. My closed lips, O Lord, do thou Wide open, mine heart raise:
And then my mouth abroad shall shew
Thine everlasting praise.

16. For thou delightst not Sacrifice,
Else give the same would I:
r Burnt-offering thou wilt not likewise
Accept concernedly.
17. God's Sacrifices are a Spirit s Broke for iniquities:
And heart so t broken and contrite,
God thou wilt not despise.

18. u Do Sion good in thy good-will Jerusalem's walls x up-rear.
19. Then shalt thou be delighted still
With Sacrifices there
Of righteousnesse, y The Burnt-offring
And z Holocaust I say:
Then Bullocks on thine Altar bring
And a offer-up shall they.

The second Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master of the Musick, A Psalme of David. When Nathan the Prophet came unto him, After he had gone in unto Bathshebah.

I.

1. O God a thy grace on me declare,
b After thy loving kindness say:
c As thy compassions many are,
Wipe thou my trespasses away.
2. d Much wash me from my wickedness:
Cleanse thou me from my sin likewise.
3. For my rebellions e I confess:
And still my sin before me lyes.

4. I sinn'd against thee, onely thee,
And f in thy sight have done this ill,
That when thou speak'st thou just maist be,
Maist be clear in thy judging still.
5. Behold ev'n in iniquity
Full painfully-brought-forth I was:
Yea in sin and impurity
My mother g me conceiv'd alas.

6. Lo, Truth in inwards thou dost love:
In secret h thou hast made me know
Pure wisedome also from above.
7. i Purge me from sin with Hyssop now,
I shall be clean: k O wash me clear,
And I I than Snow shall whiter be.
8. Sweet joy and gladness m make me hear:
n Let bones exult, so crusht by thee.

II.

9. Thy face hide from my sins so great:
And all my o faults wipe out do thou.
10. Pure heart, O God, to me creat:
And a firm spirit p in me renew.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme as to the Kind of it, is a most Pathetical Penitential Prayer: usually accounted The Fourth Penitential Psalme.

David, as the Title shewes, was Penman of it. It is Davids Retractation: David's Testimonial of his sincere Repentance for his great Offences in the Matter of Uriah; which did so shake his integrity, and gave great occasion to the enemies of the LORD to blaspheme, 2 King 15. 5. 2 Sam. 12. 14. And when did David ever pray more fervently and sweetly: than here where he mourn'd for his sins most sadly?

The Occasion of Davids Penning this Psalme, is hinted in the Body of the Psalme, ver. 4. 14. But more plainly declared in the Title, viz. When Nathan, &c. David in an Evening-tide walking on the top of his House, and seeing Bathsheba the wife of Uriah the Hittite washing her self, sent for her, committed adultery with her, and she became with child: To hide this Fact he sent for her Husband from the Camp to lodge with his Wife, which he being utterly averse unto, David wrote a Letter by Uriah to Joab his General to set Uriah in the forefront of the hottest Battel that he might be slain; and Uriah being slain by the Sword of the Children of Ammon, David took Bathsheba to be his Wife. Upon this, Nathan sent from God to David, convinced him of his sin (wherein he had slept from the time of his Fact till after the Child, conceived in adultery, was born, which probably was nine moneths at least, 2 Sam. 11. 27. with 12. 1. 14.) Denounced heavy judgement against him, stroke his Child with Death, yet gave David hope of Pardon upon his Repentance, assuring him God had put away his sin, he should not dye. See this whole History at large in 2 Sam. 11. and 12. Upon this Occasion, when Nathan was departed from David, David wrote this Psalme, therein confessing and aggravating his sins most ingenuously, declaring his Repentance unfeignedly, and begging Remission of sin, Renewing Grace, Restauration of wonted Peace and Comfort, &c. most fervently. How great a King was David, yet his sins are impartially recorded by the Holy Ghost in Scripture for our Caution and Instruction. Many (said g Augustine) are willing to fall with David, but slumbring to rise again with David. David is not presumed of his standing: but when he had fallen, of free grace he rose. David thus falling, who may not succeed? Thus and prevailes? David repenting and rising again, who should not be careful to rise that hath fallen? Let him that thinks he stands, take heed he fall not: And he that is fallen, take heed to rise again.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David's Scope in this Psalme, is, 1 To confesse his great and scandalous fastingsmonally; 2 To blame himself for them deeply; 3 To testifie his cordial and unfeigned Repentance; 4 To implore earnestly pardon and purging of his iniquities, Renewed grace and Consolations from Gods Spirit, and removal of all the sad effects thereby occasioned to himself for the people of Israel. See ver. 1, 2, 8, 12, 18. Thus David was h ashamed of his sinning; not ashamed (as many are) of Repenting. O incredible madnesse (said Augustine) thou blushest not at the wound: and dost thou blush at the binding of it up? Is not the naked wound more filthy and noysome?

h Sunt multi quos peccare non pudet, agere pœnitentiam pudet. O incredibilis insania! De vulnere ipso non erubescis, de ligatura vulneris erubescis? Nonne nudum fœdius & puridius est? August. Enarrat in Psal. 50. Tom. 8. p. 487. Basil. 1569.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title hath in it, 1. The Denomination of it: A Psalme. 2. The Penman; David. He impartially records his own great offences; (a notable Argument of the Divine Authority of the Scriptures wherein the Penmen spare not themselves:) And ingenuously publisheth his own unfeigned repentance. 3. The direction of it as to the Musick, &c. 4. The Occasion of Davids Penning it, which is twofold, viz. (1) More immediate; Nathans Message to David, convincing and threatning him about his scandalous Sins; When Nathan the Prophet, &c. (2) More Remote; Davids adultery with Bathshebah, &c. After he had gone in unto Bathsheba. The Holy Scripture (as its manner is) speaketh chastly and purely of this filthy fact.

The Psalme it self is Pathetically Penitory. Herein David Prayes 1. For himself, ver. 1. to 18. 2. For the Church, or People of Israel whom he had offended and endangered by his great offences, verse 18, 19.

I. For Himself, David begs earnestly, 1. Remission of his sins, ver. 1. to 8. 2. Restauration in Spirituals impaired by his sins, ver. 8. to 18.

1. Remission of his sins is most earnestly begged. This Request being, 1. Propounded, 1. Simply and plainly, in his Praying for Grace or free-favour. 2. Figuratively, in Metaphorical expressions; As, Blotting-out, ver. 1. Cleansing. Multiplying to wash him, ver. 2. Purging with Hyssop, Washing, ver. 7. II. Urged and amplified, Patherically, 1. From the prime Efficient Cause of Pardon, viz. Gods loving-kindness and the multitude of his tenderest bowel-mercies, v. 1. 2. From the subservient Cause, viz. His own penitent confession of, and deep Contrition for his own sins, both Actual and Original, ver. 3. to 7. His actual sins, especially his Adultery and Murder, he confesseth with deep sense of them. Aggravating them especially three wayes, (1) As being now ever before him, though (till now (as Augustine well observes) he had put it behind him, ver. 3. (2) As being against God, against him peculiarly. (3) As justifying God in his utmost severity of his Sayings or Threatnings by Nathan against him; and clearing God in all his judgements inflicted for his sins, ver. 4.

i Peccatum meum ante me est, non post me. Fuit enim post me, quando ad me missus est Propheta, &c. Aug. Enarrat. in Psal. 50.

His Original sin. (1) Acknowledged in two Expressions Emphatical, ver. 4. (2) Illustrated and Aggravated by its opposites, viz. Truth. Teacher Uprightness in the inwards which God loves. Truth, secret (spiritual) wisdom which God had taught him. Yet against this Truth, this Wisdom he had sinned, ver. 6.

2. Restauration in Spirituals impaired by his sins, is fervently petitioned for. (His desires of pardon being herewith again and again interwoven, as ver. 7, 9, 14. through the vehemency of his penitential sorrows for his sins, and of his longings after remission.) Now those Spirituals wherein especially he desires Restauration, are; 1. Joy and gladness, and refreshing Comforts in sense of Pardon and Gods wonted favour. Illustrated, (1) By the contrary extream distress at present upon his heart and Conscience for his sin; Compared to broken bones crushed all in pieces, ver. 8. (2) By his vehement reiterated desire of Pardon; Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities, ver. 9. 2. Purity of heart, by a Divine New-Creation. 3. Renovation of a firme stablished Spirit in him for time to come. Lest he fall again, ver. 10. 4. Continuance of Gods favour, in not with-drawing his Presence and Holy Spirit from him, ver. 11. 5. Restoring of his joy in apprehension and assurance of Gods Salvation. 6. Sustentation by God's free Spirit; That being delivered from sins bondage, he may chearfully delight in all holy service and obedience to God, ver. 12. This is amplified by the Effects or duties intended upon grant of his desires. viz. (1) Instructing and edifying others by his own experience. So, of a Patient he should become a Physitian, ver. 13. (2) Glorifying God, 1 Partly, by proclaiming his justice, in delivering him from bloods, ver. 14. 2 Partly, By praising the Lord, when he shall open his lips, ver. 15. 3 Partly, By Sacrificing to his Honour; Not so much Ceremonial Sacrifices or Burnt-offerings, which God did not chiefly desire or delight in, ver. 16. But the spiritual Sacrifices of a Broken and Contrite Spirit k. These Gods grateful Sacrifices which he will not despise, ver. 17.

II. For the Church of God Israel, (under the Types of Sion and Jerusalem,) David prayes also: they being scandalized and endangered by his sins. Here note, 1. The blessings craved, viz. (1) That (though himself had done them harme, and offended them, yet) God would do good unto Sion in his good will. (2) That, God would build Jerusalem's walls, which by his sin he had pull'd down, undermined, or shaken, ver. 18. 2. The Argument whereby his request is urged. This is drawn from the effect which will follow thereupon, viz. The Churches worshipping of God with upright and acceptable Sacrifices abundantly, ver. 19.

Psalm LII.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

Davids speaking I. Of Doeg the Edomite, who accused him to King Saul, 1. Reproves him, for his mischievousness, and villainous tongue, verse 1. to 5. 2. Prophetically threatens his destruction, verse 5. to 8. II. Of himself, 1. Declares his confidence in Gods mercy, touching his constant Prosperity in the House of God, verse 8. 2. Sets forth his Resolution to praise God, hereupon, verse 9.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To-the-Master-of-the-Musick, a Maschil, When Doeg the Edomite came and shewed to Saul, and said to him; David came unto the House of Achimelech.

1. WHy boast'st in ill, O potentate?
   All day Gods mercy's seen.
2. Thy tongue b vents mischiefs; Acts deceit
   Whet like a Rasour keen,
3. Thou lov'st ill, more than good: A lye,
   Than c speaking Righteousness, Selah.
   Thou lov'st all d words that-may-destroy,
   e The tongue of guilefulness.

5. God also to perpetual-ay
   Shall-quite-demolish-thee,
   Thee teare, thee also pull-away
   Out of the Tent will he,
   From land of all the-living here
   Hee'l root thee up withal. Selah.
6. And Righteous ones shall see, and feare:
   And laugh f at him they shall.

7. Lo, g This-the-man, his fortitude
   Took h made not God along,
   But hop'd in's riches multitude,
   Was rip in his mischief strong.
8. But as an Olive green alway
   In House of God am I:
   I trusted evermore and ay
   In Gods benignity.

9. Sith thou didst this, thee ay I'le praise,
   And I waite upon thy Name,
   Because before thy Saints alwaies
   Most pleasant is the same.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion &c.

This is the Sixth Maschil, See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. The nature of it is Doctrinal, or Instructive: as the Title shews.

Penman of it, more than probably, was David: as the Subject-Matter and Occasion do not obscurely indicate.

Occasion of writing it, is expressed in the Title briefly: which thus may be laid down more largely, from 1 Sam. 21. and 22. David flying from King Sauls rage, comes to Nob for succour, where Achimelech the Priest gave him and his men Shew-bread, furnished him with Goliah's Sword, and enquired of the LORD for him, Doeg the Edomite chief of King Sauls Herdmen, 1 Sam. 21. 7. being then present, and seeing all this, went to King Saul and told him, David came unto the House of Achimelech, &c. Saul hereupon sent for Achimelech, and all the Priests at Nob: and commanded his foot-men to turn and slay him and all the Priests of the LORD, they refusing to execute this horrid cruelty, Saul commands Doeg to do it, who slew on that day 85. persons that did weare the linen Ephod; Smiting also Nob the Priests City with the Sword and destroying there most cruelly, Man, Woman, Childe, and Beast. Which cruelty Abiathar son of Achimelech escaping, he fled to David and told him all, 1 Sam. 22. 9. to the end. Hereupon David seems to have Penned this Psalme.

Sect. IV.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this Psalme, is; 1. To reprove Doeg sharply, for his insulting in evil, and for his wicked tongue; And 2. To threaten him severely hereupon with dreadful destruction out of his place: 3. But contrariwise to support and encourage himself against all the wicked and cruel Persecutions of Doeg against him in slaying the Priests of the LORD for his sake, assuring himself by his Faith in God of his own constant flourishing Prosperity in the House of God, resolving to wait upon his Name, and praise him for avenging his Cause upon Doeg which he Prophetically foresaw as done already.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Nature of this Psalme; Maschil. See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick; To the Master, &c. 3. The Occasion of it, when Doeg, &c. As formerly hath been expressed in Sect. 3.

The Substance of the Psalme contains Matters more specially concerning 1. Doeg. 2. David himself.

I. As for Doeg; He is Reproved, and Threatned. I. Doeg is reproved and sharply blamed, 1. For his boasting in evil, he being now become a great man, Which was contrary to Gods mercy continued to him daily, verse 1. 2. For his evil tongue, Devising mischief; Doing deceit; Delighting in evil, in Lying, in Destructive and guileful words, more than in the the contrary Verdict, ver. 2, 3, 4. II. Doeg is Prophetically threatned with terrible Destruction out of his Place. This is, 1. Described, and Illustrated by four Similitudes, viz. (1) Of a Building pull'd down and destroyed. (2) Of Coales of fire taken away with the tongs. (3) Of Tent-stakes pull'd away. 4. Of Trees plucked up by the Roots, verse 5. 2. Amplified by the effect of this judgement upon the Righteous beholding it, viz. (1) Partly, they shall be confirmed hereby in Gods fear. (2) Partly, they shall be moved even to laugh at him, for his vain confidence in his wealth and wickedness, and not in God, ver. 6, 7.

II. As for David himself, He declares contrariwise, I. His comfortable Perswasion of his own happy condition in the House of God continually. Which is, 1. Illustrated by the Similitude of an Olive-tree alwayes green. 2. Described, by the Instrumental Meanes thereof, viz. His constant trust in Gods loving-kindness verse 8. II. His pious Resolution. 1. To praise God continually for avenging his Cause upon Doeg, which he Prophetically foresaw as done already: and for preserving himself in prosperity. 2. To waite patiently upon God and his aid, that being pleasant in the sight of his Saints, verse 9.

Psalm LIII.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This is the seventh Maschil. See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. It is a Doctrinal, or Teaching Psalme.

Penman of it, as the Title shewes, was David.

Occasion, is not here or elsewhere clearly expressed, But some h think, That this Psalme (which in Substance, and almost in the very words, some few only excepted which are altered or added, is the same with Psalme 14.) was written by David Prophetically touching Antiochus, that notorious Antiochus, that destroyed Jerusalem and brought many evils upon the Jewes, because it's said; God did disperse thy besiegers bones, verse 5. which are not to be found in Psal. 14. As Psalme 14. seems Penned upon the Occasion of the Jews distresses under Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians. And perhaps the Holy Ghost speaks almost the same words twice over, Because the wickedness of these enemies were so parallel one to another. And it is no unusual thing with Scripture to recite the same things and words sundry times upon several Occasions: compare 2 Chron. 36. 22, 23. with Ezra 1. 1, 2, 3. ——— and 1 Chron. 16. 8, to 23. with Psal. 105. 1. to 16. ——— and 1 Chron. 16. 23. to 34. with Psal. 96. throughout ——and his Original sin, (1.) Aggravated in two Expressions Emphatically, ver. 4. (2.) Illustrated and Asserted by its opposites, viz. Truth. Truth or Uprightness in the inward parts which God loves. Truth, secret (spiritual) wisdom which God had taught him. Yet against this Truth, this Wisdom he had sinned, ver. 6.

2. Restauration in Spirituals impaired by his sins, is fervently petitioned for. (His desires of pardon being herewith again and again interwoven, as ver. 7, 9, 14. through the vehemency of his penitential sorrows for his sins, and of his longings after remission.) Now those Spirituals wherein especially he desires Restauration, are; 1. Joy and gladness, and refreshing Comforts in sense of Pardon and Gods wonted favour. Illustrated, (1.) By the contrary extream distress at present upon his heart and Conscience for his sin; Compared to broken bones crushed all in pieces, ver. 8. (2.) By his vehement reiterated desire of Pardon; Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities, ver. 9. 2. Purity of heart, by a Divine New-Creation. 3. Renovation of a firme establisht Spirit in him for time to come. Left he fall again, ver. 10. 4. Continuance of Gods favour, in not with-drawing his Presence and Holy Spirit from him, ver. 11. 5. Restoring of his joy in apprehension and assurance of Gods Salvation. 6. Sustentation by Gods free Spirit; That being delivered from sins bondage, he may chearfully delight in all holy service and obedience to God, ver. 12. This is amplified by the Effects or duties intended upon grant of his desires. viz. (1.) Instructing and edifying others by his own experience. So, of a Patient he should become a Physitian, ver. 13. (2.) Glorifying God, 1 Partly, by proclaiming his justice, in delivering him from bloods, ver. 14. 2 Partly, By praising the Lord, when he shall open his lips, ver. 15. 3 Partly, By Sacrificing to his Honour; Not so much Ceremonial Sacrifices or Burnt-offerings, which God did not chiefly desire or delight in, ver. 16. But the spiritual Sacrifices of a Broken and Contrite Spirit k. These Gods grateful Sacrifices which he will not despise, ver. 17.

II. For the Church of God Israel, (under the Types of Sion and Jerusalem,) David prayes also: they being scandalized and endangered by his sins. Here note, 1. The blessings craved, viz. (1.) That (though himself had done them harme, and offended them, yet) God would do good unto Sion in his good will. (2.) That, God would build Jerusalem's walls, which by his sin he had pull'd down, undermined, or shaken, ver. 18. 2. The Argument whereby his request is urged. This is drawn from the effect which will follow thereupon, viz. The Churches worshipping of God with upright and acceptable Sacrifices abundantly, ver. 19.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

Davids speaking I. Of Doeg the Edomite, who accused him to King Saul, 1. Reproves him, for his mischievousness, and villainous tongue, verse 1. to 5. 2. Prophetically threatens his destruction, verse 5. to 8. II. Of himself, 1. Declares his confidence in Gods mercy, touching his constant Prosperity in the House of God, verse 8. 2. Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master of the Musick, A Maschil, When Doeg the Edomite came and shewed to Saul, and said to him; David came unto the House of Ahimelech.

1. WHy boast'st in ill, O potentate?
   All day Gods mercy's seen.
2. Thy tongue b vents mischiefs; Acts deceit
   Whet like a Rasour keen.
3. Thou lov'st ill, more than good: A lye,
   Than c speaking Righteousness, Selah.
   Thou lov'st all d words that may destroy,
   e The tongue of guilefulness.
5. God also to perpetual-ay
   Shall-quite-demolish-thee,
   Thee teare, thee also pull away
   Out of the Tent will he,
   From land of all the living here
   Hee'l root thee up withal. Selah.
6. And Righteous ones shall see, and feare:
   And laugh f at him they shall.
7. Lo, g This-the-man, his fortitude
   That h made not God along,
   But hop'd in's riches multitude,
   Was i in his mischief strong.
8. But as an Olive green alway
   In House of God am I:
   I trusted evermore and ay
   In Gods benignity.
9. Sith thou didst this, thee ay k Ile praise,
   And I waite upon thy Name,
   Because before thy Saints alwaies
   Most pleasant is the same.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion &c.

This is the Sixth Maschil, See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. The nature of it is Doctrinal, or Instructive: as the Title shews.

Penman of it, more than probably, was David: as the Subject-Matter and Occasion do not obscurely indicate.

Occasion of writing it, is expressed in the Title briefly; which thus may be laid down more largely, from 1 Sam. 21. and 22. David flying from King Sauls rage, comes to Nob for succour, where Achimelech the Priest gave him and his men Shew-bread, furnished him with Goliab's Sword, and enquired of the LORD for him, Doeg the Edomite chief of King Sauls Herdmen, 1 Sam. 21. 7. being then present, and seeing all this, went to King Saul and told him, David came unto the House of Achimelech, &c. Saul hereupon sent for Achimelech, and all the Priests at Nob: and commanded his foot-men to turn and slay him and all the Priests of the LORD, they refusing to execute this horrid cruelty, Saul commands Doeg to do it, who slew on that day 85. persons that did weare the linen Ephod; Smiting also Nob the Priests City with the Sword and destroying there most cruelly, Man, Woman, Childe, and Beast. Which cruelty Abiathar son of Achimelech escaping, he fled to David and told him all, 1 Sam. 22. 9. to the end. Hereupon David seems to have Penned this Psalme.

Sect. IV.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this Psalme, is; 1. To reprove Doeg sharply, for his boasting in evil, and for his wicked tongue; And 2. To threaten him severely hereupon with dreadful destruction out of his place: 3. But contrariwise to support and encourage himself against all the wicked and cruel Persecutions of Doeg against him, by slaying the Priests of the LORD for his sake, assuring himself by his Faith in God of his own constant flourishing Prosperity in the House of God, resolving to wait upon his Name, and praise him for avenging his Cause upon Doeg which he Prophetically foresaw as done already.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Nature of this Psalme; Maschil, See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick; To the Master, &c. 3. The Occasion of it, when Doeg, &c. As formerly hath been expressed in Sect. 3.

The Substance of the Psalme contains Matters more specially concerning 1. Doeg. 2. David himself.

I. As for Doeg; He is Reproved, and Threatned. 1. Doeg is reproved and sharply blamed, 1. For his boasting in evil, he being now become a great man, Which was contrary to Gods mercy continued to him daily, verse 1. 2. For his evil tongue, Devising mischief; Doing deceit; Delighting in evil, in Lying, in Destructive and guileful words, more than in the the contrary Vertues, ver. 2, 3, 4. II. Doeg is Prophetically threatned with terrible Destruction out of his Place. This is, 1. Described, and Illustrated by four Similitudes, viz. (1) Of a Building pull'd down and destroyed. (2) Of Coales of fire taken away with the tongs. (3) Of Tent-stakes pull'd away. 4. Of Trees plucked up by the Roots, verse 5. 2. Amplified by the effect of this judgement upon the Righteous beholding it, viz. (1) Partly, they shall be confirmed hereby in Gods fear. (2) Partly, they shall be moved even to laugh at him, for his vain confidence in his wealth and wickedness, and not in God, ver. 6, 7.

II. As for David himself, He declares contrariwise, 1. His comfortable Perswasion of his own happy condition in the House of God continually. Which is, 1. Illustrated by the Similitude of an Olive-tree alwayes green. 2. Described, by the Instrumental Meanes thereof, viz. His constant trust in Gods loving-kindness verse 8. II. His pious Resolution. 1. To praise God continually for avenging his Cause upon Doeg, which he Prophetically forelaw as done already: and for preserving himself in prosperity. 2. To wait patiently upon God and his aid, that being pleasant in the sight of his Saints, verse 9.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

5. There they f sore fear'd where no fear was,

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This is the seventh Maschil. See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. It is a Doctrinal, or Teaching Psalme.

Penman of it, as the Title shewes, was David.

Occasion, is not here or elsewhere clearly expressed, But some h think, That this Psalme (which in Substance, and almost in the very words, some few only excepted which are altered or added, is the same with Psalme 14.) was written by David Prophetically touching Antiochus, that notorious Antiochus, that destroyed Jerusalem and brought many evils upon the Jewes, because it's said; God did disperse thy besiegers bones, verse 5. which are not to be found in Psal. 14. As Psalme 14. seems Penned upon the Occasion of the Jews distresses under Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians. And perhaps the Holy Ghost speaks almost the same words twice over, Because the wickedness of these enemies were so parallel one to another. Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme.

This is for Kinde an Eucharistical Psalme, A Psalme of Triumphant Prayse to the LORD, upon his Divine and wonderful repulsing of some huge Army from the walls of Jerusalem, thereby eminently delivering Jerusalem from her besieging Enemies.

Penman, whether some of the Sonnes of Korach, or any other, is not evident.

Occasion, was Gods singular deliverance of Jerusalem from some huge Army of Enemies besieging it, as is notably hinted, ver. 4, 5, 6, 7. But whether these Enemies were, 1. The Philistine-Princes o, in dayes of David, 2 Sam 5. 17, 18, 22. (Rephaim was nigh Jerusalem, Josh. 15. 18.) 2. Or the Kings of Moab and Ammon with their Assistants q subdued by Jehoshaphat in the Valley; thence called, the Valley of Blessing, 2 Chron. 20. 3. Or Sennacherib and his huge Host q, in the dayes of Hezekiah, of which Army the Angel of the LORD in one night slew 185000. 2 Kings 18. 18. to Chap 20. 1. 2 Chron. 32. and to this History, verse 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. seem (in the Judgement of r some) notably to agree. 4. Or Rezin and Pekah in the dayes of Ahaz, s 2 Kings 16. 5, to 10. Cannot certainly be determined by the light of this Psalme or any other Scripture. And perhaps thinks Jerusalem r no one Deliverance of Jerusalem is particularly expressed, That Gods constant Protection of Jerusalem, and especially of his Church (whereof Jerusalem was a singular Type, Heb. 12. 22. Gal. 4. 25, 26. Rev. 21. 2. 10.) might be more significantly represented.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope in this Psalme, is; Highly to magnifie the LORD, for his Greatness and his Goodness to Jerusalem and the Church of God, in her Ornaments, Priviledges and Protection of her, most safely and securely in greatest dangers, and against most potent Enemies.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Denomination, which is twofold; A Song, a Psalme. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick.

In the Substance of the Psalme, are; 1 A Proposition 2 A Narration. 3 An Exhortation.

I. A Proposition of the greatness of God, and of his praises in Jerusalem, in his Church, ver. 1. whereupon, for the illustration of his Greatness and Goodness to Jerusalem The excellencies of Jerusalem: are notably delineated. She is, 1. For Stile and Denomination; The City of our God. 2. For Situation; beautiful. 3. For Priviledges; The joy of all the Earth. Hath the Temple on Mount-Sion standing on the North-side. 4. For Residence and Habitation; The City of the Great King, God himself, Matth. 5. 35. verse 2. 5. For Safety and Protection; God is Experimentally known in her Palaces for an High-Refuge, verse 3.

II. A Narration of Jerusalem's, of the Churches special Protection from God, ver, 4. to 12. This Protection is Illustrated, 1. By the deep dangers she was in, through the Armies of Kings combining and comming to lay siege against her ver. 4. 2. By the great deliverance she received from God: (1) Daunting her Enemies spirits with sudden-troubles, Frightfulness, Trembling, yea with Travelling-pangs, verse 5. 6 (2) Dashing their strength as Sea to pieces, v. 7. (3) By her Assurance of perpetual Protection by the LORD of Hosts, upon this experience which she had seen, according to Gods Word, verse 8. (4) By her secure and quiet waiting for, or meditating upon Gods mercy in his Temple, ver. 9. (5) By the Dilation of his praise throughout all the Earth, according to his most Righteous proceedings, verf. 10.

III. An Exhortation to all Gods people, That they exult in, observe and publish abroad, Gods wonderful benefits to Sion, to his Church; whether, 1. Past; As his judgements upon her Adversaries, verse 11. 2. Present; As her notable Fortifications; none of them being ruined or at all impaired by the Enemies attempts ver. 12. 13. 3. Or, To come; As his perpetual Guidance and Protection of her till Death, according to his everlasting Covenant-Relation to them verse 14.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm for Kind is Doctrinal and Hortatory: Exhorting all sorts and degrees most heedfully to attend unto the wise Doctrine and Parable therein unfolded. It teacheth especially, in midst of all surrounding afflictions even in death it self, (the wages of our sinful wayes, ver. 5. with Rom. 6. 23.) not to place our trust Either in multitude of Worldly Riches, which can preserve none from death; Or in glory of Earthly Honour, which is wholly vanishing and shall perish in the Grave, ver. 6. to 15. But only upon God, who can and will raise us from the dead, ver. 15. And consequently not to be afraid of any mans wealth and glory increasing, all which he shall be capable to enjoy, or leave over, when he dies. And consequently this Psalm is an excellent Antidote against the scandal of the Cross wherewith the godly are exercised, while the wicked prosper and flourish in all worldly wealth and glory.

Of the Penman, and Occasion of making this Psalm we have no particular discovery.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalm, is, 1. To excite and encourage all sorts of people (under the exemplary faith and courage of the Psalmist here representing, ver. 4. with 15.) undauntedly to bear all sorts of afflictions, (notwithstanding all the wealth and glory wherein worldlings do on the contrary flourish) they having hope in God, both of Resurrection even from Death it self by him, and of blissful Reception unto him, ver. 15. 2. As also to convince them how vain and foolish a thing it is to place confidence in greatest worldly wealth, or highest earthly honours, None of which can preserve their owners at all from the Grave, or Descend with them into the Grave.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Denomination; A Psalm. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick.

In the Psalm it self, are, 1. A Preface. 2. A Proposition. 3. A Conclusion.

1. The Preface is vehement and importunate, inciting all sorts to singular Attention. Wherein consider, 1. The Persons spoken to; All People, All the worlds inhabitants, whether Ignoble or Noble, Rich or Poor. 2. The Act or Duty whereunto they are incited; Hear, give ear, ver. 1. 2. 3. The Object, or Matter about which this Act is to be exercised, is set forth in four sublime and alluring Expressions, viz. 1. Wisedoms. 2. Prudencies. 3. A Parable (משל) which notes Rule Excellency, &c. such Speeches excelling and bearing sway among others, 4. A Riddle, or a Dark-matter, or an hidden Question. Therefore all of them be speaking their utmost Attentions, ver. 3, 4.

II. The Proposition is elegant and emphatical. The Psalmist proposeth the summe of this Wisedom, Prudence, Parable, Dark-matter, viz. His unterrified confidence (exemplary to all, especially the godly,) in midst of all encompassing evils, which the iniquity of his heels, of his steps and wayes, might bring upon him. This is laid down emphatically by way of interrogation: Why? &c. that is, I have no just cause at all to fear, &c. ver. 5. This his confidence is Illustrated and Described by the Grounds of it, Negatively, and Affirmatively. 1. Negatively, This his confidence is not grounded or bottomed (like that of carnal worldlings,) 1. Neither in the multitude of Riches. (1.) Partly, Because no worldly wealth can Redeem a man from Death and grave, Or obtain a priviledge to him of not dying, ver. 6, 7, 8, 9. (2) Partly, Because as all must dye, both wise, and foolish, and brutish persons, So when Death comes all worldly wealth will dye to them, and must be left to others, ver. 10. 2. Nor in earthly honour and glory: Either of Houses, viz. Families and Posterity, which worldlings think will continue for ever: Or of Habitations, which they fancy will abide from Generation to Generation: Or of Lands, which they call after their own Names, ver. 11. None of these are grounds of true confidence. For, (1) Man in honour continueth not, but becomes by Death like the Beasts that perish. Or, Adam in honor lodged not a night, but became as the Beast, &c. and then what man in honour can promise himself or his any generation (wherein) p. 14. (2) All this way of worldlings (however approved by their posterity) is not wisdome, but their folly, ver. 13. (3) They shall be brought plentifully, even as a flock of dying sheep, into the grave, and become food for Death. (4) The upright (now trodden under foot by worldly great ones) shall have Dominion over them in the morning, i. e. Either early speedily, assoon as they are Dead. Or, In the morning of the last Resurrection, then the upright shall have Dominion over greatest wicked worldlings: The Saints shall judge the world, 1 Cor. 6. 2, 3. (5) Their Form, or earthly glory shall wear away in the grave, or in Hell, as if it had never been, ver. 14. II. Affirmatively, This his confidence undaunted is grounded on God. Who, 1. Shall Redeem him from the power of the grave, at the Resurrection. 2. Will Receive him to himself, viz. into Celestial Mansions, ver. 15.

III. The Conclusion from the Premisses is Hortatory. Exhorting every of us, Not to be at all dismaid at the increase of worldlings wealth and glory, ver. 16. 1. Because, All their wealth and glory is utterly swept away from them by Death, ver. 17. 2. Because, Though they applaud themselves while they live, and think others applaud them also for doing good to themselves by their worldly courses; yet at last they shall dye and be gathered to their fathers deceased, and shall not see light to eternity: that is, They shall not still live here in Earth to see the light of this world, As, Psal. 56. 14. Job 33. 28, 30. Nor shall they see at all the light of eternal glory (Matth. 8. 12.) in the world to come, ver. 18, 19. 3. Because, Their persons though in highest honour, yet wanting understanding, are perishable like brute-beasts, verse 20.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm as to the Kind of it is Doctrinal. Wherein the LORD the God of Gods (after an awful Preface touching his dreadful Majesty in his Church,) Instructeth his Covenant-people Israel, what is the True worship wherein he is delighted, not so much Carnal, Legal Sacrifices, As Spiritual and Moral Performances; And who are his acceptable worshippers, Not Hypocritical and Atheistical Transgressors, but those that Praise God and order their way aright.

Penman, As some think, was Asaph the Seer, who penned some Psalmes, 2 Chron. 29. 30. and the rather, because it is Entituled: A Psalm of Asaph. Or, as the Chaldee Paraphrast expresseth it; by the hands of Asaph. But others rather are of Opinion that David Penned this Psalm, (committing it only to Asaph or his sons for the keeping and tuning of it in the Sanctuary, 1 Chron. 25. 2. and that upon this Occasion viz. After Israel had been smitten with the three years Famine, and three dayes Pestilence, 2 Sam. 21. and 24. And after the Angel of God had appeared to David, and pointed out unto him the place of Gods Habitation, 1 Chron. 21. 18. and 22. 1. Then this Psalm touching Gods true Worship and Worshippers, seems to have been written.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Holy Ghost in this Psalm, is; Convincingly to instruct Israel Gods Covenant-people, and in them the Church of God, What Worship and Worshippers are most acceptable unto God, viz, not so much the Ceremonial and External, as the Moral and Spiritual Worship; Not unreformed Hypocrites and profane Atheists, but such as walk thankfully, ordering their wayes aright.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title hath in it, 1. The Denomination, &c; A Psalm. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick, or the Indication of the Penman, לְאָסָף may be rendred either. To-Asaph, or; Of-Asaph.

In the Psalm it self are, 1. An Introduction to the Instruction. 2. The Instruction it self.

I. The Introduction to the Instruction, procuring the greater heed and attention, ver. 1. to 7. is drawn; 1. From the highest Author of this Instruction; The God of Gods JEHOVAH. 2. From the manner of his Instruction. Which is either, 1. Common to all the world, by the Works of Creation, v. 1. 2. Peculiar to his Church, to Sion. Whose beauty is highly commended; The universality of Beauty. A Confluence of Beauty centered there, v. 2. Whose desire also after Gods Presence for Instructing of his Church, is intimated. And that Presence of God is (in allusion to Gods appearing to Israel of old at M.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme as to the Kind of it, is a most Pathetical Penitential Prayer: usually accounted The Fourth Penitential Psalme.

David, as the Title shewes, was Penman of it. It is Davids Retractation: David's Testimonial of his sincere Repentance for his great Offences in the Matter of Uriah; which did so shake his integrity and gave great occasion to the enemies of the LORD to blaspheme, 2 King 15. 5. 2 Sam. 12. 14. And when did David ever pray more fervently and sweetly: than here where he mourn'd for his sins most sadly?

The Occasion of Davids Penning this Psalme, is hinted in the Body of the Psalme, ver. 4. 14. But more plainly declared in the Title, viz. When Nathan, &c. David in an Evening-tide walking on the top of his House, and seeing Bathsheba the wife of Uriah the Hittite washing her self, sent for her, committed adultery with her, and she became with child: To hide this Fact he sent for her Husband from the Camp to lodge with his Wife, which he being utterly averse unto, David wrote a Letter by Uriah to Joab his General to set Uriah in the forefront of the hottest Battel that he might be slain; and Uriah being slain by the Sword of the Children of Ammon, David took Bathsheba to be his Wife. Upon this, Nathan sent from God to David, convinced him of his sin (wherein he had slept from the time of his Fact till after the Child, conceived in adultery, was born, which probably was nine moneths at least, 2 Sam. 11. 27. with 12. 1. 14.) Denounced heavy judgement against him, stroke his Child with Death, yet gave David hope of Pardon upon his Repentance, assuring him God had put away his sin, he should not dye. See this whole History at large in 2 Sam. 11. and 12. Upon this Occasion, when Nathan was departed from David, David wrote this Psalme, therein confessing and aggravating his sins most ingenuously, declaring his Repentance unfeignedly, and begging Remission of sin, Renewing Grace, Restauration of wonted Peace and Comfort, &c. most fervently. How great a King was David, yet his sins are impartially recorded by the Holy Ghost in Scripture for our Caution and Instruction. Many (said g Augustine) are willing to fall with David, but stand by him with David. David is not pursued by his enemies, but by his own sins, of which he had made, (as it were) a Bosom-friend. David (that holy, that righteous man, who many times contended with and prevailed) David repenting and lying under the sense of his sin, he careful to rise that had fallen? Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall: And he that is fallen, take heed to rise again.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David's Scope in this Psalme, is, 1 To confesse his great and scandalous sin ingenuously; 2 To shame himself for them deeply; 3 To testifie his cordial and unfeigned Repentance; 4 To implore earnestly pardon and purging of his iniquities, Renewed grace and Consolations from Gods Spirit, and removal of all the sad effects thereby occasioned to himself for the people of Israel. See ver. 1, 2, 8, 12, 13. Thus David was h ashamed of his sinning; not ashamed (as many are) of Repenting. O incredible madnesse (said Augustine) that blushest not at the wound: and dost thou blush at the binding of it up? Is not the naked wound more filthy and noysome?

h Sunt multi quos peccare non pudet, agere pœnitentiam pudet. O incredibilis insania! De vulnere ipso non erubescis, de ligatura vulneris erubescis? Nonne nudum fœdius & putidius est? August. Enarrat in Psal. 50. Tom. 8. p. 487. Basil. 1569.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title hath in it, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 2. The Penman; David. He impartially records his own great offences; (a notable Argument of the Divine Authority of the Scriptures wherein the Penmen spare not themselves:) And ingenuously publisheth his own unfeigned repentance. 3. The direction of it as to the Musick, &c. 4. The Occasion of Davids Penning it, which is twofold, viz. (1) More immediate; Nathans Message to David, convincing and threatning him about his scandalous Sins; When Nathan the Prophet, &c. (2) More Remote; Davids adultery with Bathshebah, &c. After he had gone in unto Bathsheba. The Holy Scripture (as its manner is) speaketh chastly and purely of this filthy fact.

The Psalme it self is Pathetically Penitory. Herein David Prayes 1. For himself, ver. 1. to 18. 2. For the Church, or People of Israel whom he had offended and endangered by his great offences, verse 18, 19.

1. For Himself, David begs earnestly, 1. Remission of his sins, ver. 1. to 8. 2. Restauration in Spiritualls impaired by his sins, ver. 8. to 18.

1. Remission of his sins is most earnestly begged. This Request being, 1. Propounded, 1. Simply and plainly, in his Praying for Grace or free-favour. 2. Figuratively, in Metaphorical expressions; As, Blotting-out, ver. 1. Cleansing. Multiplying to wash him, ver. 2. Purging with Hyssop, Washing, ver. 7. II. Urged and amplified, Patherically, 1. From the prime Efficient Cause of Pardon, viz. Gods loving-kindness and the multitude of his tenderest bowel-mercies, v. 1. 2. From the subservient Cause, viz. His own penitent confession of, and deep Contrition for his own sins, both Actual and Original, ver. 3. to 7. His actual sins, especially his Adultery and Murder, he confesseth with deep sense of them. Aggravating them especially three wayes, (1) As being now ever before him, though till now (as Augustine well observes) he had put it behind him, ver. 3. (2) As being against God, against him peculiarly. (3) As justifying God in his utmost severity of his Sayings or Threatnings by Nathan against him; and clearing God in all his judgements inflicted for his sins, ver. 4.

i Peccatum meum ante me est, non post me. Fuit enim post me, quando ad me missus est Propheta, &c. Aug. Enarrat. in Psal. 50.

His Original sinne. (1) Acknowledged in two Expressions Emphatical, ver. 4. (2) Illustrated and Aggravated by its quantities, ver. 5. Partly, Testified in the inward parts which God loves. Partly, Secret (inward) wisdom which God had taught him. Yet against this Truth, and Wisdom he had sinned, ver. 4.

2. Restauration in Spirituals impaired by his sinne, is fervently petitioned for. (His desires of pardon being herewith again and again interwoven, as ver. 7, 9, 14. through the vehemency of his penitential sorrows for his sins, and of his longings after remission.) Now those Spirituals wherein especially he desires Restauration, are; 1. Joy and gladness, and refreshing Comforts in sense of Pardon and Gods wonted favour. Illustrated, (1) By the contrary extream distress at present upon his Heart and Conscience for his sin; Compared to broken bones crushed all in pieces, ver. 8. (2) By his vehement reiterated desire of Pardon; Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities, ver. 9. 2. Purity of heart, by a Divine New-Creation. 3. Renovation of a firme establisht Spirit in him for time to come. Lest he fall again, ver. 10. 4. Continuance of Gods favour, in not with-drawing his Presence and Holy Spirit from him, ver. 11. 5. Restoring of his joy in apprehension and assurance of Gods Salvation. 6. Sustentation by Gods Free Spirit; That being delivered from sins bondage, he may chearfully delight in all holy service and obedience to God, ver. 12. This is amplified by the Effects or duties intended upon grant of his desires. viz. (1) Instructing and edifying others by his own experience. So, of a Patient he should become a Physitian, ver. 13. (2) Glorifying God, 1 Partly, by proclaiming his justice, in delivering him from bloods, ver. 14. 2 Partly, By praising the Lord, when he shall open his lips, ver. 15. 3 Partly, By Sacrificing to his Honour; Not so much Ceremonial Sacrifices or Burnt-offerings, which God did not chiefly desire or delight in, ver. 16. But the spiritual Sacrifices of a Broken and Contrite Spirit k. These Gods grateful Sacrifices which he will not despise, ver. 17.

k See my Sermon of Brokenness of Heart, Entituled; A Broken Spirit, Gods Sacrifices, on Psal. 51. 17. Preached before the House of Lords.

II. For the Church of God Israel, (under the Types of Sion and Jerusalem,) David prayes also: they being scandalized and endangered by his sins. Here note, 1. The blessings craved, viz. (1) That (though himself had done them harme, and offended them, yet) God would do good unto Sion in his good will. (2) That, God would build Jerusalem's walls, which by his sin he had pull'd down, undermined, or shaken, ver. 18. 2. The Argument whereby his request is urged. This is drawn from the effect which will follow thereupon, viz. The Churches worshipping of God with upright and acceptable Sacrifices abundantly, ver. 19.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion &c.

This is the Sixth Maschil, See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. The nature of it is Doctrinal, or Instructive: as the Title shews.

Penman of it, more than probably, was David; as the Subject-Matter and Occasion do not obscurely indicate.

Occasion of writing it, is expressed in the Title breifly: which thus may be laid down more largely, from 1 Sam. 21. and 22. David flying from King Sauls rage, comes to Nob for succour, where Achimelech the Priest gave him and his men Shew-bread, furnished him with Goliah's Sword, and enquired of the LORD for him, Doeg the Edomite chief of King Sauls Herdmen, 1 Sam. 21. 7. being then present, and seeing all this, went to King Saul and told him, David came unto the House of Achimelech, &c. Saul hereupon sent for Achimelech, and all the Priests at Nob: and commanded his foot-men to turn and slay him and all the Priests of the LORD, they refusing to execute this horrid cruelty, Saul commands Doeg to do it, who slew on that day 85. persons that did weare the linen Ephod; Smiting also Nob the Priests City with the Sword and destroying there most cruelly, Man, Woman, Childe, and Beast. Which cruelty Abiathar son of Achimelech escaping, he fled to David and told him all, 1 Sam. 22. 9. to the end. Hereupon David seems to have Penned this Psalme.

Sect. IV.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this Psalme, is; 1. To reprove Doeg sharply, for his boasting in evil, and for his wicked tongue; And 2. To threaten him severely hereupon with dreadful destruction out of his place: 3. But contrariwise to support and encourage himself against all the wicked and cruel Persecutions of Doeg against him in slaying the Priests of the LORD for his sake, assuring himself by his Faith in God of his own constant flourishing Prosperity in the House of God, resolving to wait upon his Name, and praise him for avenging his Cause upon Doeg which he Prophetically foresaw as done already.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Nature of this Psalme; Maschil. See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick; To the Master, &c. 3. The Occasion of it, when Doeg, &c. As formerly hath been expressed in Sect. 3.

The Substance of the Psalme contains Matters more specially concerning 1. Doeg. 2. David himself.

I. As for Doeg; He is Reproved, and Threatned. I. Doeg is reproved and sharply blamed, 1. For his boasting in evil, he being now become a great man, Which was contrary to Gods mercy continued to him daily, verse 1. 2. For his evil tongue, Devising mischief; Doing deceit; Delighting in evil, in Lying, in Destructive and guileful words, more than in the the contrary Vertues, ver. 2, 3, 4. II. Doeg is Prophetically threatned with terrible Destruction out of his Place. This is, 1. Described, and Illustrated by four Similitudes, viz. (1) Of a Building pull'd down and destroyed. (2) Of Coales of fire taken away with the tongs. (3) Of Tent-stakes pull'd away. 4. Of Trees plucked up by the Roots, verse 5. 2. Amplified by the effect of this judgement upon the Righteous beholding it, viz. (1) Partly, they shall be confirmed hereby in Gods fear. (2) Partly, they shall be moved even to laugh at him, for his vain confidence in his wealth and wickedness, and not in God, ver. 6, 7.

II. As for David himself, He declares contrariwise, I. His comfortable Perswasion of his own happy condition in the House of God continually. Which is, 1. Illustrated by the Similitude of an Olive-tree alwayes green. 2. Described, by the Instrumental Meanes thereof, viz. His constant trust in Gods loving-kindness verse 8. II. His pious Resolution. 1. To praise God continually for avenging his Cause upon Doeg, which he Prophetically forelaw as done already: and for preserving himself in prosperity. 2. To wait patiently upon God and his aid, that being pleasant in the sight of his Saints, verse 9.

Psalm LIII.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David I. Complaineth of the abominable corruption of the ungodly, dishonouring God, and oppressing his Church. 1. Declaring this Corruption by the (1) Root of it. (2) Fruit of it, and (3) Universal extent of it upon Gods own account of it upon them, for their cruelty against the godly, verse 5. II. Wisheth for Gods Salvation, and redemption from Thraldome, against the wicked, verse 6.

They have not call'd on God most-High.

e heb. have not the workers of iniquity known?

5. There they f sore fear'd where no fear was,
For thy besiegers Bones abroad

For, them disdain'd-cast-off-hath God.

g heb. Salvations.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This is the seventh Maschil. See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. It is a Doctrinal, or Teaching Psalme.

Penman of it, as the Title shewes, was David.

Occasion, is not here or elsewhere clearly expressed, But some h think, That this Psalme (which in Substance, and almost in the very words, some few only excepted which are altered or added, is the same with Psalme 14.) was written by David Prophetically touching Antiochus, that notorious Antiochus, that destroyed Jerusalem and brought many evils upon the Jewes, because it's said; God did disperse thy besiegers bones, verse 5. which are not to be found in Psal. 14. As Psalme 14. seems Penned upon the Occasion of the Jews distresses under Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians. And perhaps the Holy Ghost speaks almost the same words twice over, Because the wickednesse of these enemies were so parallel one to another. And it is no unusual thing with Scripture to recite the same things and words sundry times upon several Occasions: compare 2 Chron. 36. 22, 23. with Ezra 1. 1, 2, 3. ——— and 1 Chron. 16. 8, to 23. with Psal. 105. 1. to 16. ——— and 1 Chron. 16. 23. to 34. with Psal. 96. throughout ——— and h Simeon de Muis in Argum. ad Psal. 53.

———and 1 Chron. 16. 34. with Pſal. 107. 1. and 118. 1. and 136. 1.

Now the variation of words in this 53. Pſalme, from thoſe in Pſalme 14. ſtands thus. In the Title of Pſal. 53. theſe words are added, [upon Macha-Lath, Maſchil]

For פעלי עולה Practice. Allies, Pſal. 14. 1. we have עוול Both. Iniurious evill.—— For יהוה the LORD, JEHOVAH, Pſal. 14. 2, 4, 7. we have אלהים God. In Pſal. 53. verſe 2, 3, 6.—— For כלו סג Every-one is departed, or back-declined, Pſal. 14. 3. we have here כלי סג All-he is-gone-backward, Pſal. 53. 3.—— After thoſe words, wherein both Pſalmes agree [They feared a fear] the words in Pſal. 14. 5, 6. are different from thoſe in Pſal. 53. 5. And in this verſe is the greateſt difference.—— Finally, for ישועת Salvation, in Pſal. 14. 7. we have ישועות Salvations in this Pſal. 53. 6. Theſe are the verbal differences betwixt theſe two Pſalmes, which in Subſtance of Sence and Reality are almoſt the ſame, except that fifth verſe in this Pſalme.

Sect. IV. The Scope, and Analyſis.

Let theſe fore-noted differences betwixt Pſal. 53. and Pſal. 14. be well conſidered; and then the Scope and Analyſis of Pſal. 14. is Applicable to this Pſalme, and need not be here again repeated: only remembring the different matter in ver. 5, from that of Pſal. 14. 5, 6.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion.

This Pſalme as to the Kinde of it, is A Prayer: As alſo the eighth Maſchil, See Pſal. 32. Sect. 3. Penman of it was David, as the Title teſtifies. The Occaſion of it, was the Ziphims treachery againſt David, putting him into great danger by Saul: hinted briefly in the Title. It ſtands thus: viz. David, not long after dogged Doeg's cruel Fact in murdering the Lord's Prieſts; See Pſal. 52. Sect. 3. being warned by God's Oracle, that if he ſtayed at Keilah, (whither he fled from King Saul,) they would deliver him up to Saul, He and 600 men with him fled from Keilah into the wilderneſs of Ziph. Ziph was a City of Judah, Joſh. 15. 24. near which was a wood and a wilderneſs. The Ziphimes to curry favour with Saul came and ſaid to him; Doth not David hide himſelf with us? This they did once, 1 Sam. 23. 14, 15, 16, &c. And again, 1 Sam. 26. 1, 2. This Pſalme ſeems to be written upon Occaſion of their firſt endeavour to betray David to Saul. When David being in the deſert of Maon, and hearing of Sauls coming, betook himſelf to a Rock, and perceiving himſelf to be in a great danger hee penned this Pſalme, and encouraged himſelf in God, 1 Sam. 23. 19, &c.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Pſalme, is; To commit himſelf by Prayer and Faith to Gods Protection againſt his terrible enemies and dangers: And aſſuring himſelf that God was the Help both of him and of his Helpers, and would remunerate and repreſſe his enemies, He promiſeth hereupon Free-will-offerings and Praiſes to the LORD.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are 1. The Nature of the Pſalme; Maſchil. Inſtruction. 2. The Penman, David. 3. The Occaſion; The Ziphims informing Saul of Davids hiding himſelf with them. 4. The Direction of it as to the Muſick.

In the Pſalme it ſelf, which is Davids Prayer in his danger and diſtreſs, are;

I. Davids Petitions. Theſe are, I Propounded; Wherein he intreats the LORD, 1. To ſave him from preſent danger. 2. To judge him, or judge for him. Both being amplified by the reſpective wayes how he would have theſe things done, verſe 1. 3. To heare his Prayer. This requeſt being Emphatically doubled, verſe 2. II. Urged; From the Nature and Practices of his Enemies, being 1. Partly, Strangers, viz. The Ziphims. 2, Partly, Daunting-Tyrants, viz, Saul and his men; who (1) Roſe up againſt him. (2) Sought his Soul. (3) Set not God before them, verſe 3.

II. Davids Profeſſions of his truſt and confidence in in God. 1. That God would be his help, and be with his helpers, verse 4. 2. That God would justly recompence ill to his Enemies, and suppress them, verse 5.

III. Delivers him from Reflections. 1. To Sacrifice to God Free-will-offerings. 2. To confess (viz. praise and thanks) to the name of the LORD: (1) Partly, because it is good, or pleasant, verse 6. (2) Partly, because by Faith he assures himself of deliverance out of all his present danger and distresse, and of his desire upon his Enemies, as certainly as if he were affected already, verse 7.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This is a Prayer interwoven with Instruction. An Instructing-Prayer. It is the 16th Maschil. See Ps. 32. Sect. 3. The Psalmist himself was experimentally instructed by his fore-affliction here complained of; and in this Psalm he accordingly instructs all Gods people which shall be alike afflicted. Penman of it was David; as the Title shewes. Occasion of Davids writing it, is not here or elsewhere particularly declared. But it is the opinion of Kimchi and other Jewish Writers, as also of more judicious modern Authors h; That David wrote this Prayer, this Maschil, when by reason of Absalom's rebellion (Achitophel also being confederate with him) David and his friends fled from Jerusalem, He and all that went with him weeping as they went up Mt. Olivet, 2 Sam. 15. 30. &c. And the Passages in this Psalm seem notably to agree to that sad story. For 1. In ver. 3. David seems to complain of Shimei's reproaches and revilings, 2 Sam. 16. 5. &c. 2. In ver. 12, 13, 14. he seems to describe and aggravate the Treachery of his familiar friend and counsellor Achitophel; See 2 Sam. 16. 20. &c. and 17. 1. 3. In ver. 9. 10, 11. He seems to point at the villanies done in the City, after Absalom and his Confederates came into Jerusalem, 2 Sam. 16. 21. &c. and 17. 1. &c. Of which when Hushai had informed David, he seems to be exceedingly afraid, and wishes for Doves-wings that he might flee farr away from this storm, ver. 6, 7, 8. Nevertheless i some think this Psalm is to be referred to the times of King Sauls persecuting of David: As his danger at Keilah, 1 Sam. 23. 1, 2. &c. or some such like great distresse. But in this doubtfulnesse nothing can be certainly determined. Melius est dubitare de occultis, quam litigare de incertis.

i Sim. de Muis in Arg. ad Ps. 55. Mr. Tho. Wilcocks on the Title of Ps. 55. Jo. Calv. in Arg. Ps. 55. Hen. Mollerus in Arg. Ps. 55.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope here intended, is; To importune to LORD to hear; answer, and relieve him in his extream fears and deadly dangers by reason of some cruel oppressing Enemies, but especially by reason of the villainous treachery of his intimate Familiar Friend that had sweetned Councel together with him, and accompanyed him to the House of God, who, though his words were as Butter or Oyle, yet harboured warre in his heart most perfidiously. And this seems notably to intend Achitophel.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title, note; 1. The Denomination of it; Maschil. 2. The Penman; David. 3. The Direction of it as to the Musick.

In the Psalme it self, are chiefly four things, viz.

I. Davids Prayer for himself, vrse 1. to 9. This is I. Propounded, David in four several expressions craving audience and answer to his Prayer most importunately, ver. 1, 2. II. Pressed or Urged, by divers Arguments. As, 1. From his own mournful and perplexed frame in his Praying, ver. 2. 2. From the insolent and cruel deportment of his enemies, ver. 3. 3. From the extream fears and terrours of death and destruction surprizing his heart, ver. 4, 5. These his terrours are Amplified by the effect which they wrought upon him, viz. making him wish even Doves-wings, that he might flee far away from the present tempest, and be at peace. Metaphor, ver. 6, 7, 8.

II. Davids Imprecation against his Enemies, the Conspirators, ver. 9. to 16. Against them he prays, 1. That God would swallow them up. 2. That he would divide their language, divide their Counsels, (as once at Babel, Gen. 10. or as David elsewhere prayed against Achitophel, O LORD turn about the counsels of Achitophel, 2 Sam. 15. 31.) This he further urgeth because of the great evils perpetrated by the Conspirators in the City; viz. 1. Violence and strife, probably of the Souldiers about the Citizens goods, v. 9. 2. Notorious villanies, woful evils. As defiling Davids Concubines, &c. ver. 10, 11. 3. Fraudulent and guilefull practises, ver. Against David, ver. 11. This last is notably Aggravated by consideration of some principal Agent in this Treachery: (1) Negatively, not an open professed enemy, ver. 12. (2) Positively, But a most dear familiar bosom-friend. Probably Achitophel was here intended, ver. 13, 14. III. That Death might seize on them, and they for their evils go alive like Corah, &c. into the grave, ver. 15.

III. Davids Profession of his confidence in God, v. 16. to 22. David believing and being perswaded, That God will 1. Hear his Prayer. 2. Save deliver him from his enemies and the present War against him, ver. 16, 17, 18. 3. Afflict his enemies. And this (1) Partly because they are devoid of Gods fear, having no changes by afflictions, ver. 19. (2) Partly, because of their perfidious Covenant-breaking, ver. 20. (3) Partly, because of their treacherous subtilty, ver. 21.

IV. The Conclusion of the whole Psalm; 1. Exhorting the Righteous to cast all their care upon the LORD, who will not give the just man for ever to be moved, ver. 22. 2. Prophecying the speedy ruine of bloody and deceitful men, they shall not half out their dayes. 3. Promising that himself will trust in God, ver. 23.

Then will I trust f in thee.

4. In God I'le praise his word & dear,
I'le trust in God also,

5. My words they grievously do wrest

Against me all their thoughts are prest
For harmful ill alway.

To slay my Soul desired.
7. h By reason of unrighteousnesse
Shall they escape thy Rod?
The People in thy wrath therefore

Then in thy Bottle put k my tears:
Are they not in thy Book?

In day I cry to thee:
This I do know (to assuage my woes)
That God will be for me.

10. In God I'le praise the faithful word;
The faithful word I'le praise
In the ever being LORD.

Therefore I will not basely fear
What man can do to me.
12. O God, thy vowes upon me are;
I'le l praises pay to thee.

13. For thou hast freed my Soul from Death,
Hast not my feet from fall?
To walk m before God here beneath,
In light of living all.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme as to the Kind of it, is, A Prayer, A choise and precious Prayer: being The second Michtam; See Psal. 16. Sect. 3. A Jewel, A Golden Psalme.

Penman of it, was David; Michtam of David: Title.

The Occasion of it, was the Philistines taking of David in Gath, whither he fled from the face of Saul. David fled twice to Achish King of Gath of the Philistines: Once, after Jonathan had informed him of his Father Sauls implacableness towards him, 1 Sam. 20. and 21. 10. &c. At which time David perceiving himself to be in danger by the Philistines, changed his behaviour feigning himself distracted: Whereupon, being let go, he departed into the Cave Adullam; and there, upon this Occasion seems to have Penned both Psalme 34. and Psal. 56. even both these Psalmes upon one and the same Occasion n, most probably. For, we find that at this first flight of David to Gath (and not at any other:) the Philistines took David and brought him to Achish, 1 Sam. 21. 15. with Psalm. 56. Title. Compare also 1 Sam. 21. 10. to the end. and 22. 1. with Psal. 34. Title, and Sect. 3. there. A second time David fled to Achish at Gath, and there dwels with him a season, &c. 1 Sam. 27. 1, 2, 3. upon this Occasion some think this Psalme was Penned o: but rather assent to the former.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David (by prayer) intendeth to To intreat the Lords favour to him, and prospering of him, against all his Enemies violently set against him; and deliverance out of all his dangers and difficulties by reason of them.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of the Psalme includes 1. The Dignification or Inscription of the Psalme as to the Musick of it. 2. The note for Tune after which it was to be sung; upon Jonath-Elem-Rechokim; which (as some think) was the beginning of some known song. Or, Concerning the Dumb Dove of far places, (as these words signifie.) viz. David dumb as a Dove in the remote parts of the Philistines Country, as others interpret them q. 3. The Excellency of the Psalme; Michtam. See Psal. 16. Sect. 2. 4. The Penman; David 5. The Occasion; When the Philistines took him in Gath.

The Psalme is self is, I. Penitentiary, 2. Querulatory, 3 Gratulatory.

I. Penitentiary, or prayer, ver. 1. to 5. Wherein David prayes for Gods grace and favour to himself against his Enemies. This Petition he presseth. 1. From consideration of his Enemies, viz. 1. Sorry many i. e. King Saul. 2. Prayers. 3. Many. And of their practices all the day, 1. Warring against him, 2. Oppressing him. 3. Endeavouring to swallow him up. ver. 1, 2. II. From his own confidence in God and his Word, in all his fears, against worst of Enemies ver. 3, 4.

II. Querulatory, or complaining, ver. 5. to 9. Here David complaineth, I. Of his enemies. For that, 1. They wrest his words continually. 2. They plot his evil all the day, ver. 5. 3. They slily lye in wait for his life, ver. 6. 4. They think to escape unpunished through their iniquity and falsehood, ver. 7. II. Of his own calamity, in his unsetled and mournful state, yet observed by God. 1. His wanderings God numbred. 2. His tears, God bottled up, and booked down, ver. 8.

III. Gratulatory, or tending to thanksgiving, ver. 9. to the end. Here he makes a double Profession, viz. I. Of his Faith, the ground of his thankfulness. His Faith in God perswaded him, 1. That God would turn back and ruine his enemies, but be for David, ver. 9. 2. That Gods Word, viz. his Word of Promise touching the Kingdom, shall be so fulfilled to him, as to yield him matter of praise, ver. 10. 3. That he should be safe in God against his enemies: therefore he casts off his slavish fear of them, v. 11. II. Of his thankfulness to God which he promiseth to declare, 1. In performance of his vowes. 2. In rendring confessions or acknowledgements unto God, v. 12. Both which he illustrates from the ground thereof, viz Gods merciful deliverance of him from death and falling (thus his Faith looks at the thing as already done) that he might walk before God in the light of the living, ver. 13.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occaſion.

This Pſalme as to the Kind of it, is A Prayer: The third Michtam; as it were, A golden Prayer. See Pſ. 16. Sect. 3.

Penman of it, was David: as the Title ſhewes. It was one of Davids Jewels.

Occaſion of this Prayer, was King Sauls perſecution of David ſo eagerly, that David much endangered fled into a Cave among the Rocks in the Wilderneſſe of Engedi, to hide himſelf. Whileſt he and his men were in the ſides of this Cave, Saul came into it to cover his feet: where David privily cut off the ſkirt of Sauls garment, but would not kill him, though his men urged him to it, and he had him at his mercy. At which kindneſſe of David, Sauls heart (after he came to know it) ſo relented, that he acknowledged his faultineſs againſt David with tears: And taking an Oath of David not to cut off his Seed, he for a ſeaſon ceaſed his further perſecution of him. See 1 Sam. 24. throughout. Upon theſe ſtraits David Penned this Pſalme i.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this Prayer, is; 1. To intreat the LORD for his Divine Grace, Favour, Protection and Deliverance from Saul and his Adherents; 2. And (upon confident aſſurance hereof) to awaken himſelf unto all enlarged thankfulneſſe to God for his Loving kindneſſe and Truth to him, while his adverſaries fell into the Pit they digged.

Psalme LVIII.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David, I. Reproves convincingly, King Saul and his Courtiers, 1. For their corrupt Counsels and unjust judgements against him, ver. 1, 2. 2. For their wickedness, being (1.) Natural and Hereditary. (2.) Deadly, venomous. And (3.) Incurable, ver. 3, 4, 5. II. Imprecates divers heavy judgements upon his enemies, under sundry Elegant-Metaphorical allusions, ver. 6. to 10. III. Prophesyeth, what joy, triumph, and establishment shall be to the righteous, upon the destruction of the wicked, ver. 10. 11.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To-the-Master-of-the-Musick, * Altaschetb; Michtam of David.

1. a DO ye, O Congregation,
Speak righteousnes indeed?
b Do ye judge equal-things alone,
O Adam's sons and Seed?
2. Yea ye in heart c vile-injuries
Do work with diligence,
On earth d ye balanse-out likewise
Your hands high violence.

3. The wicked quite estranged-are Ev'n from the womb alway,
They from the very belly erre,
Still speaking e lyes are they.

4. Like to the Serpents fell him,
And as the Adder stops her hearing eare,
That it doth not hear the cry.

5. Which charmers charm will not hark

O Lord break out their Teeth in three
The jaw-bone of the Lyons young.

6. Like waters do they run away,
Let them dissolve away;
His arrowes lose when he shall bend,
As very slaves be they.

7. Like as a the melting Snail doth melt
Let him away be gone;
Like woman's untimely birth,
Let them not see the Sun.

8. e Your thornes, O Bramble, ere that they Shall feel a fire their fuel,
With whirlwind it hot or hath away,
Both green them and the burning.

9. The just shall joy when he shall see
The vengeance for the good:
His feet triumph in the wash shall in
Ee's in the wicked's blood.

10. And men shall say, assuredly
Fruit for the just there grow;
Yea-sure there is a God on high
f Doth judge on earth below.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme for Kind is of Mixt Nature, being Prophetical, and Prophetical, in reference to the wicked; and Consolatory in respect of the righteous. The fourth Michtam. See Psal. 16. Sect. 3.

Penman of it was David, as the Title shewes.

Occasion of this Psalme, some p think to be Davids coming into the Valley where Saul slept, and taking away his Spear when he might as easily have taken away his Head: Whereupon he challenged Abner as guilty of Death for keeping him no better, and cleares himself as being cautelously pursued by Saul. See 1 Sam. 26. But others q incline rather to Kimchi, thinking this Psalme was Penned upon occasion of the unjust Counsels and Practices of Abner and other of Saul's Princes, against David. Whereupon David in this Psalme endeavours both to convince them of their evill and unjust dealing, and to comfort himself against the same.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Psalme, is; 1. Partly, To convince and reprove King Saul, as also his Princes and Counsellours, Abner, Doeg, and other Court-Parasites of their unrighteous words and actions, of their violent dealings and extream wickednesse: (perhaps having respect to their cruel murdering of Achimelech and 85. Priests, &c. for Davids sake.) 2. Partly, To implore and foretell their Destruction. 3. Partly, To comfort himself and the righteous, upon consideration of Gods just dispensations for the godly, against their Enemies.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title represents to us, 1. The Direction of the Psalme, as to the Master of it. 2. The Tune; Altaschith: See Psal. 57. Sect. 5. 3. The Excellency of the Psalme; Michtam: See Psal. 16. Sect. 3. 4. The Penman; David.

The Psalm it self is 1 Reprehensory, 2 Penitent, and 3 Prophetical.

I. Reprehensory, David convincingly-reprehends King Saul and his Courtiers, 1. Expostulating with them about their Counsels and Judgements against himself, &c. Whether they were just, ver. 1. II. Affirming and positively Asserting, 1. That their hearts conceive injurious-evils. 2. That their hands weigh out violence in Earth, (asleep of Justice) ver. 2. III. Aggravating their Wickedness, (As by an Apostrophe or turn of his Speech, to God or godly men.) From 1. The Naturalness, Hereditariness and long continuance of it, ver. 3. 2. The Deadliness or venomousness thereof. Compared in that regard, (1) To the hot poyson of Serpents, inflaming the part it toucheth. (2) To the venome of Aspes, which (as Pliny t noteth) is incurable, unless the Members touched therewith be immediately cut off. 3. The incurableness of it, by any the wisest charms, or counsels. The labelleſt Serpents were not so cunning to prevent charmes f and Enchantments (by clapping one ear close to the ground, and stopping the other ear with their tailes) which might keep them from doing harm: As they were crafty to disappoint all Counsels and endeavours to reform them of their wickedness, ver. 4, 5.

t Plin. Nat. Hist. l. 8. c. 3.

f Touching these charmes used to Serpents, See Mr. Tho. Wilcocks Expos. on Psal. 58. verse 4, 5.

II. Petitory, David praye and Prophetically imprecates divers judgements to his Enemies, and those under sundry Metaphorical expressions. As, 1. Of Breaking their Teeth, as of Serpents. 2. Of bursting out their Lion-like rushes, ver. 6. 3. Of their dissolving like water, like Snow into water. 4. Of breaking their Arrows, or making them as straws, ver. 7. 5. Of their melting-away like a Snail pricked or bruised. 6. Of perishing like the untimely birth of a woman, ver. 8. 7. Of sudden and irresistible snatching away as with a whirlewind these scratching brambles, both young and old, be their prickles green or dry, before they shall be felt to do harm. This seems to be the right sence of this intricate passage, ver. 9.

III. Prophetical, David Prophetically foretels what shall be the issue of wicked mens Destruction, to the Righteous, viz. 1. They shall joy at the vengeance. 2. They shall wash their feet in the blood of the Wicked. So Triumphing in their utter Destruction, ver. 10. 3. Their faith in God shall be confirmed, and their praises of Gods just Judgements shall hereby be provoked, ver. 11.

To the Master of the Musick upon Shushan Eduth, Michtam of David, for Teach. When he fought with Aram Naharaim, and with Aram of Mesopotamia, and with Aram of Zobah: And Joab returned, and smote of Edom in the Valley of Salt twelve thousand.

1. O God, far-off thou hast us cast,

2. Thou madst the land to quake,

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion. &c.

This Psalme for Kind is, A Prayer. The fifth Michtam, or Jewel-Psalme. See Psal. 16. Sect. 3. Penman of it, as the Title declares, was David.

The Occasion of Davids writing this Psalme, was, A double warre, or war-like Expedition which David had against two sorts of Enemies, Syrians and Edomites, Joab commanding in chief; Title. I. With the Syrians; When he fought with Aram of Mesopotamia, and with Aram of Zobah. Aram [or Syria] Naharaim or Syrians, The posterity of Aram Son of Shem, &c. Gen. 10. 22. Mesopotamia, so called by Greek, because it lyeth in the midst between the Rivers Tigris and Euphrates. In Hebrew, Aram Naharaim, that is, Of two Rivers. Though David pursued not beyond Euphrates, yet he is said to fight with Aram of Mesopotamia, because the Syrians on this side the River, had hired them of Mesopotamia, beyond the River (as 1 Chron. 19. 6. Note) for Hanun David fought twice with the Syrians, 1. At the Citie of Medeba, the Syrians assisting the Ammonites, who had shamefully abused Davids Servants, who came courteously to comfort Hanun King of Ammon touching his Father's Death, 2 Sam. 10. Title to Psal. 1 Chron. 19. 1. to 8. See Josh. 13. 16. 2. At Helam a Town beyond Jordan, 2 Sam. 10. 16, 17, &c. 1 Chron. 19. 16. &c. the Syrians being enraged, that David had formerly conquered them. Thus David fought with the Syrians. II. With the Edomites; who (whilest David was warring against the Syrians in the East) seem to have invaded Davids Kingdom on the South: But Joab returning from his Victory over the Syrians, fell upon those Edomites and subdued them. This Expedition is described, 1. By the time, when; viz. When Joab returned from the Syrians. 2. By the place, where; In the Valley of Salt. See 2 Kings 14. 7. Gen. 14. 3. 3. By the number of the slain, Twelve thousand. All this See in the Title, Object. But in the History it is said, They were eighteen thousand, and that David slew them, 2 Sam. 8. 13. 1 Chron. 18. 12. I Answer; 1. As Joab when he fought both against Syrians and Ammonites divided his Army, and committed one part to the command of his brother Abishai, himself commanding the other, 2 Sam. 10. 9. &c. 1 Chron. 19. 10. &c. So probably, in like manner fighting against the Edomites, he might divide his Army into two Parts, himself and his Part slaying as here 12000: His Brother Abishai and his Part, 6000 more; in all 18000. And the whole is ascribed to David, because he was their King and Generalissimo, whose Battels they fought.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Psalme, was; 1. To intreat the LORD, to renew his favour to them again after his displeasure; 2. To heal the breaches of the Land made by the invasion of the Syrians and Edomites wherewith he had afflicted them; 3. And to save and deliver them from all these enemies; 4. As also to Teach Gods people, in all time to come, how to demean themselves in like distresses by reason of their enemies, viz. To fly to God by Faith and Prayer for acceptance, aid, and deliverance, as here David did. Compare the Title, with Body of the Psalme.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth, 1. The Direction of it; also the Musick. 2. The Instrument upon which it was to be played, or the Tune to which it was to be set; upon Shushan Eduth. n Some take this to be, The beginning of some well-known Song, to the Tune whereof this Psalme was to be sung. Others o are of Opinion that [Shushan] was the name of a Musical-Instrument, viz. A six-stringed-Instrument, See Psal. 45. Title. And that [Eduth] signifies, Ornament: Or rather, The testimony; which here (saith Ainsworth) either belongeth to the Musick now unknown to us; or, meaneth the Psalme to be a Testimony of Davids Faith and thankfulnesse; or, to be sung by the Priests before the Ark of God in the Sanctuary, which Ark and Tables of the Covenant in it, was called the Testimony, Exod. 40. 5, 20. 3. The excellency of the Psalme; Michtam: that is, saith one, An Excellent Psalme. 4. The Penman; David. 5. the use of it; For to teach. As in Sect. 4. 6. The occasion of Davids Penning it; when he fought, &c. As is more at large explained, Sect. 3. Probably David Penned this Prayer a little before the Battel.

The Psalme it self contains Davids Prayer for Gods Favour, Succour, Salvation and Deliverance, to himself and the Land, against the Syrians and Edomites. Particularly he Petitioneth,

I. For the return of Gods wonted favour again to Israel, whom he had 1. Cast farre off; 2. Broken; 3. Been angry with, viz. in suffering these enemies to invade them, v. 1.

II. For healing the breaches of the Land: which the LORD, 1. Made to quake and shake. 2. Did rent asunder, viz. by this sad and severe Dispensation of the enemies invasion, v. 2.

III. For delivering his beloved people from these their enemies, and for saving David with his right-hand and answering him, in order thereunto. This is earnestly urged, 1. From the grievousnesse of their late affliction. 2. From the victoriousnesse with which of Old the Lord had crowned them, according to the certain-verity of his Promises. 3. From the deare affection which God did bear to Israel, v. 2, 4, 5, 6. From Gods Promise (confirmed by his inviolable Oath,) God spake by his Holyness. A concise speech, and imperfect: it implyes Gods Oracle, and promise touching the certainty and stability of Davids Kingdom, which should not be tottering and taken from him, as from Saul. Hereupon David exults and faithfully rejoyceth, (1) Partly, In the Continuance of his Kingdom over the Israelites (and that the Syrians and Edomites should not take it from him, by the Sword, at this or any other time,) some being mentioned instead of all the rest, which should continue still under his Dominion; As Shechem, A City in the Tribe of Ephraim not far from Samaria, Gen. 33. 18. Josh. 20. 7. Succoth, A City in the Tribe of Gad, beyond Jordan, Josh. 13. 27. Gilead, Manasseh: the utmost borders of the Land of Canaan without Jordan, which for a time did cleave to Ishbosheth Sauls son, 2 Sam. 2, 8, 9, &c. yet were promised to David, Ephraim, Judah. All these should be continued under his free Dominion: therefore he should overcome the Syrians and Edomites, v. 6, 7. (2) Partly, In the extent of his Dominion even unto Forreiners, and to other Nations who should be brought under a more servile subjection to him, As Moab, Edom, and Palestine though now insulting, v. 8. This Promise of God, and Faith of David therein, is notably Amplified, By David's alacrity in that difficult expedition against Edom, 1. Trusting only in Gods Conduct and Assistance, although he seemed formerly to cast them off, and not go forth in their Armies, v. 9, 10. 2. Renouncing all Humane confidence as vain, v. 11. 3. And encouraging himself and his Armies to valiantnesse, in hopes of victory through God, v. 12.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme for the Kind of it, is, A Prayer. Penman of it, as the Title shewes, was David. Time and Occasion of his Penning of it, is not expressed, nor evidently deducible from the Title or Psalme it self. Hence such variety of Opinions thereupon. g Some think David penned it, when he fled as an exile, from King Sauls cruelty. h Others, That probably David wrote it when by Absalom's Insurrection he was forced to fly to the ends & confines of the Land for safety, 2 Sam. 17. 27. i One is of Opinion, That Psal. 60. 61. 62. 20. and 21. were Penned near about the same time. viz. Psal. 61. when he undertook an Expedition against forreign Enemies, 2 Sam. 8. 3. 1 Chron. 18. 3. Afterwards Ps. 62. declaring his faith in God. Then Psal. 20. that the Levites might use it at home, while he was abroad at War. Lastly, being Conqueror, he wrote Psal. 21. giving the LORD thanks therein for his victory. That this *Ps.*61. was penned in his Expedition against forreign Enemies, he gathers, 1. Because, he saith; From the end of the Land to thee do I call, &c. v. 2. that is, At Damascus, Zobah, or the place where Solomon built Tadmor afterwards, 1. King. 9. 18. 2 Chron. 8. 16. 2. Because, He prayes God to give inheritance to them that fear him, v. 5. viz. Besides Canaan (which Joshuah had divided to them by Lot) to extend his Dominion from Euphrates to Nilus, as he had promised 2 Sam. 7. 10. 3. Because he begs that his Kingdome may be perpetual as God had promised, 2 Sam. 7. 16. Thus he. But none of these Reasons to me seem cogent or sufficient to prove the thing intended. And the words in v. 5. according to the Hebrew, are; Thou hast given inheritance ——— which are an acknowledgement of mercy Received, not a Petitioning for Mercy wanted. So that I see not cause enough to recede from the common received Opinion, That this Psalme was occasioned by Absalom's Rebellion, &c.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David's Scope herein, is; 1. To implore Gods Protection, succour and support in his great straits and Extremities by reason of his Enemies: 2. And to k Profess his Hope of the Perpetuity of his Kingdome, especially in Christ, of whose Kingdom David was A Type.

k Hen. Moller. in Psal. 61.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth 1. The Direction of it, as to the Musick. 2. The kind of Instrument wherewith it was to be tuned, viz. On Neginoth, that is, A stringed Instrument. 3. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalme it self is Davids earnest Prayer, wherein note three things, viz. I. The Preface: Wherein, he begs Audience again and again to his fervent Prayer and shouting-cry, v. 1. II. The Proposal of his main request, viz. For Divine guidance unto sufficient Protection and Support; Lead thou me to the Rock that is higher than I. III. The urging and pressing of this his request by many vehement and pathetick Arguments. As, 1. From the Extremitie of his present Pressures, He being, (1) In his heart fainting, or overwhelmed. (2) At the end of the Land, driven far from his own Habitation. 2. From his devout Resolution notwithstanding to cry unto God in these his Extremities, v. 2. 3. From his Experience of Gods former defence of him against his Enemies, v. 3. 4. From his affiance and hope for safety under Gods Protection. Arising, (1) Partly, From Gods hearing his vows. (2) Partly, From Gods giving Inheritance to them that fear him, v. 4, 5. 5. From his confidence that God will prolong his dayes, and perpetuate his Kingdom (which is especially fulfilled in Christ and his Kingdome, whereof David and his were but Types, Luke 1 32, 33.) in mercy and verity, v. 6, 7. This is Amplified, By a double effect, hence resulting, viz. (1) His constant praises of God. (2) His dayly paying his vows unto God, ver. 8.

Sect. III.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme for Kind is chiefly Doctrinal, but with some intermixture of Reprehension and Exhortation. Being a sweet Bundle of pious Meditations, touching confidence in God alone, in troubles and temptations, and not in any worldly person or thing, which are meer lies and vanities. Penman of it, as the Title declares, was David. Occasion of his Penning it, was some great distresse David was in, together with some sad temptations thereabouts, exercising him to diffidence in God, and confidence in the creature: Over which David prevailing, professeth his confidence still in God, counting all creature-supports vanity. Some think Davids straits by reason of Saul's persecutions, or Absalom's Insurrections, are here intended o: But that's uncertain. One thinks David, being perswaded that his Prayers in Ps 61. were heard, here professeth his confidence, &c. p.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope herein intended, is; 1. To strengthen his confidence in God alone, and not in any creature, against all troubles and temptations: 2. And by his own Example to instruct Gods people how to place their confidence in God alone, and not in any created stay, in deepest distresses and temptations thence arising.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth, 1. The Direction of the Psalme as to the Musick of it. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 3. The Penman; David.

The Psalme it self, being chiefly Doctrinal, is 1. Narratory, 2. Reprehensory, 3. Hortatory.

I. Narratory. Wherein David declareth and professeth his confidence and silent-resting on God, notwithstanding all his enemies and distresses. This his confidence is illustrated, 1. By the cause and foundation thereof, viz. Gods Salvation and All-sufficient Protection, metaphorically represented, 2. By the effect or consequent of this Protection, his stability; I shall not be moved much, ver. 1, 2.

II. Reprehensory. Wherein he reproves his enemies oppositions against him, 1. Expostulating with them for endeavouring mischief to him. 2. Threatning them all with Death and Ruine, ver 3. 3. Convincingly-describing their Consultations, and hypocritical lying carriages against him, ver. 4.

III. Hortatory. Wherein he exhorts and excites, 1. Himself, unto silent-confidence in God alone. 1. From the All-sufficiency of his Protection, represented in several Metaphors, as formerly. 2. From the effect or fruit of this Protection, viz. His stability, ver. 5, 6, 7. II. His People, To constant confidence in, and Prayer unto God, after his Example. This is urged, 1. From the safety of Gods Protection, ver. 8. 2. From the vanity and deceitfulnesse 1 Of all sorts of men noble and base; 2 Of oppression and injustice; 3 And of powerfull wealth, None of which therefore are to be trusted in, ver. 9, 10. 3. From the true Foundations and Pillars of confidence, testified by Gods Word again and again to be peculiarly in God, viz. 1. Power. 2. Mercy, loving kindnesse. 3. Justice, righteously repaying to every man according to his work, ver. 11, 12.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

David, in this fervent Prayer, comforts himself in and over all his Wilderness-afflictions, with these considerations; 1. That God was his God, v. 1. 2. That his desires after his God, in the day-time, were most intensively ardent and vehement, v. 2. to 6. 3. That his Thoughts and Affections were intent upon God in the night season also, v. 6, 7, 8. 4. That his Enemies should be destroyed, v. 9, 10. 5. That himself at last after all his troubles should be advanced to the Throne, ver. 11.

Sect. III.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion, &c.

This Psalm for Kinde of it, is commonly accounted by Interpreters to be, A Prayer. Calvin[m] thinks it contains, not so much a Prayer, as pious Meditations propounded by the Psalmist for his own Consolation in midst of troubles, anxieties and dangers. But both may well stand together here: And no good Prayer is without Meditation. These holy Meditations in this Prayer do lively point-out unto us the genuine disposition of a child of God, when exiled from Gods publique Ordinances, (as David was by King Sauls fierce Persecutions,) How fervently his Soul thirsts and longs for those Ordinances and sweet soul-satisfying Communion with God therein. Penman of this Psalm, as the Title declares, was David. Occasion, was David's banishment from Gods publique Ordinances in the Sanctuary, and from heavenly Communion with God therein, through King Sauls cruel Persecutions, forcing him to fly and hide himself in the Wilderness of Judah. That is, Either in the Forrest of Hareth[n], in Judah, 1 Sam. 22. 5. Or rather, as Calvin and others think, in the wilderness of Ziph[o], 1 Sam. 23, 14, 15. which also was in the Land of Judah, or in the strong holds at Engedi, in the Wilderness there[p], 1 Sam. 23, 29. and 24. 1, &c. When David cut off the skirt of Sauls garment. In some of these places David seems to have Penned this Psalm: but in which particularly it is very hard certainly to determine.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Psalm, is; To support and comfort himself in his Wilderness-afflictions, and Exile from Gods Sanctuary, by these his holy thirstings, longings, affections and meditations, which he thus ardently breathes out after God, and Communion with him in his Ordinances there. A sincere childe of God is more distressed with his privation of Communion with God in his Ordinances, and the sweetest Experiences of his Power and Glory therein, than with all other his outward calamities. And yet in destitution of Gods Ordinances, A Saint may have sweet communion with God, even in a desolate wilderness by Faith, Prayer, Meditation, and holy Affections breathing after him.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title declares, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalm. 2. The Penman, David. 3. The time and Occasion, When he was &c.

The Psalm it self, being a fervent Prayer, contains several Arguments or Grounds of Comfort, wherewith David supported himself, in and over all his wilderness-afflictions, viz.

I. That God was his God, This the primary foundation of his comfort, ver. 1.

II. That, his Desires after his God, in the Day-time, were most ardent and intensively vehement. These his Desires he divers ways illustrates very emphatically; 1. By his early seeking after God. 2. By his vehement breathings after God, Metaphorically represented; (1) Partly, by thirst; which is more intollerable than hunger. (2) Partly, by ardent longing: which sometimes, if not satified, causeth death. Both of them being aggravated by the circumstance of place wherein he was; A land of drought, and weary without waters; very grievous to an hungring and thirsting Body. Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm as to the Kind of it, is A Prayer, A Petitory-complaint, or Complaining-Prayer.

Penman of it, as the Title declares, was David.

Occasion of Davids penning this Prayer, was Probably King Sauls violent and bitter persecution of David by deep and subtile Counsels, cruel words, slanders, and reproaches, and injurious-practises: As appears by the Current of the whole Psalm E. But whether this Psalm was Penned towards the Beginning, Middle, or Period of Sauls hunting after David, is not so easie to be determined.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids intended Scope herein, is; To implore the LORD's Preservation and Protection of him and his life, against the many subtile and cruel Persecutions of King Saul, and his Confederates. See verse 1, 2, 3.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title contains, 1. The Direction of this Psalm as to the Musick of it. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalm. 3. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalm it self, being a Prayer, contains, 1. Davids Petitions. 2. Davids Profession.

I. Davids Petitions. Here David, I. Propoundeth his requests to God: beseeching him, I. To grant him audience. 2. To preserve his life from fear of his enemies, viz. King Saul verse 1. 3. To hide him from the secret plots, and open tumultuous-rage of Malignants and workers of iniquity, ver. 2. Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occaſion of this Pſalme.

This for Kind, is a Praiſing or Thanksgiving Pſalm; As the Matter declares, v. 1. &c. A Pſalme, compoſed in Meeter, And A Song, to be ſung or tuned with voice. Penman of it, was David: Time when, and Occaſion whereupon David wrote it, is not diſtinctly deſcribed. But Expoſitors t, obſerving well the Subject-matter of the Pſalme, do generally judge; That this Pſalme was Penned, after by Prayer in an extream Drought they had obtained a ſeaſonable refreſhing Rain, to make the dry and barren Land fruitful; See ver. 8. to the end. Probably (as ſome ſ think) it was written after that three years Famine in Iſrael, 2 Sam. 21. 1. For, in the fourth year David, hanging up ſeven of Sauls ſons, obtained rain, 2 Sam. 21. 6, 9, 10, 14. Alſo in the ſame year David numbred the people, which brought three dayes Peſtilence, 2 Sam. 24. 15, &c. After which on the fourth day God being appeaſed, ſhewes David the place where he would have his Temple built, viz. on the Threſhing-floore of Araunah the Jebuſite, 2 Sam. 24. 18, &c. 1 Chron. 21. 18. and 2 Chron. 3. 1. Therefore in this year after God had refreſhed the Land with Rain, had ſhew'd David the place for his Temple, and had teſtified his hearing of his Prayers and accepting of his Sacrifice by fire ſent down from Heaven, 2 Sam. 24. 25, &c. 1 Chron. 21. 26. David ſeems to have written this Gratulatory and Euchariſtical Pſalme. And about the ſame time Pſal. 67. And ſome t think it was written in all the peoples words, and publickly ſung before the Ark then in the Tower of David in Mount Sion, for celebrating this great benefit of God to Iſrael. That which is added to the Tittle by the Vulgar Latin Verſion over and above what is in the Hebrew (viz. A Song of Jeremiah and Ezekiel to the people of Tranſmigration, when they began to go out,) is Spurious: Being not only repugnant to the Hebrew Original, and the Greek Verſion of the LXXII and other Ancient Verſions, but alſo to the truth it ſelf.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Pſalme, is; In the name of David (now in Aramaick Theaching ſlowers) and of the Church, v. 1. chiefly ſo to ſpeak and declare, 1. That publick Praiſe was due to God from, when there ſhould be opportunity of performance; 2. That there the vowes ſhould be performed to him, which was made when Jeruſalem was running in danger of being ſmitten by the Angel with the Peſtilence; 3. And that all fleſh ſhould come to this his houſe of Prayer, in his Houſe of Prayer, when it ſhould be erected in the place which God had now appointed for it. And all this, becauſe; The LORD was now Reconciled to David and to the People; Had Relieved and Eſtabliſhed the publick ſtate of the Commonwealth, lately diſturbed by ſin; And Had conſequently changed their drought and famine into abundance of plenty.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

The Title declares, 1. The Direction of this Pſalme in regard of the Muſick of it. 2. The Denomination of it; A Pſalme, A Song. 3. The Penman of it; David.

The Pſalme it ſelf contains, 1. A Profeſſion of Thankfulneſs to God. 2. The grounds thereof.

1. A Profeſſion of Thankfulneſs to God. David, Though the LORD had anſwered him in the threſhing-floor of Ornan the Jebuſite; yet was ſo afraid becauſe of the ſword of the Angel of the LORD, that he could not at that preſent go, either to the Ark of the LORD, in Mount-Sion 1 Sam. 6. 17. or to the Altar of Burnt-offering or Tabernacle, then both of them at Gibeon, 1. Chron. 21. 28, 29, 30. 2 Chron. 1. 3. But hee, being at the threſhing-floor of Ornan, Profeſſeth; 1. That, Praiſe was due to God from; and in Sion r aſſoon as he durſt go thither, &c. Praiſe ſilently waited for God in Sion. 2. That, the Vow (made when the Peſtilence prevailed, and now Jeruſalem was endangered) ſhould be performed to God before the Ark, ver. 1. 3. That, All fleſh (not only the Jews, but all the Gentiles afar when God ſhould call, Acts 2. 39.) ſhould come to him that heares Prayer, to worſhip God in his Houſe of Prayer, Iſa. 56. 7. Mark 11. 17. for which Houſe God had now pointed out the place to David, ver. 2.

II. The Grounds or Reaſons of this Profeſſion of Thankfulneſſe are drawn from the LORD's great mercies, expreſſed towards David and Iſrael in times of neceſſity and great diſtreſs, viz. Theſe three mercies. I. Gods Reconciling and receiving again to favour, both David and Iſrael, notwithſtanding their ſinnes that had provoked him. Here, 1. David confeſſeth his ſins. Words of iniquities. (i. e. Things or Matters of iniquities, as the Hebrew phraſe often imports) have prevailed againſt mee. What were theſe? Anſw. Partly, His neglect of doing Juſtice on Sauls bloody houſe for ſlaying the Gibeonnes contrary to Iſraels Covenant with them, 2 Sam. 21. 1, &c. with Joſh. 9. 3, 16, 17. Partly, his numbring the people, 2 Sam. 24. For both which offences of David, the people were alſo Puniſhed, as being in ſome ſenſe Partners therein, 2 Sam. 24. 1. 1. Chron. 21. 1. 2. David declares Gods Reconcilement to himſelf, and to the People, which God teſtified, (1) In Remitting, or covering their Treſpaſſes or Prevarications, ver. 3. (2) In Preſerving them ſo from Famine and Peſtilence, that they had the happineſs to be choſen and brought near unto God to dwell in his Courts, and to be ſatisfied with the ſpirituall refreſhments of his holy Temple. Thus they had ſweet Communion with God in his Ordinances, verſe 4. (3) In Anſwering serving them, terrible things in righteousnesse, viz. such as these. That Justice was ere inflicted on Israel's bloody house, which murthered the three years famine, 2 Sam. 21. 1, 2, &c. That three such like Judgements Famine, Sword, and Pestilence were proposed to David to choose, 2 Sam. 24. That an Angel stretching forth the destroying Angel appeared to terrify to him. These were terrible Answers from God, we all to Righteousnesse. This is declared by certain visible Ensigns given unto God, viz. The God of their Salvation, the Hope of all ends of the earth, by Land or Sea, v. 5. II. God compassing, guiding, and establishing in Tranquillity the Commonwealth disturbed by their sinnes. This is laid down in metaphorical expressions, alluding to the works of the Creation, viz. 1. His stablishing the Mountains by his Power, v. 6. That is, David's Kingdom or the Parts of his Kingdom over Judah & Israel. Called Mountains, So Ps. 30. 7. 2. His calming and quieting the noise of seas and waves, viz. Of the multitude or tumult of the people: Occasioned, through the Famine, the executing of Gods Vows, the destruction of 70000 by the Pestilence, &c. v. 7. 3. His making the out-goings of Morning and Evening to rejoyce. That is, Either, Man's going forth in the Morning to his labour, and wilde-beasts going forth in the Evening to their prey, Ps. 104. 20. 21. &c. All which rejoyce in the Restauration of the Land: Or; from Sun-rising to Sun-setting, from East to West the whole Kingdom of David is made to rejoyce through Gods favour therein. All these are amplified by the effect of fear in all the inhabitants round about, at these tokens of Gods favour to Israel, v. 8. III. Gods sending fruitful Rain after drought, and so changing the sad three years Famine into abundance of plenty. And this is elegantly described by Degrees, viz. God did, 1. Prepare the Land for receiving of Seed, by sending a plentiful Rain upon the Earth, v. 9. 2. Moisten, soften and settle the clods and furrowes, so as to close with the Seed, when it was now sowen, that it might bud and spring, v. 10. 3. Refresh the corn with the latter Rain, crowning the year with his Goodnesse, &c. v. 11. 4. Bestow a sweet fruit of all his seasonable rain, both on the Pastures and Hills, flourishing with grass, so that they were clad with flocks; And on the Valleys, so that they are covered with corn. Whereupon they are said to shout and sing, through fruitfulnesse, as formerly they seemed to mourn through barrenness Metaph. Prosopop. v. 12, 13.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion &c.

This for Kind, is gratulatory, thanksgiving, or Praising Psalm. Penman of it is not expressed in the Title. Some are of opinion it was not penned by David, 1. Partly because it is penned in phrases plural: So Esras. 2. Partly, because the Titles of Psalmes before and after it expresse Davids Name, but the Title of this Psalme expresses it not; So Sim. de Muis t. But neither of these Reasons are cogent. Not the former; because sometimes Davids Psalmes are in phrase of the plural number, as Psal. 78. and all the latter part of the Psalme from v. 13. to the end (which seems to have given the particular Occasion of writing this Psalme,) is laid down in phrases of the singular number. Nor the latter; For, sometimes Psalmes penned by David stand together, in some of which Davids name is not expressed as in the other. For, David Penned the Second Psalme, Act. 4. 25. wherein his name is not inserted or prefixed in any Title, as it is in Psal. 3. and 4. &c. immediately following, which were also penned by him. And Ps. 67. next following, hath not Davids name expressed. Others u therefore more probably conclude from the matter of the Psalme, v. 13. to the end. That David penned this Psalme upon some eminent deliverance vouchsafed him out of some great distress. Occasion of this Psalme is not particularly signified to us here. Hence learned men have various Apprehensions; Some x, That it was penned after the Jewes return out of Babylon, and upon that Occasion: because this great deliverance is most suitable to that from Red-Sea and Jordan, v. 5. and seems to be described in v. 10, 11, 12. Some, That it was written by David rather, and probably upon occasion of Israels deliverance from the Philistines Tyranny, 2 Sam. 8. and from his own persecutions. But, forasmuch as the Subject-matter of the Psalme doth in a special manner run upon a particular personal deliverance, v. 13. to the end; and that so eminent a deliverance, that it did bring into the Psalmists memory afresh those great deliverances of Israel thorough the Red-Sea and Jordan and that passage in v. 10, 11, 12. may intend the times of their being in the wilderness, and after under the Judges. Therefore, Hence some y think it was Penned by David, either in that famous and memorable deliverance of his from the Gyant Ishbi-benob, who being girded with a new sword thought to have slain David, 2 Sam. 21. 15, 16, 17. Or, from the Pestilence, 2 Sam. 24. 15, 16, 17. And perhaps Ps. 65. 66. and 67. were written about the same time. Or, it may be Ps. 66. was penned after Ps. 108.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Psalmists Scope in this Psalme, is; 1. To render Praise and Thanks to God, by Performance of his Vowes Sacrifices, Narrations of Gods Actions, &c. for his singular mercy to him in his extream distress, hearing his prayer, and helping him. 2. To Israel. Which mercy was so honoured, as to cause him thankfully to call to mind the great favours of God to his people of old in bringing them thorough the Red-Sea and Jordan; and after their much distress in the wilderness, and in dayes of Judges, &c disposing them into a fruitful place. v. 4, 5, 6, 10, 11. And therefore hereupon provokes all the people of Israel to praise the LORD with him.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title or Inscription of this Psalme sets forth, 1. The Direction of it as to the Musick, To the Master-Musician. 2. The Denominations of it; A Song, A Psalme.

The Psalme it self contains Praises and Thanksgivings to God for three sorts of eminent mercies in three several times, viz.

I. Thanksgivings for Gods redeeming of Israel out of Egypt. Here the Psalmist elegantly exhorts all the people of Israel, I. To celebrate Gods Praises; in three Horatory expressions, v. 1, 2. II. To confess unto God these three things, viz. 1. The dreadfulnesse of his Works. 2. The Greatnesse of his Power, through which his very foes are brought feignedly to submit to him, v. 3. 3. That all the Earth have cause to bow and sing praise unto him, v. 4 III. To commemorate with all thankfulness Gods wonderful deliverance of Israel out of Egypt in dayes of Moses. Here, 1. All are exhorted to view Gods Works. 2. His Works towards sons of Adam, especially the Israelites are declared to be dreadful, v. 5. 3. Of these his dreadful works he gives two illustrious instances, viz. His turning the Red-Sea to dry Land for Israel to pass thorough. And his cutting off the River Jordan, that they passed over the Channel on foot. Both which are Amplified by their effect upon Israel; They thereupon did there rejoyce in God (See Exod 15. and Josh. 4.) who had wrought these wonders for them, v 6. 4. The powerful and constant Dominion of God over all the World, even over the rebellious, is notably described, ver. 7,

II. Thanksgivings for Gods Preservation of Israel in many deep distresses & affliction, and bringing them at last out into a wealthy or fruitful well-watred place. Here we have, I. An Exhortation of the People Israel, To bless the LORD, and to make the voice of his Praise to be heard, ver. 8. II. The Grounds and Reasons why they should so do, viz. 1. Because, God preserved their soul in life, and their foot from moving in greatest extremities. This seems to point at greater distresses then they endured in Egypt, ver. 9. 2. Because, the LORD brought them into many great and sore distresses (described here elegantly by sundry Metaphors, and that gradually. As, (1) He prov'd and tried them as Silver is tryed, ver. 10. (2) He brought them into the Net, &c. ver. 11. (3) He caused men to ride over their Head. (4) He brought them into Fire and Waters:) And yet after all this brought them out into a watred place, into a fruitful place, v. 12. By all which Afflictions, We are not in my judgement to understand, Either, their Afflictions in Egypt, as some: for, then here should be a Repetition of Egypts Affliction pointed at before in v. 5. Or much lesse their Afflictions long after in Babylon, as others: for the Reasons formerly offered in Sect. 3. But rather, All the Afflictions they endured in the Wilderness for fourty years together, as others: For, this comes in order after their Egyptian servitude. And when they came out of the Wilderness in to Canaan, they were brought out into a watred-place, into a fruitful land. And if to these, Their Afflictions in times of the Judges be added, to bring down the History of their distresses to the days of Davids: I should not gain-say, for I see no inconvenience therein.

III. Treasuring up for Davids special and particular deliverance in his extream distress, of like nature to those here mentioned, and which gave special occasion to the Penning of this Psalme, ver. 23. in the end. Hence, 1. David professeth his readiness and resolvedness to pay his Vowes to God, which he made in his distresses and specially in offering Sacrifices unto him, ver. 13, 14, 15. 2. He Expounds the Cause of this his paying of Vowes, &c. Inviting all them that feare God to hearken thereunto, viz. Gods hearing of his Prayer, when he called unto him, with an heart not freeing iniquity to regard or approve of it: which otherwise God would not have heard, ver. 16, 17, 18, 19. 3 He Concludes all with blessing God, that turned not away his Prayer from God, nor Gods mercy from him, vers. 20.

Psalm LXVII.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master-Musician on Neginoth, A Psalme; A Song.

1. LEt God to us be gracious,
And let him bless us now:
He cause his a face to shine on us, Selah.
2. That they thy way may know
In Earth: Thy saving health abroad
Among the Heathens all.
3. Thee Peoples shall confess, O God:
Thee b praise all Peoples shall.

4. The Nations shall-gladness show;
Yea they shall-shout-for-mirth,
For, Peoples c justly judge shalt thou
And d guide the folk on Earth. Selah.

5. The Peoples shall confess, O God:
e All folk shall thee confess.
6. The Earth doth give her fruitful-bud:
Us God, our God shall bless.

7. Us bless shall God on whom we call:
Likewise (when this they hear)
The Earth's remotest-confines all Shall him devoutly fear.

a Heb. cause to shine with us.

b Heb. confess to him, with reference to right-eousness, or, up-rightness: or, to him, the Nations on earth thou shalt guide them.

c Heb. Peoples all-of-them.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Sacred Song Psalme is laid down in way of a Prayer, and that in the Name of Gods Church and People: As the Phrases thereof (being in the plural number) do evince. Some (a) Jews conceive, that a great part of it is Prophetical, touching Christ, the Propagation of his Church among the Gentiles, and his Kingdom. Penman of it, some conceive, to be David. Most, that I have seen, are silent herein. There's no mention of the Penman in the Title: nor any certain ground of conjecture from the Psalme it self. Occasion, some think to be b the Return of the Captives from Babylon, when the Lord blessed the Land of Canaan with increase. But I see little or nothing at all to perswade hereunto. Some b think it was penned by David, upon Occasion of Davids avenging the sin of Saul against the Gibeonites by executing seven of Sauls sonnes, when God after the three years Famine had sent a plentiful Rain upon the Land to make it fruitful, 2 Sam. 21. 1, 10, 14. And when after the three dayes Pestilence for Davids numbring the people, God was again reconciled to David, 2 Sam. 24. 1. 14, 17. And the Psalme is very applicable to that History. But I many others rather think it was Penned upon some other Occasion of more General and Common Concernment to the whole Church, An eminent Respect being therein (by a Prophetical Inspiration) had unto Christ, his Church and Kingdom here desired, to be Propagated among all Nations. And that this Prophetical Prayer was to be often used by the Church in order to this excellent spiritual end. The very current of the Psalme notably lead us to this last Interpretation.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Prophetical Prayer, or Praying Prophecy, is; To beg the Shine of Gods Face and Favour on the Church so farre, That his Way (especially his way of Gospel-Administration) may be known upon Earth, and his Salvation (viz. Christ called His Salvation, Luke 2. 30. among all the Heathens, vers. 1, 2. Hereupon Peoples and Nations shall confess and praise the LORD, both for his spiritual and corporal blessings in Christ, vers. 3, &c. All Good is here begged of God: and all Praise and Glory is, as it were, here Promised unto God k.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth, 1. The Direction of this Psalme as to the Musick of it; To the Master-Musician on Neginoth, i. e. stringed-Instruments to be struck with the Hand, as the Harp, &c. 2. The Denominations of it; A Psalme, A Song.

The Psalme it self contains A Prophetical Prayer, wherein

1. The Choicest Good is Petitioned from God, and that Gradually, viz. 1. The Fountain of all Good, Gods Grace or Gratuitous Favour. 2. The Effect of Gods Favour; His Benediction. 3. The Manifestation and actual Application of both to us, in the Shine of his Face on us, vers. 1. 4. The End why Gods Favour Benediction, and the Manifestation thereof is thus desired, viz. (1) Partly, That in the Earth (in the Land of Canaan, or in the World) they may know Gods Way: that is, His Administration in general: and his Gospel-Administration in special, Acts 18. 25, 25. (2) Partly, That His Salvation, (that is,

His Christ, Luke 2. 30.) may be known among all the Gentiles. This Gods great Gift, Bleſſing, Mercy, verſe 2.

II. Enforces Praiſe and Glory hereupon as in a ſort Promiſed to God; 1. For the ſpiritual fruits or effects of theſe Mercies. Here note, 1. The Perſons that ſhall praiſe and glorifie God (1) Jewes; Peoples, Peoples all of them. (2) Gentiles; The Nations. 2. The Expreſſions of their Praiſe; Confeſſing God, Rejoycing, Shouting. 3. The ſpiritual effects or fruits of former Mercies, viz. (1) Judging the peoples in Righteouſneſs. (2) Guiding the Nations on the Earth. Sweet effects of Chriſts Prophecy and Kingdom to both Jewes and Gentiles, ver. 3, 4. II. For the Corporal or Temporal effects of the ſaid mercies. Here again note; 1. The perſons praiſing God; Peoples, All the Peoples. 2. The expreſſion or ſignification thereof; Confeſſing God, which is emphatically doubled, ver. 5. 3. The Corporal fruits themſelves; (1) The Earth fruitfulneth. (2) Our God's Benediction of us. This is pathetically ingeminated. 4. This is amplified by the Reſult hereof among all the Nations far and near, and all the ends of the Earth ſhall fear him, ver. 6, 7.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm, said one, h is full of figures and admirable Poetical descriptions, and therefore the more Elegant, the more difficult is it: so that there's need of serious Meditation in interpreting of it. Hieronym tells us, it's a Psalm full of the Mysteries both of the Law & of the Gospel. This is evident in the very Matter of it: That Things are handled herein Historically, Things Prophetically. As herein is Recorded; Israels coming out of Egypt, passing through the Wilderness, Possessing the Land of Canaan, Condition in time of Judges and dayes of David, &c. ver. 7. to 18. So herein is foretold, Christs ascending into Heaven, Captivating our Captivity, giving gifts to men, &c. ver. 18. compared with Ephes. 4. 8. I. The Nature or Kind therefore of this Psalm is Mixt, it being Partly Laudatory, Partly Petitory, Partly Prophetical, Partly Hortatory.

h Est autem Psalmus pius figuris, & poeticis descriptionibus admirabilibus; ac proinde quo elegantior, eo difficilior, &c. And. Rivet. Comment. in Ps. 68. in Argument. & Partit. ——Psalmus 6 intelligatur spiritualiter, referens legis Evangeliorumque reperitur Sacramentis. Hieronym. Com. in Psal. 67. Tom. 2.

Herein are evidently interwoven, Petition and and Gratulation, Doctrine and Exhortation, History and Prophecy. And k although all do not agree about the Argument or Subject-matter of this Psalm, which A. Ezra calls A very excellent Psalm; Some taking it to be wholly Mystical, and to refer only to Christ and his Church, as Augustine; Others counting it in every part to bear two senses, One Historical touching things done in Davids time, The other Anagogical accommated to the Messiah and his Kingdom: yet I shall consider it and explicate it as of a Mixt Nature, the other two wayes seeming neither Apposite, Solid, nor Safe, in sundry particulars. II. The Penman of this Psalm was David, as the Title intimates. III. The Occasion of Davids writing it, was, by the consent of most Interpreters, Some Eminent Victory obtained over his and Israels enemies; Hence some l count it, A Victorial Triumphant Psalm, A Military Psalm sung by Souldiers after some Eminent Victory. But what Victory particularly occasioned it, is not so agreed upon. 1. Some refer it to Israels Victory over the Egyptians at the Red-Sea. But that cannot be, because the Ark of God (which this Psalm points at, ver. 1. with Numb. 10. 35.) was not then framed. 2. Sundry, Especially of the Jewish Writers, as Kimchi, &c. understand here the Victory over the Assyrians and King Sennacherib in days of King Hezekiah, which David foretold by a Prophetical Spirit, Aulenius Agellius gives four Arguments for confirmation hereof, which that learned Rivet refutes and deservedly rejects. m. 3. Some think David wrote this Psalm upon Occasion of some Eminent and Difficult Expedition of his, against his and Gods Enemies, as that in 2 Sam. 21. 15. to the end, against the Philistines; wherein David had a special Deliverance, v. 16, 17. in which expedition David assures himself aforehand of desired Successe and Victory, both from the assistant Power and presence of the Mighty God, whereof the Ark, among them was a Token, and from Israels constant experiences of like nature. And Simeon de Muis n embraces this Opinion; Partly, because the Tenor and k Non inter omnes convenit de Argumento hujus Psalmi, quem affirmat Ezra valdè esse Excellentem. Sim. de Muis in Arg. ad Psal. 68.

n Sim. de Muis in Arg. ad Psal. 68.

and Context of the Psalm, carried much in a Prophetick way the future Victory, &c. as ver. 1, 2, 3. seems to import so much. Partly because its evident by ver. 16, 17. that the passages giving Occasion to this Psalm, fell out before Mount Sion was chosen by God and Consecrated. 4. But others o for the most part conceive the Occasion of this Psalm to be a Complexive series, rank, or heap of Victories obtained by David against his and Gods enemies, especially the Philistines, from Nilus to Euphrates, recorded in 2 Sam. 5. and 8. and 1 Chron. 18. both before and after David had brought up the Ark of God into Sion, into the place prepared for it, 2. Sam. 6. 12, &c. Psal. 68. 1, 2, 3. Numb. 10. 3. in which Victories, Triumphs, and Affairs of his he intermixes The Victories and Triumphs of Christ over all our Spiritual enemies, in his Glorious Ascension, &c. ver. 18. compared with Ephes. 4. 8. Forasmuch as David in his Kingdom and Victories, as in other respects, was an eminent Type of Christ who was to descend of him according to the flesh. Hereupon it is conceived by some p, That David, First enterprizing the Lords Battels at his Command against those enemies, Penned Psal. 2. Having overcome those enemies he wrote Psal. 47. and 68. as may be collected from Psal. 47. 3. and Psal. 68. 18. Last of all, having compleated his Victories, he Penned, Psal. 18. and Ps. 118. And unto this fourth and last interpretation my judgement q most inclines, (1) Because, The very beginning of this Psalm, v. 1, 2, 3. is the Prayer which Moses appointed to be used before the Ark of God, going before Israel in the Wilderness to find out a resting place for them, Numb. 10. 33, 34, 45, 36. In which words Respect was had not only to the Ark, but especially to Christ the Antitype of the Ark, that Angel of the Covenant which went before them. (2) Because, These Historjes and this Psalm do most aptly agree: as is evident in the course and tenour of the Psalm. (3) Because, Mount Sion, here highly magnified, verse 15, 16. was before this Occasion consecrated, 2. Sam. 6. 12, &c. (4) Because, herein is a direct Prophecy of Christs Victories and Triumphs over his and our Enemies, Effected and Evidenced by his glorious Ascension into Heaven, ver. 18. compared with Eph. 4. 8.

o And. Rivet. dict in Psal. 68 & Hen. Miller. in Arc. in Ps. 68. Jo. Foord. in Expos. Psal. 68.

p Jo. Foord in Expos. Ps. 68.

q See also what elsewhere I have noted on this psalme, in my Sermon on verse 13. entituled, The Checquer-work of Gods Providences, &c p. 4, 5, &c. London 1657.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Mixt Psalm, is; To celebrate and magnifie God, for his singular Presence in, and Protection of his Church, against all his and her enemies: both temporal Enemies, against whom he declared his Presence and Protection to his Church by a visible Token thereof; His Ark; and spiritual Enemies, against whom he demonstrated his Presence and Protection to his Church, by the Antitype of that Ark, Christ Incarnate, Ascending, &c. Gods Presence being still every way, both temporally and spiritually, Conservative to his Church, and Destructive to her Enemies. And therefore interpreting this Psalm, we must first find out the sense Literally and Historically, how it intended Davids Affairs; Then we must consider it Mystically and Prophetically, as in some passages it chiefly intended Christ and his Affairs.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Inscription denotes, 1. The Direction of the Psalm as to the Musick. 2. The Denominations of it, A Psalm, A Song. The reason of these two Denominations see on Psal. 30. Sect. 5. 3. The Penman of this Psalm; David.

The Psalm it self contains,

I. An Exordium or entrance into the Psalm, ver. 1, 2, 3. All the Verbs here in the Hebrew are of the future tense; which some render by the future tense also, as if this were a Prophecy or Prediction; Some in the Present tense, as if it were a Common Plaint touching the Effects of Gods Presence against his Enemies, &c. Some, in the Optative Mood, as if it were a Petition, that God would rise, &c. It may be accounted a kind of Doctrinal and Prophetical Petition. The words are borrowed from Moses his Form at the Removing of the Ark, Numb. 10. 35. Wherein are, 1. A Proposition or Declaration of Gods Magnificence against his Enemies, signified by the Ark, that glorious Token of his Presence. Herein are declared, 1. The Facility of Gods taking vengeance of them, and his Enemies Imbecility to resist; If God do but rise, &c. they vanish, fall, &c. They are set forth by three names, His Enemies, His Haters, The Wicked. 2. The severity or grievousness of their punishment, laid down in a kind of Gradation; (1) They shall be dispersed, as when the Ranks of an Army are broken; (2) They shall flee; as the dispersed forces that are pursued; (3) They shall perish at the Presence of God, as those that are overtaken and slain. II. The Illustration of this Declaration of Gods Power and his Enemies weakness, 1. Partly, by a twofold elegant Similitude, viz. (1) Of Smoak, easily dispelled. (2) Of Wax, speedily melted, ver. 1, 2. 2. Partly, by an Antithesis of the contrary joy and gladness of the Righteous, set forth in four Expressions emphatically, and opposed to the destruction of the wicked, ver. 3. By all which its evident, That Gods Presence is most destructive to his enemies, most salvifical to his Church and People.

II A Pathetical Exhortation or Hortatory Incitation hereupon, unto the triumphant celebration of the LORD with high Praises and Exultations. Here note, I. The Hortatory Proposition. Wherein are, 1. The Actions required or exhorted to, viz. Singing. Singing-Psalms. Making an High-way for him, (viz. prepare his way, spread boughs, branches, &c. in it as before a Conquerour coming) and Exulting. 2. The Object to whom they are to be performed. viz. To God. To Him that rides in Desarts. To JAH, ver. 4. II. The Arguments urging unto these Praises of God, are drawn, First, From Gods more General and Common Acts of Providence, 1. To the Fatherless. 2. To the Widows, v. 5. 3. To the Solitary. 4. To the Captives. Which is Amplified by the contrary state of the rebellious, ver. 6. Secondly, From Gods more special and peculiar Providences towards his own people Israel, especially in four observable Intervals or Periods of time that went over them, viz. 1. When they came out of Egypt, and passed through the Wilderness God marching before them, Then, at Gods presence, Earth quaked, Heavens dropped; Mount Sinai was moved, ver. 7. 8. 2. When they were newly possessed of, and planted in the Land of Canaan: The LORD refreshed the Land for their sakes with a Rain of liberalities v. 9, 10. 3. In the troublesome, unsetled, and distracted times of the Judges, but specially in the dayes of Barak and Deborah: The Lord gave the word, viz. The tidings or Matter of rejoycing and triumphing because of Victories, a great Army publishing it. Kings of the enemies Armies flying speedily, and women who staid at home dividing the spoil, ver. 11. 12. 4. In the more composed, setled, and happy dayes of King David ver. 13. to 19. Here, in this Motive or Argument inciting to the praises of God, note; (1) The Preface or Introduction to it. In an Antethesis or Opposition of the better dayes of David to those three Periods foregoing. Though ye have lien among the Pots, viz. blacked, sullied, &c. with afflictions, In Ægypt, Wilderness, Canaan, and in dayes of Judges: Yet henceforward ye shall be as Doves wings and feathers of Silver and Gold colour, viz. Ye shall scape as a Dove out of former distresses, and be partakers of a more beauteous, joyous, prosperous condition under the Government of David, v. 13. (2) The Particular Arguments hereupon provoking voking Israel to the praises of God, viz. 1. Gods victoriousness over his enemies, turning his peoples Adversity into Prosperity, as white as Snow in Salmon, ver. 14. 2. The Eminency and Fertility of Mount Sion, Gods peculiar Hill, especially of his Church shadowed out by it, v. 15. 3. The LORD's constant Residence in, and all-sufficient Protection of his own Hill Mount Sion, of his own Church, with his innumerable Chariots of Angels, himself as King and General being in midst of them, as once at Mount Sinai, v. 16, 17. 4. Gods triumph over all his and his Churches enemies, having its chief accomplishment in JESUS CHRIST; Ascending on high, viz. into Heaven it self: Captivating Captivity it self, all our Spiritual enemies that had captivated us: Receiving gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious, that JAH God might dwell among them. A clear Prophecy of Christ Compare Ephes. 4. 8. with ver. 18.

III. A grateful exultation in God, and blessing of him, is concluded upon from all the former Considerations: And is further urged by ensuing Arguments of like Nature. As, 1. Gods daily loading us with blessings. 2. Gods ſ wonderful Salvations and Deliverances of his people from most desperate straits, yea even from jaws of Death. Hence that Phrase Emphatically; And unto Jehovah the Lord the issues of Death, v. 19, 20. 3. Gods opposite Justice and Severity threatned against his enemies, and against every impenitent offendor: He will wound their head and hairy Scalp, v. 21. 4. Israels encouragement from former eminent Victories and Deliverances vouchsafed, according to Gods saying or Promise from Og, and the Princes of Bashan, and from the Depths of the Red-Sea, that in like straits and dangers they shall have like Victories and Deliverances. These Victories and Deliverances are further illustrated, (1) Partly, by the great slaughter of the enemies, so filling all with blood, that his peoples feet, and the tongue of their Dogs may be dipped therein, v. 22, 23. (2) Partly, by Gods being eminently seen and acknowledged of his people in his goings in holyness, or in the holy-place the Sanctuary, i. e. in his Magnifical works for his people against their enemies, or in his Solemn presence with them in his Sanctuary, v. 24. (3) Partly, by the Solemn Prayses hereupon returned to God, both with Vocal and Instrumental Musick by the Singers and Players of Israel observing these goings, these Victorious Acts of God, v. 25. (4) Partly, by the harmonious consent and applause of all from the Fountain of Israel, i. e. of all Israelites by natural descent, derived from one and the same Fountain or Stock. All these in their solemn Congregations are incited to blesse God for former Famous Victories, &c. And they are after particularly mentioned by distribution: Two of the neareſt Tribes, Benjamin and Judah; Two of the remoteſt, Zebulun and Naptali, being Synechdochically put for all the rest of the Tribes far and near, v. 26. 27.

IV. An earnest Prayer of David. Wherein note, I. The Petitions presented by him to the LORD, viz. 1. That he ſ having already commanded his peoples strength, would still strenthen and perfect for them what he had so Victoriously and Glorioussly wrought for them, v. 28. This Petition is urged and Amplified, by the advantage that shall thence ensue, viz. Then for thy Temple to be builded at Jerusalem shall Kings bring Presents unto thee, that is, David, Solomon, and their Princes, &c. v. 29. 2. That God would rebuke those his enemies that only hypocritically and feignedly, not heartily submit themselves to David. These enemies he calls, (1) The company of Reeds. or Spear-men: who had not yet laid down their weapons. Their u Spears made of Reeds, or Bky Reeds. (2) The multitude of Bulls. Strong and untamed Enemies: especially Rulers. (3) Calves of the people; that is, the brutish and foolish vulgus, or common-people. All these feignedly submitted themselves to him with pieces of silver: Or, He prays, They may be so rebuked that thus they may submit themselves. 3. That God would scatter the people that delight in war, v. 30. II. The effect which David promised himself upon Gods hearing of these his Petitions: Then Ægypt and Æthiopia also shall submit themselves to God. Therefore this will be for his honour to grant these requests: The Gentiles (whereof these were part, Act. 8. 27. &c. Euseb. l. 2. c. 16.) shall turn and submit to Christ: A Prophecy of the calling of the Gentiles, v. 31.

V. Finally, An Hortatory or Monitory Conclusion, by way of Apostrophe to all the Gentiles that should be called and converted to Christ. Herein consider, I. The Exhortation it self. Wherein note, 1. Who are Exhorted. The Kingdomes of the Earth: i. e. Kings and Subjects of the called Gentiles. Metonym. 2. What they are Exhorted to. (1) For Form or Manner; To sing, To sing Psalmes. (2) For Matter; To ascribe Power. 3. To whom they are to perform these things, viz. To God, To the Lord, To Him that rideth on the Heavens of Heavens of old, ver. 32, 33, 34. II. The Arguments Enforcing this Exhortation. Which are drawn, 1. From the Majesty of God. Which Majesty of his is described, (1) By his Supream Dominion. He rideth, i. e. He ruleth in, on, or over the Heavens which have been of old. (2) By his terrible Majestick voice, viz. Thunder, &c. v. 33. 2. From Gods General Providence and Administration over the World, (1) His Excellency, his Illustrious Acts, Victories, and famous Miracles, over Israel, being demonstrated to them. (2) His Power, being evidenced in the Heavens, in the Clouds, to all the World, v. 34. 3. From Gods special communicating of Himself to his Church. Being terrible out of his Sanctuaries, both his Heavenly and Earthly Sanctuaries; and giving Strength and Power unto his People. All which is Pathetically expressed, (1) Partly, By a sudden Apostrophe or Turning of his speech from men to God; O God, thou art terrible out of, &c. (2) Partly, By an abrupt closing up these Arguments of Gods praise, with a comprehensive expression, referring to all his praise-worthy Excellencies and Acts; Blessed be God, verse 35.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To the Master of the Musick upon Shoshannim, A Psalm of David.

I.

1. DO thou me save with tender care,
O God, my woes controule:
For, entered the Waters are
Ev'n to the very soul.
2. There a where there is no standing fast,
I sink in gulph's deep mud:
I into Deeps of Waters b past c,
O'reflow me doth the flood.
3. O I am weary d with my cryes;
Whilst for my God I waite,
My throat is burnt; faile do mine eyes.
4. Those that me causeless hate.
Are more then haires e upon my head;
My f falsly foes strong are they Ev'n tearing me: Than I reslor'd
What I took not away.
5. O God, thou know'st my foolishness;
Likewise conceal'd from thee
g Is not my just guiltiness.
6. Let them not blushed be
For me, O LORD, that wait on thee,
O LORD of Hosts abroad,
Let not thy Seekers blush for me,
O Israel's h God.
7. Because, for thee I have i sustain'd Reproach and deep disgrace:
Confusion (so am I distain'd)
Hath covered k my face
8. Unto my brethren, in my wo,
A Stranger I became:
Unto my Mothers son also
A Forreiner I am.
9. For, of thine House, that doth excel,
The Zeal hath eaten me:
And their Reproaches on me fell
That have reproached thee.
10. l I wept; with Fasting pain'd my Soul:
And it was m my disgrace.
11. And Sack-cloath I my raiment made:
And I n their Proverb was.

II.

12. Those that do sit within the gate,
Ev'n they against me speak:
And o drinkers of strong drink do prate,
And me their Musick make.
13. But I, to thee LORD make my prayer
In time of thy good will:
God, p in thy saving truth me hear,
In q thy much mercy still.
14. Me from the myre deliver thou,
And let me not r be drown'd:
Me from mine haters rescue now
From waters, deeps profound.
15. O'reflow me let not waters s flood,
Nor me the gulph devour:
Nor shut her mouth the pit of mould
Upon me void of power.
16. LORD, hear me, for thy t mercy's good:
O turn the face to me,
According to the multitude
Of u mercies dear in thee.
17. Hide not x thy countenance likewise
From me thy servant dear:
Because distress y upon me lyes,
Make hast, do thou me hear.
18. Unto my soul do thou draw nigh,
Redeem it quite from woes:
Do thou me ransome, O most High,
Because of all my foes.
19. Thou my reproach, my shame hast known,
And my dishonour here:
Yea my distressers every-one
Before thee still appear.
20. Reproach hath broke my very heart,
And sorrowful I am,
And look'd for some to moan my smart,
But yet not any came:
z For comforters, yet found I a none.
21. b Gall for my meat they gave:
And in my thirst sharp vinegar
Give me to drink they have.

III.

22. O let their Table in their view
c Before them be a snare:
And for their Recompences due,
Yea for a trap severe.
23. From seeing darkned be their eyes:
And make their loyns still shake.
24. Pour out d thine ire on them: Likewise
Let e thine hot wrath them take.
25. Let their f fair Habitation
Be desolate and void:
Inhabitant let there be none
Within their Tents employ'd.
26. For, whom thou smit'st; without relief
Him persecute they do:
Unto thy wounded-peoples grief
Hard things they tell also.
27. g To their iniquity abhorr'd
Give thou iniquity.
But enter let them not, O Lord,
Into thine equity.
28. Out of the Book of living-men
Be they wip'd out by thee:
And with the righteous-ones again
Let not them written be.

IV.

29. But h poor and sorrowing am I:
Me up-exalt and raise,
O God, Let thy Salvation high.
30. God's Name with Song I'le praise:
And him I'le magnifie i with laud.
31. And this k shall please the LORD,
Far more than Ox or Bullock young,
l That Horn and Hoof afford.
32. The meek shall see this, joy shall they:
Ye that seek God with teares,
Your heart likewise shall live alway.
33. Because JEHOVAH heares
The needy ones: And he doth not
His Prisoners contemn.
34. Him praise let Heav'ns, and Earth: The Seas,
And all that creep in them.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion &c.

This Psalm is of Mixt Nature; A Prayer, interwoven with sundry Prophecies. It is, as some have well observed o neer of kin to Psal. 22. That it is a prayer, is evident by the whole current of the Psalm; A Prayer of the Psalmist, involved in very deep and desperate distresses: That it is also interlaced with sundry Prophecies, is evident by other Scriptures. For, p here are three evident Prophecies of Christ, and so applyed to him in the New Testament; viz. 1. The zeal of thine House hath eaten me up, ver. 9. fulfilled in Christ, when he zealously whipped the buyers and sellers out of the Temple, Joh. 2. 17. 2. The reproaches of them that reproached thee, have fallen upon me, ver. 9. fulfilled in Christ, Rom. 15. 3. 3. They gave me also Gall for my meat, and in my thirst they gave me Vinegar to drink, v. 21. This was verified in the Psalmist Metaphorically, his Enemies aggravating his afflictions to him, and making them as bitter as gall; but in Christ Literally and Historically, Mat. 27. 34. 48. John 19. 28, 29, 30. Again, here is one Prophecy of Judas the Traytor; Let their Habitation be desolate, let there not be an Inhabitant in their Tents, ver. 25. applyed to Judas, Act. 1. 20. Further, here is another Prophecy; Let their Table become a snare before them, and for their recompences, for a trap. Let their eyes be darkned that they see not, and make their loyns continually to shake, ver. 22. 23. And this (as the Apostle shewes) is fulfilled upon the unbelieving Jews, the Murderers of the Lord Jesus, the wrath of God being come upon them to the uttermost, Rom. 11. 9. 10. 1 Thes. 2. 14, 15, 16. These five Prophecies in this Psalme, are avouched in the New-Testament: besides sundry others very fitly applicable to Christ. And therefore we must needs rank this Psalme amongst the Prophetical Psalmes. And though q some make a doubt, whether the Psalmist penned this Psalme as a Type of Christ, or onely as a Prophet foretelling future things, as in Psal. 22. and Isaiah 53. Because here seems to be nothing in this Psalme spoken Historically of the Psalmist himself, which is usual when he is spoken of as a Type of Christ: yet this seems to be an evident mistake; For a great part of the Psalme, as any intelligent Reader may easily observe, touching his calamities, distresses, &c. Do Literally and Historically belong to the Psalmist, as after in the Analysis will easily appear. And therefore, This Praying Psalme hath in it both History and Prophecy: It is Penitory, Historical and Prophetical.

o Psalmus hic vicesimo secundo affinis est. Jo. Calv. in Arg. Psal. 69. Et paulo ante. Idem Author in Arg. Psal. 69.

p Vid. Jo. Ford in Expos. Ps. 69. Tempus.

Penman of this Psalme was David, as the Title signifies. David (the Father and Figure of Christ) herein complaining of his great afflictions, Prayes for deliverance, devotes his Enemies to Destruction, and Praiseth God for the expected Salvation of his Church r.

r Hen. Ainsw. in Comment of Ps. 69.

Occasion, of Davids writing this Psalme, was in the General, Some extream straits, distresses, and deadly calamities whereinto he was implunged by his many and haring Enemies, See v. 1, 2, 3, 4, &c. But what Afflictions and Extremities these were in Particular, is hard to determine. That it was not penned upon Occasion of any his troubles in dayes of King Saul, seems plain from v. 35. For, God will save Sion: Forasmuch as Mount-Sion was not in the hands of the Israelites till the eighth year of King Davids Raign. 2 Sam. 5. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. 10. Perhaps it was occasioned by the extream straits he was driven into by Absalams rebellion: But I dare not herein be positive.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this Psalme, is; 1. To intreat the LORD to save, deliver, and redeem him from his extream Afflictions and Distresses, wherein he was ready to be overwhelmed and drowned, and whereof he pathetically complains; 2. To hear him speedily, and to return graciously unto him. 3. But to devote his Enemies to the heavy indignation and Curse of God. In all which David, by the Spirit of Prophecy, is carried beyond his own ease and condition to speak Prophetically of the sufferings of Christ for his Elect, as also of Gods heavy Judgements upon Judas for his Treachery, and upon the Jews for their cruelty against the Lord Jesus Christ: David in his distresses being a notable Type of Christ in his sufferings, and Davids Enemies, shadows of Christs Enemies, Judas and the malicious Jews.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Psalme hath in it, 1. The Direction of it as to the Musick; To the Chief Musician upon Shoshannim, that is, Six-stringed Instruments: as the most judicious interpret it. See Title of Psal. 45. This word is found in the Title of Psalms 45. and 69. and 80. and not of any other. 2. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalme it self contains:

I. Davids sad and lamentable complaint to God, touching the extremity of his distresses and afflictions from his Enemies, verse 1. to 22. Wherein note,

1. His suddain & abrupt crying out to God, as being even ready to be drowned and swallowed up; Save me O God, ver. 1. As the Apostle ready to sink in the storm; Lord save us, we perish, Mat. 8. 25.

2. His Aggravating and Amplifying of his Complaint Emphatically many waies. As, 1. By the extremity of his Dangers and Distresses, suggesting the necessity of his crying out and of Gods helping him. These distresses are elegantly represented under the Metaphors of (1) Waters coming in unto the Soul. As when one is drowning and can hold his breath no longer, the waters enter as into his heart, and kill him, ver. 1. (2) The mud of a gulf, wherein he sinks, and there's no standing. 3. Deeps of waters, into which he is passed. As into whirle-pooles, &c. (4) A Flood overflowing him, v. 2. 2. By the vehemency of his crying to his God for succour, and waiting for him, In these his extremities. (1) His crying to God was so fervent, that thereupon, He was weary; His throat was burnt up as it were with dryness. (2) His waiting for God was so intentive, that his eyes failed him, v. 3. 3. By the multitude, power, and violent injuriousness, of his haters, destroyers, enemies: As instrumental causes of all these his miseries, v. 4. By his ingenuous and humble acknowledgement of his sinnes, foolishness and guiltiness, which are far different from those of his enemies, ver. 5. Or this may be a kind of an f Appeal to God (who knew all his foolishness and guiltiness) how causelessly the Enemies charged such and such Sinnes upon him.

f So Vatablus Calv. Jun. Foord, Ainsworth, &c. on Psal. 69. 5 think the words may be expounded.

II. Davids request unto the Lord of Hoasts, the God of Israel, upon his former complaints, and the grounds thereof, which requests are Supplicatory, Penitory, and Imprecatory.

1. His Supplication for Gods people, That wait upon God

God and seek him, are; That they may not be any way discouraged, ashamed or confounded, by all this distress that had befallen him. What ever he suffered he would not have the Church or glory of God prejudiced thereby, ver. 6. 1. Because, all this reproach and shame that hath covered him, even from his nearest Alliance for Gods sake, v. 7, 8. 2. Because, his fervent Zeal to the house of God had so eaten him up, that the Reproaches of them that reproached God were fallen upon him, ver. 9. 3. Because his most devout and Religious Exercises, viz. Weeping, Afflicting his Soul with fasting, and putting on of Sackcloth, were turned upon him as his Reproaches, and he became a Proverb to them, v. 10. 11. So that the Magistrates and the Rulers that sate in the Gate spake against him; And the Drunkards made Songs of him, ver. 12. 4. Because in all this his indignity cast upon him for Gods Cause, he fled to God by Prayer, v. 13. And so he passeth from Supplicating for others to Petitioning for himself.

2. His Petitions for himself, v. 13. to 22. Here, having (by way of Preface,) declared unto the LORD, That against all these sufferings he betook himself to God by prayer in an acceptable time, he Petitioneth, I. For audience in his Prayer. Urging this, 1. From the multitude of Gods Loving-kindness. 2. From the Truth of his Salvation, that is, from the true Promise of Salvation from extremities made to him. Or, Saving Truth. Or, Faithful Salvation, v. 13. II. For Deliverance out of all his Distresses, and from his Enemies, pathetically mentioned again, as formerly in his complaint, viz. 1. From the Mire, that he sink not. 2. From his Haters. 3. From deep Waters: That the Water-flood over-flow him not, nor the Deep swallow him up. 4. From the Pit, That it shut not her mouth upon him, v. 14, 15. III. For Hearing of his Prayer again and again. For hearing speedily. Because his Loving-kindness is Good. IV. For manifestation of Gods peculiar favour to him, viz. 1. Turning to him. According to the multitude of his Bowel-mercies. 2. Not hiding his face from him. Being his servant. Being in trouble, v. 16, 17. 3. Drawing nigh unto his Soul, ver. 18. V. For Redemption and Deliverance, again. And this; 1. Because, of his enemies, v. 18. 2. Because, the LORD exactly knew and beheld all his Ignominy and Adversaries, v. 19. 3. Because, Reproach had broke his heart, and he was full of heaviness. 4. Because, in these his distresses he found none to condole or comfort him, ver. 20. 5. Because, his Adversaries were so far from lightening his distresses, that they aggravated them, giving him in his Thirst Gall and Vinegar, Proverbial speeches This was Metaphorically fulfilled in David. Literally in Christ, Matth. 27. 34, 48. Mark 15. 23. John 19. 28, 29, 30. with ver. 21, In these short and reiterated Petitions we have a very lively representation of the extremity and grievousness of his Afflictions.

3. His Imprecation against his Enemies. Here, by a Spirit of Prophecy, not of Revenge or Malice, he devotes them to many sad and severe judgements of God: viz. 1. That, their Table may be for a Snare, Recompences, and for a Trap before them, ver. 22. 2. That, their eyes (especially the eyes of their understandings) be darkned that they see not. This is sadly fulfilled upon the unbelieving Jews, John 12. 39, 40. Acts 28. 26, 27. 2 Cor. 3. 14, 15. 3. That, their loins be made continually to shake, ver. 23. Bow down their back alway. (as the Apostle renders it) Rom. 11. 10. This imports their constant misery, bondage, and slavery: as the contrary going upright notes freedom from such yoke, Levit. 26. 13. 4. That, Gods detesting-ire may be poured out upon them, and the burning-wrath of his nostrils may take them, viz. That they may be swallowed up of Gods fiercest wrath, ver. 24. 5. That their Habitation be desolate, and no inhabitant in their Tents, ver. 25. This had also a particular accomplishment in Judas the Traytor, Acts 1. 20. And all these imprecations are urged home by a Reason inserted, drawn from the cruelty of his enemies; Persecuting whom God had smitten, and grieving whom God had wounded, ver. 26. 6. That, iniquity may be added to their iniquity; that is, either they may be given up to a Reprobate mind, Rom. 1. 24, 28. 1 Thes. 2. 16. Rom. 11. 8. Matth. 23. 32. or, by iniquity may be meant punishment, for iniquity, as Ps. 32. 10. that is, add one punishment-for-iniquity to another: And that they may not come into Gods Righteousness, viz. Either, that they may not by faith in Christ according to the Gospel be partakers of Gods Righteousness, Rom. 10. 3, &c. Matth. 6. 33. Phil. 3. 9. John 12. 39, 40. Or, That they may not be reckoned among the Righteous, Psal. 1. 5. 7. That they may be blotted out of the Book of Life, and not be enrolled among the Righteous, ver. 28. All these dreadful and direful curses here imprecated, are accomplished and fallen most heavily upon the Jews, Rom. 11, 7, 8, 9, 10. John 12. 39, 40. Acts 28. 26, 27. 1 Thes. 2. 14, 15, 16. and some of them upon Judas, Act. 1. 20. For their enmity against Christ.

III. Davids closing up of this his Prayer, with an earnest Petition; That Gods Salvation may set him upon high. (Herein Christ also may be thought to pray, That he may triumph on the Cross, may be raised from the dead, and may ascend up on high into Heaven it self &c.) This request is urged, 1. From his present distressed Condition; I am poor and afflicted and sorrowful, ver. 29. 2. From the praises and thanksgivings (more acceptable to God then Ceremonial Sacrifices) which hereupon he shall render to the LORD ver. 30, 31. 3. From the joy and life that hereupon the godly shall be filled with all; that the Lord heareth the poor and despiseth not his prisoners, v. 32, 33. 4. From Praises that hereupon God shall have in a sort from all Creatures, Heaven, Earth, Seas and all therein v. 34. These are amplified by the Primary Cause thereof, viz. Gods saving of Sion and building the Cities of Judah, that his people may possesse thereof, inherit, and inhabit there, This imports the Prosperity, peace, and security of the Church, wherewith Heaven, and Earth, and the whole Creation is as it were affected, v. 35, 36.

Thus this excellent Psalm is Applicable, To David as the Type. To Christ as the Antitype: Davids Afflictions and Enemies, being shadows of Christs Sufferings, Sorrows, and Adversaries.

Psalm LXX.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents,

David in great troubles and perils, earnestly Prayes for speedy help and deliverance, To the disappointment and confusion of his wicked enemies, verse 1, 2, 3. But to the joy of the people of God, verse 4, 5.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To-the-Master-Musician, A Psalme of David for-to-cause-remembrance.

1. O God, a please for-to-set-me-free:
LORD, to my succour haste.
2. Let them bash'd and ashamed be
That seek my Soul to waste;

O Let

O let them blush and back retire,
That in mine ill delight.
b heb. Let-them-be-reversed back-ward. 3. b Let-them-turn back for their shames hire That say, Ah, Ah, with spight.

4. Thy seekers all rejoyce shall they,
And joy in thee above,
And God be magnify'd, still say,
Who thy Salvation love.

c heb. poore afflicted. 5. But I am b Poor and needy made;
To me God, hast-away
Thou my Deliverer and mine Aid:
O LORD do not delay.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This short Psalm is A Prayer. And it is evidently part of Psalm 40. and of the same Argument: For Psal. 40. 14. to the end, fully agrees in sence, and almost in the very words, with this Psalm, as he that is acquainted with the Hebrew, may by comparing of them easily discern. And this also is noted by many learned Authours d. The repeating also of these verses here, out of Psalm 40. inclines divers of them to think, That David made use of this, as an usual Form of Prayer, as his Ephod, or as his Remembrancer carried about with him, when he was in great perils. And that others also might make use of it in like cases. This they incline the rather to, partly, because it is entituled; A Psalm for-to-record, or For to-cause-remembrance. partly, because Psal. 35. 23. to the end, is of like Argument also.

d Pisc. Junius, Joan. Calvinus Hen. Molleri. Guil. Amesius, Joan. Ford, Hen. Ainsworth, Simeon de Muis, &c. in Ps. 70.

Penman of it, was David: as the Title evidenceth.

e Joan. Ford, in Expos. Psal. 70.

Occasion is not particularly expressed; But in the General, the Nature of the Psalm intimateth, it was Penned when David was in some great danger and distresse by reason of his enemies. Its thought to be penned e upon the same Occasion that Psal. 40. and 69. were Penned; wherein what agrees to David is supposed to befall him by the Sedition of Sheba the Son of Bicri. 2 Sam. 20. 1, &c. after the death of Absalom.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this short Psalm is; To implore Gods speedy help against his enemies, in delivering him, but dashing their Counsels and Endeavours against him to their shame, and disgrace, that so all that seek God and love his Salvation, may have matter of rejoycing and triumph in God.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title contains, 1, The Direction of the Psalm as to the Musick. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalm. 3. The Penman; David. 4. The end or use of it; For-to-cause-remembrance. See Psalm 38. Title.

II. Davids Arguments whereby he urgeth these Petitions, are drawn. 1. From the Godly who seek God and love his Salvation; Then they shall rejoyce and magnifie God, v. 4. 2. From his own low condition; He being poor, afflicted, and needy. 3. From God himself; his Deliverer and his aid, ver. 5.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme, as for the Kind and Nature of it, is A Prayer. Wherein, for the Matter of it, the Psalmist b[e]ggs earnestly for deliverance and safety from his cruel enemies, urging his Petitions by many Arguments: And having confidence of audience, he promiseth thereupon enlarged thankfulnesse to God. For the Forme of it, It is in the Hebrew an Untituled Psalme, as many others are, without Inscription prefixed. See on Psal. 1. Sect. 3. It's the judgement of some r, That this Psalme was Un-titled; Either, because the Psalmist was in Exile. Or, because he Penned it, when he was in haste and peril of his life, so that he had not opportunity of prefixing any Title or sending it to the Master-Musicians at Jerusalem. The Greek version hath notwithstanding, this Title prefixed, Of David, of the Sons of Jonadab, and of them that were first captived. t Hierome in his Latine Version, which he Comments upon, hath also the same Title. The same Title also is in the Arabick Version, and in the Ethiopick Version: save that the Ethiopick hath [Aminadab] in stead of [Jonadab.] But no Title of this Psalme is in the Chaldee Paraphrast. And Polengius the Monk saith; That the Latin Title taken out of the Greek, every one may judge ought to be ranked among the Praemes: as Muis u hath noted. The Syriack Version hath also another Title, as after shall be noted.

Penman of this untituled Psalme is generally on all hands acknowledged to be David. And the Matter, Stile, and Current of the Psalme confirm the same, to any judicious Reader.

Occasion of Davids Penning it, is not so unanimously agreed upon. 1. Some take it to be a meere Prophecy of Christ, wherein the Prophet is complaining of the Redeemers Corporal Humiliation, and singing of his glorious Resurrection: So Hierome x. And the Syriack Version calls it; A Prophecy of the Passion and Resurrection of Christ. Augustine also in his Enarration upon it, hath some glances at the Propheticalnesse of it. And so hath H. Ainsworth y. But, forasmuch as we finde not any passage in all this Psalme alledged and applyed to Christ in the New Testament; And seeing there is no expression of this Psalme that evidently speaks of Christs Humiliation or Exaltation Prophetically; I see no Cogent Reason why we should count this Psalme Prophetical. 2. Some think it was penned by David upon Occasion of Sauls wars against him. Thus the Syriack Version prefixeth a Title to it; a Composed of David, when Saul warred against the House of David. And a Prophecy of the Passion and Resurrection of Christ. But this Opinion I cannot so easily subscribe to, (1) Partly, because David here speaks of his distresses and enemies in his Old-age, Hoarinesse, when his strength failed him, ver. 9, 18. But in the time of Sauls persecutions, David was in his youth and strength, about 30 years old, 1 Sam. 17. 33. 42. 55. 56. 58. with Chap. 18, &c. (2) Partly, because when David wrote Psalmes upon occasion of Sauls persecutions, he was wont much to complain of their subtile flatteries and falshoods in their hypocritical and cruel speeches, as Psal. 36. 3, 4. and 52. 1, 2, 3, 4. and 59. 7. which is not so done here. 3. Most conceive, that this Psalme was written upon Occasion of a Absalom's rebellion against David, storied, 2 Sam. 15. 7, &c. And to their judgement I incline upon these Considerations; viz. (1) Because, some expressions in this Psalme do evidently signifie to us, that the Psalmist penned it, upon Occasion of his enemies and distresses brought upon him by them in his Old-age, hoarinesse, when his strength failed, &c. verse 9 18. Now as King Sauls Persecutions befell him in his youth, so Absalom's conspiracy came upon him in his old-age; viz. 40 years after Davids first Annointing by Samuel, 2 Sam. 15. 7. b rather than 40. years after the beginning of Davids reign, who reigned but 40 years in all. (2) Because the Argument of this Psalme seems notably to agree to the sad story of Absaloms rebellion, 2 Sam. 15. which being raised by his own son, by his son whom he loved so excessively, and that in Davids old-age when his son should have been a strength and comfort to him, wounded and afflicted afflicted David the more deeply, as his expressions import, verse 9. to 19. (3) Because, sundry passages in this Psalme are very consonant to those in certain other Psalmes Penned upon the same Occasion of Absalom's Treason. Compare ver. 10, 11. with Psal. 3. 1, 2. and the whole current of the Psalme with Ps. 31. and 24 both which also were probably penned upon the occasion of Absalom's rebellion, as Psal. 3. was.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Psalmists Scope intended in this Prayer is: To intreat the LORD that he may not be confounded by this insurrection of Absalom, nor be forsaken of God in his hoary old-age, but delivered and saved from all his wicked enemies and the distresses they had brought upon him, verse 1, 2, 9. 18. and confusion rather brought upon his enemies, verse 12, 13. And hereupon many Praises might redound to God, ver, 22, 23, 24.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalme are, 1. A Petition. 2. Arguments pressing it, 3. A Conclusion.

I. The Petition of the Psalmist, is laid down and repeated again and again in variety of expressions, verse 1, 2, 3, 4, 9. 12, 13. but for Substance all amounting to this; That he may be saved and delivered now in his old-age from all his cruel enemies, by Gods All-sufficient and speedy relief.

II. His Arguments whereby he enforceth this his request, concern more immediately, 1. God; 2. His enemies; 3. The Psalmist himself Petitioning. I. The Arguments, more peculiarly concerning God, are drawn 1. From the faithfulnesse of God, not failing them that put their trust in him, so as they should be put to confusion, verse 1. 2. From his righteousnesse, viz. his perfect equity, goodnesse, and faithfulnesse, Principal causes of deliverance, verse 2. 3. From the subordinate cause, viz. Gods giving Commandment (viz. to his Angels, as Psal. 91. 11.) to save him, apprehended and apply by his Faith, ver. 3. 4. From Gods former works and dealings towards David. Here note, (1) His Transition to this Argument by Repetition of his Request to be delivered from the hand of the wicked, of the unrighteous and cruel man, ver. 4. (2) The Argument it self, viz. Gods sustentation of him from the wombe, yea Gods taking him out of his Mothers Bowels: both of them ministring to him matter of expectation and confidence in God from his youth up. 3. The Amplification of these experimented favours, Partly, by his continual praise promised to God for the same, ver. 5, 6. Partly, by the wonderfulnesse of Gods strong and safe protection of him. c God was such a safe Refuge to him, that many, or the mighty-ones, did wonder at him, verse 7. (Some make this an aggravation of his affliction, which was so grievous, that he was as a prodigy and wonderment to many thereupon, &c. but the former interpretation seems to agree more fitly to the Context forgoing and following.) Partly, by his desire to have his mouth filled with Gods praises and honour all the day, v. 8. Partly, by his earnest request to God who had so sustained him in his youth, that he would not now cast him away in his old-age, nor forsake him when his strength failed him, ver. 9. II. The Arguments more immediately concerning his enemies, are propounded and amplified. 1. Propounded in sundry Particulars, describing their evill deportment against him, viz. (1) They speak against him. (2) They lay wait for, or watch his Soul. (3) They consult together, to persecute and take him, as if God had forsaken him, and there were none to deliver him.

c Vid. Fran. Jun. in Anot. ad Ps. 71. 7. & Jo. Calv. Com. in Ps. 71. 7.

This was very dishonourable to God, v. 10, 11. 2. Amplified (1) By his Petition hereupon for himself, That God would not be far from him, but make haste to his help, v. 12. (2) By his imprecation against his enemies, v. 13. III. The Arguments more specially concerning the Psalmist himself, are; 1. His continual hope and expectation of help from God. 2. His resolution hereupon to praise the Lord more and more, and to shew forth his righteousnesse and Salvation all the day, as not knowing the numbers thereof, verse 14, 15. 3. His integrity in praising the Lord. He will enter upon this work, not in his own, but in Gods strength. And he will mention, not his own, but Gods righteousnesse only, v. 16. 4. His former comfortable experience of Gods teaching him from his child-hood, so that hitherto he had declared his wondrous works, v. 17. Therefore now in his old-age and hoarinesse, he intreats God not to forsake him, till he had shewed his Arme to this Generation, and his power to the future, v. 18, These former experimented benefits of God are elegantly amplified, (1) Partly, By the high righteousnesse and great acts of God, wherein God is altogether unparallel'd, v. 19. (2) Partly, by an Opposition, betwixt the great and sore troubles which God had shewed him; and Gods deliverance of him out of them all, reviving him, returning him from the deeps of the Earth (as it were, the deep Graves or Pits of troubles,) increasing his greatnesse, and comforting him on every side, ver. 20, 21.

III. The Gratulatory Conclusion of this his Prayer, wherein, assuring himself by Faith of Deliverance from his enemies, he promiseth enlarged thankfulnesse unto God thereupon. Here note, 1. His thankful Praises promised to the Lord, And to be performed (1) With Instruments of Musick, Psaltery and Harp; (2) With voice of singing; (3) With rejoycing of Soul; And (4) with constant discoursing all the day long. 2. The Grounds or Reasons of all this his thankfulnesse to God, viz. Gods Truth; Gods redeeming his Soul; Gods Righteousnesse, in the confusion and shame of his enemies that sought his hurt; v. 22, 23, 24.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion,

This for Kind is A Prayer, and one of Davids Prayers, as is evinced from v. 20. A Prayer for Solomon, as the Title evideneeth. And yet Interpreters u do unanimously judge, that in this Prayer for Solomon, for the goodness and glory of his Kingdom and Government, as the Type; there is a tacit Prophecy of the surpassing goodness and glory of Christs Kingdom, as the Truth. Solomon prefigured Christ, Song 3. 11. His x Name [Solomon] signifies, Peaceable: and Christ is our Peace, Eph. 2. 14. to 19. and the Prince of Peace, Isa. 9. 6. So that, both Solomon and Christ are intended in this Psalme: Solomon immediately and lesse principally as the Type; Christ mediately and principally as the Antitype or Truth. And some y think, Christ may here be called, Solomon: as elsewhere he is called David, Hos. 3. 5. Ezek. 34. 23. and 37. 24, 25. This is therefore a Praying Prophecy, or Propetical Prayer.

Penman of it was David, as is intimated, ver. 20. z Some think, that the matter or substance of the Psalme was uttered by David Praying for Solomon, after his Unction and Royal Inauguration: but that possibly it might be put into this present form of words by Solomon himself; and the rather because the Title לשלמה Lishlomo may be translated, Of-Solomon, as well as that Title לדוד Le David, is usually Translated of David, As Ps. 25, 26, 27, 28, 35, 37, 103, 138, 144. And yet notwithstanding, they acknowledge David to be the Instrumental Author of this Psalme, as first uttering it: And that Solomon or some other committed it to writing, that it might remain upon record, As an evidence of Solomons due Call unto the Throne; As a Direction to Solomon for the well-managing of his Government, and to the people how they should pray for their King after Davids Pattern; And as a Prediction or Prophecy of the Glory, Prosperity and Stability of Solomons Kingdom, all which had their chief Accomplishment in Christ Jesus the the true Solomon.

Occasion; This Psalme or Prayer of David seems to be the last Prayer David made, v. 20. when he was very old and stricken in years, &c. 1 King. 1. 1. and after he had caused Solomon to be anointed King in his stead, and to sit on his Throne in his sight, ver. 32. to 49. For, as David blessed God, that had given him one to sit on his Throne, his eyes even seeing it, 1 Kings 1. 48. So it is probable enough, that at the same time, and upon the same Occasion, or a after he had instructed Solomon, 1 Kings 2. 1. to 10. David uttered this Prayer for Solomon, for his good and prosperous Government, being elevated also in spirit

rit therein to have a principal respect Prophetically to Christ, and his best and happiest Government. This Occasion is intimated in the Title; For-Solomon.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David's Scope intended in this Prophetical Prayer, is; To intreat the Lord, that the Kingdom of Israel; whereof himself was first King, might be rightly administred, greatly prospered and continued in Solomon, consummated and perfected in Christ, 2 Sam. 7.13. unto whom at last in Gods appointed time the Kingdom was devolved, Luke 1.31,32,33.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Psalm; For-Solomon; intimates that this Prayer was made for Solomon now newly Anointed, and his good, prosperous, and happy Reign: but principally for the Kingdom of Christ figured by Solomon. Solomons name also is in the Title of Psalm 127. wherein David instructs Solomon in the building of the Temple, to eye and observe God, and chiefly to depend upon Gods help and assistance therein.

The Psalm it self is A Prayer. Wherein are, 1. A Petition. 2. Arguments urging it. 3. A Gratulatory Conclusion, in confidence of the Grant of this Petition.

I. The Petition of David to God for Solomon. Wherein he begs. 1. Gods Judgements to the King, viz. Solomon, now Anointed King. 2. Gods Righteousness to the Kings sonne; that is, Either to Solomon. Or, to Solomons, Royal issue. That the Kingdom might be managed in Judgement and Justice, according to Gods own Laws, without errour and unrighteousness, ver. 1.

II. The Arguments, whereby this request (comprizing the chief Intent of the Psalm, is urged, are divers: being as so many excellent and desirable effects that would ensue upon Gods grant of the former Petition. For, then these effects would follow in reference to the Government, Subjects, King, Kingdom, &c. respectively.

1. In reference to the Government. Then, 1. The subjects shall be rightly governed. Both all in general; Thy People; And the distressed in special; thy poor afflicted ones, v. 2. 2. Peace shall be established, and Righteousness throughout his Royal Dominions. Or, Peace by Righteousness shall flourish. See Psal. 85.10. Thus Christ is King of Righteousness and Peace Heb. 7. 2. and his Kingdom consists in Justice, Peace, and Joy, Rom. 14. 17. Though Mountains and Hills are more barren than Valleys, yet by execution of Justice they shall become fruitful: Thus some. But b some thus: Mountains and Hills, wherein are Woods, Dens, Caves, and such lurking places, being usually Receptacles for Thieves and Robbers, infesting the Countrey round about, whence partly they are called Mountains of prey, Psal. 76. 4. yet even these Mountains and Hills, &c. shall be so subdued that thence no injuries from Thieves or wild Beasts shall annoy them. An eminent Indication of perfect Peace, v. 3. 3. Those that are wont to be most injured and oppressed, viz. The poor-afflicted, and children of the needy, shall be relieved against their oppressions: and their fraudulent Oppressors broken small, ver. 4.

b Vid. diligenter Jo. Ford in Exp. Psal. 72.3.

2. In reference to the Subjects. His righteous Government shall produce these sweet effects, viz. 1. They shall fear God throughout all Generations. Thus true Religion shall be continually promoted and propagated, &c. ver. 5. 2. They shall Rejoyce in their King and his Administrations, as the Meadows new-mown in the showres, and the Earth in the dispersed moisture of rain, v. 6. Compare herewith 2 Sam. 23. 4. Prov. 19. 12. Hos. 6. 3. 3. The righteous shall flourish and prosper in his dayes continually, ver. 7.

3. In Reference to the King Himself. 1. His Dominion shall be enlarged, viz. from Sea to Sea, i. e. from the Mediterranean Sea to the Persick Sea. And from the River Euphrates to the Ends of the Earth. This was promised to Abraham, Gen. 15. 18. To Israel, Exod. 23. 31. Deut. 11. 24. and to David as is probable from Psal. 89. 25. And Solomon after Davids death possessed this, 1 Kings 4. 21. 2 Chron. 9. 26. This enlarged Dominion of Solomon and his Successors, was a Type of Christs Dominion over all the Earth, according to Zechariah's Prophecy in the same words, Zech. 9. 9, 10, 11. Yea they that dwell in dry places, as Deserts, &c. shall in token of subjection bow before him. And his enemies shall lick the dust, i. e. testifie their great fear and subjection, by bowing their faces (after the manner of the Eastern Countreys) to the very Earth, ver. 8, 9. 2. His Subsidies and Royal Revenew shall be augmented, from forreign Kings and Nations, by their Gifts and Presents, v. 10, 11. 3. He shall be very careful, tender and compassionate over the needy, poor-afflicted and succourless, against all their enemies deceit and violence, v. 12, 13, 14. 4. His Life shall be prolonged, his Wealth increased, and He (that is, every one subdued to him) shall continually pray for him and bless him, ver. 16.

4. In reference to the Kingdome, Then there shall be, 1. Abundance of plenty even in the barren Mountaines. 2. a Multitude of subjects prospering. They of the City. i. e. his Citizens, shall flourish as the grass of the earth, ver. 16.

5. In reference to the Kings Name, Renown and Glory. This shall be so great, that; 1. His Renown shall be continued and propagated as long as the Sunne. 2. Men shall bless themselves in him: as happy in such a King. 3. All Nations shall bless him. This hath its full Accomplishment in Christ, Gen. 12. 3. and 22. 18. And so have most of the foregoing passages, whose chief aim and tendency is to Christ, v. 17.

III. The Gratulatory Conclusion: wherein David, in confidence of his hearing and granting the foregoing Prayer, most affectionately blesseth God. 1. Describing him; as, (1) The LORD God. (2) The God of Israel. (3) The only Worker of Wonders. 2. Ascribing Blessedness, (1) To him. (2) To his glorious Name for ever. 3. Desiring that the whole Earth may be filled with his Glory. 4. Closing up this his last Prayer with Amen and Amen, v. 18, 19. And thus this Second Book of Psalmes (as the First, Psal. 41. 13.) is concluded with Amen and Amen.

Hereunto is subjoyned (whether by David himself, or by Solomon, or by Ezra, or some other, who after their return from the Babylonish captivity, Collected the Psalmes into one Volume, and distributed them into Five Books, as we now have them;) The Prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended, ver. 20. Not, that there are after this, Psal. 72. no more Prayers of David recorded in the whole Volume of Psalms; For there are divers ascribed to David by the very Titles of them. As Psal. 86. 103, 108, 109, 124, 131, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145. But, either because this Subject-matter of Christs Kingdom, typed out by Solomons, is the last whereof he Prophecied, and for which he prayed, as 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11. Or because this Psalm was the last of Davids prayers made after he had caused Solomon to sit on the Throne as King in his sight, or after he had given him charge about the affairs of the Kingdom. See 1 Kings 1. 48. and 1 Kings 2. 1, 2. &c. to 10. But why this last Prayer of David was not set last of all the Psalmes penned by him, see some probable conjecture c formerly mentioned.

THE THIRD BOOK

PSLAMES.

TOuching the Distribution of this Volume of Psalmes into five Books, I have advertised [e] formerly. This Third Book begins with Psal. 73. and ends with Psal. 89. 53. Blessed be JEHOVAH for ever: Amen, and Amen. And so it comprehends only xvij. Psalmes. Whereof the first Eleven probably were penned by Asaph, bearing his Name in the Title: He was both a Prophetical Penman of Psalmes, with the words of David and of Asaph the Seer, 2 Chron. 29. 30. And a Singer in Israel, 1 Chron. 25. 2. Although it be the judgement of some [f], That those Psalmes were not penned by Asaph that have his Name prefixed; For that, 1. Asaph was constituted one of the Masters of the Musick by David and the chief of the Levites. 1 Chr. 6. 39. and 15. 16, 17. And every one did contain himself within the limits of his Calling, 2 Chron. 35. 15. 2. The Levites, Masters of the Musick, are called Prophets, and said to prophecy 1 Chron. 25. 1, 2, 3. 3. Asaph prophecied by the Prescript of David, 1 Chron. 25. 2. Therefore the words of Asaph are those which David had prescribed to him. 4. The Times of sundry Psalmes (as of Psal. 73. 74, 79, &c.) as also the matter of them seem not so agreeable to Asaph and his times. But this being no Fundamental of Faith, I shall not contend about it, but leave it to the Judgment of the Learned. These Eleven Psalmes ascribed to Asaph, are for the most part Meditations, Lamentations and Complaints of the sad Afflictions, troubles and Distresses of Gods Church and People. Three of the other are Entituled; Of, or For the sons of Korach, viz. Psal. 84, 85, 87. One, A Prayer of David Psal. 86. One, Maschil of Heman, &c. viz. Psal. 88. And One, Maschil of Ethan, &c. viz. Psal. 89.

A Psalme of Asaph.

1. YEt God to Israel is a kind,
To-them-that-pure in heart abide.
2. But I, [b] my feet almost declin'd:
My steps had well-nigh [c] slipt aside.

3. For, at [d] the fooliſh I envi'd.
When wicked-Wretches peace I view'd.
4. For in their Death no bands are tryed,
But lusty is their fortitude.

5. They are [e] not griev'd as other men:
Nor plagu'd with earthy-men are they.
6. [f] Hence, Pride berounds-them-as-a-chain:
Robe-like them violence [g] doth-aray.

7. Stand-out with fatnes doth their eye:
They of the heart pass [h] ev'ry-thought
8. They are corrupt, they [i] wickedly
Oppression speak: They speak [k] aloft.

9. Against the Heavens they set their mouth:
And through the earth walk doth their tongue
10. [l] Hence, Hither turn his people doth:
And waters [m] full to them are wrung,

11. And how doth God this know, say they?
[n] Is Knowledge found in the-most-high?
12. Lo, these the wicked: [o] Quiet ay,
They potent-wealth do multiply.

II. 13. Sure,

[a] Heb. to Asaph. To Asaph.
[b] Heb. and Heb. all most nothing failed, but my feet had swerved aside.
[c] Heb. slipped out, or been poured out.

[e] Heb. not in the condition of other man.
[f] Heb. Therefore.

[n] Heb. And is there—
[o] Heb. and in tranquillity ever.

II.

13. Sure, I have cleans'd mine heart in vain:
In cleanness wash'd my hands likewise,
14. For, I all day am plagu'd with pain:
And p am chastiz'd each morn I rise.

p Ps. 37 (or whole) in the morning.

15. If I say, Thus will I declare:
Lo, trespass-faithlesly-I-should Against the Generation dear
Of all thy sonnes both young and old.

16. It was too painful in mine eyes,
When I thought this q to apprehend.
17. Till I went to God's Sanctuaries:
And did consider their last-end.

q Ps. to know.

18. Assuredly these wicked-ones
In slippery-places set-thou-hast:
To utter desolations
Them helplesly down-thou-hast-cast.

19. To desolation-marvellous
How as in moment are they brought?
How spent; with terrours-troublous
How are they quite-consum'd to nought.

20. Like-as a Dream r when one-doth-wake:
O Lord, s when-thou-dost-up-arise,
Their image vain (in which they take Such pleasure here) thou shalt despise.

21. Sure, leavened mine heart did grow:
And pricked in my reins I was.
22. And brutish I, and did not know:
As Beasts I was with thee alas.

III.

23. Yet I with thee alwayes abide:
By my right-hand thou holdst-me-fast.
24. Thou with thy Counsel shalt me guide:
And me to glory take t at-last.

t Ps. afterwards.

25. O whom have I but thee alone
In Heav'n above as my chief treasure?
Likewise in all the Earth is none
In whom with thee I do-take-pleasure.

26. My feeble flesh, and my faint heart
Doth-wholly-fail, consumed sore:
But God the Rock is of my heart,
My Portion eke for evermore.

u Ps. hast-cursed-to-be-cut-down.

27. For they that far from thee be gone,
Lo, they shall utterly-decay:
Thou u wilt-quite-cut-down every-one
That doth from thee a-whoring-stray.

28. But I think thus for mee 'tis good x Nigh unto God for to-repair:
I have put in the Lord my y GOD
My hope, All thy works to declare.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme as to the Kind of it, is Doctrinal; or A Teaching Psalme. It teacheth us, 1. That the Church and people of God may be in continued and great adversity, whil'st the wicked abound with the contrary prosperity; 2. That this adversity of the godly, and prosperity of the wicked, is sometimes a great temptation to the godly; 3. That their way to be delivered from this temptation, is to consult with God in his Sanctuaries, and wisely to consider the last end of the wicked, and of the godly; 4. That, this temptation being overcome, the godly shall be able, with the Psalmist, to say; yet God is good to Israel, to the clean-hearted: good peculiarly, primarily, savingly, to them only; what ever be their present adversity, or wicked mens prosperity.

Penman, Some z think to be Asaph, the Singer and Seer, 1 Chron. 25. 2. and 2 Chron. 29. 30. whose name is prefixed in the Title of this and divers other Psalmes following. But others a rather judge David to be the Penman of this and others that bear Asaphs name. See before the beginning of this Psalme 73.

Occasion, was evidently the Psalmists temptation, arising from the great prosperity of the wicked, and deep adversity of the Godly, which so far troubled him, that he was almost brought to think his Religion to be vain, and to prefer the state of the wicked: And also his victory over this Temptation, through Divine help out of Gods Sanctuaries. Being admonished (as Augustine b notes) he understood that before all things which God gives both to good and bad, and sometimes takes away both from good and bad, before all these things he keeps something for the good: what keeps he for them? Himself, &c.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Holy Ghost in this Psalme, is, to declare and teach Gods people; That God doth and will deal well with his Church and people of a clean heart, but contrariwise with the wicked: although sometimes his own people in a Cloud of Temptations can hardly see this, but are ready to judge the contrary, beholding the great prosperity of the wicked, and contrary adversity of themselves, the Church, and people of God, v. 1. &c.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title signifies to us two things, viz. 1. The Denomination of this Psalme, מִזְמוֹר Mizmor, A Psalme in reference to the Manner of Penning it in Rythme, or of tuning it on stringed Instruments c, 2. The Penman of it, or at least the Master-Musician to whom it was directed, as to the Musick of it, Asaph; A Psalme of Asaph: or, A Psalme for Asaph.

c See the Preface before the Book of Psalms, Sect. II.

The Substance of the Psalme it self hath in it, 1. A Confession or Declaration. 2. A sore temptation. And 3. The victory over this temptation.

1. A Confession or Declaration of Gods goodness to his people peculiarly, what ever be their outward condition in this world. Herein note 1. The manner of acknowledging this, viz. very abruptly; yet, or Surely—Its spoken by the Psalmist on a suddain as having now conquered the Temptation, and bursting out; yet God, &c. This the result of his victory over his Temptation. The Psalme begins, where his Temptation ends. 2. The Matter confessed, Gods goodness, 1.

To

To Israel. 2. To the pure in heart, to the clean in heart. This Exegetically shewes whom he intends by Israel, ver. 1.

II. A sore temptation of the Psalmist (yea, of the godly in the Psalmists person) described, v. 2. to 15. This Temptation is described,

1. By the prevalency of it upon him, in some measure, viz. 1. To bring him almost to a defection in his judgment and Practice, from God and his wayes. This is set forth in Metaphorical Phrases, of the sliding of his feet, v. 2. 2. To perplex him with envy at foolish wicked men, verse 3. Beginning of it.

2. By the Rise or Ground of the Temptation. viz. I. The Prosperity of the wicked, observed by him, v. 3. This prosperity of the wicked is Described, and Amplified. 1. Described particularly, (1) By their easie death, or easie life till death; no knots in their death, or, till their death. (2) By their firm strength and health, v. 4. (3) By their freedom from troubles and plagues which other men undergo, v. 5. 2. Aggravated, By the wicked fruits and effects of their abused prosperity, viz. (1) Their waxing worse and worse by their prosperity. Therefore, &c. 1. Pride compasseth them as a Chain. 2. Violence covers them as a Robe, v. 6. 3. Their eyes stand out with fatness, have a swelling countenance. 4. They pass the thoughts of the heart: i. e. they in prosperity pass the thoughts of the heart. Or. the thoughts of the heart do pass: i. e. their hearts thoughts after these things, pass all bounds and measure v. 7. 5. They are corrupt; or, do corrupt; or, do make dissolute, viz. They corrupt themselves or others with sin: or they dissolve and consume with oppression. 6. They speak wickedly concerning their Oppression, glorying therein; set forth by three Phrases; Speaking from aloft, Setting their mouth against Heaven, Their tongue walking through the Earth, v. 8, 9. (2) His people, that is, Gods professed people, but hypocrites; or weak ones, dazled with wicked mens prosperity, return to the wicked, and a full Cup of temptation is wrung out to them hereupon, v. 10. (3) Their prophane Atheistical thoughts of God, as not knowing them or their deportments, &c. v. 11. All which is closed up with an emphatical indigitation of them; Behold, these are the ungodly, &c. v. 12. II. The contrary adversity of the righteous; Making the Psalmist ready to think, all his Piety, Purity, and Innocency to be in vain, v. 13, 14.

III. His victory over this sore temptation, v. 15, to the end. Where note,

1. The necessity of opposing and withstanding this temptation, that he might not perfidiously trespass against the Generation of Gods Children, ver. 15.

2. The difficulty and (to humane strength) impossibility of understanding these deep dispensations of Gods Providence, and withstanding the temptation thereupon, v. 16.

3. The right way and means of overcoming this temptation, viz. I. By going into Gods Sanctuaries, (so the Tabernacle and Temple stiled in the plural number, in respect of the three partitions therein) where he was armed against this temptation by Gods Word read and expounded. II. By attentive considering, according to the Word there heard, the different state and conditions of the wicked and the godly. 1 The state of the wicked most unhappy, if their end be looked at, v. 17. For, (1) In their greatest prosperity they stand in slippery places, still ready to fall. (2) Being cast down, 1 They are desolated, v. 18. 2 They are marvellously desolated in a moment. 3 They are spent and consumed with troublesome terrours, v. 19. 4 They vanish and are despised as a dream when one awakes, v. 20. Hereupon he checks, blames, and shames himself for yielding so far to this temptation, and making a false judgement, about wicked mens prosperity, (the presage rather of their ruine) And this in sundry particulars. As, for his leavened heart sowred with this temptation; His envy, discontent, &c. at their prosperity, pricking his reins; His folly herein; His ignorance; His brutishness in the sight of God, v. 22. 2. The contrary state of himself and of the godly, most happy: They being, notwithstanding all their adversity, most dear to God. Being, (1) With God continually; (2) Stayd and held fast by Gods right-hand; (3) Guided here by Gods Counsel; (4) To be received hereafter to glory, v. 23, 24. (5) Endeared so affectionately to God, as to account him, His only desirable Treasure and Supreme good in Heaven and Earth: His Heart's [illegible] Rock against all failing of Soul and Body; and His [illegible] Everlasting Portion, v. 25, 26.

In this Pathetick Psalme, wherein the Psalmist, or Church of God, deeply laments the Desolations of Gods Sanctuary and the face of Religion among the Jews, are I. An Exordium, 1. Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occaſion.

This for the Kind of it, is a very ſad Lamenting Prayer of the Church of God, in deep afflictions; tending to inſtruct the Church how to carry it, in like caſes, in after times.

Penman, cannot certainly be determined upon. The Subject, Matter and Occaſion of the Pſalme may ſufficiently evince r, That it was neither Penned by David nor Aſaph, ſith the afflictions here lamented, befell the Church long after their dayes. If David or Aſaph Penned it, it was written as a Prophecy of troubles to come, ſaith one ſ well: If ſome other Prophet made it when Calamities were on Iſrael, then it was committed to Aſaph's poſterity, the Singers, called by their Fathers name; as Aarons Poſterity are called, Aaron, 1 Chron. 12. 27. unleſſe we ſhall ſay (as ſome t do hint) that it was another Aſaph than him that lived in Davids time, who wrote this Pſalme, and who ſaw theſe woful things acted againſt Gods people in his times.

Occaſion and particular time of this Pſalmes writing is as variouſly and doubtfully ſpoken of, as the Penman. Some u think it was written upon Occaſion of Antiochus Epiphanes his Prophaning and Polluting of Zerubbabels Temple by Heatheniſh Idolatry, and of his cruelty againſt Gods people and Religion. But againſt this, Calvin's Note is obſervable; Though Antiochus prophaned the Temple, yet did he not burn the Fabrick with fire x. Some y upon Occaſion of Nebuchadnezzars deſtroying Solomons Temple, or Antiochus his outrage, &c. Calvin z ſomewhat inclines to think the Pſalmiſt here had reſpect to both theſe woful times. Hierome a refers it either to the dayes of Nebuchadnezzar, who deſtroy'd Solomons Temple, or of Titus Veſpaſian who ruined Zerubbabels Temple. Some b more determinatively refer it to the times of Nebuchadnezzar and the Babyloniſh Captivity, and towards the end of that Captivity, when they were ſadly deprived of publick Ordinances and their Prophets, as is ſignified, verſe 9. we ſee not our Signes, &c. As Pſal. 79. and 102. ſeem to be written about the ſame time. They pray for deliverance here from the Babyloniſh Captivity, as Daniel did, Dan. 9. To this laſt I moſt incline, as moſt agreeing to the current of this Pſalme.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Lamenting Prayer, is; 1. To bewail the Ruine and Deſolation of the Sanctuary, and the face of Religion among the Jewes by their inſolent and perſecuting enemies; 2. And to intreat the LORD, by Arguments urged from his own All-ſufficient Power, the Enemies inſolency, His dear Childrens diſtreſſes, and his faithful Covenant; to Commiſerate and relieve them.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are laid down 1. The Denomination of the Psalme, Mashil, i. e. An Instructing Psalme. This is (as I have formerly c shewed) one of the XIV Mischils. They are so called, because in every one of them there is laid down some Eminent and Remarkable Mercy of Instruction to Gods Church and People. This Psalm instructs the Godly about Gods great wrath which by reason of sin may fall upon his Church. 2. The name of the Penman, or of the Master of the Musick to whom it was directed, Of Asaph, or, for Asaph.

c See the Preface before the beginning of the Psalms Sect. VI.

In the Psalme it self consider chiefly three parts. I. An Exordium or entrance into the Psalme verse 1, 2, 3. 2. A Narration, verse 4. to 10. 3. A Supplication, ver. 80. to the end.

I. The Exordium, or Entrance into the Psalme, is Pathetical. Wherein the afflicted Church of the Jews, 1. Expostulates with God about his great displeasure upon his people. Wherein note, (1) The Acts of his displeasure; Rejecting, Anger. 2. The Object of his Displeasure; The sheep of Gods Pasture, Metaph. (3) The Aggravations of it, by the continuation of it. The extremity of it; smoaking anger, Metaph. ver. 1. 2. Supplicates to God, (1) To remember graciously, His Church which he had purchased; His Kingdom Israel, which he had redeemed; The Mount Sion wherein he had dwelt, verse 2. (2) To make haste to relieve the Church against the Perpetual Desolations, The enemie having done evil to all things in the Sanctuary, ver. 3.

II. The Narration Explains, Illustrates, and aggravates this Calamity notably; 1. By the enemies intolerable outrage and insolency, 1. Roaring in midst of the Lord's Congregations. 2. Setting up their Ensignes there for Signes, ver. 4. 3. Breaking and beating down all the curious Openings and Carved works with Axes & Maules, &c. which by Solomon was Honorifically and Sumptuously built. Or, In demolishing the Temple he was most famous that destroyed it most eagerly and furiously d, verse 5, 6. 4. Burning the Sanctuarie 5. Defiling the Habitation of Gods Name to the ground, verse 7. 6. Saying in their hearts, they should spoil them all together. 7. Burning up all the Synagogues of God in the Land, verse. 8. II. By Gods peoples great losse and privation of the comfortable Means of Grace whereby they might be supported against these Calamities, viz. As, 1. Of their Signs and Tokens of Gods presence Extraordinary and Ordinary, As Sabbaths, Sacrifices, Sacraments, &c. 2. Of their Prophets that might foretell how long the Calamities should last, verse 9.

d So Jun. in Annot. on Psal. 74. 5. & H. Ainsw. Annot. there.

III. The Supplication of the Church unto God for favour, wherein, I. The Church Expostulates with God for permitting the enemy, 1. To reproach and blaspheme his Name so long, verse 10. 2. To oppresse his people, whil'st God keeps his right-hand still in his bosome, not helping his people, nor plaguing their enemies. Whereupon she provokes him to pluck his hand out of his bosome, verse 11. II. The Church urgeth God, by sundry Arguments Pathetically laid down to succour and relieve her against her enemies and miseries. These Arguments are drawn, 1. From Gods Royal Relation to and Protection of his Church of old, verse 12. 2. From Gods extraordinary works of wonder for his people Israel's Deliverance and Salvation of old, As, (1) Dividing the Red-Sea, to save them from Pharaoh and his Hoast. (2) Breaking the heads of Dragons or Whales in the waters, i. e. drowning Pharaohs Nobles, Captains, and Commanders in the Red-Sea, as Exod. 14. 28. with 15. 4. such being compared Ezek. 29. 3. to Dragons or Whales. verse 13. (3) Breaking the heads of Leviathan in pieces, i. e. drowning Pharaoh with all his Princes, Exod. 14. and 15. in the Red-Sea, Tyrants, as here, and Isa. 27. 3. are usually compared to Leviathan the Sea-Dragon, described, Job. 40. 25. and 41. 6. &c. Giving him to be meat to the people inhabiting the Wildernesse, i. e. Either to Israel in the Wilderness, taking the spoil of Pharaoh and the Egyptians cast up by the Sea, and rejoycing in their just ruine: Or to the wild-beasts of the Wilderness feeding upon their dead Carkasses, verse 14. (4) Cleaving Fountains and Floods out of the Rock, Exod. 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11. (5) Drying up mighty Rivers, as Jordan, Josh. 3. 15, 16, 17. &c. Arnon, and Jabbok, Numb. 21. 14. Deut. 2. 37. that his people might pass thorough them, vers. 15. 3. From Gods ordinary works of Creation, &c. wherein his great Power hath been magnified. As, (1) Day and Night, Gen. 1. 5. (2) Light, and the Sun, Gen. 1. 3, 14. to 19. verse 16. (3) Setting the Borders of the Earth (4) Making Summer and Winter, verse 17. 4. From the reproach and blasphemy which their foolish enemies have cast upon the Name of God, verse 18. 5. From the dear Relation wherein Gods people stand unto God himself. They being 1. His Turtle-Dove. 2. The Congregation of his poor-afflicted-ones, vers. 19. 6. From Gods faithful Covenant with his people. 7. From the Habitations of cruelty against Gods people in all the dark and obscure places of the Earth, ver. 20. III. The Church upon all these Considerations closeth up this Psalme with earnest Petitions to the LORD, 1. That Gods Oppressed, Poor, and Needy, may not be ashamed, but have cause to praise Gods Name, ver. 21. 2. That God would arise, and plead his own Plea against his daily reproach by the foolish, ver. 22. 3. That God would remember the insolent voice and tumult of the enemy against him ascending continually, verse 23.

6. For, not from East, nor West, nor dry

7. But God is Judge: f He lifts one up,
And brings another low.
8. For in the LORD's hand is a Cup,

It's full of mixture, from-the-same

But squeeze and drink it's dregs shall all

To Jacobs Mighty-God.
10. Of all the wicked-ones the Hornes
Hew-off likewise will I:
But of the Righteous-one the Hornes
Shall be-exalted-high.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is of a Mixt Kind; Consisting, Partly of Praise, Partly of Promise, Partly of Doctrine and Instruction.

Penman of it, is generally thought, not to be Asaph though his name be inserted in the Title: But, either some Prophet under the Babylonish Captivity; or rather David himself, as divers do conceive g.

Occasion whereupon, and time when this Psalme was penned, is also variously apprehended: Some suppose it was written under the Babylonish Captivity, upon occasion of the devastation of the Land of Israel, and insolency of the Babylonians over Gods people h. Others rather judge (and I think more agreeably to the current of the Psalme accurately observed) that it was penned in Davids dayes, upon Occasion of Davids coming to the Royal Government (after the sad Distraction and Devastation of the Land through the discord betwixt the house of Saul and David) Either, when upon Sauls death the Tribe of Judah annointed him in Hebron, 2 Sam. 2. 1,2,3,4. Or, when Abner, deserting his Master Ishbosheth, turned Israel to David 2 Sam. 3. 9,10,11,12, &c. Or, when after the death of Abner, 2 Sam. 3. 17. & after the death of Ishbosheth, 2 Sam. 4. 6. all the Tribes came to Hebron and annointed him King over all Israel k, 2 Sam. 5. 1, &c. which last seems most fully suitable to this psalme.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Psalmist herein, is; To celebrate (in the person of David and of all the faithful) and magnifie Gods wonderful providence in governing all affaires here below in the Dominions of men: and particularly in preserving David in midst of many publick dangers, and at last advancing him compleatly to the Throne, that he might rule religiously and righteously.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note; 1. The Direction of the Psalme as to the Musick of it; More Generally; To the Master-Musician. More particularly, To Asaph. 2. The Note or Tune to which it was to be set; Al-taschith. Or, An hint at the Argument or Matter of the Psalme; corrupt not it, viz. destroy not David my King, &c. Al-taschith is also prefixed to Psal. 57, 58, 59. 3. The Musick of the Psalme, laid down in two words; Mizmor, denoting the Composure of it in Verse, not in Prose. Shir, A Song. Importing it was to be tuned with voice.

In the Psalme it self we have

I. A thankful Confession made by David and the faithful to God. Amplified by the Cause thereof, viz. Gods Name being near to them, which is Evinced and Demonstrated by Gods wonderful works, (As preservation of David in all his perils, Death of Saul; Affection of Judah; Inclination of Abner to David; Death of Ishbosheth; Consent of all the Tribes to annoint David King, &c.) verse 1,

II. A dutifull promise of David to God, touching the well-managing of his Kingly Government, 1. More Generally; To judge uprightly. Amplified by the Season when he will do this; viz. when he should receive appointment; or the appointed time; or, the Congregation: that is, when he should be set upon the Throne, verse 2. II. More particularly, what he will do in his righteous Government. viz. 1. He will settle and stablish the Pillars of the dissolved and broken Kingdom. The two chief Pillars of the Ecclesiastick, and Civil State, ver. 3. 2. He will (in order to this Restitution of things) repress the folly pride, and fury of vain-glorious, insolent wicked men, ver. 4, 5. To this end, 1. He refutes and condemns one Primary and Fundamental Error of the wicked, viz. That they ascribe the abasing of one, and exalting of another, to Mans Policy, Fortune, or other Causes, which ought properly and peculiarly to be ascribed unto God alone, verse 6, 7. 2. He describes and declares Allegorically the Manner of Gods Administration both towards the Godly and wicked: The godly drink of his Cup of Mixture, of affliction, &c The wicked must wring out, and drink the very dregs thereof, verse 8. 3. He will declare the works of the God of Jacob, (having peculiar care of his people) and sing praise to him for ever, vers. 9. 4. He will hew off the horne, break the power, pride, and insolency of the wicked, but exalt the Power and Glory of the Righteous. He will differently and discriminatively deal with them, ver. 10. (Hac & hujusmodi fecit Deus per Car. II. à Maii 29. An. Dom. 1660. de die in diem.)

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This is an Eucharistical Psalme, A Triumphant Psalme of Thanks and Praise to God.

Penman of it seems to be, neither Asaph nor yet David: but some other Prophet, as Isaiah, &c. long after the dayes of David. And the Matter of the Psalme notably inclines my judgement thus to think.

Occasion of it, some think to be Gods destruction of Gog and Magog, here Prophetically foretold: making this Psalme a Prophecy. Others better, refer it to the great victory that Jehoshaphat obtained over Moab, Ammon, and Mount Seer, 2 Sam. 8. with 2 Chron. 18. m. But they seem to judge best of all, who think this Psalme was Penned upon Occasion of Gods wonderful deliverance of Jerusalem from the Assyrian Army; when God provoked with Rabshekah's blasphemies, 2 King. 18. 30, &c. 2 Chron. 32. 11, &c. Isa. 36. 15. and with his railing Letters, 2 Chron. 32. 17. Isai. 37. 10. &c. at the ardent prayers of King Hezekiah, and the Prophet Isaiah, 2 King. 19. 1, &c. 2 Chron. 32. 20. slew by his Angel in one night 185000, of Sennacherib's Army, 2 King. 19. 35. 2 Chron. 32. 21. Isa. 37. 36, and so delivered Jerusalem both from danger and fear of the Assyrians. Then as most think n in the 14. year of Hezekiah, 2 King 18. 13. Isaiah or some other Prophet wrote this Psalme, wherewith both the King and people might triumphantly praise the LORD. And the Church of God in all after-Ages may comfortably make use of it, in all like Cases.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope, intended in this Psalme, is; 1. To declare and celebrate with triumphant thankfulnesse the LORD's wonderful Protection and Deliverance of Jerusalem and of his Church and people from all their most potent and enraged enemies: 2. And thereupon to urge them to vow, pay, and bring Presents to him with all reverence.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Psalme sets forth, 1. The two Masters of Musick, or their Posterity, to whom this Psalme was delivered. One, imployed in naming the Musical Instruments, Neginoth, viz. Stringed Instruments: over which Ethan (called also Jeduthun) was 1 Chron. 25. 3. The other expressed, viz. Asaph. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalme, A Song, noting the Composure of it in Poetical Measures, and to be tuned both with Instruments and Voices.

The Psalme it selfe is. 1. Narratory, 2. Hortatory.

1. Narratory. Heres a triumphant Narration of the LORD's wonderful Protection and Deliverance of Jerusalem from her enemies, and this especially by the Eminent Fruits and Effects of that deliverance, viz. Hereby,

1 God was better known than before, not only to his people, but even unto their enemies. More particularly. 1. He was better known in Judah. 2. His Name greater in Israel, v. 1. 3. His Tabernacle better known in Salem. 4. His dwelling place better known in Sion v. 2. All this is Amplified by the Reason, or way of Gods making himself thus eminently known among his people, and to their enemies; by breaking asunder and confounding their Army (185000 in one night slain) ver. 3.

2. God became much more illustrious and glorious than the Mountains of Prey, that is; As some, than the Mountains of famous Robbers, who prey upon passengers o. As others, The Mountains of Lions, Leopards, and other wild-beasts, which live by prey and returning from the prey are full, proud, stately, &c p. And under this phrase also Great ones, and Kingdomes of this world may be understood, who make spoil and prey one of another, like wild beasts, Dan. 7. 4, 5, 6, 7. whom the Lamb on Mount Sion excels in Power and Glory, Rev. 14. 1. and 17. 14. q. The Phrase also may be rendred, [From the Mountains of prey,] that is, when thou comest from conquering thy enemies which lay upon the Mountains round about Jerusalem to make prey upon thy people. This greatly pleaseth me, by reason of that which follows. An elegant sudden Apostrophe to God; Thou ——— ver. 4. This Illustriousnesse of God by the slaughter of his enemies is laid down in four pathetical expressions; 1. The mighty of heart have yielded themselves to spoyl: The proud boasting Assyrian was made to stoop without resistance against Gods Angel. 2. They slept their sleep: they were slain and dead. 3. None of the men of might found their hands, viz. to resist the Angel, v. 5. 4. At Gods rebuke both Chariot and horse are cast into a dead sleep: all struck dead by the Angel. A sudden Apostrophe again to God, most elegant, ver. 6.

o Jo. Boord. in Expos. Psal. 76.

p Hen. Moller in Arg. Ps. 76.

q Sim. de Muis in Arg. Ps. 76.

3. God was much more dreadful and terrible than formerly, to all the Kings of the Earth, that should hear of this his judgement upon the Assyrian Army. This is, I. Propounded, and that 1. Positively, in a pathetical Assertion; Thou, thou, &c. 2. Interrogatively, for the more vehement negation; Who may stand? &c. i. e. none at all, sith thou canst do such execution upon 185000 in one night by one Angel, v. 7. II. Expounded, 1. Partly by the Reasons of this terriblenes of God, 1 His making his Judgements to be heard from Heaven, that is, by an Angel slaying the Assyrians. 2. His terrifying and stilling the Earth, Earthly men, Assyrians, formerly very obstreperous, and others; ver. 8. 3 His arising to Judgement to save all the meek of the Land of Jerusalem, and others of Judah, from the Assyrians, v. 9. 2. Partly, by the effects of this terriblenes of God upon his Peoples Enemies, (1) The wrath of man, even of the Assyrians confessing Gods Power, Justice, &c. so praising him. (2) The remainder of their wrath, hereby being restrained, girded in, by this dreadful blow, ver. 10.

Hereby,

II. Hortatory. Upon all the former Narrative he exhorts all Gods people, that (as once the Tents about the Tabernacle) are round about him, in Testimony of Thankfulnesse, 1. To make Vowes to God: 2. To pay and perform their Vowes made: 3. To bring Presents, viz. Sacrifices, &c. to the FEAR, i.e. to this most dreadful God, over all to be feared, v. 11. Motives to these Duties are annexed: Drawn 1. From Gods gathering-as-grapes the spirits of the Assyrian-Governours or Princes. 2. From Gods terriblenesse hereby to the Kings of the Earth, ver. 12.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents,

1. The Psalmists great Affliction, and Diffidence in a kind of spiritual Desertion is described, v. 1. to 10. 2. His Relief against both, from consideration of Gods great and gracious Works of old, is related, ver. 10. to the end.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To-the-Master-Musician, to Jeduthun A Psalm [a] of Asaph.

[a] Heb. of, or, to Asaph.

My voice was to the-mighty-God,

9. Hath God perpetually forgot
Most gracious-to-be?
His bowel mercies (once my lot)
In wrath shut-up-hath-he? Selah.
10. Then this said I; (I understand)
It my infirmity:
I'le heed the years of the right-hand
Of-him-that-is-most-High.

11. I will remember [n] the-LORD
The Actions manifold:
For I thy wonder will [o] record
Which thou hast wrought of old.

And of thy Practises compleat
The same I will [p] relate.

[q] Dost wonders of renown.
Among the People mightily
Thou mad'st thy Valour known.

Thy foot-steps were not known.
20. Thou, like-a-flock through Sea and Land
The people didst-lead-on,
Most wonderfully by the hand
Of Moses and Aaron.

[u] Heb. or, and.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalme is Doctrinal, and sadly lamenting. A Psalme and the consolation thereof (as one rightly observes) much to be meditated on, and learned: for that none of us almost lives in the Exercises of true Repentance, but sometimes he hath sad sense of these dolours which are here recorded [x], &c. Here the People of God are sweetly taught by the Patterns propounded in this Psalme how to behave themselves under outward distresses, and inward perplexities of spirit, because of Gods displeasure therein, flying for support to the great and wonderful experiences which [x] Hen. Moller. in Arg. Ps. 77.

Gods People of old have had of him in their deepest extremities.

Occasion, in General, was some great affliction and thereupon some deep distress of spirit under sense of Gods displeasure, against all which, the due consideration of the Saints experiences of God of old, wonderfully relieving them in their straits, is declared to be a special Relief and Remedy. But in particular, how hard is it satisfactorily to define the Occasion. Some y think it was penned by David, (though his name be not prefixed) upon Occasion of Gods severe hand against him, and his house, (as he had threatned, 2 Sam. 12. 10, 11, 12.) especially in Amnon's incestuous ravishing of his Sister Thamar. And afterwards in Absalom's cruel murder of Amnon, 2 Sam. 13. Wherein David, reading Gods dreadful displeasure against him for his own former sins of Adultery and Murder, was in great anguish of soul, and not without some diffidence and doubts, least God should utterly remove his wonted loving-kindness from him, &c. And that the whole Argument or Subject-matter of the Psalme doth most fitly agree hereunto. Others, on the other hand do rather judge, that the private grief of a particular person is not herein expressed, but the more publick sighs and laments of Gods Elect People, and that the Holy Spirit dictated this Psalme as a common form of Praying for the afflicted Church: the faithful relating Gods ancient Redemption of them, as a monument of Gods perpetual grace, that hereby they may animate themselves the more unto prayer; So Calvin z, taking the words, v. 1, 2, 3. &c. all along, not in the preter, but in the future tense. Musc a also concludes, it was Penned upon Occasion of some great calamity upon the Israelitish People: and perhaps of that severe one, their Captivity in Babylon. And that it might be penned either by Asaph in dayes of David, foreseeing their Babylonish-Captivity by a spirit of Prophecy, or by another Asaph (of Asaphs sons) living under the Captivity. In this distance of Opinions, its hard to determine. Both of them are attended with their great inconveniences. To limit the distress, here deciphered, to a single person, as the first part of the Psalme carries it, v. 1. to 11. seems scarce so suitable to the later and consolatory part thereof, which is drawn from Gods ancient goodnesse to his whole people Israel, ver. 11. to the end; and to extend the whole Psalme to the whole Church, according to the latitude of the later part of it, seems scarce correspondent to the constant current of the expressions, as of a single person, in the former part. Let the Learned and Judicious consider. All things deliberately weighed, I incline to think, the calamity and grief here delineated, was of a particular person, rather then of the whole Church. And a particular person may extract comfort to himself in his particular distresses, from Gods eminent mercies to his whole Church in like straits? The comfort of the whole, being the comfort of every part. However, both the whole Church of God, and every particular believer individually, may hence receive singular Instruction, how to support themselves, by Gods great experimented favours of old unto his Church in sore distress, against all their outward calamities, and inward perplexities.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalme, is; 1. In this Pattern herein propounded; to teach both particular Believers and the whole Church of God, that's no new thing for Gods people to be exercised with great calamities, sometimes through their infirmities exposing them to much despondency, diffidence, and expostulations with God, yet at last wrestling out of all upon a due remembrance of Gods wonderful works of old for his people in sore distresses; 2. And consequently to instruct them how they may best demean themselves in like straits. Or, to shew, 1. How the godly may be afflicted. 2. In Affliction deserted of God. 3. And how against both they may be comforted.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title decrees to us, 1. The Direction of this Psalme as to the Musick of it: (1) More generally; To the Master-Musician. (2) More particularly, to Jeduthun, and Asaph. 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalm, importing, it was composed in Rythme, and to be tuned on Instruments of Musick.

The Psalme it self contains,

I. A Joyful Acknowledgment, or Profession of Gods lending an eare to the Psalmists earnest Prayers, pathetically described in Three Expressions, verse 1. This some b take to be the result of his Conflict with, and Conquest over his great distress; as elsewhere the like in Psal. 73. 1. is abruptly laid down.

b Jer. Ford in Ps. Analy.

II. A sad Narrative of the Psalmists great distress, and Gods spiritual desertion of him therein in some measure. As, 1. Of his unceasing seeking the Lord, and reaching out his hands to him day and night, and yet his soul remained disconsolate, ver. 2. 2. Of his remembring God: and yet was troubled. 3. Of his Meditating, and yet his spirit was overwhelmed, ver. 3. 4. Of his sleepless nights. 5. Of his amazedness and speechlessnesse, verse 4. 6. Of his (1) Recounting others experiences of old time. (2) Remembring his own experiences of late, with meditation and diligent search, ver. 5, 6. 7. Of his Expostulation and diffident Ratiocination within himself, touching Gods (1) Casting him off for ever; (2) Being favourable no more; (3) Ceasing of his Mercy for ever; (4) Failing of his Word from Generation to Generation; (5) Forgetting to be gracious; (6) Shutting up his tender mercy in anger. In all which some savour of passionate diffidence of Gods favour, and sense of Gods deserting him, is discovered, ver. 7, 8, 9. This was his Distress: and This his spiritual Conflict under it.

c Cant. Lever. Expos. Sonn. Tropol.

III. A sweet Remedy and Relief of the Psalmist against all this his distress and diffidence, verse 10. to the end. Where note,

1. His recollecting and checking himself, for his infirmity in his former Reasonings, verse 10. beginning.

2. His Remedy and Support which he found against all his former distress and diffidence, and whereby he became Conquerour of all his former conflicts, viz. The due consideration and recognition of Gods works and wayes of old. And this, I. More Generally, in variety of Phrases. As, 1. Remembring the years of his right-hand, ver. 10, 2. Remembring his works and wonders, ver. 11. 3. Meditating upon all his work, and talking of his practices, ver. 12. II. More Specially, He considered upon, 1. Gods secret and unseen way in the Sanctuary. In the Sanctuary things were hid from all but from the Priests. 2. Gods greatnesse, ver. 13. 3. Gods wonders, viz. upon the plagued Egyptians. 4. Gods power declared among the people viz. in preserving mean-while his people Israel from like calamities, ver. 14. 5. Gods might in Redeeming Israel out of Egypt, ver. 15. 6. Gods dividing the Red-sea, for Israel to pass through, most elegantly described, ver. 16. 7. Gods overthrowing of the Egyptians in the midst of the Sea, by a fierce Tempest sent upon them, ver. 17, 18. 8. Gods way in the Sea, his paths in the great waters, and his foot-steps unknown. And so his mercies and judgements past finding out, ver. 19. 9. Gods safe conducting Israel as a flock from Egypt, through Sea and Wilderneste by the hand of Moses their King, and Aaron their Priest, ver. 20.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is one of the Maschil's; See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. And as to the Kind of it, is Hortatory, Doctrinal, and Historical u: as by the Series of it is palpable. By whom, and when it was written, is not so evident. Some think it was written by King Hezekiah, or by the Prophet Isaiah, or some other, about the time of the decay and ruine of the Kingdom of Israel x. But others y rather judge it was written by David or Solomon, or by some Prophet in their dayes: The Subject-Matters contained in the Psalme being such onely as agree to their times, or to times before them. For herein is an Historical Narrative of things from Israel's departing out of Egypt till Davids setting up Gods Tabernacle and Ark in Mount Sion, 2 Sam. 6. 17. with Psal. 78. 69. or till Solomons building the Temple there, on part of Mount Sion, which was after their coming out of Egypt, 480. years, See 1 King. 6. 1. with Psal. 78. 69

Occasion, of Penning this Psalme, was the great and manifold unbelief, Hypocrisie, and Rebellion of Israel against God, both in the Wilderness, and in the Land of Canaan, notwithstanding all Gods administrations of Mercy and Justice towards them, both in Egypt, Wilderness, and the promised Land, ver. 8. &c. God labouring to overcome their evil with his goodness, and they striving to overcome Gods goodness with their evil, (Gods goodness and Israels evilness being represented in an Elegant Parallel,) v. 8. to 68. but at last Gods goodness surpassing and exceeding, ver. 68. to the end.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope or end intended in this Psalme, is; 1. To advance the glory and praise of the LORD God of Israel, for all his praise-worthy acts, and excellent Administrations towards his people in Egypt, Wilderness, and Canaan, v. 4, 5. and contrariwise to debase and disgrace Israels great ingratitude, unbelief, and manifold rebellions against the LORD, v. 8. &c. 2. To exhort all after generations unto Faith and obedience towards God: from consideration of Gods Law and manifold goodness, given and manifested of old to Israel, v. 5, 6, 7. But to dehort them from diffidence, hypocrisie, ingratitude, and rebellion against God, upon consideration of these sins of Israel of old, so greatly here aggravated, and so severely heretofore judged by the LORD, for Admonition to all after Ages z, v. 8.

1. Recruior ille posterior populus admonetur, ut exeat ne sit ingratus beneficiis Dei, quique in ipsi provocet iracundiam, cujus obedienter & fideliter debet suscipere gratiam. Ne fiat—— (ut v. 7, 8) Hac est igitur Psalmi hujus intentio, hac utilitas, hic aberrimus fructus. Aug. Pref. in Enarrat. Psal. 77. Tom. 8.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this Psalme sets forth; 1. The Nature of it; Maschil, An Instructing Psalme. It singularly instructs all following ages, and us by the example of Israel of old, and by Gods dealings with them, how to walk faithfully, obediently, and thankfully with God, See Psal. 32. Sect. 3. 2. The Master-Musician to whom it was, as to the Musick, directed; for Asaph.

In the Psalme it self consider; 1. The Exordium or Preface. 2. The Proposition. 3. The Narration. 4. The Conclusion. (As to these generals I like Junius his Method.)

I. The Exordium, Entrance or Preface to the Psalme is Hortatory. Herein the Prophet exhorts his people (his, as committed to his instruction, inspection, &c.) to diligent attention unto his Doctrine which he here propounds, v. 1. And he laies down divers causes why they should thus attend to his Doctrine, all drawn form the nature of it, viz. 1. The dignity of it; A Parable 2. The difficulty; Dark-sayings, Hid-things, 3. The Antiquity. 4. The certainty thereof, Which we have heard, known, &c. verse 2, 3. 5. The end thereof, shewing Gods praises, power, and wonders, ver. 4.

II. The Proposition of the Summe and Substance of his intended Doctrine, viz. Gods Testimony which he established, and Law which he Commanded the Fathers at Mount Sinai. This Testimony and Law is illustrated by the ends and uses of Gods revealing them; viz. 1. That parents might communicate them and make them known from Generation to Generation, v. 5, 6. 2. That they might set their hope in God. 3. That they might remember his works. 4. That they might keep his Commandments, verse 7. These ends are amplified, by the contrary examples and courses of their Fathers; Being Stubborn, Rebellious, False-hearted, unstedfast in spirit with God, verse 8.

III. The Narration of Gods Administrations towards them, in his beneficence patience, and Justice; and of their Rebellions against him, By unbelief and dissimulation in their afflictions, By their Security, and Idolatry in their prosperity, verse 9. to 58. More particularly, here Note,

1. The first Rank of their Rebellions; 1. Described, viz. (1) Covenant-breaking with God. (2) Forgetting Gods works and wonders shewed them. For which the children of Ephraim, though valiant Warriours, yet fled before their Enemies, verse 9, 10, 11. 2. Aggravated by Gods beneficent and merciful Administrations towards them, viz. 1. working wonders for their Fathers in Egypt, to bring them thence, verse 12. Bringing them strangely thorough the Red-Sea, verse 13. 3. Conducting them in the Wilderness by his Pillar of Cloud by day, and of fire by night, verse 14. 4. Giving them Waters plentifully out of the Rocks, viz. At Horeb, Exod. 17. 6. and again at Cadesh, Num. 20. 1, 11. both these seem pointed at, verse 15. 16.

2. The Second Rank of their Rebellions. 1. Declared and described, as most greivous and provoking to God, verse 17. viz. 1. Tempting God, by asking meat for their lust, verse 8. 2. Distrusting God, by questioning and doubting of his power to give Bread and Flesh in the Wilderness, notwithstanding they had lately experimented his power in giving Water out of the Rock, ver. 19, 20. 2. Aggravated by Gods dealings with them hereupon, viz. (1) Hearing this, (2) Being greatly incensed against them, for their distrusting God, verse 21, 22. which distrust was the more grievous and inexcusable, by reason of their late experience of Gods power and goodness in raining down Manna from Heaven upon them for Bread, &c. ver. 23, 24, 25. 3. Raining flesh of feathered Fowle plentifully upon them, in displeasure; and whilest the meat was in their mouthes, destroying many of the choisest of them, ver. 26. to 32.

3. The third Rank of their Rebellions, is 1. Described (1) Partly, in that for all this they sinned still: Murmuring against the promised Land. Numb. 14, 1, &c. (2) Partly, in not believing, for all Gods wonders, that he would or could give them Canaan, ver. 32. 2. Aggravated, by Gods sore judgement in consuming that murmuring Generation in the Wilderness forty years, that they should never enter into Gods Land of Rest, ver. 33.

4. The fourth Rank of their Rebellions, is 1. Described, 1 Partly as implyed, viz. a That, after God had sworn they should not enter into his Rest, but bad them turn back into the Desert, Numb. 14. 22, 23.——25, 33, 34, 35. that that Generation might perish there for their murmuring; They, contrary to Gods Commandment would go up into the Promised Land. Numb. 14. 40. &c. and the Canaanites and Amalekites came down and smote them, Numb. 14. 45. 2 Partly as expressed, viz. That being slain by God, they sought him, returned, enquired early after him, a Sic. Jo. Foord in Expos. Ps. 78. 34.

him, remembred God was their Rock and Redeemer, but all flatteringly, lying, hypocritically, unstedfastly. Their heart was not right with him b, &c. ver. 34. to 38. 2. Aggravated, by Gods contrary deportments towards them in Acts of Clemency, Lenity, Mercy, &c. Where note, 1 The rise of these Acts God's Compassionateness. 2 The Acts of kindnesse themselves, viz. Mercifully covering iniquity; Not destroying them, that is, not all, not presently; multiplying to turn away his anger; not stirring up all his wrathful heat. 3 The Motive that swayed with him thus to deal with them, He considered: Their feebleness, flesh. Their frailty and mortality, as a wind or vapour——ver. 38, 39.

5. The fifth Rank of their Rebellions in the Wildernesse is, I. Described Pathetically. And this, 1. More Generally; 1 Often bitterly provoking him. 2 Often grieving him in the Desert: both laid down in a Pathetical Interrogation; How oft? ver. 40. One reckons up sixteen times c. Another seventeen times d. 3 Returning and Tempting God. 4 Limiting the Holy-One of Israel, verse 41. 2. More Particularly, in that they ingratefully forgot, (1) Their Redemption and Deliverance from Egypt by his mighty hand, v. 42. (2) The wonders and plagues which God, for accomplishing their deliverance, brought upon the Egyptians, ver. 43. Here 7 of Egypt 10 plagues are instanced in, but not in the same order as God inflicted them. ver. 44. to 52. II. Aggravated exceedingly, by Gods great benefits, which contrary to these Provocations he heaped upon them, viz. 1. Brings his people as a flock forth from Egypt, thorow Red-Sea and Desert, in Confident-safety the Sea covering their enemies, ver. 52, 53. 2. Conducting them into the Promised Land, called, The Border of his Holinesse, by Anticipation, in reference to his holy Presence or Sanctuary there, afterwards. And this Mountain, by a Synechdoche of the part—verse 54. 3. Driving out by destruction, the Heathens before them. 4. Possessing Israel actually of the Promised Land, verse 55.

6. The sixth Rank of their Rebellions against God after all this, even in the Land of Canaan. This is, I. Described, 1. More Generally, By their tempting and bitterly-provoking God, 1 Partly, by not keeping his Testimonies, v. 56. 2 Partly, by their Apostacy and unfaithfulnesse. Set forth, By the example of their Fathers, and By the similitude of a warping Bowe, v. 57. 2. More Particularly, by the particular sins wherewith they provoked him, viz. 1 Their High places. 2 Their Graven Images, v. 58. II. Aggravated, by Gods judgements and by his mercy in midst of judgement. 1. By Gods judgements upon them for these their sins, viz. 1. Abhorring Israel in great wrath, (See Judg. 2. 1, to the end of the Book) v. 59. 2. Forsaking his Tabernacle at Shiloh, viz. when the Ark was fetched thence into the Camp, and never came again thither. 1 Sam. 4. 3, &c.) v. 60. 3 Delivering his strength and beauteous glory, i. e. his Ark it self, in the dayes of Eli, 1 Sam. 4. 11. and 5. 1. into Captivity: it being taken by the Philistines, v. 61. 4 Shutting up his people unto the Philistines Sword, v. 61. Gods fiery wrath by the Philistines Sword eating up their choise young men, so that their Virgins were not praised, i. e. not married: Metonym. of adjunct, v. 63. 5 Suffering their Priests, Ophni, and Phineas to be slain by the Sword, and no mourning made for them, v. 62. 2. By Gods mercies in midst of judgment, ver. 65. to the end. But herein we have the fourth Branch. The Conclusion of this Psalme.

IV. The Conclusion of this Psalme, by a Narrative of Gods Acts of Favour and Mercy to Israel in Canaan, notwithstanding all their Rebellions there, and in the Wildernesse, viz. 1. The Lords awaking as a mighty-one shouting after wine, and smiting the Philistines, to their eternal reproach, ver. 65, 66. 2. His returning no more to Shiloh with his Ark, but refusing Josephs Tent and Ephraims Tribe, he chose Judah and Mount Sion, ver. 67, 68. 3. His building his Sanctuary there, magnificently, and durably, v. 69. 4. His chosing of David, from feeding sheep, to feed his people Israel, ver. 70, 71. David's Government being commended, by 1. His Integrity: 2. His Prudence in managing that Government over Israel, ver. 72.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalme is a Prayer, chiefly made up of pathetical Lamentation, fervent Supplication, and professed Gratulation.

Occasion of this Psalme was some fatal calamity and misery which befell the Church of God in great extremity. Some s think the words and phrases are such as may agree. Either to the cruel times of Antiochus, or to the devastation of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar. Some t incline rather to the later, because of that passage; Pour out thine Indignation, &c. v. 6. which is the same imprecation which Jeremiah hath against the Babylonians, Jer. 10. 25. which makes it somwhat probable that Jeremiah might pen this Psalm towards the end of the Babylonish Captivity. This Psalme, and 74. are thought to be penned about the same time, and the 102. a little after u.

Penman of it seems not to be David. This History here lamented falling out long after Davids dayes. Nor is it probable, as Calvin notes, that David by a Prophetical spirit would speak thus historically. But whether it were Asaph, whose name is prefixed: Or Jeremiah, whose words are here in part used: Or Isaiah, who prayes somewhat like to this Prophet here, (See Isa. 64.) Or some other Prophet living about the time of the Captivity: is somewhat hard positively to determine.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope in this Psalme intended, is; To intreat the LORD for Deliverance of his Church from all those woful miseries and desolating cruelties brought upon Gods people the Jewes, by their wicked heathenish Enemies, especially seeing the glory of God was so much impeached by their Persecutors blasphemies, ver. 9, 10.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title denotes 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme, composed in Meetre. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick of it; To Asaph; or, For Asaph.

The Substance of the Psalme hath in it, the desolated Churches 1. Lamentations. 2. Petitions. And 3. Profession. The whole seems penned in the Churches name: and most pathetically.

I. The Lamentation or Complaint of the Church, is twofold, I. In reference to her Heathen enemies. And here is a doleful Complaint, 1. Of the cruelty of some enemies; probably the Babylonians. As, (1) Invading Gods inheritance, Canaan, (2) Defiling the Temple. (3) Desolating, and laying on heaps Jerusalem, ver. 1. (4) Cruelly destroying Gods Saints and Servants round about Jerusalem, and inhumanely denying their dead Corpses honest burial, ver. 2, 3. 2. Of the scornful derisions of others round about them, as Philistims, Edomites, Ishmaelites, Moabites, Ammonites, &c. rejoycing at their calamity, ver. 4. II. In reference to God himself. And here she sadly complains of Gods so long delaying to restore her out of her present grievous miseries, into her pristine felicities in the Holy Land, v. 5. Both these Lamentations are Amplified by a vehement Imprecation against her Heathen-enemies, that had so miserably eaten up and desolated the Church of God. Herein, 1 The Severity of the Judgment imprecated is pathetically expressed; Pour out, &c. 2. The Churches Enemies, the Object on whom this Judgment is Imprecated, are described by their utter Alienation from God, and his Worship, and his Church; Heathens which know thee not, —— ver. 6. 3. The Reason of this Imprecation is signified, viz. (1) Their cruel eating up of Jacob, the Church (2) Their strangely desolating Canaan his habitation, ver. 7.

II. The Petition of the Church is also twofold especially, viz. I. For themselves. And so they most earnestly intreat the LORD, 1. To forget and pardon former iniquities. 2. To hast unto their help, by prevenring them with their tender-mercies. 3. To help and rid them free from their present miseries. 4. To manifest and make known among the Heathens the vengeance of his Servants blood, even in their sight. 5. To hear the sighing of the Prisoner. 6. To reserve, or make remain, by his great Power, those that are destined to dearh. Sundry Reasons or Arguments being intermixed with these Petitions; drawn from, (1) Their present extreme low condition. (2) The Glory of Gods own Name. (3) The insolency and pride of their enemies, even against God Himself, ver. 8, 9, 10, 11. II. Against their Enemies, Babylonians, Edomites, &c. That God would recompence into their bosomes sevenfold the reproach wherewith they reproached God. Retaliation of reproach with aggravation, v. 12.

III. The Churches Profession of constant Gratitude to God, if he will compassionate her thus complaining, and hear her thus praying. Here, 1. The Church professing and promising this is described; Thy People ——. 2. Her professed Gratitude is specified; We will confesse to thee, we will tell thy praise. 3. The Constancy of this Gratitude is denoted; for ever: to Generation and Generation, ver. 13.

Sect. III. The Kind, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalme is for Kind, A Prayer. A fervent Prayer, A Lamentable Prayer, saith one r, in the person, of the miserable distressed and despoiled Church of God, begging Restauration from her miseries and Captivity.

r Procop. Lamentabilis, &c. Calv. in Arg. Psal.

The Occasion of it in General, was some great and long Calamity upon the Church, ver. 4, 5, 6, 12, 13, 16. As to the Particular, it is variously apprehended by interpreters. Some think it was written upon Occasion of Judah's Captivity in Babylon s. Some either upon Occasion of Judah's being carried Captive into Babylon, or of the ten Tribes being carried captive into Assyria by Shalmanezer t. But Calvin u excepts against that Opinion touching the Babylonish Captivity, there being here such mention of Israel, Joseph, Manasseh, Ephraim——, which were not carryed captive to Babylon. Others therefore rather think that some great affliction upon Judah, and some of Israel, gave Occasion of this Psalme. Especially when the ten Tribes forsook the house of David, 1 King. 12. 2 Chron. 10. and when Rehoboam forsook the Lord, 1 King. 14. 22. & 2 Chron. 12. 1 Then Shishak K. of Egypt wasted Rehoboam's Kingdom, 1 King. 14. 25. and 2 Chron. 22. 2. But the Jews repenting, God spared them, 2 Chron. 12. 12. and thereupon the Prophet seems to have written this Psalm. For, 1. When this Psalm was written, God did sit between the Cherubims, Psal. 80. 1. but God did not sit between the Cherubims under the Babylonish Captivity, the Temple being destroyed. 2. Ephraim and Manasseh mentioned, ver. 2. were not carried captive to Babylon. But after the division of the Kingdom, not only the Priests and Levites, but also many of the People out of all the Tribes came to Jerusalem and adhered to David's house, 2 Chron. 11. 13, 16, &c. x. However let the Learned judge.

u Calvin in Arg. Psal. 80. Sic & Lud. de Dieu.

Who was Penman of this Psalme cannot certainly be determined. Probably not David: because the Churches afflictions, here lamented, seem to have befallen her long after Davids death. Nor Asaph: for he lived in the dayes of David. And, though Asaph's name be prefixed in the Title, yet the Phrase may be rendred, A Psalme for Asaph, or To Asaph, i. e. recommended to the sonnes of Asaph, for the Musick of it. It is likely to be written by some holy Prophet who lived in the time of these afflictions of the Church, as Shemaiah the Prophet, 2 Chron. 11. 2, &c. and 12. 5, 7, 15. or some other.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein intended, is; To intreat the Lord, to return and restore his deeply distressed Church and people out of all their present miseries, and to make his face to shine upon them for their Salvation. This is the very Burden y of the Psalme, thrice repeated, and every time augmented: O God return us,—— verse 3. O God of Hosts, return us,—— verse 7. O LORD God of Hosts return us,—— verse 19. and there is another Passage partly like this, in verse 14. So that this is the very Scope of this Prayer. And therefore that of Augustine's, making this Psalme to intend, The com-

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title represents to us, 1. The Direction of the Psalme, as to the Musick of it: More Generally; To the Master-Musician. More Particularly, To Asaph. 2. The Musical Instruments whereon it was to be tuned; or the Tune, whereunto it was to be set; On Shoshannim Eduth. See the Interpretation of these words in the Analysis of Psal. 60. Title. Eduth signifies a Testimony or Ornament. This Psalme is an excellent Testimony of the Faith of Gods People in extreamest afflictions a. 3. The Denomination of it; A Psalme.

a Hen. Ainsw. in his Annot. on Psal. 80. Title.

The Psalme it self being singularly pathetical is made up of Petitions and Lamentations. 1. Petitions Propounded, vers. 1 to 14. 2. Lamentations inserted, ver. 4. to 14. 3. Petitions re-inforced, ver. 14. to the end.

I. Petitions of the afflicted Church, Propounded. Here note, I. The Object, to whom the Petitions are directed, Described 1. By his Pastoral Office of (1) Feeding Israel; (2) Leading Joseph. 2. By his special Presence and Residence among them Symbolically, sitting between the Cherubims. In these Descriptions are notable Arguments implied for Gods granting their Petitions. II. The Petitions themselves, viz. 1. For Audience. 2 For clear manifestation of Gods favour to them; Shine bright, ver. 1. 3. For stirring up his strength before Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh, (An Allusion to their posture and march in the Wilderness, these three Tribes coming next after the Tabernacle, Numb. 2. 17, 18, 20, 22. and 10. 21, 22, 23, 24.) to come and save them, ver. 2. 4. For returning them from misery, and causing his face to shine, that they might be saved, ver. 3.

II. Lamentations and Complaints of the afflicted Church, are pathetically interwoven: And they are laid down 1. Positively. 2. Comparatively.

1. More Positively, and Absolutely. Here consider I. The Object of their Laments and Complaints: O LORD God of Hosts. II. The Matter of their Complaints, viz. 1. Gods displeasure at their Prayer. Aggravated, (1) Hot-displeasure, smoak against Prayer, (2) Against Prayer of thy People. (3) For a long time. How long? emphatical Interrogation ver. 4, 2. The extreame mournfulness of their condition. Teares their bread and drink from Gods hand. Yea, a great measure of Teares, Shaliſh, A Trientalb. So called from three: containing a third part of the greatest measure, four times as big as their ordinary drinking cup. Teares by flagons, rather then Cups, ver. 5. 3. The great reproach that hereupon they were in by reason of their neighbouring enemies ver. 6. III. The Manner of their Complaints, with renewing the burden of their Prayer, for returning them from misery, and causing his face to shine for their salvation, ver. 7.

b Fran. Jun. in Annot. ad Ps. 80. Hen Ainsw. in his Annot. on Ps. 80.

2. More Comparatively, So they aggravate their Complaints by an elegant Parallel betwixt their former and present condition, under the similitude of a Vine and Vineyard. I. Their former prosperous State is described what it was from their coming out of Egypt till the time of this Psalme, viz. How 1. God brought Israel as a Vine out of Egypt. 2. He cast out the Heathen, Canaanites, &c. 3. He planted this Vine in Canaan, ver. 8: 4. He prepared the Land for it, viz. By his Promises to Abraham, &c. 5. Rooted this Vine there. 6. It filled the Land; covering the Hills, extending its branches and roots far and neer from the River Euphrates to the Sea, ver. 9, 10, 11. II. Their present calamitous Condition is contrariwise, under the same Metaphor or Allegory of a Vine, Lamented 1. More Generally, That God had broken down her hedges, her defence. 2. More Particularly, That hereupon sundry sad effects ensued unto here, viz. 1. Every Passer by did crop her, ver. 12. 2. The Boare out of the Wood wasted it. 3. The wilde Beast of the field devoured it, ver. 13.

III. Petitions of the Church are hereupon afresh re-inforced, with respect to the foregoing Complaints. And this, I. Allegorically, for the whole Church of Israel. Wherein note, 1. The Requests; That God would return, look down from Heaven, and mercifully visit this Vine and Vineyard. 2. The Reasons of this Request. And they are drawn, 1. From the Equity of the thing desired. It being a Vineyard of Gods own planting; A Son of the Vine, that is, a Branch of his own corroborating, ver. 14, 15. (2) From the extremity of their misery. Burnt. Cut down. Perishing under Gods displeasure, ver. 16. II. Plainly, (1) For Gods gracious helping hand upon the man of his right hand, Benjamin, and on the Son of man, &c. Jacob, beloved of God. Hereby some c think CHRIST also is meant, with his Body the Church, ver. 17. (2) For quickening or reviving them. The Arguments by which this is urged, are, 1. A Promise of their constancy with God. 2. A Promise of their Worshipping of him, ver. 18. III. Pathetically, The burden of the Psalm being now the third time, with some addition, repeated: For Gods returning them from present misery, and causing his face to shine, that they might be saved. And herewith the Psalm is concluded, ver. 19.

Where I did hear a language hid,
I did not understand.

6. From load his shoulder I removed:
His hands from basket past.
7. Thou cryd'st in straits, O my beloved,
Thee also I releas'd;
Thee I did answer in the Sea
In secret-place of thunder:
At waters of Meribah
I proved thee with wonder. Selah.

b Heb. or; strife.

8. Hear O my people dear, and I
Will testifie to thee:
O Israel obediently
If thou will hark to me.
9. In thee there shall not one be known
A strange an idol god:
Nor-yet-shalt-thou-thy-self-bow-down
Unto a forreign god.

10. I am the LORD thy God, from Land
Of Egypt c bringing thee.
Do thou thy mouth wide-open, and d It-shall-be-fill'd-by me.
11. But to my voice my people dear
Did not then hearken well:
e Nor any good affection-bear
To me did Israel.

c Heb. making the ascend.

12. So in their hearts perverse intents
I did-them-send-away:
In their own counsels lewdly bent
Still walk along shall they.
13. O that my people would have bin
To-me-obedient:
That Israel had walked in
My wayes, still permanent.

14. Their enemies full-speedily
I had debas'd to thrall:
And turn'd my mighty hand had I
On their distressers all.
15. The haters of the LORD, to him
Had-crouched-feignedly:
But yet the time of them had bin
To perpetuity.

16. Him also with f the fat of wheat
Compleatly fed had he:
And from the Rock with Honey-meat.
I-had-sufficed-thee.

f heb. or; flower of corne.

Sect. III. The Kind, Occasion, and Penman.

For Kind, This Psalm is of a mixt Nature, being both Hortatory and Doctrinal. Exhorting Israel to praise God solemnly, and obey him sincerely: Teaching them also what great and manifold cause they had to be obedient, and how much they prejudiced themselves by their Disobedience.

Occasion is not so certainly and particularly evident. Some think this Psalm was penned after the time of the Judges, when the worship of God was restored by Samuel or David l. Some, that it was written after Israel had rebelled in the wilderness, and would not go against the Canaanites, that they might subdue them and possess their Land, Numb. 14. and this is gathered from ver. 1, 2, 13, 14, &c. m.

l Jun. in Annot. ad Psal. 81. 1. m Joan. Foord in Expos. Ps. 81. 1.

The passages of the Psalm may be very well accommodated to this later Time and Occasion; but the Title seems not to agree thereunto; Asaph living in Davids, not in Moses dayes. And for this cause I cannot think that Moses did penne it. When, or by whomsoever it was written, In the general it seems to have been occasioned by Israels Disobedience to God, after his many obliging mercies manifested to them, ver. 10, 11. &c.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein intended, is; 1. To Excite Israel to praise the LORD most cheerfully in the set time of their Solemn Feasts, viz. The Feast of unleavened Bread, Feast of Weeks, and Feast of Tabernacles, Deut. 16. 1. to 18. 2. And to provoke them to obedience, by the mercies of God. 3. As also to bring them to repentance for their disobedience by bringing them to know what mercies they came short of thereby.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets before us, 1. The Direction of it, as the Musick, Generally, and Particularly; To the Master-Musician, To Asaph. 2. The Musical Instrumente whereon it was to be tuned, upon Gittith. Though some, not without good probability, are of opinion this may point out the Occasion of this Psalm as hath been formerly noted, See Psal. 8. Sect. 3. The Kind, Occasion, &c.

The Substance of the Psalm it self is Doctrinally Hortatory. Israel is here Exhorted 1. To Praise God cheerfully. 2. To obey God dutifully.

I. The Exhortation of Israel to the cheerful praising of God, is, 1. Propounded, and Described diversly, viz. 1. By the Acts of thankfulnesse. 2. By the Object. 3. By the manner, with variety of musical Instruments. 4. By the solemn time, when, ver. 1, 2, 3. II. Urged and enforced by sundry cogent Arguments, drawn, 1. From Gods instituting and ordaining of this Duty, when Israel came out of Egypt, viz. at Mount Sinai, v. 4, 5. 2. From Gods Redeeming Israel out of Egypt, and from all their oppression there, v. 6. 3. From Gods hearing Israel in straits, at Red-Sea, &c. delivering them there. 4. From Gods proving them, and giving them waters out of the Rock, at Meribah, ver. 7.

II. The Exhortation of Israel to due obedience unto God. And God himself is brought in as speaking to Israel most pathetically. Here, I. God incites Israel obediently to hearken to him, and to his Testimony, ver. 8. II. God chargeth them strictly not to have, or worship any strange forreign god, ver. 9. Because he is, 1. The LORD. 2. Israel's God. 3. His Redeemer out of Egypt. 4. He will fulfil his desire, Prayer. If he open his mouth wide, ask liberally and freely, he will fill it, ver. 10. III. Gods complaint against his people, up-braiding them, 1. Partly, for their Disobedience to his voice. 2. Partly, for their disaffection to himself, ver. 11. This is aggravated by Gods spiritual judgments upon them for this, leaving them to their own perverse-intendments, and their own Counsels, ver. 12. IV. Gods pathetical wish that Israel would have been obedient to him, and have walked in his wayes, ver. 13. which he notably Amplifies, by the great benefits that thereupon would have ensued to Israel, (which through disobedience they deprived themselves of,) viz. 1. His debasing and destroying their enemies ver. 14. 2. His subduing the haters of the LORD to, at least, a feigned submission to him. 3. His perpetuating of his peoples time, verse 15.

4. His

4. His feeding them with the fat of wheat, for necessity: and satisfying them with Honey out of the Rock, for delight, ver. 16.

Psalm LXXXII.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

The Psalmist, 1. Having taught and exhorted Judges to do their Duty, and reproved their negligence, ver. 1. to 8. 2. He beseecheth God himself to judge, ver. 8.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

A Psalm a of Asaph.

1. IN God's Assembly great
The mighty-God b doth stand:
Amidst the Gods on Judgement Seat,
He judgeth in the Land.
2. He saith, How long will you
Judge such injurious-ill
And faces of the wicked crew c Respecting-honour still? Selah.

3. Judge ye the poor-oppress't
The Fatherless also:
Unto the poor and much distress't
Impartial d Justice do.
4. The weakling out of hand
And needy rescue ye:
Them out of the oppressing hand
Of wicked-ones set-free.

5. e Nor understand do they,
Nor know (though oft reprov'd,)
They will in darkness walk astray:
Earth's grouud-works all are mov'd.
6. Thus say of you did I,
Ye Gods by Office are:
Likewise the Sons of the most-High
Ye-every-one-appear.

7. But-sure, f As earthly-men
Dye at the last ye shall:
And like one of the Princes then
Ye helplesly shall fall.
8. Arise O mighty-God,
Judge thou the Earth below:
For in all Nations abroad
Inherit pow'r shalt thou.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalm is Doctrinal, Hortatory, Reprehensory, and Petitory. Occasion; Generally, was some great corruption of Rulers and Judges, Neglecting or Perverting Judgement. But Particularly what Judges were here immediately intended; whether the corrupt Judges in dayes of King Saul, as some think g; who therefore suppose that David penned this Psalm after he had written, Psal 52. against Doeg, and after Psal. 58. against King Saul and his Court-Parasites, this Psalm notably agreeing with Psal. 58. Or the corrupt Judges before and in King Jehoshaphats dayes; which therefore put him (after Reformation in Religion) upon the appointing of Judges and Officers in all the Cities of Judah, and giving them great charge about the due performance of their Function, 2 Chron. 19. 4, 5, 6, 7. as others h think: I say, whether either of these, or some other corruption of Judges, gave Occasion to this Psalme is very hard positively to determine. The former seems more probable, because this Psalme was Penned in dayes of Asaph, and directed to him in respect of the Musick of it.

h Kimchi, ut habet Sim. de Muis in Arg. ad Psal. 82.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended herein, is; To teach and admonish the Judges, Rulers, and Princes of the Earth about their Office, and to excite them to all due care in the faithful discharge thereof, ver. 2, 3, &c. This is, The Judges Psalme. And it is very profitable to Sing this Psalme before new Judges: or others, when they are about to sit down on the Judgement Seat i.

i Utile profecto esset novis judicibus, aut jamiam ad judicandum sessuris percini hoc Carmen. Sim. de Muis in Arg. Psal. 82

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title contains, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 2. The Direction of it, as to the Musick of it; To Asaph. And some k think Asaph Penned it.

k Sim. de Muis in Arg. Psal. 82.

The Psalme it self contains

I. An excellent Doctrine, or Fundamental Position, fit for all Judges seriously to Consider upon, viz. That God himself is Present with, and President over, all Judges, and their Judgements, ver. 1.

II. A notable Improvement of this Doctrine and Position of Gods presence with Judges and Rulers in all their judicial Proceedings, exactly observing them. And this, 1. Towards Judges. 2. Towards God.

1. Towards Judges, ver. 2. to 8. Whom I. He sharply reprehends, for their corruption contrary to their Office, 1. In their unjust Judgements. 2. In their partial acceptance of the persons of wicked men. Both which are aggravated by their long continuance herein, ver. 2. II. He exhorts them to their duty of doing Justice and Judgement, in defending the innocent, though 1 Poor weaklings. 2 Fatherlesse. 3 Afflicted. And 4 Poor, and delivering them from the oppressing hand of wicked ones, ver. 3. 4. Hereunto they are urged by two sorts of Arguments, viz. 1. By Arguments drawn from the pernicious effect of the contrary to the Publick, viz. Confusion of all things will follow through want or neglect of Justice: All the Foundations of the Earth shall be moved out of place. Hyperbole. This is further aggravated by the threefold faultiness of the Judges causes of this great evil; (1) Their ignorance of the Law. (2) Their unwillingnesse fully to understand matters of Fact. (3) Their wilfulnesse to walk on in darkenesse, without due respect to Gods will or their own Conscience in matters of judgment, ver. 5. 2. By Arguments drawn from the pernicious effect of the neglect of Justice and Judgement to the Judges themselves, viz. Death, and suddain unexpected punishment, notwithstanding all their present greatness and power, ver. 6, 7.

2. Towards God himself. Who (upon consideration of the incurable and unsufferable Corruption of Earthly Judges and Rulers) is intreated to Arise, and take the Reines of Justice and Government, over the Earth, into his own hand. Hereunto he is urged, from his inheriting Soveraign Right and power over all Nations, ver. 8.

18. That they may know, when this is done,
That thou whose Name peculiarly
JEHOVAH is, That thou alone
Art over all the Earth most-High.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalme, for Kind, is a Prayer.

Occasion of it; In the General, was some malicious confederacy and mischievous conspiracy of the Edomites, Ishmaelites, Moabites, and other enemies against the people of God utterly to ruine them and the very name of Israel, ver. 2. to 9. But in Particular, At what time this fell out; whether in the dayes of King Hezekiah when Sennacherib by his own Forces, and by assistance of other enemies of Israel round about, did violently and insolently invade Judah, &c. as 2 Kings Ch. 18. and Ch. 19. as Junius k thinks. Or whether in the days of King Jehoshaphat, when Moab, Ammon, and Mount Seir, and with them probably many others, came to fight against Jehoshaphat and Judah, 2 Chron. 20. 1, &c. as most Interpreters both Jewish and Christian are of Opinion l; or whether at some other time, is hard positively and satisfactorily to determine.

k Prom. Junii Annot. ad Psal. 83. 1 Sim. de Muis Ar. in Ps. Ioan. Cocc. Com. in Ps. 83. 2—Hen. Alstr. Com. in Ps. 83. 6, 7, &c. Ja. Pont. Expos. Ps. 83.

Penman also of it, whether it was King Hezekiah, or some other Prophet in his time, or in the dayes of Jehoshaphat, is much more dubious, and uncertain.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalme, Is; To implore the LORD's help against the many violent enemies Confederate and Conspiring together against the People of God; and against God himself, v. 1, &c. v. 5.—10, &c.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are, 1. The Denominations of it; (1) A Song, for voice. (2) A Psalme for Musical Instruments. 2. The direction of it, as to the Musick, To Asaph.

In the Substance of the Psalme, are; 1. A Petition: 2. A Narration: 3. An Imprecation.

I. A Supplication or Petition to God, that he would not be as Silent, Deaf, or Still: especially at that time when the enemies made such a tumultuous noise, and lifted up the Head, ver. 1. This Petition is Pathetically urged, I. By Arguments drawn from the deportment of the enemies and haters of God against Gods people, viz. 1. Insolently tumultuating, or making a tumultuous noise. 2. Proudly exalting themselves, v. 2. 3. Craftily consulting and devising against Gods people, his hidden-ones, (hid of God in day of evil, Psal. 27. 5. and 31. 21.) v. 3. The sum of their crafty Consultations, being; (1) Partly, to cut off Gods people from being a Nation. 2. Partly, to blot out of memory the very name of Israel. v. 4. II. By an Argument drawn from their conspiracy and wicked confederacy herein against God himself, v. 5.

II. A Narration or Enumeration of the many enemies against God and his people. Then are reckoned up, viz. 1. Edomites. 2. Ishmaelites. 3. Moabites. 4. Hagarenes, or Arabians, ver. 6. 5. Gebal. 6. Ammonites. 7. Amalekites. 8. Philistines. 9. Tyrians, ver. 7. 10. Assyrians also helping Lots Children, viz. the Moabites and Ammonites, ver. 8.

III. An Imprecation of Gods people against these enemies

mies and haters of God and his People. And its very severe: they pray for Gods judgements upon them, I. Under sundry Examples, viz. That God would do to them, as he did of old. 1. To the Midianites, Judg. 7. 22, &c. 2. To Sisera and Jabin at the Brook Kishon, Judg. 4. 15, 24, &c. who perished at Endor, and became as dung for the Earth, ver. 9, 10. 3. To make their Nobles, as Oreb and Zeb, two Midian-Princes, Judg. 7. 25. 4. And all their Princes as Zebah and Zalmunnah (two Kings of Midian, Judg. 8. 12, 21.) ver. 11. These examples are amplified, by the sin whereof they were guilty, viz. invading the inheritance of God: and therefore their present enemies, being guilty of the like sin, v. 4. deserve the like judgements, v. 12. II. Under divers Similitudes. As, 1. Of a Wheel, or rolling thing. 2. Of Stubble before the wind, v. 13. 3. Of a Wood burnt up with fire. 4. Of a Mountain all in a flame, v. 14, 15. III. More plainly, they pray, 1. That God would fill their faces with shame, which is Amplified by the good effect desired to them thereby, viz. That they may seek Gods Name, ver. 16. 2 That God would abase them, and trouble them perpetually, yea put them to shame and destroy them ver. 17. This is illustrated by the end herein intended, viz. Gods glory, That all men may know that JEHOVAH is most High and reignes over all the Earth ver. 28.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

1. The Psalmist, Exiled from the Sanctuary, longs for the Communion thereof, ver. 1, 2, 3. 2: Declares how happy they are that dwell therein, ver. 4. to 8. 3: And earnestly prayes to be restored thereto, ver. 8. to the end.

Sect. II. The Version out of the Hebrew.

To-the-Master-Musician, upon Gittith, A Psalme, to the Sons of Korach.

I.

1. HOw lovely are thine Habitacles
O LORD of Hosts ador'd!
2 Still for the Courts and Tabernacles
Of thee the holy LORD
My Soul doth long, and also faint:
My heart, a my flesh also Shout-out, in this my sad restraint,
The living God unto.

3. Yea, ev'n the Sparrow finds an house,

4. e O they be bless't always
That in thine house have-their-abode:
And still they shall thee praise. Selah.

5. f O-happy man, whose strength art thou:

Do thou see from thy Throne:
And look-upon i the Countenance
Of-thine annointed-one.

To me is better farre
Than elsewhere in the world to stay
A thousand others are:
I chose in house of thee my God

Farre-rather than to make-abode
In Tents of wickedness.

11. For, to his Saints the LORD God is

Both Grace and Glory unto his
The LORD l will freely-yield;

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This sweet Psalme is a Prayer, a most devout, fervent, and pathetical Prayer, for the exiled Psalmists free and full Restitution to Gods Sanctuary and Communion with God in his Ordinances there.

Penman of it, Interpreters generally suppose to be David o, though his name be not prefixed. And I much incline to their Judgments herein; 1. Because the Subject-matter and Substance of the Psalme is so homogeneal and suitable to Psal. 63. written by David, and to Psal. 42. which most probably was penned by him. 2. Because the very frame and temper of Davids heart and spirit towards God and his Ordinances, is most lively here represented to us. Compare herewith Psal. 23. 6. and 27. 4. and 42. 1, 2, 3, 4. and 63. 1, 2, 3. 3. Because here's mention of Gods Anointed one, which stile the Author of this Psalme seems to give himself, ver. 9. 4. Because David was several times exiled from Gods Sanctuary and publick Ordinances, especially by King Saul's Persecutions, and his son Absalom's Insurrection: some of which may well agree with the Argument of this Psalme.

Occasion, Junius thinks, was Davids exile among the Philistines, through King Saul's persecutions p. Others referre it rather to the time of Davids exile by reason of his son Absalom's rebellion against him q. To this later also I shall the rather subscribe, because here is mention made of their appearing before God in Sion, vers. 7. now the Ark was not brought to Sion, till after King Saul's death, yet before Davids flight by reason of Absalom's rebellion, as the current of the History shewes. But whosoever was Penman, and whatsoever was the Occasion in particular, its evident by the matter of the Psalme in the General: That the Psalmist wrote this Psalme upon Occasion of his Exile and Debarment from his longed for Communion with God by his publick Ordinances in his Sanctuary.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Psalmists Scope in this Prayer, is; 1. To set forth before the LORD the fervent pantings and longings of his soul, (now in his Exile from the Sanctuary) after the publick Sanctuary Ordinances and their happy Priviledge, who enjoy the LORD's Presence, and gracious influences therein. 2. And earnestly to beseech the LORD to restore him compleatly thereunto, ver. 1, 2, 4, 9, 10. And if the earthly Tabernacles of God be so desirable; how much more desireable are the Heavenly mansions! Sweetly Augustine, Here we desire, there we receive, here we sigh, there we rejoyce; here we pray, there we praise; here we groan, there we exult r.

r Hic desideratur, ibi capitur hic suspiratur ibi gaudetur; hic oratur, ibi laudatur; hic gemitur, ibi exultatur. Aug. Enar. in Ps. 83. p. 91. 7. B. Tom. 8. Basil. 1569

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title note, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 2. The Direction of it as to the Musick. More Generally; To the Master-Musician: More Particularly; to the Sons of Korach. 3. The Musical Instrument, or Tune, wherewith it was to be Tuned, upon Gittith. See Psal. 8. Sect. 3.

In the Psalme it self consider, 1. The Psalmists vehement desire after Gods Tabernacles. 2. His Declaration of their happiness that have their abode therein, or free access thereto. 3. His earnest request that himself may be restored to this great mercy.

I. The Psalmists vehement desire after God and his Tabernacles. is Propounded and Illustrated. I. Propounded, 1. By way of Admiration or pathetical Exclamation (a sign s of intensive desire,) at the Amiableness of Gods Tabernacles. Which amiableness was the procreating cause of this his desire, even snatching his heart after them, ver. 1. 2. By way of pathetical Profession of his vehement desires. Where note, (1) The Object of his desires; The Courts of the Lord: The living God. (2) The Quality of them, as to their sincerity and integrity, being the Desires of his whole man; Soul, Heart, and Flesh. (3) The quantity of his desires, being most extensive and intensive, in highest degree, expressed by his longing, fainting, and shouting-out, ver. 2. II. Illustrated, 1. Partly, by the liberty of the very despicable Sparrow and Swallow, who without impediment can nestle themselves and put their young nigh to the Altars of God: when himself was forcibly debarred of like freedom, v. 3. 2. Partly, by the envyed happiness of them that had free abode in, and accesse to Gods Tabernacles, v. 4. to 8. which makes up the second Branch of the Psalme.

s Orditur autem Psalmum ab exclamatione, quæ inpenetis desiderii signum est. Sim. de Muis in Com. ad Ps. 84. 2.

II. His Declaration of their happiness that enjoy the liberty and Ordinances of the Sanctuary, whereof at present himself was deprived. These happy persons, were I. They that dwelt in Gods House: viz. The Priests and Levites. They herein happy, because they were still exercised in the Praises and worship of God, ver. 4. II. They who had strength in God, i. e. The people who by God had ability and liberty of coming to Gods house: and did affect to come thither, having the High-wayes to the Sanctuary in their hearts, ver. 5. Such people are here counted happy, 1. Because, God prospers their journey with good successe, ver. 6. 2. Because, by going to the House of God their number still increaseth, v. 7.

III. His earnest Petition for his Restauration to the Sanctuary. Here consider, I. His vehement and Pathetick request, To the Lord God of Hosts; To the God of Jacob, To God our shield, that he would Hear, Give ear, See, and look upon, the face of his annointed, ver. 8, 9. II. His Arguments whereby he enforceth this his Petition. And they are drawn, 1. From the excellency of this Priviledge of enjoying Gods Sanctuary, &c. (1) There a day, is better than a thousand else-where. (2) There its better to be at the threshold, than to dwell in Tents of wickedness, ver. 10. 2. From Gods Properties and Promises. (1) His Properties are Metaphorically set forth under the notion of A Sun and Shield. A Sun for Influence and Direction: A Shield for Defence and Protection. (2) His Promises, of giving Grace and Glory: of withholding no good thing from upright walkers. Or, the former, of A Sun and Shield, may be taken as a Promise also. Nothing in the Hebrew is to the contrary, ver. 11. III. His shutting up his Prayer with an Emphatical Admiration at that mans happiness that trusts in the LORD of Hosts, ver. 12.

Sect. III.

Sect. III. The Kind, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalme is of a Mixt Kind, made up of Prayer and Doctrine, and that (as sundry Interpreters p think) Prophetical Doctrine, touching Christ and his Kingdom, from verse 8. to the end.

Occasion of it (as is evident from the Psalme it self, ver. 1. to 8.) was some renewed trouble and great distress which befell the people of God, after their Captivity had been most graciously returned from Babylon. But what that renewed distress and affliction was, or when it befell them, is diversly apprehended. Some think it is to be referred to the woful times of Antiochus, who most cruelly oppressed, persecuted and dissipated the Church of God q. And that its probable this Psalme was then Dictated to some in the afflicted Church of God. Others, not satisfied with this, r think it hath reference to the troubles which befell the Jews returned from Babylon, Either about the re-building of the Temple which was hindred by their enemies for 42 years, viz. from the second or third year after their return, till the sixth year of Darius son of Hystaspis, compare Ezr. 4. 2. &c. and 6. 2, &c. and 6. 15. with Job. 2. 20. Or about their worship, and inhabiting in Jerusalem, &c, after the Temple was finished; for such were the incursions of their enemies upon them, that though they had built the Temple, yet could they not manage their Solemn Worship in quietness, nor dwell in Jerusalem in peace, till they had compleated the Walls and Gates about Jerusalem, Nehem. 1. &c. And to this latter Opinion I the rather incline for the reason given, viz. That nor this, nor any other Psalme, nor any other Scripture was written in the time of Antiochus: because Malachi, the last Prophet and Writer of the Old Testament, wrote his Prophecy a little before the end of the Persian Monarchy, as may appear by comparing his Prophecy with the last Chapters of Nehemiah s. Let the Learned Reader Judge. Penman, who he was, is altogether uncertain.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Psalmist in this Psalme, is; Upon commemoration of former deliverance from Babylon received, to intreat the LORD to rescue the Church of God from her present pressing Calamities, and to incite himself and the Church to wait for this Mercy and Deliverance, (which as a Type) was to have its full accomplishment in their Deliverance and Redemption by Jesus Christ.

Sect. V, The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are, 1. the Direction of it as to the Musick: More General, and more Particular 2. The Denomination of it; A Psalme.

In the Psalme it self note,

I. A grateful Recognition or Commemoration of mercy received from God by his people, which is here laid down as an experimental encouragement to Faith in the ensuing Petitions. The mercy acknowledged is here described, 1. By the Primary Cause thereof; Gods good-pleasure to his Land 2. By the kind of the mercy, viz. Returning Jacobs Captivity, from Babylon, ver. 1. 3. By the sweet way or effectual manner which God took in effecting hereof: He removed all the chief Causes of their Captivity, and impediments to their deliverance, viz. (1) Their sin and iniquity: which he had forgiven and covered, ver. 2. (2) His own exceeding wrath, and fervency of anger; which he had gathered away, and turned from, ver. 3.

II. An earnest Prayer to the LORD for delivering his people again from renewed distresse and affliction Here note, 1. The Compellation of God, suitably to the raising up of their hope; O God of our Salvation. 2. The Petitions, (1) Partly, for restoring them; Turn thou us: that is, from present trouble, to our former good estate. (2) Partly, for cessation and removall of his indignation, ver. 4. 3. A Pathetical Expostulation, (1) Against the long continuance of Gods anger upon them, ver. 5. (2) About Gods not turning and reviving his people, that they might rejoyce in him, ver. 6. 4. A renewed request for Gods Mercy and Salvation, ver. 7.

III. An holy and faithful resolution of the Psalmist, to expect and wait upon the LORD by hope, faith, and patience, &c. and for his gracious answer. Which resolution he confirmes and strengthens by sundry choice Arguments. As, 1. Because the Lord will speak peace to his people, and to his Saints. This is amplified by the good effect of both their Trouble and Peace, That they shall not return again unto folly and wickednesse, ver. 8. 2. Because, Gods Salvation is near to his fearers. This his Salvation is illustrated from Gods end intended therein, viz. That Glory might dwell in their Land, ver. 9. This Glory is excellently described, wherein it shall consist, viz. (1) Partly, In Spirituals. Set down in two Relations mutually embracing. viz. Mercy, and Faith, or Truth: The Mercy of God, received by the Faith of man. Righteousnes and Peace. Gods Righteousnes working Peace in man, as Rom. 5. 1. u ver. 10. 11. (2) Partly, In Temporals, all confluence of Temporals; ver. 12. (3) Partly, in the Habitual Prevalency and stability of Righteousnes before the LORD, v. 13. All which glory seems to be here intended to have its Primary and most Plenary accomplishment in the Kingdom of Jesus Christ: As both Ancient and Modern Writers expound the same.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm was Davids Prayer, as the Title shews: This poines out clearly both the Kind, and Penman of it.

Occasion of this Prayer, was some great distresse and affliction wherewith David was exercised by violent enemies, See v. 1, 7, 14. But as to the particular distresse here prayed against; whether, it was, His Oppositon by the Syrians, 1 Sam. 10. Or his distresse by reason of the Rebellion of Absalom his Son; as some o conjecture. Or his trouble from Sauls persecution, when he was forced to fly from King Sauls Court, and forced to live in a very poor and needy condition, &c. See ver. 1, 14. Kimchi, Sim. de Muis, Calvin, and H. Moller. p think: It is not so clearly determinable. Though in my judgement, the whole Tenour of this Prayer doth best agree to this last Opinion. However, This being a Prayer of David afflicted and distressed by his many violent enemies, wherein both the Petitions prefixed, & Arguments wherby those Petitions are inforced, are of common concernment to all Gods people in the like case afflicted: I greatly applaud the judgment of Junius q and Calvin r, who account this a most fit and excellent Form of Prayer for any of Gods dear people afflicted and distressed by violent adversaries. I may justly stile it; A sweet Prayer of an afflicted Saint, distressed by violent enemies.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope in this choise Prayer, is; 1. To intreat the Lord to hear, keep, save and shew-favour to him in his deep distresses by reason of his violent enemies; 2. And to establish him in his Truth and Fear notwithstanding all his troubles. See ver. 1, 2, 3, 11, 14, 17.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are expressed, 1. The Kind of this Psalm; A Prayer. 2. The Penman of it; David: A Prayer of David: or, Davids Prayer, his Eminent Prayer, &c.

In the Prayer, or Psalme it self, note, several sorts of Petitions, ueged by variety of Arguments, viz.

I. Davids Petitions for Audience, Preservation, Mercy and Comfort, are I. Propounded severally ver. 1, 2, 3, 4. II. Urged by two sorts of Arguments. 1. By Arguments drawn from the Petitioner himself, David. Which Arguments severally annexed to the several Petitions. As, he craves; (1) Audience. Partly, because he was Poor-afflicted. Partly, because he was Needy, ver. 1. (2) Preservation, and Salvation. Partly, because he was Holy. Partly, because he trusted in God, ver. 2. (3) Mercy, Because of his crying to him all the day, v. 3. (4) Comfort and joy to his Soul. Because he lifts up his Soul unto God, ver. 4. 2. By Arguments drawn from God himself, viz. His (1) Goodness. (2) Readiness to forgive. (3) Abundant mercifulnesse to all that call upon him, ver. 5. (4) Readiness to hear in day of trouble. Therefore he craves audience, and promise th to call upon him in such a day, ver. 6, 7. (5) Excellency of the Lord above all Gods, and of his works above all other works, ver. 8. This Excellency is illustrated, by the influence it shall have upon all the Gentiles, bringing them to worship God and glorifie his Name. A tacit Prophecy and promise of the calling of the Gentiles, ver. 9. (6) Greatness, demonstrated by the effect thereof, his doing wondrous things. 7 Singular unity. God alone, ver. 10.

II. Davids earnest and heavenly request to the Lord to direct him in his way, and unite him to his fear. This he urgeth, 1. From his Resolution and Promise of walking answerably, ver. 11. 2. From his his Promiſe of entire and conſtant thankfulneſs to God: (1) In General, For his great mercy towards him. (2) In Particular, for delivering his Soul from the loweſt hell, ver. 12, 13. 3. From the inſurrection and cruelty of his proud violent and Atheiſtical enemies, ver. 14. 4. From the ſweet Nature of God; being (1) Tenderly-mereiful: (2) Gracious: (3) Long-ſuffering: (4) Much of loving kindneſs: (5) Much of Truth, ver. 15.

III. Davids Petition to the LORD, for his Return, Mercy, Strength, Salvation, and ſome ſign for good to David. Which is urged, 1. Partly, from Davids Relation to God. His Servant: Son of his Handmaid, His born-ſervant. 2. Partly, from the effect hereof upon his enemies, ſhame and confuſion, when they ſhall ſee that the Lord helps and comforts, (David, ver. 16, 27.

6. The LORD, in writing e folk, will count:

7. And Singers, as Flute-players there:
All my f Well-ſprings in thee.

Sect. III. The Kind, Occaſion, and Penman.

This Pſalm is Laudatory or Commendatory, and Prophetical, in reference to the Church of God. Short (as Auguſtine g ſaith well) in the number of words: but large in the weight of all its Sentences. And by reaſon of its brevity, it hat in it the more obſcurity: inſomuch that another ſaith; In this Pſalme very where are great darkneſſes h.

Occaſion of it, Calvin and others think was the low, mean, and weak condition of the Church of God after her return from Babyloniſh Captivity, and re-edifying of the Temple and Jeruſalem: whereupon perhaps ſome of the Sons of Korach took occaſion by the Spirits Inſpiration to write this Pſalm, for the ſupport and comfort of Gods people, againſt all the preſent meanneſs, weakneſs, and deſpicableneſs of the Church of God, by conſideration of her ſtability, and Spiritual Glory in the acceſs of the Gentiles to her for the future, &c. i. And the current of the Pſalm well agrees hereunto. Yet ſome others k think, This Pſalm was Penned, after David had brought up the Ark of God to Jeruſalem, and placed it in the Tent prepared for it in Mount Sion, 2 Sam. 6. and 1 Chron. 16. 1. Or rather after God had ſhewed to David the place where the Temple ſhould be built, 2 Sam. 24. 18. which is rather embraced. I leave all to the judgement of the Learned, in a Caſe ſo difficult.

Penman of this Pſalme is conſequently as uncertain as the Occaſion: Some l as Kimchi, Foord, and others, thinking it was David, and that he wrote it by a Prophetical Spirit before the Temple was founded; Others m ſuppoſing it rather to be written by ſome of the Sons of Korach, or other Prophet, after the Return of the Jewes from Babyloniſh Captivity. Be it how it will, it is not doubted by any, but generally confeſſed by all, that the Holy Ghoſt was the Author of it.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Pſalme is; To diſplay the ſurpaſſing Stability, Glory, and Amplitude of the Church, under the Type and Figure of Sion and Jeruſalem, That her ſingular excellency being duely eſteemed, ſhe may be dearly affected, and God highly glorified in her and for her, by all her true and genuine members.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are, 1. The Direction of it as to the Muſick of it; To the Sons, &c. 2. The Denominations of it; A Pſalme, a Song.

In this Laudatory Prophetical Pſalme, The high Excellency of the Church of God, under the Figure or Type of Sion and the City Jeruſalem, is moſt elegantly and patherically deſcribed. But eſpecially theſe three wayes, viz.

I. By her firm Foundation. In, or among the Mountains of holineſs. As the Temple was founded on M. Moriah and Sion, 2 Chron. 3. 1. Pſal. 2. 6. or among the holy Mountains round about Jeruſalem, Pſal. 125. 2. So Gods Church is founded by Gods eternal Decree, &c. upon Chriſt Jeſus, v. 1. This her firme Foundation is further Amplified, By the procreating cauſe thereof, viz, Gods peculiar love to the gates of Sion, (i. e. To Sion: Synechd.) more than to all other the dwellings of Jacob, v. 2. So God hath choſen us in Chriſt of his meer love, grace, &c. Epheſ. 1. 3. to 7.

II. By the glorious Teſtimony of God and his Prophets touching the City of God, Jeruſalem, in Type; The Church, in Truth; O City of God, (Apoſtrophe) Glorious things, &c. v. 3.

III. By the diffuſion and enlargement of the Church throughout all Nations, by the calling of the Gentiles. Here, I. The Calling of the Gentiles to the fellowſhip of the Church is elegantly deſcribed; 1. By Induction or Enumeration of ſundry particular Nations, that ſhould be added to the Church, (though Partly through their wealth and pride; Partly through their enmity and hatred to Gods City, this might ſeem never ſo improbable.) As, (1) Rahab, (i. e. Ægypt, ſo called Pſ. 89. 11. Iſa. 51. 9.) (2) Babel.

(3) Palestina: the Land of the Philistines. (4) Tyre. (5) Cush, i.e. Æthiopia, Psal. 68. 32. Under these, by a Synecdoche, understand all the rest of the Gentiles. 2. By the Profession and Observation of that their Call; I will make mention——And——it shall be said——Where, this Call is illustrated by the powerful effect it should have upon the called Gentiles; They should be born in the Church. 3. By the fruit and end of this their Calling. Thus the most High shall establish the Church, v. 4, 5. 4. By the LORD's own Testimony confirming this Call of the Gentiles, in an elegant allusion to the Practice of men, in Registring and Enrolling free Citizens, v. 6. II. This Enlargement, and the other glory of the Church, is notably illustrated, by the great joy and refreshment which it shall effect in the genuine members thereof, metaphorically set forth under the similitudes of Singers, Pipers, and Well-springs there; or, Eyes, aspects there, The faithful beholding with great joy and delight this Enlargement and Glory of the Church, v. 7.

In darkness mine acquaintance are.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Occasion, and Penman.

This is a most doleful Lamenting Prayer of the Psalmist in extreamest affliction. It is counted a Doctrinal, or Teaching Psalme: but it is a Lamenting Expostulation. One saith; This Psalme is the most doleful of all the Bible, full of Complaints even to the end f. Both Augustine t, and Hieronym u, count this Psalme to be a Prophetical Description of the Passion and Sufferings of Christ for us, which were most severe and extream. And H. Mollerus x inclines so far to them herein as to think, that these extream dolours, whether of David or Heman here described, may be looked upon as it were types of Christs deepest sorrows. Whether Christs sorrowes or sufferings were here at all intended or no by the Holy Ghost, I will not peremptorily determine: But this is evident, that the deepest of these expressions are not beyond the woful sufferings of Christ. It is somwhat congruous to those Psalmes, vulgarly called Penitential, viz. Psal. 6. 32, 38, 51. 102, 130, 143. especially to some of them. There are also some other Psalmes of like nature; as Psal. 25, 42, 43, 69. &c. especially Psal. 77. Its one of the Maschil's or Instructing Psalmes, (See Psal. 32. Sect. 3.) Instructing the choicest and dearest of Gods People, That though deepest afflictions and miseries befall them, they should not look upon their condition as desperate, but hopefully look up and pray to the LORD their God for deliverance and salvation. And its one of those which are called both A Song, and A Psalme: the reason whereof is variously apprehended, Probably, it denotes some observable singularity in the Subject-matter of the Psalme. See what is noted to this purpose on Psal. 30. Sect. 5.

Occasion of writing this Expostulating Psalme, was (as the Subject-matter of it in the general hints) some extream afflictions and miseries even almost to death, which befell the Penman of it; (what those his miseries were is not particularly known,) whereupon he represents his deep Lamentations and Complaints by Prayer to his God, yet not without hope of his Salvation and Deliverance by the Lord out of all his extremities. Annius a Commentator of Philo, thinks (as H. Mollerus y hath noted) that this Psalme was set forth and sung in the six years wherein Jehojakim was in prison at Babylon: And Philo saith, the following Psalm was set forth to give thanks for the preservation of the Jewish Nation, when Evilmerodach brought Jehojakim out of prison. But herein Mollerus determines nothing: nor dare I in a case so dark and dubious.

Penman of this Psalme, (as the Title seems to inform us) was Heman the Ezrachite. There were two p Heb. thy face.

q Heb. cut-out.
r Heb. they-round-encompass-me.

t Aug. Enar. in Psal. 87.
u Hier. in Tit. Psal. 87. Tom. 8 x H. Moll. subsin. Art. in Psal. 88.
y Hen. Moller. in Arg. Psal. 88.

two Hemans and Æthans; viz. 1. Heman and Æthan, Singers and Musicians of the posterity of Levi the Patriarch, 1 Chron. 15. 17, 19. and 16. 42. Heman being the son of Joel, the son of Samuel the Prophet 1 Sam. 6. 33. himself being also a Seer or Prophet in King Davids dayes, 1 Chron. 25. 5. And of the Kingdom promised to David doth Æthan treat, Psal. 89. 4. &c. Christs Afflictions and Kingdom are in these Psalmes foretold, (thinks Ainsworth.) He was the true David, Hos. 3. 5. 2. Heman and Æthan sons of Zerach the son of Judah the Patriarch, and thence called Ezrachites, 1 Chron. 2. 46. They were men so renowned for their wisdom, that Solomon himself is in point of wisdom compared with them, 1 K. 4. 31. And Calvin thinks, its no wonder, that a man indued with such a spirit of wisdom, should be Penman of this Psalme a. And divers (as Junius, Foord, b &c.) think, these later Heman and Æthan were Penmen of these two Psalmes 88. and 89. But c Muis hath a shrewd objection against this: How could these two brothers sons of Zerach pen these two Psalmes, seeing Psal. 89. speaks so plainly of Davids Kingdom, and of some sad events that had befallen it, ver. 3.——38, &c. which things came to pass long after these second Heman and Æthan were dead. Therefore he thinks it might be some of their posterity called after their Names, (who probably lived in the dayes of King Solomon and Rehoboam) and Ezrachites from Zerach Head of their Family. For my part, I see no inconvenience in this his Resolution. But I leave this to the Judgement of the Learned.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalme, is; 1. More Immediate and peculiar to Heman himself: viz. To intreat the LORD for Relaxation and Deliverance from his manifold and extream miseries, pathetically spread before the LORD, v. 1, 2, 13. 2. More mediate and Common to other of Gods deeply afflicted people: viz. To instruct and teach Gods best and dearest servants, that they are not in this life exempt from severest extremities of deadly distress and affliction: and yet they should not in any the worst extremities despond or despair, but open all their grief by prayer, complaints and expostulations, to their God in hopes and expectation of relief and succour from him even in lowest condition. In this Psalme we have (as some think) a Patern of Prayer and Deportment in our private affliction: In Psal. 89. a Pattern of Prayer, &c. in case of the Churches publick Calamity d.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title of this Psalme are, 1. The Denominations of it, A Song, A Psalme. See Psal. 30. Sect. 5. Title. 2. The Direction or Recommendation of it, as to the Musick, (1) More Generally; To the Sons of Korach (2) More Particularly; To the Master-Musician upon Machalath leannoth, that is, Either A Wind-Instrument, to sing or play by turnes. Or, the beginning, or name, of some famous sad Tune. Or the words may be interpreted; Touching infirmity; to afflict, or Humble. Having respect to the Subject-Matter of the Psalme. 3. The Nature, Kind, or Sort of the Psalme: Maschil. See Ps 32. Sect. 3. A Psalme to give Instruction to the deeply afflicted children of God. 4. The Author or Penman of it: Heman the Ezrachite.

In the Psalme it self, which is, A most sad Lamenting Expostulating Prayer, note

I. The Ground and Foundation of his Prayer, viz. His confidence in God, as sole Author of his Salvation.

II. His Prayer grounded hereupon, is described; As Past, As Present. I. His Prayer for time past, is set forth, by the 1. Zeal and fervency of it, I have cryed 2. Sincerity of it; before thee. 3. Assiduity, and importunity of it; night and day, ver. 1. II. His Prayer for present, is for Audience of his Prayers now in his distress: set forth in two phrases, ver. 2.

III. His Arguments or Reasons whereby he endeavours to enforce his Prayer, are drawn from the Extremity of those Miseries and Calamities, wherewith he was even overwhelmed. As

1. His Soul was even glutted with evils of affliction.

2. His very life was in condition of Death: viz. He was, 1. As a dying man, ver. 3. 2. As a man quite dead, and without strength, going to the grave; ver. 4. 3. As a man buried like the slain, forgotten of God, and cut off from his hand, ver. 5. yea as a man in lowest pit, darkness, and deeps; past all hopes of reviving, ver. 6.

3. All Gods waves afflicted him, flowing from Gods wrath permanent upon him, ver. 7.

4. His desolate and extream destitute condition, 1. Being deprived of his Acquaintance, abominating him. 2. Being shut-up as in a Dungeon or Prison, that he could not come forth to refresh himself, ver. 8.

5. His mournful tears through affliction, mingled with his dayly and instant Prayers ver. 9.

6. His extream low condition of misery into which God had brought him. Being, 1, As Dead, 2. In the Grave, 3. In Destruction, 4. In Darkness, 5. In the Land of forgetfulness. Whereupon he expostulates the ease with God: wether God in that his extremity intended to work miracles; And how men in such state could possibly declare and propagate Gods praises, ver. 10, 11, 12.

IV. His Prayer is afresh repeated, and described, by 1. The fervency of it. 2. The earnestness of it, v. 13. This is again Amplified and enforced,

1. By a Pathetical Expostulation with God, 1. For rejecting him. 2. For hiding his face from him v. 14.

2. By a doleful complaint of the extremity and grievousness of his Afflictions, Described most pathetically and elegantly. He being, 1. Ready to dye through affliction, from his youth up. 2. Distracted, through Gods terrours, ver. 15. 3. Overflowed with God's burning wrath. 4. Cut-off quite with his terrours, ver. 16. 5. Surrounded and encompassed daily with these miseries, as with waters, ver. 17. 6. Deprived utterly of Lover, fellow-friend, and Acquaintance, hiding them as in darkness from him, or hiding them from him thus brought into darkness, ver. 18.

Of my Salvation.
27. I also freely will him give

Likewise against-my-faithfulness

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is of a Mixt Kind, or Nature: made up of Praise, Prayer, Instruction, Prophecy, Expostulation, &c. Its one of the Maschil's or Instructing Psalmes o: Teaching and Instructing the Church of God how to be affected, in regard of publick Mercies or Miseries of the Church, rejoycing and praising God for the one, lamenting and bewailing the other.

o See Psal. 32. Sect. 3.

Penman of it (as the Title declares) was Æthan the Ezrachite. Who this Æthan was, is much doubted. Some do conjecture it was not Æthan brother of Heman, one of the Master-Musicians, a Levite, 1 Chron. 6. 33. but the Brother of Heman, the Sons of Zerach, the posterity of Judah, 1 Chron. 2. 4, 6. called an Ezrachite, from Zerach, Head of that Family p. This Æthan was a very wise man in his dayes, 1 King. 4. 31. Yet because this Æthan was probably dead long before Davids time, I suppose it may be safer to understand it of one of his Posterity, and of the same Name, and living after Solomons dayes, when Davids Kingdom was so wofully ruined & dissipated. But in a matter so difficult and doubtful, I list not to be too definitive, p Joan. Foord in Expos. Ps. 89. Tit. Sim. de Muis in Arg. Ps. 88. & 89.

Occasion whereupon, and time when this was writted, In General, was some great ruine and calamity which befel the Kingdom of David, which seemed even to make void Gods former Covenant with David for the perpetual establishment of his Seed and Throne: But in Particular what publick Calamity this was, and when it fell out, is much doubted by Interpreters. Some q referre it to his Kingdomes future calamity foretold, which befel the Jews, either under the Babylonish Captivity or Antiochus his Tyranny, &c. But the whole Psalme, especially, v. 38. to the end, plainly speak the contrary, and declare that these Calamities had actually befallen Davids Kingdom, when this was written. Others r therefore seem better and more probably, to refere the Time and Occasion to the decay and ruine of Davids Kingdom which sadly began after King Solomons death: when the ten Tribes forsaking Rehoboam and Davids house, and Gods pure worship: they followed Jeroboam, setting up a new Religion and a new Kingdom, 1 King. 12. 1, &c. And when Rehoboam forsook the Law of the LORD, 2 Chron. 11. 17, &c. and 12. 1. and when Shishak King of Egypt in Rehoboam's fifth year invaded Judah, overcame Rehoboam, and spoiled the whole Kingdom, 2 Chron. 12. 2. &c. Hereupon Æthan considering the woful ruine of the Kingdom, wrote this Psalme, praising the Mercy and Truth of God, who had promised to perpetuate Davids Kingdom: Hereby to raise up the hopes of the Faithful, to expect the Restauration of Davids miserably ruined Kingdom; especially in the Kingdom of CHRIST, the true David, Hos. 3. 5.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein principally intended, is; 1. To praise God, for his Covenant, Mighty Power, Care of his Church, and singular favour to David in promising him a Perpetual Seed and Kindom, which was to have its chief accomplishment in Christ and his everlasting Kingdom, withall, lamenting the present deplorable condition of his decai'd and ruined Kingdom, To pray for the Restauration thereof. 2. To instruct Gods People, by this Platform of Praise, Lamentation, and Prayer, How to be affected with, and carry themselves towards the Lord in all his publick Dispensations of Mercy or Misery to his Church.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth, 1. The Denomination of this Psalme; Maschil. Or, An Instructive-Psalme. The whole of it tends to Instruction, as hath been now noted in Sect. 3. f. 2. The Penman; Ethan the Ezrahite: of him see formerly in Sect. 3.

f See also Psal. 32. Sect. 3.

The Psalme it self consists of 1. Praise, and 2. Prayer.

I. Praise is here presented to God, in sundry respects, verse 1. to 38. viz.

1. In respect of his Covenant with David, touching his Seed and Throne. Here note, I. A Profession of the Psalmists Resolution, 1. To sing the LORD's Covenant-Mercies towards David and his house for ever, (however it were at present beclouded with afflictions.) 2. To make known Gods faithfulness to him to all Generations, ver. 1. II. A Confirmation of his Faith in Gods Covenant with David, and of this his professed Resolution of Praising God continually hereupon, by sundry Reasons or Arguments. Which are drawn, 1. From Gods everlasting Mercy. 2. From his firme unchangeable faithfulnesse, verse 2. 3. From his Covenant with David; whereof note, 1. The manner of its Sanction, by Gods Oath, verse 3. 2. The Matter of it; Gods perpetual establishment of his Seed and Throne, (this had its chief accomplishment in Christ and his Kingdom, Luke 1. 32, 33. 69. Act. 2. 30. and 13. 36, &c. ver. 4.

2. In respect of Gods wonderful Power. Whereby he is fully and exactly able to make good and perform his Covenant and faithful promises to David, and to relieve his distressed Family to the uttermost, though never so low at present. This Power of God is asserted, 1. From the testimony of the Heavens; The Heavens shall confess thy marvellous-work, i. e. The Fabrick of Heavens shall confess thy marvellous Power and Act in Creating and Governing the World. Or, Heavenly Creatures, Angels and godly men, shall confesse thy marvellous Power and Act, in performing thy Covenant, restoring thy afflicted, &c. and they shall confesse thy faithfulnesse in the Church of Saints, vers. 5. 2. From the incomparable excellency of God, above all the Angels in Heaven. Above all Sons of Mighties, Princes, Potentates, &c. on Earth: Or, Angels in Heaven, ver. 6. 3. From the dreadfulness of God, (viz. in his judgements upon them that believe not his All-sufficient Power, as Numb. 14.) and therefore to be greatly feared and reverenced by all his chief Creatures, his Saints, &c. which may be understood of holy men, or Angels, ver. 7. 4. From the unparalleld evidences of his Power and faithfulnesse. Generally hinted, vers. 8. Particularly evidenced; (1) In his Ruling the Raging Sea at his pleasure, ver. 9. (2) In his beating down Rahab (that is, Pharaoh and the Egyptians, as Psal. 87. 4.) and scattering his enemies, &c. verse 10. (3) In his Soveraign Right over Heaven and Earth. They are his. (4) In his Creating the whole World and all therein: The North, and Right-side, viz. The South: (The West, and East †, verse 11, 12. (5) In the might of his Arm, strength of his Hand, high exaltation of his Right-hand, vers. 13. 5. From sundry Essential Attributes of God, Justice, Mercy, and Truth: whereby he is able and willing to make good his Covenant, advance Davids dejected Kingdom, and suppress the enemies thereof, ver. 14.

† The North] Which God hath stretched out over the emptyplace Job 26. 7.——

The right-side] that is, the South, (as the Chaldee Paraphrast explaineth,) so called; because, a man standing with his face to the East (as they were wont when the prayed) the South as on his right hand. So the East, is called Kedem, before; Achor, that is, behind, Job 23, 8. Psal. 9. 12. turned to Superstition and Idolatry, that was placed East; Therefore God so ordered his Tabernacle and worshipped there, with their faces to the West, Ezek. 27. Numb. 3. Tabor] a goodly Mountain in Gallilee, Judg. 4. 6, 12. Hermon] Another fair mountain without Jordan, called also Shirion, See Psal. 42. these are meant the East and West-parts, as the other is the North and South: As the Chaldee Paraphrast saith; Tabor West, and Chermon that is in the East. M. Ainsworth in his notes on Psal. 89. 13.

3. In respect of Gods benignity and care over his Church and People: especially in the Kingdom of David, and Christ, Here, 1. His Church and people are described; A people that know the joyful sound, viz. Of the Trumpet calling to Solemn Assemblies wherein they were to have communion with God. 2. Their happiness is asserted; O the blessedness of the people——. 3. This their happiness is explicated, by the sweet fruits and effects of enjoying Gods ordinances upon the joyful sound, viz. (1) Walking on in the light of Gods Countenance, ver. 15. (2) Constant gladness in God's Name. (3) Exaltation in his Righteousness, ver. 16. 4. All this is illustrated by the Causes thereof, viz. (1) The Lord being the glory of their strength. (2) His favour, exalting them, ver. 17. (3) Their Shield (in Davids and Christs Kingdom) being from him. (4) Their King (or Davids Race, especially CHRIST himself) being of the Holy one of Israel, ver. 18.

4. In respect of Gods singular favour to Davids Kingdom and Seed; and especially to Christ and his Everlasting Kingdom, principally intended therein. In both, Gods great care and love to his Church was Eminently Demonstrated. Here Note. I. The Manner of Gods revealing his pleasure and purpose touching Davids and Christs Kingdom, viz. By Vision to his holy Prophets. II. Gods Election and Vocation of David to the Kingly Office, ver. 19. 20. III. Gods Promises to, and Covenant with David, 1. To establish and strengthen him, ver. 21. 2. To protect him from his enemies power and prevalency over him, ver. 22. 3. To subdue his enemies and haters, verse 23. 4. To be with him by his mercy and faithfulness, and to exalt his power, vers. 24. 5. To enlarge his Dominion to the Sea and Rivers, vers. 25. 6. To accept him in a near and dear Relation to himself, as a Father, &c. his first-born, &c. ver. 26, 27. 7. To perpetuate his mercy to him, and establish his Covenant with him, verse 28. 8. To prepetuate his Seed, and his Throne for ever, verse 29. This last Promise is further amplified, (1) From adversity of Dispensation in case of his Childrens disobedience, viz. Castigation of them with his Rod and Stripes of affliction, ver. 30, 31, 32. (2) From his fixed resolution notwithstanding, Not utterly to take from him his loving-kindness; Not to suffer his faithfulness to fail, vers. 33. Not to break his Covenant; Not to alter his Promise, ver. 34. (3) From the Adjunct Oath of God for confirmation of his Covenant with David, vers. 35. (4) From Similitude of things durable in Heaven above, viz. The Sun, and Moon, the faithful witness in Heaven to this Covenant of God, ver. 36, 37.

II. Prayer to the LORD, is hereupon Pathetically poured forth, vers. 38, &c. wherein, the Psalmist Complaineth, Expostulateth, Petitioneth, and Blesseth.

1. Complaineth of sundry sad Events to the Kingdom of David, seemingly contrary to Gods former Covenant and Promises, viz. 1. That God had rejected, abhorred, and been wroth with his Anointed, ver. 38. 2. That God had abolished his servants Covenant. 3. That God had Prophaned his Crown to the Earth, ver. 39. 4. That God had ruined all his Kingdoms, Defences, and strong-holds, verse 40. 5. That here-hereupon he was ſpoyled by all paſſers by and reproached by his neighbours, ver. 41. 6. That his enemies were exalted, and rejoyced, verſ. 42. 7. That God had deſerted him in the day of Battel, ver. 43. 8. That God had diminiſhed and made ceaſe his glory and brightneſs. 9. That God had thrown down his Throne to the ground, ver. 44. 10. That God had ſhortned the dayes of his youth, and covered him with ſhame, ver. 45.

2. Expoſtulateth with God, 1. For his hiding himſelf ſo long from all this miſery upon Davids Kingdom for ever. 2. For the vehemency of his wrath burning like fire, ver. 46.

3. Petitioneth the LORD, 1. To remember, the ſhortneſſe of his time; The vanity of all men; The certain and inevitable Mortality of Man, verſe 47, 48. 2. To remember and manifeſt his former lovingkindneſſes ſworn to David in truth, verſe 49. 3. To remember, the reproach of his Servants; His own reproach from all the mighty people; The reproach of Gods enemies wherewith they have reproached the footſteps of his Anoynted, viz. The wayes, life, actions, ſufferings, &c. of David, of Chriſt and his Members verſe. 50, 51.

4. Bleſſeth the LORD, hoping the LORD will hear, and reſtore Davids Kingdom. And ſo concludeth this Pſalme (and this third Book of Pſalmes) with, Amen, and Amen u, verſe 52.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm (as the Title declares) is A Prayer.

Penman of it, was Moses the man of God: it being entituled, A Prayer of Moses the man of God: who can rationally be imagined to be the Amanuensis of it, but Moses? And (as Calvin notes) the rather, because even in Moses's times Psalmes were in use p. And, therefore, Augustine and others do causelesly doubt of Moses writing this Psalm q. And the conceit of Saadia, understanding by this Phrase, A Prayer of Moses, A Prayer of the posterity of Moses, viz. the Levites, by an Eclipsis, is justly rejected by learned Expositors r, as altogether needless and impertinent in this place, where such an honorifical mention is made of Moses; ——Of Moses the man of God. Hierome resolves better s, That the same Moses, who in Genesis wrote of mans condition, is here brought in by the Holy Ghost to dispute what man is, &c.

Occasion of Moses writing this Psalm is variously apprehended. Some think Moses wrote it when he had numbered the people of Israel the second time in the Plains of Moab, Numb. 1. 1, 45. 46 t. The Chaldee Paraphrast hath it thus; A Prayer, wherewith Moses the Prophet of the LORD prayed, when the People of the house of Israel sinned in the Wilderness, He spake and said u: ——Hereupon, sundry Interpreters x, eying the Matter of the Psalme, incline to follow the Chaldee Paraphrast: Only whereas the Chaldee speaks more Generally, they point out the Occasion more particularly, viz. That, when the Spies, sent to search the Promised Land, had returned and made their report of it, all Israel murmured so grievously against Moses and Aaron, the Lord was so deeply displeased, that he Sware, that none of them of that Generation that provoked God, should enter into it, but they should wander in the Wilderness, till all their Carcases should be fallen there, See Numb. 13. and 14. throughout. Hereupon, at Gods dreadful Sentence of Death upon that whole Generation, they conceive Moses Penned this Psalme, As a Form of Prayer wherein the people were to lament their own exceeding fragility, as well as the common mortality of mankind; confessing and bewailing their sins the Cause thereof, and imploring the Lord for his Grace and favour against their present misery, and for their present and future undertakings. But Calvin y thinks, if conjecture may have place, it is credible, that Moses wrote this Prayer, when now the time of his death was at hand that he might lenify the daily grief under which the people had almost pined away, and might refresh their minds oppressed with an heap of evils for forty years together in the Wilderness. Therefore he opportunely prayes; Make thou us rejoyce, according to the dayes thou hast afflicted us, the years wherein we have seen evil, ver. 15. I see not any inconvenience, why these two last Opinions may not be joyned together: The Occasion being, Israels many miseries, especially their great mortality in the wilderness; The time of writing this Psalme upon that Occasion, being a little before Moses's death. Let every one herein enjoy his own judgment.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope chiefly intended in this Prayer, is; In deep sense of humane frailty, and of Israels great mortality and miseries in the Wilderness, together with the cause thereof, their sins and iniquities, To beseech the Lord, in the name of Israel; To instruct them in the best improvement of this their frailty unto wisdome; To return to them with wonted favours, and make them rejoyce according to the long time of their afflictions; To restore them and their children from distress; To accomplish his Covenant with them, in stablishing their great work which they were about, the taking of the promised land into possession. Now these things throughout this Psalme are set forth with such abundance of elegant Rhetorical figures, metaphors, and similitudes, adorning the Psalme as the starres the sky z, that many things therein are the harder to be understood, though the strain be the more stately and lofty.

z Difficile & obscurum est hoc carmen propter figuras & similitudines varias, necnon genera loquendi sublimi poesi digna, quibus, ut cœlum syderibus, distinguitur atque ornatur. Sim. de Muis in Arg. Pf. 90.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title of this excellent Psalme manifests, 1. The kind of it; A Prayer. Many Psalmes are Prayers: but four are so stiled, viz. Psal. 17. 86. 90. 102. 2. The Penman of it, described; (1) By his Name; Moses. (2) By his Office Prophetical; The man of God. i. e. The Eminent Prophet of God, or Seer. See 1 Sam. 9. 6, 8, 9, 10, 11.

The Psalme, or Prayer it self contains

I. A Preface, wherein Israel (now in great misery in the wilderness) acknowledgeth, 1. Gods peculiar providence and protection to them in all former Generations, especially in dayes of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, &c. when they had no fixed dwelling, God himself was their Habitation, Heb. &c. ver. 1. 2. Gods eternity, before Hills were, or the Earth or World brought forth, ver. 2. Comfortable considerations to afflicted, dying Israel.

II. A Lamenting Narration, General and Particular. 1. More General, Of the common fragility and mortality of mankind. The Considerations touching mans general fragility is, 1. Propounded, Thou turnest man to contrition, &c. wherein note, (1) The Subject of mortality; Sons of men, Adam's Sons. (2) The Author of it; Thou. (3) The manner of Gods effecting it; Turnest——Sayest Return. (4) The full and mortal state whereunto God brings them; Contrition—— Return, viz. to dust, ver. 3. 2. Expounded and Illustrated by many Comparisons and Similitudes. Mans frail life being resembled, (1) To yesterday when it is past: though a thousand years long, yet its no more in Gods sight. (2) To a watch in the night, (which was but three houres long, ver. 4. (3) To a swift flood. So God carries us speedily away. (4) To a sleep. That indiscernably and swiftly passeth. (5) To Grass, which in the morning groweth, flourisheth and groweth up: In the evening is cut down and withereth, ver. 5, 6. II. More Particular, of the singular fragility, mortality, and misery of Israel in the Wilderness, (especially for their murmuring, refusing to go into the Land of Canaan, and to subdue their enemies, Numb. 14.) This Complaint touching Israels particular fragility, sets forth, 1. The efficient Cause thereof, viz. Gods Anger, and wrathful heat, ver. 7. 2. The procuring Cause thereof, viz. Their own iniquities, and secret sins set in the light of Gods countenance, ver. 8. 3. The exceeding vanity, brevity and vexation of their life through the wrath of God. Being most elegantly, (1) Stiled; The turning-away of all their dayes. As a man turns away his face. (2) Resembled, to a Tale told, or a Meditation, As soon forgotten almost as told, ver. 9. (3) Computed, or cast-up, to 70 or 80 years at most, ordinarily. (4) Aggravated, by the molestation and sorrow attending upon 80 years of age. (5) Illustrated by two Similitudes, viz. Of Stubble cutting-down of Grass, &c. And of a Birds speedy flying-away, ver. 10. 4. Israels general stupidity under Gods severe judgments: not knowing, considering, laying to heart, &c. the power of Gods anger or his exceeding wrath according to his fear. his Word, Psal. 19. 9. the rule of his fear, ver. 11.

III. Certain Petitions hereupon presented to the LORD for sundry blessings. As, 1. For Gods instruction of them so in the spiritual Art of numbring their dayes, that they may apply their hearts to true wisdome. Here note (1) The Tutor. (2) The Scholar. (3) The Lesson. (4) The singularity of instruction desired; So teach. (5) The end hereof, v. 12. 2. For his returning unto them favourably and that it might repent him touching his servants sufferings, ver. 13. 3. Gods speedy satisfying them with his mercy, that they might rejoyce all the remainder of their dayes, v. 14. 4. For gladning them, proportionably to the dayes and years of their affliction and misery, ver. 15. 5. For Gods manifestation of his peculiar work and glory upon them and their children, viz. in protecting, saving, and shewing mercy to them according to his Covenant and Promises, v. 16. 6. For Gods pleasantnesse and sweet favour towards them, in stablishing and accomplishing the great work they were about, viz. of entering Canaan, subduing their enemies there, and inheriting their land, as God had covenanted, ver. 17.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This is the Psalme, out of which (as Augustine hath noted) the Devil took the boldness to tempt our Lord Jesus Christ, (Mat. 4. 6. Luke 4. 10, 11. with Ps. 91. 11, 12.) And he saith, Let us hearken, that we may be instructed how to resist the Tempter: not presuming in our selves, but in him who first was tempted, lest we should be overcome in Temptation; for to him Temptation was not necessary. Christs Temptation, is our Instruction. Afterwards he saith; ——Therefore Christ was tempted, that a Christian might not be overcome by the Tempter p.

p Psalmus iste est de quo Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum tentare ausus est. Audiamus ergo, ut possimus instructi resistere tentatori, Non præsumentes in nobis, sed in ipso qui prior tentatus est, ne nos in Tentatione vinceremur: Illi enim tentatio non erat necessaria. Tentatio Christi, nostra Doctrina est. Aug. Enarrat. in Psal. XC. p. 998. C. Tom. 8. ——Ideo tentatus est Christus, ne vincatur a tentatore Christianus. Aug. ibid. p. 1007. D. Tom. 8. Basil. 1569.

This Psalme, as touching the Kind of it, is Doctrinal, and Eminently Consolatory. The whole Doctrine of it is most comfortable to every one that truly believes in God, and relyes peculiarly upon his Allsufficient protection; against all dangers and distresses. I may fitly stile it;—The Saints Cabinet of comfort under Gods Protection against all feared or felt affliction. It is an Untituled Psalm in the Hebrew, as many others are. See Psal. 1. Sect. 4. and therefore we cannot be so certain who was Instrumental Author or Writer of it; especially the New Testament and other Scriptures being wholly silent herein.

Penman is variously guessed at; and but guessed at. The Hebrews think it was Moses q, So Ezra, and others, And their Reason is; because Psal. 90. being Entituled A Prayer of Moses, all the Psalmes following till Psal. 101. (which is Entituled A Psalme of David,) make no mention in their Titles of any Penman at all: whence they judge it probable that all these Psalmes were written by Moses. But the insufficiency of this Reason is easily evinced by that consideration of Sim. de Muis r, viz. That in Psal. 99. 6. there is mention of Samuel, who was born long after the death of Moses. Therefore at least Psal. 99. was not written by Moses. Most Writers think, David was Penman of this Psalme. The LXXII. according to the most Ancient Roman Vatican Copy, hath this Title prefixed; Ἄινος ᾠδῆς τῷ Δαυὶδ which the Vulgar Translation renders; Laus Cantici David: The Praise of a Song of David. Likewise Davids name is prefixed to this Psalme, both by the Syriack, Arabick, and Æthiopick Versions s. Our later Writers also sundry of them incline to this Opinion, As Mollerus, Muis, &c. And all things well considered, especially the matter of the Psalme agree-agreeing so fitly to the times of David, that seems to be most probable.

t H. Moll. in Arg. Ps. 91. Sim. de Muis in Arg. Ps. 91.

Occasion, as divers think t, of penning this Psalme was that dreadful Pestilence sent upon Israel from Dan to Beersheba, upon Davids numbring the People, whereby 70000 men were slain in three dayes space: but when the Angel was lifting up his hand to destroy Jerusalem also, the LORD stopped his proceedings upon Davids Sacrifice and Prayers. See 2 Sam. 24. and 1 Chron. 21. throughout. This is the more likely, because all the passages, phrases, and words of this Psalme so exactly agree to that History.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein intended is, 1. To teach us the compleat security and safety of the Faithfull under Gods All-sufficient protection against all evils and dangers. 2. And thereupon sweetly to encourage all Gods people entirely to rest and rely upon Gods sole protection in greatest straits and perils whatsoever. This Doctrine and Consolatory Encouragement is here represented; in such a Confluence of Promises, and with such Elegant Splendour, and Curious Ornament of Words and Phrases; that this Psalme is not without just cause accounted as A precious Gemme among the Psalmes; and a Poem of such surpassing Elegancy, that scarce another may be compared to it u. It is a rich Cabinet of Jewels, a Golden Chain of stately Promises, And a very Shop of choicest Cordials, to Gods people, against all felt or feared Calamities.

u Hen. Moll. in Arg. Ps. 91

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this sweet Consolatory Psalme, Consider;

I. An excellent Doctrinal Position, touching the state and security of Gods faithful people; Their state and condition is, to dwell in the secret (i. e. the Tabernacle, Temple, Church, &c.) of the most High, trusting there in God as his Refuge, Covert, Hiding-place. Their constant protection and security thereupon under the shadow of the Almighty, ver. 1.

II. A Profession of Faith and Affiance in God, in the person of any or every true faithful servant of God. Wherein note, 1. The chief Object of his confidence JEHOVAH. 2. The ground of his Confidence, Partly, The Lords All-sufficiency, set forth in three words; (1) Safe-hope, or Refuge: (2) Fortress, or Strong-hold: (3) God. Partly, his own peculiar interest in this LORD; My Refuge, My Strong-hold, My God. 3. The Resolution of his Confidence in him; In him will I trust, ver. 2.

III. The compleat Protection and safety of every such faithful soul thus confiding in God, is allured by heaps of sweetest Heart-reviving Promises to him, for his compleat Defence against, Support under, Deliverance from, and Triumph over all imaginable straits and dangers. Which Promises are laid down in Expressions most Elegant, Emphatical, and Comfortable, v. 3. to the end. This his All-sufficient Protection of the faithful, is Described, Illustrated, and Confirmed, very Pathetically.

1. Described, 1. By the Deliverance promised, from Fowlers Snare, and Pestilence of woful evils, v. 3. 2. By the Defence promised, under the Metaphor of the Fowles wing covering her young. Which is further illustrated; Partly, by the trust of the faithful in this Divine Defence, as the young under the Feathers of the Dam. Partly, from the strong Reason of this his Confidence, viz. Gods Truth, compared for the sureness and safety thereof to a Buckler and Shield, v. 4.

2. Illustrated notably, 1. By distribution of Perils, viz. By Day or Night, from fear of which he promiseth to secure the Faithful, v. 5, 6. 2. By an instance or supposition of the greatest and most overwhelming Calamity, from which he shall be secured, v. 7. 3. By comparison of the unlike condition of the ungodly, v. 8. 4. By description of the falsness of Protection from evil, which shall ensue upon full affiance in God, v. 9, 10. 5. By the Instrumental Means, or Administring Causes of the Faithful persons safety, viz. Gods good Angels, and their exact custody, v. 11, 12. 6. By his Triumph even over the most terrible and dangerous evils or enemies imaginable, v. 13.

3. Confirmed and further Amplified by sundry Promises propounded as by God himself, speaking in the first Person. These Promises of Gods Protection, are, 1. Laid down in variety of sweet Expressions; I will deliver him, I will set him on high, &c. 2. Amplified; (1) Partly, by certain moving Causes as it were inclining the LORD to protect him, viz. His Cleaving to God: Knowing his Name: Calling upon him. (2) Partly, by the Adjunct benefits or advantages that shall result from that Divine Protection, viz. Gods honouring him; Satisfying him with length of dayes; Making him his Salvation, v. 14, 15, 16.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is of a mixt Nature, being Doctrinal, Laudatory, Prophetical, and in a sort Hortatory, Penman of it is not certainly signified here or elsewhere in Scripture. The Chaldee thus paraphraseth; An Hymn, a Song, which the first man Adam said for the Sabbath day q, The Antient Hebrews ascribe it to Moses, as was noted formerly r: But their ground is not cogent. Some attribute it to David s, who (as is supposed) foretells here the destruction of King Saul, ver. 7. but his own advancement to the Throne, ver. 10. And that David wrote this Psalme, when Saul had justified and cleared David (now vexed and pursued by him about four years, 1 Sam. 24. 18. and 26. 18, 21. from all Imputation of Treasonable or Seditious Practices against the King. Thereupon, David rejoycing that God had thus vindicated him, and that King Saul had so cleared him, and openly professed that the Kingdom belonged of right unto him, wrote this Psalme and destinated it to the Churches use on the Sabbath-dayes. Others t think this Psalme was not Penned upon this, or any such like singular Occasion: But rather (as the Title not obscurely imports) for the Common use of the Church in the praises of God every Sabbath-day. And Sim. de Muis reports that R. Kimchi saith; This Psalme was anciently sung in the House of the Sanctuary on the Sabbath-day. And to these latter I rather incline, because of the Title, and Subject-Matter of this Psalme, which seems so excellently suited and accommodated to the Sabbath-day, and the worship and Meditations then to be exercised touching the works of God. Yet I will not peremptorily exclude, as improbable, the forementioned particular Occasion: but leave every one to his own Judgement therein.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

This Psalme's intended Scope is; To Instruct and direct the people of God how to Sanctifie the day of Sabbath. 1. Not onely by an Holy Rest (as the word שבת Sabbath signifies) viz. from our own works, wayes, words, and wills u; according to Gods own example of Resting from all his works on the Seventh day from the Creation, blessing and Sanctifying it, and commanding it to be kept holy to him x; which was a Token of his mercy unto, and of his Sanctification of his People y. 2. But also by an holy employment and exercise therein, both Morning and Evening, viz. 1. By confessing to him, 2. Singing Psalmes to his Name, 3. Shewing forth Gods Loving-kindness and faithfulness, 4. With Meditation, ver. 1, 2, 3, 4. 5. Rejoycing in and Praising God triumphantly, For his great Works, More Generally, ver. 5, 6. For his Judgments upon the Wicked, ver. 7. to 11. and his Mercies to the Righteous, More Particularly, ver. 11. to the end.

These were some of the Holy Exercises, wherewith this day of Holy Rest was to be Sanctified, As this Psalme imports. But there were many other Holy Employments for the Sabbath, as other Scriptures

But commends the Christians for Resting unto Religious Exercises, Saying; Behold this is the Sabbath day, This the Jews celebrate at this time with a kind of corporally languid, fluid and luxurious idleness: For they Rest unto Trifles: and when God hath commanded the Sabbath to be observed, they Exercise the Sabbath in those things which God hath forbidden. Our vacation is from evil works: their vacation is from good Works. For it is better to Plow, than to Dance. They Rest from good Work: from nugatory work they Rest not a, &c.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth, 1. The Denominations of this Psalme, viz. A Psalme, A Song. See on Psal. 30. Sect. 5. The Analysis. 2. The special use for which it was designed; For the day of Sabbath.

The Psalme it self, which is chiefly Doctrinal and Laudatory, contains

I. A Doctrinal Proposition, tacitly (but forcibly) exhorting and exciting to praise the Lord, and his Name. This duty of praising the Lord, is, I. Commended generally, from its singular goodnesse, pleasantnesse, &c. II. Described generally, 1. By its Acts; wherein it exerciseth and shewes it self, viz. Confessing to the LORD; Singing Psalme to his Name; Shewing-forth. 2. By its Object and Cause of this Praise, viz. The LORD; His Name; His Loving-kindnesse; His Faithfulnesse. 3. By its adjunct-time, set forth by Distribution of Morning and Nights: denoting all set time; and in some sort, a constant continuation of time, but especially on every Sabbath day, in Gods solemn worship; In the morning, (think some b) from the third to the sixth hour of the day, See 1 King 18. 26. 29. Nehem. 8. 3. Acts 2. 15. declaring his loving kindnesse. In the nights, i.e. every night; viz. from the ninth to the twelfth hour, 1 King. 18. 36. Acts 3. 1. Deut. 16. 6. Nehem. 9. 3. shewing forth his faithfulnesse, ver. 1, 2. 4. By its manner; upon, or with musical Instruments: Among which Higgajon (which some count a Musical Instrument) is by some interpreted, A solemne sound; or, Meditation; or, Meditated-Song, ver. 3.

b Joan. Foord in Expos. Ps. 92. ver. 2.

II. An Illustration of this Doctrinal and Hortatory Proposition, by the Cause and Matter of this Divine Praise to be performed to the Lord: viz. The Works and Acts of God, ver. 4. &c. The Works of God are described here, 1. More Generally: 2. More Specially.

1. More Generally, v. 4. Where, by Gods Work and Acts of his hands, I see not any cogent Reason why we may not understand, Gods Works more generally Considered (as sundry c writters do:) viz. His works of Creation, Providence, Redemption, Sanctification, Salvation, &c. In all which, Gods loving-kindnesse and faithfulnesse most eminently shine forth: And all which works of God are most suitable matter of Meditation, and Praise, on the Sabbath-dayes, Consider well. Gen. 2. 3. Exod. 20. 8. to 12. Nehem. 9. 14. Deut. 5. 12, 13, 14, 15. Exod. 31. 13, 14, 15. Ezek. 20. 12. Heb. 4. 1. to 12. Now these works of God are illustrated by a double effect, that (duly considered) they had upon the Psalmist, and will answerably have upon every godly person; viz. 1. Making him rejoyce thereupon. 2. Quickening him to triumph therein, v. 4.

c Jo. Calv. Com. ad Ps. 92. 5. Hen. Ainsw. Annot. on Ps. 92. 5. Hen. Moll. in Prælect. ad Ps. 92. 5

2. More Specially. Gods works of Providence, v. 5. to the end. Gods works of Providence and Government over the World, especially over man-kind are illustrated divers wayes, viz. I. By their Adjuncts. As, 1. Their admirable Majesty and Greatnesse, 2. The exceeding depth of his Thought therein, ver. 5. 3. Their unsearchablenesse, in respect of this their greatnesse and depth, to a brutish foolish man, viz. to every carnal unregenerate person, ver. 6. II. By their Distribution in regard of their Subjects, viz. 1. The Wicked: and 2. The Godly. 1. Gods works of Providence towards the wicked, are set forth; (1) Partly, By their great Prosperity wherein God suffers them for a season, to spring up as Grass, and flourish. (2) Partly, By their perpetual destruction, for which they are prepared by their Prosperity, ver. 7. (3) Partly, By the eternal constancy and immutability of Gods Nature and Will, opposite to the mutable state of the ungodly, He is eternally most high, can crush them at his pleasure, ver. 8. (4) Partly, By the Causes of wicked mens Perdition and Dispersion, viz. Their Enmity to God. Their being workers of iniquity, ver. 9, 2. Gods works of Providence towards the Godly, are delineated most Elegantly and Prophetically, by the effects or fruits thereof upon them: viz. (1) Their hornes Exaltation, as born of an Unicorn: that is, Their power and greatnesse, above their enemies. (2) Their Annointing with fresh oyl, or green oyle, pointing out their joy, gladnesse, prosperity, &c. Or, as the Hebrew phrase may be rendred, mine old age shall be annointed with fresh oyle, ver. 10. (3) Their beholding the contrary hand of God upon their Enemies, and hearing his judgment upon the wicked rising up against them. These three are laid down promiscorily, as to the Person of the Psalmist, but proportionably may be applyed to every godly person, ver. 11. (4) Their flourishing condition, especially in spirituals, Elegantly prophecyed of, and Described. 1. Partly, By illustrating Similitudes, of Palm-tree, and Cedar in Lebanon, ver. 12. 2. Partly, By the cause of this their flourishing: Their Plantation in the House of the Lord, in the Church, there partaking the soul-enriching Ordinances of God, ver. 13. 3. Partly, By the Constancy of their flourishing, and fruitfulnes even in grayness, ver. 14. which fruitfulnes is Amplified, by one eminent End thereof, viz. The shewing forth thereby, the LORD's uprightousnesse or, exact righteousnesse for and his protection or defensiveness of his People, as their Rock, ver. 15.

Sect. III. The Kind, Occasion, and Penman.

This untituled d Psalm is, as to the Kinde of it, Laudatory; setting down in very few words much eminent matter of Divine Praise. Some (as hath been noted Sect. 1.) account it also Prophetical: in reference to the Kingdome of Christ. c Kimchi, Rasi, and other Hebrews referre this to the time of the Messiah. The Greek Version of the LXXII. as also the Latin Vulgar Version, have this Title prefixed f; For the day before the Sabbath, when the Earth was founded, The Praise of a Song of David. But in the Hebrew, no Title at all is prefixed to this Psalm.

Penman of it is not expressed here, or elsewhere in Scripture: But probably it was written by David, because (as one g well observes) the beginning of it, The LORD reigns——is a phrase used in another untituled Psalm of David, viz. Psal. 96. 10. which Psalm was part of that which David delivered into the hand of Asaph and his brethren to thank the LORD, at his bringing the Ark into the Tent which David had prepared for it, See 1 Chron. 16. 7.——23.——31. The Greek, Latin, Syriack, Arabick, and Æthiopick Versions ascribe this Psalm to David h, So do also some of our later Writers.

Occasion whereupon, and time when this Psalm was penned, is hard to define. One guesseth i, That David might write this Psalm, when he was now annointed King over all Israel, 2 Sam. 5. 1. Or when he had subdued the Nations, of which See 2 Sam. 8. 1. whereupon he might acknowledge the Majesty, Power, and Sanctity of Gods Kingdom, who had so exalted him. This may suit well to the matter of this Psalm: but it is only a probable conjecture.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein intended, is; To Praise and magnifie the LORD, for the Majesty, Power, and Sanctity of his Kingdome. Which is done in few words, but very effectual.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalm.

I. The Kingdome of the LORD, both in Naturals and Spirituals, is asserted; The LORD reigneth.

II. The Sufficiency of the LORD unto this his Kingdome and Regal Government, is described: And this in regard of, 1. His High-Majesty. 2. His Fortitude. The abundance, and prepared readinesse of which his perfections, are set forth under the Metaphors, Of putting-on or being clothed, and girded therewith, ver. 1, in the beginning.

III. The LORD's Kingdome and Government is further Illustrated and Amplified, 1. By the effect thereof, viz. His establishing the world immoveably v. 1. 2. By the Adjunct, the eternal stability or foundation of it: evinced from Gods own Eternity, ver. 2. 3. By Comparison of the most tumultuous impetuous commotions in the world here below, against the LORD and his people, Metaphorically represented under the Notion of Floods roaring and lifting up their waves, of noise of many waters, and of mighty waves of the Sea: with the LORD on high, who is farre mightier than them all, to tame, suppress, and still them at his pleasure, ver. 3, 4. 4. By the exceeding fidelity of his Testimonies in his Church: whether Precepts, Promises, &c. 5. By the Holiness of his House, the Church; perpetually to be communicated thereto, according to his Testimonies, ver. 5.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalm is of a mixt Kind, being Petitory, Doctrinal or Reprehensory, and Consolatory. Penman of it cannot certainly be demonstrated. The Greek Version of the LXXII. and so the Vulgar Latin, prefixeth this Title (though there be none in the Hebrew original;) A Psalm of David, on the fourth day of the Sabbath. The Syriack, Arabick, and Æthiopick Version do also ascribe this Psalm to David n. And so do sundry of our later Writers o.

n Bibl. Polyglott. in Psal. 94.
o Sim. de Muis in Arg. Psal. 94.—Jo. Foord. Expos. Ps. 94. ad init.

Occasion of penning this Psalm, In the General, was some cruel Tyranny and oppression of Gods people by the insolent and atheistical wicked among them, (probably within, rather than without the land of Israel:) As the current of the Psalm doth palpably evince to any attentive Reader. But in Particular, when and what this oppression was, is very hard upon any satisfactory ground to determine. The Syriack Version saith thus; Of David, touching the company of Korach, and of Dathan and Abiram. but spiritually of Persecution against the Church p. But why this Psalm should be thought to treat of Korach, Dathan, and Abiram, there seems to be no Reason at all from this Psalm or any other Scripture. One thinks this Psalm was set forth, when the Ark was brought up into Sion; but gives no reason for this his Opinion. Another thinks it was written by David in the dayes of Saul, 1. Because, he foretels his own deliverance, but the destruction of Saul and his followers, ver. 12. 13, 14, 15, 22, 23. 2. Because, he complains of his being forsaken by the great ones of Israel, ver. 16. 3. Because, he acknowledgeth the LORD to be alwayes present with him in danger, and to deliver him from perilous Death, ver. 17, 18. 4. Because, the Lord favoured not Sauls enterprizes in the Persecution which he fered, ver. 20, 21. r Thus he. But its more safe to rest in the General Occasion, which is evident and certain: than to be peremptory touching the Particular, which is doubtful and uncertain.

p In Bibl. Polyglott. ad Ps. 94.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Psalmist herein, is; To support and comfort himself, and other the afflicted people of God, against the Tyrannical insolencies and cruel Oppressions which proud atheistial ungodly men did, or might exercise upon them: by flying unto God by Prayer for justice against them; and by declaring the vigilancy of Gods Providence, The blessednesse of Gods people under his Chastisements, and the security of Gods afflicted under his Protection.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalm, in order to this intended Scope, are three Principal Parts, viz.

I. Prayer. Wherein he intreats the Lord for justice against the cruel and wicked Enemies of his People: and that upon many considerations, ver. 1. to 8. In this Prayer, 1. His Petition or Request is propounded, under a double Metaphor, viz. of the clear rising or shining forth of the Sun; and of a Judge's ascending and shewing him on his judgment-seat, v. 1. 2. II. This his Petition is urged by many cogent Arguments. As, 1. From the Nature and Office of God, being A God of Vengeances, and The Judge of the Earth. And therfore one from whom exact justice & recompences may be expected against his peoples cruel oppressours. 2. From the Nature and Properties of his peoples Enemies. Being, 1. Proud, ver. 1, 2. 2. Wicked, ver. 3. 3. From the wretched carriage and Deportment of these proud wicked Enemies, laid down by way of pathetical Lamentation; viz. (1) Insolently triumphing for a long time together, v. 3. (2) Belching-out hard speeches. (3) Haughtily boasting themselves, v. 4. (4) Cruelly breaking in pieces Gods People, and afflicting his Heritage, ver. 5. (5) Bloodily murdering the poor helpless Widow, Stranger and Fatherless, ver. 6. (6) Obstinately encouraging and confirming themselves in all this their wicked villany and cruelty, by their blasphemous and atheistical denying of Gods All-observing Providence, ver. 7.

II. Doctrinal Conviction and Reprehension. Wherein he sharply Rebukes these wicked and cruel Oppressours for their Atheistical Presumption, and Security. 1. Charging them justly with brutish and foolish stupidity in denying Gods Providence. 2. Admonishing them to apply themselves to true understanding and wisedom herein, v. 8. 3. Refuting their impious and blasphemous Atheisme, By certain pregnant effects of Gods Power and Providence: As, Planting the Eare, Forming the Eye; Chastizing the Heathen; Teaching man knowledge. From all which, he clearly, and by way of pathetical convincing Interrogations, concludes; That, God not only hears all all their wicked words, Sees all their wicked and cruel deeds, And will correct them accordingly, and that more severely than he doth the Heathens, ver. 9,10. But also knowes all their thoughts, and the vanity and frivolousness of them, v. 11.

III. Consolation. Herein he comforts himself and all Gods afflicted and oppressed People, against the insolent cruelties of all their Enemies, many wayes: viz. 1. Pronouncing them admirably blessed under Gods Chastisements, accompanyed with Gods teaching them out of his Law; O the blessednesses of them, &c. When Correction and Instruction, Nouements and Documents ſ go together, v. 12. 2. Declaring their deliverance and Rest from the dayes of Adversity, till mean-while the Pit be digged for the wicked. And this is noted as one eminent end and effect of Gods teaching, v. 13. 3. Confirming both the blessed-state of Gods afflicted-ones, and the certainty of their deliverance, &c. (1) By sundry sweet Promises; Partly, of Gods not rejecting or Deserting his people, v. 14. Partly, Of judgements returning into justice, (when the godly are delivered, and the wicked punished, judgment seeming to be severed from justice, while the godly were afflicted, and the wicked spared.) Whereupon all the upright in heart shall more cheerfully follow after him, after God, thus reconciling judgement and justice by his Providence and Dispensation. The Hebrew seems better rendered, after Him, than after It, v. 15. (2) By the Example and Experience of the Psalmist: who experimentally found; 1. That, when none would appear for him, in his deepest dangers and oppositions of evil-doers, yet the LORD was his aid and succour, v. 16,17. 2. That, when his foot was in danger of slipping, the LORD's mercy upheld him, ver. 18. 3. That when multitude of perplexed thoughts were within him, yet Gods Comforts delighted his Soul, v. 19. 4. That, when the wicked most powerfully, politiquely, unanimously and cruelly set themselves against the righteous, God would not own them, have fellowship with them: but rather became his Defence, and Rock of his Refuge, viz. His All-sufficient Protection, v. 20,21,22. 5. That, God will recompence upon the wicked (at last) their own iniquity; and will most certainly (for the phrase is pathetically doubled, and an Argument from Gods Relation to his people inserted) cut them off in their own wickedness, v. 23.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is in the Hebrew, (as many others, See Psal. 1. Sect. 4.) without Title. Though the Greek Version of the LXXII. and the vulgar Latin have this Inscription; The praise of a Song of David o. The praise of the Song (said Augustine) signifies both Mirth, because it is a Song: and Devotion, because it is Praise p. The Syriack; Of David, &c. The Arabick; Of David, A Benediction and a Song. As to the Nature of this Psalme, it is of a mixt Kind: being Hortatory, Laudatory, and Prophetical. Hortatory, inciting both to the worship of God, and obedience to him: Laudatory, praising God for his Greatness, in creating the world; for his Goodness, in adopting the Church: Prophetical, having a Prophetical aim at Christ, and eminent tendency to him, who is the LORD, and the Rock of our Salvation; that is, our most strong Saviour, ver. 1. For the Apostle Interprets this Psalme of Christ, Compare ver. 7. to the end, with Heb. 3. 6, 7, &c. 14, 15. and elsewhere, their tempting of the LORD, is Interpreted to be their tempting of Christ, Compare ver. 9. with 1 Cor. 10. 9. And the whole Current and Subject-matter of the Psalme is such, as may most fitly be accommodated to Christ, who is to be praised and worshipped for his Greatness in Creating the world, and for his Goodness in adopting his Church, and whose voice or word is obsequiously to be obeyed, lest he shut us out of his eternal Rest in Heaven. Kimchi and other Hebrew-writers think this Psalme is to be referred to the future times of the Messiah.

Penman of it, is not here expressed; but the Apostle, alledging this Psalme, referres it plainly to David; Again he limiteth a certain day, saying in David, To day, after so long a time; as it is said, To day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, Heb. 4. 7. And elsewhere the Holy-Ghost is asserted to be the Author of it, (as he is of all Holy Scripture;) Wherefore as the Holy-Ghost saith, To day if ye will hear his voice, Heb. 3. 7. with Psal. 95. 7, &c.

Occasion of Davids Penning this Psalme, is variously apprehended. One thinks David wrote it, o Bibl. Polyglott. in Ps. 95.

p Laus cantici, Et hilaritatem significat, quia cantus est: Et devotionem, quia laus est. Aug. in Enarrat. Psal. 94.

when he took in hand his martial expedition against those many forreign Nations in Syria and Arabia, from Euphrates to Egypt, and from the Mediterranean to the Persick Sea, 2 Sam. 8. &c. and that by this Psalme he encouraged his Army in God against his Enemies q. But this seems too much forced, and restrictive. Another rather referres this Psalme to the time of Davids bringing up of the Ark from the house of Abinadab, or Obed-Edom, 2 Sam. 6. 1 Chron. 13. and 15. and 16. r. But this satisfies not because upon this Occasion David delivered other Psalmes, to thank the LORD, into the hand of Asaph and his Brethren, 1 Chron. 16. 7. to 37. I like Calvin's judgment herein best of all: who saith; This Psalme agrees to the Sabbath day, wherein we know sacred Assemblies were had for praising the Name of the LORD. For here he exhorts not every godly person to praise him privately, but in the Publick Assemblies. And to this end he spreads before them singular matter of praising God, with incitements to worship and obey him dutifully s. And therefore this is an Excellent Psalme to begin the Solemn Worship of God withall, in Church-Assemblies on the Lord's-day-Sabbaths.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope of the Holy Ghost in this Psalme is, To exhort and incite the Church of the Jews Immediately, and in them all the Christian Churches and People of Jews and Christians Mediately; 1. To Praise the Lord, even the Lord Christ, joyfully, for his Greatness in creating the World: 2. To Worship him reverently for his Goodness in Adopting and accepting his Church: 3. And to hearken obsequiously to his voice and word in this day of Grace and Salvation had in this World, lest otherwise they come short of his Spiritual and Eternal, as Israel of old did of his Typical, Rest. Compare Heb. 3. 6, 7. to the end, and 4. 7. &c. with Psal. 95.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this choice Hortatory and Prophetical Psalme, The Holy Ghost by David sweetly and forcibly Exhorts and incites Gods people, solemnly, 1. To Praise 2. To Worship, and 3. To Obey the Lord, even the Lord Christ.

I. To Praise the Lord, O come let us sing joyfully unto the Lord, &c. He invites to great banquets of exulting (said one) not to the World, but to the Lord t. Now here, I. The Object of this Praise, is described, 1. By his essential Name; JEHOVAH. 2. By one special Attribute of his goodness to his people; The Rock of our Salvation, i. e. Our strong Saviour, v. 1. II. The Acts of this his Praise, whereunto they are exhorted, are set forth in sundry choice expressions: As 1. Singing-joyfully, or Shouting-joyfully. 2. Shouting-triumphantly, or ringing-out, &c. 3. Preventing his face with Confession. That is, readily, speedily, chearfully, as it were, meeting the Lord, anticipating him with Confession, viz. with confession of Praisers. not of Penitents u. 4. Shouting-triumphantly, or ringing out to him with Psalmes, v. 1, 2. III. The Arguments inciting to this divine and triumphant Praise of the Lord, even the Lord Christ, are drawn, 1. From his divine Majesty and the greatness thereof, Which is illustrated by Comparison. v. 3. 2 From his Efficiency, in Forming and Governing the World intimated Synechdochically by mentioning some Special parts thereof, As Deeps of the Earth, Heights of the Hills, Sea, and Dry-land, in which his greatness is most conspicuous, ver. 4, 5.

u Est confessio laudantis, & est confessio gementis. Confessio laudantis, ad honorem pertinet ejus qui laudatur. Confessio gementis, ad pœnitentiam pertinet ejus qui confitetur. Confitentur enim homines cum laudant Deum: Confitentur cum accusant se, & nihil dignius facit lingua ——— Ergo quia & hic exultationis locus est, forte illam debemus intelligere Confessionem, quæ est in laude Dei, ——— Ut non hic intelligamus Confessionem pœnitentium, sed laudantium. Aug. in Enarrat. Psal. 94. Tom. 8.

II. To worship the Lord our Maker most reverently. Here also note, 1. The Acts of Worship herein unto, viz. 1. Adoring. 2. Bending-down. 3. Kneeling before his face. 2. The Arguments urging here unto, which are drawn from his singular Goodness to his Church and people. He being 1. Their Maker. 2. Their God, viz. Their Covenant-God. Their Shepheard: and they the people of his Pasture and Sheep of his hand, vet. 6, 7.

III. To obey the Lord, hearkening obsequiously to his voice, his word, &c. Here, This Obedience hearkening to his voice, his Word, is, 1. Propounded. 2. Illustrated. 3. Urged. I. Propounded; If ye will hear his voice. II. Illustrated, 1. By the Adjunct Season, wherein this Obedience is required; To day, viz. In this day, Season, or time of Grace during the preaching of his word in this life, ver. 7. compare Heb 3. 6, 7. &c. and 4. 7. &c. 2. By the opposite impediment to this obedience, viz. Hardening their Hearts, which is dehorted, v. 8. in the beginning of it. III. Urged. This obedience to the Lord's voice and word is urged and enforced, 1. Partly, by former Arguments, drawn from the Lord's goodness, v. 8. 2. Partly, by a tacit Commination of greatest evils, in case they disobey and harden their hearts. Which Commination or Threat is laid down, and confirmed by the Example of their fore-fathers disobedience to the Lord in the Wilderness. Touching which their disobedience, Note here, (1) The Nature of it. (2) The Place of it; in the Wilderness, v. 8, 9. (3) The Continuance of it, and of the Lord's grief and offence at them for it; forty years long. (4) The Rise & Root of it: Their error of heart & Ignorance of Gods ways, v. 10. (5) The sad and woful Fruit of it, viz. Gods swearing in his wrath they should never enter into his Typical Rest of Canaan: Consequently, not shall like disobedient persons enter into the Lord's Typified and true Rest of Heaven. ver. 11. with Heb. 3. 7. to the end. and 4. 7. &c.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is of mixt Kind: being Hortatory, Laudatory and Prophetical. Exhorting unto the Praises and due Worship of God the LORD; yea, to the declaring of the Kingdom and Judgment of the LORD Christ in all the World, among Gentiles as well as Jews. That it is Hortatory and Laudatory, is palpably evident, by the phrase, forme and matter of the Psalme, all along. That it is also Prophetical, Prophecying of Christs Kingdom and Judgment, and of the Calling of the Gentiles from vain-idols, to serve and praise the Living God: is evident; 1. From the Persons, who are here exhorted to praise the Lord, and among whom they are exhorted to praise him, viz. All the Earth, ver. 1. 9. The Kindreds of the People, ver. 7. ——Among the Heathen.——Among all People, ver. 3, 10. which plainly imports the Conversion of the Heathen, the Calling of the Gentiles from vain-idols to the true God, verse 5, &c. For, how shall they call on him, or praise him, on whom they have not believed? or how shall they believe on him, of whom they have not heard? &c. Rom. 10. 14. &c. As Calvin well argues m. 2. From the Occasion of the Penning of this Psalme. It was penned by David, as is evident, 1 Chron. 16. 7. ——23. to 34. And this, upon Occasion of his bringing up the Ark of God from Obed-Edom's house with joy into the City of David. Then on that day David delivered first that Psalme there recorded (whereof this 96. Psalme, a few words only changed, is a chief part) to thank the LORD, into the hand of Asaph and his brethren. 1 Chron. 16. 1.——7.——23. &c. Now the Ark of the Covenant was a special Type of Christ: as I have elsewhere sufficiently manifested n. As therefore the Gentiles (often overcome by so many miracles wrought by the Ark, and now brought to his place) are exhorted to praise, fear and worship the LORD, because of his glorious Power and Presence with his Ark: So much more to magnifie him for Christ the true Ark of God, which should propagate his Kingdom far and near; to subdue all the Nations of the Earth unto himself. So its a Prophecy of Christs Kingdom throughout the world. 3. From the Matter or Grounds of Praise here recited: all which do excellently agree to the LORD Christ, viz. Evangelizing his salvation, vers. 2. His Glory among Heathens, His Wonders among all People, vers. 3. His making the Heavens, &c. vers. 5. His Reigning and Righteous judging in all the World, vers. 10, &c. 4. From the mention here of a New Song. Which imports (thinks Calvin) unwonted and extraordinary grace o. As in the Lords extraordinary and wonderful raising up of his Church, they are called to sing a New Song, Isa. 42. 10. And Rasi was of opinion, that whereseever we read of a New Song, that place is to be understood of the future, and that this Psalme is to be referred to the times of the Messiah p. 5. Not only Kimchi, Rasi, and other Hebrew-Writers; but also Hierom, Augustine, Junius, Calvin, Mollerus, Ainsworth, Sim. de Muis, and other both Ancient and Modern Writers judge this to be a Prophetical Psalme touching Christ and his Kingdom over the Converted Gentiles. It is much of the same Argument with Psal. 47. And one q thinks, these four Psalmes next following, are of the same Argument also with this 96 th. Psalme. And indeed indeed the phrase, language, current, and matter of them seem very Homogeneal.

Penman of this Psalme was David, 1 Chron 16. 7. as hath been noted.

Occasion of his writing it, was his bringing up of the Ark, &c.: as is evident, 1 Chron. 16. 1, 7, 23, &c.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

David's Scope in this Psalme, is; 1. More Immediately, To exhort pathetically the Israelites duely to celebrate the Praises of the LORD for his many Excellencies, To Worship him, and to spread abroad the Kingdom of Christ among the Gentiles. David being singularly transported with zeal and joy in the LORD, at the bringing up of the Ark, an eminent Type of Christ. 2. More mediately, To prophecie of the calling of the Gentiles from vain-Idols to the true and living God, and of the propagation of the Gospel and Kingdom of Christ throughout the World, which Prophecies are tacitely, but observably, comprized in sundry Exhortations of Jews and Gentiles, duly to praise, worship, fear, and declare him: And are concluded with an Elegant Invitation of Heaven, Earth, and the Creatures therein (by a kind of Prosopopeia) to celebrate the LORD Christ for his Kingdom and the singular benefits thereof unto Mankind.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this un-tituled Psalme, we have an excellent Prophecy, of the calling of the Gentiles from vain-Idols to serve and praise the true and living God, and of the Propagation of Christs Kingdome from the Jews to the Gentiles throughout the whole world. This is laid down in Form of an Exhortation to the Jews, to preach the LORD's Salvation, Glory, and wonders shewed in Israel, unto the Gentiles: that they forsaking vain-Idols, might praise, worship, fear, and serve the true God only, acknowledging and celebrating his Benefits and Kingdom by the LORD Christ. This Exhortation is, 1. Proposed, 2. Enforced. 3. Amplified.

I. Proposed, v. 1. to 4. Wherein consider, 1. The persons who are exhorted; All the Earth, viz. all the Land of Israel [r]. 2. The duties whereunto they are Exhorted, viz. (1) To sing a new Song to the Lord. Singing, being thrice Pathetically mentioned. (2) To bless his Name. (3) To Evangelize his Salvation duly. Especially his Salvation by Christ, v. 1, 2. (4) To declare his Glory and Wonders, (viz. revealed in Israel,) among the Heathen, among all peoples, v. 3. Therefore Christs Salvation and Gospel was to be preached among all the Heathen.

[r] Jun. Annot. in 1 Chro. 16. 23.

II. Enforced, v. 4. to 7. And this by sundry Cogent Arguments, drawn from 1. Gods greatness. 2. Gods praise-worthiness. 3. The LORD's dreadfulnesse above all gods, v. 4. This his dreadfulnesse is demonstrated by the vast disparity betwixt him and all other gods. All they are vain-Idols: But the Lord made the Heavens, that is, the World. Synechd. This should move all the Heathens to turn from Idols to the true God, v. 4, 5. 4. The LORD's Majesty, Honour, Stength, and Beauteous-glory in his Sanctuary, v. 6.

III. Amplified hereupon, v. 7. to the end. And here, 1. The Jewes (or the Gentiles thus preached to, and instructed by the Jewes [s]) are incited, 1. To give the LORD his Names due glory, &c. 2. To bring an Oblation, and Worship him in the beauty of Holynesse. 3. To fear before him, v. 7, 8, 9. 4. To proclaim the LORD's Kingdom among the Heathen, v. 10. beginning.

[s] Fran. Jun. in Annot. in 1 Chro. 16. 28.

II. The settlement and establishment of the whole world, shattered and shaken by mans sin, is promised in the Kingdom and righteous Judgement of the Lord Christ, v. 10. III. The universal triumph and gladness, as it were, of Heaven, Earth and all Creatures, is in a most Elegant Prosopopeia represented, upon the LORD Christs Presence and Dominion with Righteousness and Truth, among the Gentiles, as well as among the Jewes, v. 11, 12, 13.

Sect. III.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is without Title in the Hebrew: The Greek Version of the LXXII, as also the Vulgar Latin have this Title prefixed; A Psalme of David, when his Land was restored k. Whence some have thought it probably penned by David, when he had conquered the bordering Nations, 2 Sam. 8. and affixed their lands to his own Dominions l. Wherein King David might be a Type of Christ, extending his Kingdome to the Gentiles, and subduing them by the Scepter of his Gospel. The Kind of this Psalme is Mixt, made up of Doctrine, Exhortation, and Propbecy interwoven together. But chiefly it seems to be an Excellent Propbecy of Christs Kingdome as the former Psalme was. Yea it is thought m, That this Psalme is but an Appendix to the fore going Psalme, and a certain exegetical Illustration or Adorning of that passage especially; The LORD Reigns ver. 10. That this is a Propbecy of Christ and his Kingdome, is evident, 1. From that passage, ver. 7. Worship him all ye gods; that is, as the Greek saith, All ye his Angels. All ye Angels of God. Angels are called sometimes Gods, Ps. 8. 5. And the Apostle, speaking of Christs Super-eminency above Angels, seems to alledge this passage, saying; When he bringeth in his first-begotten into the world, he saith, And let all the Angels of God worship him, Heb. 1. 6. (Although the very words of the Apostle are found in the Greek Version of the LXXII. on Deut. 32. 43. yet in the Hebrew there no such thing is to be found.) See the fulfilling of this, Luke 2. 13, 14. Mark, 1. 13. Revel. 5. 11, 12. As one hath very well noted n. 2. From the homogenealness of all the other passages in this Psalme. which are very suitable and applicable to the LORD Christ and his Kingdom. 3. From the manner of this Psalmes setting forth of the LORD's Kingdom. For, as Calvin well notes, This Psalme describes Gods Kindome, such as was not extant under the Law. Whence it followes that it is a Propbecy of Christs Kingdome, which suddenly shined forth by the Gospel o. 4. From the joynt Testimony of Expositors. As, Augustine, Hierome, Calvin, Junius, Mollerus, Ainsworth, Simeon de Muis, &c. who unanimously acknowledge this Psalme to be a Propbecy of Christ, and his Kingdome.

Penman of it, is thought to be David.

Occasion of his writing it, his subduing of his Enemies round about him, as the Greek Title seems to hint. But these things are uncertain.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope chiefly intended in this Psalme, is; Prophetically to foretel and magnifie the LORD Christ's Kingdome: That all may religiously and joyfully submit themselves unto it.

p Dominus regnavit] ille qui sterit ante judicem, ille qui alapas accepit, ille qui flagellatus est, ille qui conspurcatus est, ille qui spinis coronatus est, ille qui colaphis cæsus est, ille qui in ligno suspensus est, ille cui pendenti in ligno insultatum est, ille qui in cruce mortuus est, ille qui lancea percussus est, ille qui sepultus est, ipse resurrexit: Dominus regnavit. Sæviant quantum possunt regna. Quid sunt factura Regi Regnorum, Domino Omnium Regum, Creatori Omnium Sæculorum? &c. Aug. in Expos. Ps. 96. p. 1082. A Tom. 8. Basil. 1569.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalme, to this end

I. The Kindome of the LORD Christ is Prophetically Declared and Described. I. Delared and foretold; The Lord reignes. How elegantly and pathetically, as with a suddain eruption of joy and affection! Admirably Augustine; He who stood before the Judge, he who was buffeted he who was spit-upon, &c. he is risen. The Lord reigns, &c. p. This his reign is Amplyfied, 1. By the sweet effects thereof, joy and gladness, whereunto his Subjects are exhorted. Christs reign is his Subjects rejoycing. 2. By the extent of his reign, not only to the land of Jews, but to the many Iles, that is, the Gentiles (compare Isa. 42. 4. with Mat. 12. 21.) who are exhorted to rejoyce in his reign, which they could not do, till he actually reigned over them, ver. 1. II. Described, very figuratively under sundry taphors: shewing that as it were all Creatures in Heaven and Earth yield Testimony and obeysance to Christ Reigning, and that more gloriously then at the giving of the Law in Mount Sinai, Exod. 19. Deut. 4. & 5. His Reign is described, 1. By his inaccessible and incomprehensible Majesty; The cloud and darkness round about him. 2. By the righteousness of his Throne, (1) Towards his own, ver. 2. (2) Towards his Enemies. To whom he is as a devouring fire, ver. 3. 3. By his power and terribleness to the whole World: So that the most strong and senseless Creatures quake and melt at his presence, v. 4, 5. 4. By the Universal conspicuousness of his Righteousness and Glory, v. 6,

II. The consequent effects or uses of this Kingdome of the Lord Christs are represented, 1. In regard of all Idolaters: They shall be confounded. 2. In respect of the Angels: they all shall worship him, v. 7. 3. In respect of the Church, Typified by Sion, & the people of God, (1) They shall observe and acknowledge the Lord's judgments and righteous administrations. (2) They shall rejoyce and be glad at the hearing thereof, v. 8. These consequent effects are all amplyfied by the reason why they should ensue from this Kingdom of the LORD: which reason is drawn from the Lord's incomparable excellency and supereminent Majesty above all in Heaven and Earth, (at Eph. 1. 20. 21. 22.) v. 9.

III. Finally, An Hortatory conclusion is annexed. Wherein consider, I. The Persons exhorted: The Lovers of the Lord. A periphrasis of Christs true Saints and Subjects. II. The Duties whereunto they are incited, viz. 1. Hating of evil. This Duty is urged, (1) From the Lord's constant Protection keeping the Souls of his Saints. (2) From his delivering them out of the hand of the Wicked, v. 10. (3) From his preparing for future, Light and Gladness i. e. Soul-refreshing Comforts after troubles for the just and upright in heart. (Est. Hebr. The same thing in several expressions as Esth. 8. 16.) this is Elegantly set forth in the Similitude of Sowing Seed, Which comes not up till afterwards, ver. 11. 2. Rejoycing in the LORD, their King. 3, Thankful confession at the remembrance of his Holiness, who is the Author of all good, and the Averter of all evil from his Saints, ver. 12.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This is the only Psalm, that hath meerly this Title מזמור Mizmor, A Psalm. The sense of this word hath bin formerly explicated m. This Psalm is of mixt Kind, being Hortatory, Laudatory, and Prophetical. Hortatory and Laudatory, Exhorting Jews, Gentiles, and all Creatures to praise the LORD for his Salvation, &c. Prophetical, foretelling the marvellous victoriousnesse of Christ our King over his and our Spiritual enemies by his own power, so working our Salvation, and revealing it to all the Nations of the World: So that both Jews, Gentiles, and all Creatures are incited to triumph with praises in the LORD's triumphs. It is evidently of like Argument with the two Psalmes foregoing. Yea, not only the Matter, but the very words and Phrases are many of them the same with those in Psal. 96. which further confirms; that as that, so this, is Prophetical also, And most Expositors do account it A Prophecy Christ and his Salvation, and so interpret it. As Augustine, Hierome, Junius, Calvin, H. Mullerus, Ames, Ainsworth, Sim. de Muis, &c.

Penman of it, is most probably supposed to be David, because it so notably agrees with Psalm 96. both in Matter and Epressions which 96. Psalm was; Penned by David, See 1 Chron. 16. 7.—23. &c.

Occasion of Davids writing this Psalm, is not particularly any where laid down. But possibly it might be some wonderful and glorious victory given by the LORD unto David and Israel over their enemies, the Heathen-Nations about them; as those recorded, 2 Sam. 8. which were great matter of peace and joy to Israel, as this Psalm imports. But in this Psalm David reaches higher, under these Types and Shadows of his Victories, to celebrate Prophetically the most glorious and wonderful Spiritual Victories of the King Christ over his Spiritual enemies, for the Salvation and surpassing Consolation of all his among Jews and Gentiles n. And this New Song, imports not any vulgar or ordinary, but an exquisite and extraordinary occasion of Mercy and Salvation: such as is peculiarly found in Christ our Saviour o.

m See the Preface before the Psalmes, Sect. VI. numb. III.

n Hen. Muller. in 1 Psal. 98.

o Ja. Calv. in Comm. in Psal. 98.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein especially intended, is; To incite both Jews, Gentiles, and all Creatures in their kind to rejoyce and praise the LORD triumphantly, for his marvellous Salvation wrought for his people against their Heathenish enemies: but most of all, for his miraculous Victories over all our Spiritual enemies by Jesus Christ and his Kingly power; for the Salvation of both Jews and Gentiles, throughout the World.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title prefixed, contains only the Denomination of it; A Psalm.

The Psalm it self contains a threefold Exhortation to joy and praise, especially in reference to Christ and his Victorious, Salvifical, and Righteous Kingdom.

I. Jews are exhorted. Where note, 1. The Excellent Duty Exhorted to; Singing a new Song to the LORD. A new Matter calls for a new Song, said Hierome p. II. The Grounds or Reasons of this Duty. More Generally, because he had done wonders. More Particularly, because, 1. The LORD, by his own meer power, had wrought Salvation and got him the victory over his enemies; Sin, Death, Hell, Satan, &c. especially, v. 1. 2. The LORD hath made known this his Salvation. 3. He hath revealed his Righteousnes in Christ, to the very eys of the Nations, v. 2. 4. The LORD hath remembred his Mercy and Truth to the house of Israel, sweetly accomplishing them in Christ and his Kingdom. 3. All the ends of the Earth have seen the Salvation of our God. God hath made it known, there's the Cause: all have seen it, there's the effect, v. 3. These the wonders which the LORD hath done.

p Hier. in Com. ad Psal. 97.

II. Gentiles are Exhorted. Where consider, 1. Who are Exhorted; All the Earth. All the Nations of the Earth. 2. What they are exhorted to do; To ex-expresse and testifie all manner of joy, and thankful praises. This is laid down in an heap of Pathetical expressions full of Elegancy. 3. To whom all this joy and praise is to be peculiarly directed; To the LORD, to the King JEHOVAH, ver. 4, 5, 6.

Psalm XCIX.

Sect. III. The Kind, Occasion, and Penman.

This Psalme, as many others (See Psal. 1. Sect. 4.) is without Title in the Hebrew; Though it be intituled, A Psalme of David: by the Greek Version of the LXXII. by the Vulgar Latin, and by the Æthiopick Version i. The Kind of it is mixt: being Hortatory, Laudatory, Prophetical and Consolatory. Hortatory, inciting Gods People to Praise his Name, ver. 3. To exalt him and worship before him, ver. 5, 9. And this Exhortation is recited as the Burden of the Psalme elegantly in three distinct verses, viz. v. 3, 5, 9. Laudatory, Praising and magnifying the Majesty and matchless greatness of the LORD's Kingdom in Sion, in his Church: As also the benefits of his Kingdom, doing Judgement and Justice, hearing his Peoples Prayers, forgiving their sins, &c. Prophetical, under this Kingdom of the LORD's, and the benefits thereof, pointing out Christ's Kingdome, and the spiritual advantages thereof to his Church: The Lord ruling therein, and shewing these favours thereunto, in and by Jesus Christ, to whom he hath committed all judgement, John 5. 22, 23. For, as divers observe, This Psalme is of like nature to Ps. 96, 97, 98, which are Prophetical. Augustine, Hierome, and many out later Writers interpret this Psalme of Christ, k. It is Consolatory also to the Church of God against the Cross, and all her potent violent enemies under Satan: They rage against her, and the Saints; but the Lord Christ reignes, to Protect his, and destroy their enemies, ver. 1. &c.

Penman of it cannot certainlyby determined upon, But probably David wrote it: for the Language is like his, Compare ver. 1. with Psal. 96. 10. and 93. 1. and 97. 1. The Greek, Latin, Arabick, Syriack, and Ethiopick Versions l, referre it to David. So doth Hierome m, and other Writers.

Occasion of the Psalmist's writing this Psalme in particular is not evident. It seems to be penned upon some such like Occasion as the three former Psalmes. But, as Calvin notes, herein this Psalme differs from them, that its only directed to the Jewes n.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein is, To exhort and incite Gods Church and People; from the Majesty of the LORD their King, The benefits of his Kingdome, and the Example of Fore-fathers, To praise his Name, Exalt him, and Worship before him at his Holy Hill, ver. 3, 5, 9.

Sect. V.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalme is laid down elegantly, as the burden thereof, a threefold Exhortation, for substance the same, but in variety of Expressions. As,

I. An Exhortation to Confess the Name of the LORD To confess it with praise, ver. 3. This Exhortation is urged, 1. From the Lord's Kingdom. Amplyfied, by the vexation of his and his peoples enemies thereat. 2. From the Presence of this King in his Church sitting between the Cherubims. Illustrated, by the Earth's shaking thereat, or being moved with indignation or fear, v. 1. 3. From the LORD's greatness, and matchlesse Highness in his Church over all people in the World, v. 2. 4. From his Names Greatness, Dreadfulness, and Holyness, v. 3.

II. An Exhortation, to Exalt the LORD, and to Worship at his foot-stool, v. 5. This is briefly but forcibly pressed, 1. From the eminent righteousness of this King the LORD, set forth in three Expressions; (1) His Strength (whereby he is able to execute judgment for his own against his and their enemies) loveth Judgment. (2) He hath established righteousses: i. e. Lawes and things most righteous. (3) He hath done judgment and justice in Jacob, in the Church, actually, v. 4. 2. From his Covenant-Relation to his people; Our God. 3. From his Holyness, v. 5.

III. An Exhortation to Exalt the Lord; and Worship at the Hill of his Holyness. At Mount Sion: in his Church, &c. v. 9. This is enforced, 1. From the Example of For-fathers worshipping the LORD: whereof three eminent persons are mentioned, Moses, Aaron, and Samuel, who as Priests and Intercessours were wholly employed in Gods Worship, and especially in calling upon the Lord. And therefore the highest and greatest should not disdain nor despise Gods Worship. 2. From the Lord's gracious Acceptance of their worship performed to him, (1) Answering them; and speaking to them, in the pillar of cloud, his will and pleasure: (They keeping his Testimonies and Decree which he gave them.) v. 6, 7. (2) Pardoning and taking away their sin: yet taking vengeance of their Practises and Inventions. That, for their and our comfort: This, for their and our Caution, v. 8. 3. From the Lord's Covenant-Relation to his people; our God. 4. From the Lord's Holyness. Who therefore is to be sanctified by his peoples holy worship of him, v. 9. Now all these Exhortations, and Arguments enforcing them are very applicable unto our Lord and King Jesus Christ.

Sect. I. The Summary Contents.

Likewise his Pasture's sheep full dear.

To him confess ye every one.
Bless ye his holy Name alwaies.

5. Because the LORD alone is good,

Likewise his faithfulness hath stood
Unto d all Generations sure.

The second Version out of the Hebrew.

A Psalme for Confession.

1. UNto the LORD, O all the Earth,
Shout-ye-triumphantly.
2. Serve ye the LORD with gladsom-mirth:
a Before him come with joy.
3. Know that JEHOVAH, he is God;
He made us, b and not we:
His Covenant-people known abroad,
And c Pasture's sheep we be.

4. O enter with Confession

To him confess ye every one,
Bless ye his Name alwaies.
5. Because the Lord is good, so shall
His d mercy be for-ever:
And unto e Generations all
His Truth doth firm persever.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is Hortatory and Gratulatory. It Exhorts unto thankful Gratulation and Confession of praise unto the LORD: and this from sundry cogent Motives. It is very short, but very full and sweet: short in words, but full and sweet in Matter. A few verses (said Augustine) bigg with great things f. It Exhorts hereunto, not only the Church of the Jewes, but all the Earth, ver. 1. Whereupon some think this Psalme to be in a sort Prophetical, & indited by a Spirit of Prophecy, foreseeing and foretelling the calling of the Gentiles into one Church-body with the Jewes, by Jesus Christ g. For, till all the Earth, the Gentiles be called, they cannot (as here is required) confess unto God, or praise him for those spiritual mercies, which are here made the matter and ground of Gods praise. And therfore I see not, why we may not account this Psalme A tacit Prophecy of the calling of the Gentiles unto Christ, as elsewhere upon like ground the Apostle accounts, Ps. 117. to be: See Rom. 15. 9, 10, 11. So that both Jewes and Gentiles should with triumphant cheerfulness sing this Psalme of Confession and Praise in their solemn Assemblies.

Penman

Penman of it is supposed to be David, because the Matter and Current of it is so suitable to these forgoing Psalmes, viz. 96,97,98,99.

Occasion, seems pointed out in the Title, That it might be used, by the Catholick Church consisting both of Jewes and Gentiles throughout all the Earth, as a Form of Solemn Confession and Praise to God, for his Greatness, Graciousness, Goodness, Loving-kindness and Truth. The Chaldee, Rasi, and Raburaki think this Psalme was written, that it might be sung at Sacrifices of Confession or Thank-Offerings h.

h Sim. de Muis in Ps. 100

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The intended Scope of this Psalme, is; To Exhort and Incite all the Earth, all the Church of God throughout the Earth, To Confess unto, and Praise the LORD with all possible Devotion, Joy, and Cheerfulness, in their Solemn Assemblies: especially for his 1. Greatness, 2. Graciousness, 3. Goodness, 4. Mercy or Loving-kindness, And 5. Truth or Faithfulness.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title, which is peculiar to this Psalme onely, hath in it, 1. The Denomination of this part of Scripture, A Psalme. 2. The special end and use of the Psalme, For Confession; viz. Thankful confession unto the LORD: As the current of the whole Psalme evinceth.

The Psalme it self contains principally An Exhortation of all the Earth, to confess and praise God, Wherein are,

I. A Description of that Confession to, and Praise of God whereunto all the Earth is Exhorted. It must be, 1 Compleat in all its parts. As is hinted in the abundance of Hortatory Expressions. Shouting Triumphantly, Serving the Lord with gladness, Singing-joy, Confession, aise, Blessing, &c. 2. Most zealous and fervent; Shout triumphantly to the LORD, ver. 1. 3. With religious service and observant-worship to the LORD; Serve ye the Lord. Herein especially the essence of it must consist. 4. Most cheerful, joyful, and free-hearted; with gladness, with singing-joy, v. 2. 5. Grounded on knowledge of God, and of the great causes which we have of praising him; Know ye that ——— v. 3. 6. Solemn, in publique Assemblies; Enter ye his Gates with Confession, his Courts with Praise, v. 4.

II. A Declaration of the Grounds or Motives, inciting forcibly to this so eminent Praise of the LORD. And they are drawn, 1. From the LORD's glorious Nature and Greatness; He is God. 2. From his eminent Graciousness to us; He made us: viz. Not only Naturally, by Creation; Gen. 1. 26. but also, (and especially) Spiritually and Supernaturally by Regeneration, Sanctification, Adoption into Covenant with himself, and other high blessings &c. As the the word [made] elsewhere imports, 1 Sam. 12. 6. Deut. 32. 6. Isai. 43. 7. and 29. 23. Ephes. 2. 10. This his making us, is Illustrated, (1) By the Contrary; ולא אנחנו ve lo anachnu, and not we that is, we have not made our selves what we are, either in Nature, or in Grace; All is wholly from the LORD alone. Or, this passage may be an Illustration of Gods making us, by the effect thereof: here being another reading in the Margin; ולו אנחנו ve lo anachnu, and to him we: viz. appertain. Or; and his we, viz. are. Either reading is good or suitable enough here in this place. (2) By two choise fruits and advantages resulting from the LORD's thus making us, viz. 1 Our Covenant-state and Relation to God; His People. 2 The Lord's constant care of us, (thus brought to be his by Covenant,) as a Shepherd hath of his Sheep. Metaphor. ver. 3. This verse also may be thus read, with a Parenthesis; Know ye that the LORD he is God, He made us (and not we) his People, and Sheep of his Pasture i. But the sence comes all to one. 3. From the LORD's Goodness. 4. From his Loving-kindness, or loving-kind-mercy. Amplified by its Adjunct, Perpetuity. 5. From his Truth or Faithfulness. Illustrated also by its Adjunct, Constancy, to all Generations, ver. 5.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is Doctrinal, wherein David solemnly and seriously professing unto God his godly and upright Resolutions for the due management of his Kingly Office and Government, both as to his Person, Family or Court, and Kingdom notably teacheth, what are the most desirable Propertles and Perfections in a good and religious King. Hence, This Psalme setting forth so many choise Excellencies and Duties of a Good King, is justly stiled by some; Speculum Regum, A Looking-Glass for Kings k. And indeed herein Kings may behold the beauty of good Kingly Government, lively represented in the principal Vertues of Kings, whereunto all their other Vertues may easily be referred: and contrariwise the deformity of bad Government in the contrary Vices of wicked Princes, such as King Saul was, whose ill administration probably David did tacitly glance at in this Psalm. O that all Christian Kings and Princes would seriously study and meditate upon this Royal Psalme, and Resolve to conforme themselves, their Families or Courts, and Government, to this Princely Pattern laid before them therein; Nor need the greatest Prince or Emperour in this world disdain to imitate the Royal Example of King David, the first King of Israel of Gods choice, A man after Gods own heart, one of the choisest of all Israels Kings, and an eminent Type of Jesus Christ the King of Kings.

k Sim. de Muis in Arg. Psal. 101.

Penman of this Psalme was David: as the Title shewes. Thirty three Psalmes have this very Title prefixed: as I have formerly shewed l.

l See the Preface before the Psalmes. Sect. VI. numb. IV.

Occasion of his writing it, is not particularly noted here or elsewhere: But it may probably be gathered from the Psalme more Generally, That after David was Annoynted King over all Israel, applying himself religiously and conscienciously to the well-administration and Government of the Kingdom, he solemnly, in the integrity of his heart, Professeth and promiseth before the LORD, to behave himself in his Person, Family, and Kingdom, as is expressed in this Psalme. Calvin thinks, this he wrote before he came to the Throne, after he was Annoynted m. But because he mentions here his Government in the City of God, ver. 8. which was Jerusalem, where he reigned not, till he was Annoynted King over all Israel; its probable he wrote not this Psalme till then.

m Jo. Calv. in Arg. Psal. 101.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope herein intended, is; Solemnly and sincerely to profess unto the LORD his religious and conscientious Resolution touching the well-governing of himself; his Family or Court, and Kingdom: and therein to propound himself a Pattern of a Good King, to all in Regal Authority; Laying down before them the chief Vertues and Duties wherein they should especially imitate him.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In the Title are signified, 1. The Denomination of it; A Psalme. 2. The Penman of it; David.

The Psalme it self hath in it, Davids Profession or Promise of his Good Government. Touching which note two things: viz.

1. A General and Summary Proposition of his good Government intended, ver. 1. Where note, 1. The two great Points or Acts of good Government are mentioned; Mercy, and Judgment. Some referre these two to Gods Government, in Mercy over his People, in Judgment over the wicked n: but they are rather to be referred to Davids Government. 2. Davids thankful acknowledgment of God, as the fountain of these, for which he resolves to sing Psalmes and Praise to him.

n Aug. in Enarrat. Psal. 100. cum Joan. Calv. Com. ad Psal. 101. 1. Jo. Foord, in Exposit. Psal. 101. in Analys.

II. A Particular Explication of this Proposition, Unfolding wherein his Good Government intended should consist. And this in respect of 1. His Person, 2. His Court and Family. 3. His Kingdom.

1. In respect of his Person, He Resolves and Promiseth, To walk in a right way or course of life; I will do wisely in a perfect way. This his perfect and upright way is described and illustrated, 1. By its directing Cause, Wisdom or Prudence. 2. By its moving Cause; Gods visiting, or coming to him to call him to an account. Some make this, The assisting and helping Cause. 3. By the essential manner of a good life; the integrity of his heart. 4. By the Subject-Place wherein; In midst of his House. Privately and publickly, ver. 2. 5. By his eschewing and utter abandoning of all contrary evils. This is gradually laid down; (1) He will not intend or set before his eyes any word, or thing of Belial, of difficulteness or wickedness. (2) He will hate the doing of those that turn aside; having nothing to do with it, ver. 3. (3) He will abandon a perverse and froward heart, not enduring it himself. (4) He will not know, or approve, or have any fellowship with, any evil, ver. 4.

2. In respect of his Family and Princely Court; He Resolves and Promiseth. I. To set himself against, and remove or keep out of his Royal Family, wicked Persons Instancing in some sorts which are more dangerous and pernicious Pests in Kings Courts, viz. 1. Calumniators: who be-tongue and traduce their neighbours secretly. 2. Proud Persons. Whether (1) Outwardly; Haughty of eyes. (2) Or Inwardly, Vast of heart, viz. proud hearted; as Prov. 21. 4. and 28. 25. These he would not endure, but suppress, ver. 5. 3. Fraudulent deceitful persons. They should not dwell within his house. 4. Lyers, v. 7. II. To accept and admit contrariwise into his Family and Court, 1. The faithful in the Land, to be his Counsellours and Favourites. 2. Upright walkers, To be his Ministers, Officers, or Servants, verse 6.

3. In respect of his Kingdome, He Resolves and Promiseth to Suppress the wicked of the Land, (who are the Calamity of any Kingdome.) And this, 1. Speedily; At mornings. 2. Impartially; All. Without respect of Persons. 3. Advantagiously, that the City of God, the Church of God, may thus be delivered from all workers of iniquity, ver. 8.

בעשן into-smoak. Stevens hath כעשן As smoak. This seems to be the true Reading, because in both Copies the parallel clause in this same verse hath כמוקד Chamoked...As an hearth: במוקד Bemoched-into-an hearth; these symbolical Letters ב and כ, being near other, and easily exchanged one for another, might probably occasion this diversity.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, Occasion, &c.

This Psalm is in the Nature and Kind of it, A Prayer: as the Title expresseth it. A very mournful, yet comfortable Prayer: Penned, either by the poor-afflicted, when he was overwhelmed; or for the poor-afflicted, when he should be overwhelmed, &c. as the Title declares the use of it.

Penman of it is by sundry Interpreters a supposed to be Daniel: though hereof they can give no cogent grounds.

a Fran. Junius in Annot. ad Ps. 102. 1. Joa. Foord Exposit. Ps. 102. tit. Sim. de Muis in Arg. Ps. 102

Occasion of writing this Psalm (whether by Daniel, or some other Prophet) seems to be the extream afflictions and miseries of the Jews through their being carried captive into Babylon, as seems not obscurely to be hinted in v. 23. thinks Junius in his Annotations thereunto.

And the particular time of writing it, was doubtless a little before the seventy years of their Captivity, foretold by Jeremiah c. 25. 12, and 29. 10. were accomplished, and their promised deliverance was now at the doors: As vers. 13, 14. do notably evince. And as at that time Daniel afflicted himself, and Prayed for the Captives Restauration, Dan. 9. 1, &c. So it may be thought about the same time Daniel or some other Prophet wrote this Psalm b as a Form of Prayer to be used then by the poor-afflicted Church of God, for the reparation of the Temple, and of Jerusalem; as Calvin hath noted c. And its an Excellent Prayer which Gods Church and People may use, in lamenting the Churches ruined and miserable condition, and imploring her Deliverance, Restitution, and Reformation.

b Jo. Foord in Expos. Ps. 102. Tit.
c Joan. Calv. in Com. ad Ps. 102. 1.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Prayer, is: 1. To direct the Church of God (deeply distressed in Babylon, but now near the time of her deliverance thence, according to Gods Promises,) earnestly to importune the LORD for her deliverance, and for an happy Restauration of the Temple and Jerusalem d, v. 13, 14, &c. 2. And consequently. To instruct the Church of God in all after times, (by this Example) how to behave her self towards God in her deepest miseries and persecutions, trusting in him and flying to him by earnest Prayer for Restauration and a thorow Reparation of her Ruines. 3. Yea to teach every poor-afflicted Soul how to pour-out his Meditation before the Lord in his deepest overwhelming afflictions. Title.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title sets forth, 1. The Kind of this Psalm; A Prayer. 2. The use of it; A Prayer of the poor-afflicted: or, for the poor-afflicted, i. e. A Form of Prayer, fit for the poor-afflicted Church to use, or which which any poor-afflicted person may make use of. 3. The Season of such use; when he shall be overwhelmed and shall pour out ——.

The Psalme it self contains 1. The Preface. 2. The Substance of the Prayer. 3. The Conclusion.

I. The Preface. Wherein he earnestly craves Audience from the LORD. Here note, 1. The vehemency and fervency of his Prayer. Partly signified by the Effects, viz. His crying and calling; Partly, illustrated by the Cause thereof, viz. Distress upon him. 2. The LORD's Audience begged, is described, (1) By the Nature of it. It consists in Hearing, in letting his cry come unto him, in not hiding his face from him, in inclining his ear to him, and in answering him. (2) By the adjunct, speedinesse of such Audience, ver. 1, 2.

II. The Substance of the Prayer hath in it, 1. A Pathetical complaint of present miseries, 2. An earnest request or Petition for relief, urged by sundry Arguments. By all which the Petition for speedy Audience is notably enforced.

1. A Pathetical complaint of the present overwhelming miseries, upon the poor afflicted; These are declared, 1. By their parts, viz. (1) The outward Consumption of his flesh, ver. 3. (2) The inward burning up and withering of his heart; aggravated by the sad Effect thereof, his forgetting to eat his bread, ver. 4. (3) His deep groaning, whence His bone cleaves to his skin, ver. 5. (4) His extream desolation and solitarinesse. Represented by three Similitudes of three Solitary Birds, ver. 6, 7. (5) His enemies constant Reproaches, madnes, and swearing against him, ver. 8. (6) The extream meanness and mournfulnesse of his condition ver. 9. 2. By their Cause: Gods indignation and wrath having brought all these distresses upon him. God having lift him up and cast him down, ver. 10. 3. By the sad result and fruit of all these miseries upon him, viz. The decaying and vanishing of his life and strength, ver. 11. 4. By their contrary, and sufficient remedy against all this frailty and misery, viz. Gods Eternity, ver. 12 and his Mercy, ver. 13, &c.

2. An earnest Petition for mercy to Sion, laid down by way of assured and comfortable perswasion that God had heard according to the former request, and would have mercy upon Sion, ruined, desolated, &c. thou wilt restore the Temple and City, and bring back thy Captives. This is excellently illustrated and confirmed, 1. By the Adjunct Opportunity of time. The promised time of deliverance being come, ver. 13. 2. By the earnest desire of Gods people the Jewes, longing for the Re-edifying of the Temple and City, vers. 14. 3. By the Effects hereof upon the Heathen, and Kings of the Earth; thereupon fearing God, ver. 15. 4. By the Effects hereof upon and towards Gods people, when he shall build up Sion, &c. For, then; (1) The LORD shall appear to them, and among them, in his Glory, ver. 16. (2) He shall demonstrate, that he hath actually heard the Prayer of the destitute and desolate, ver. 17. (3) This Proceeding and Providence of God shall be left upon Record to posterity, and people that shall be hereafter Created shall for it praise the LORD, ver. 18. This their recording of Gods Acts, and praising him, is illustrated; Partly, From Gods gracious proceeding herein, viz. Looking down from Heaven to the Earth: To hear the groans of the Captives, and release the Sons of Death, designed for Death, or nigh to Death, ver. 19, 20. Partly from Gods end herein intended, viz. Declaring hereby his Name in Sion, and his praise in Jerusalem, ver. 21. which is illustrated by the Adjunct time when God shall thus be magnified, viz. when People and Kingdoms (that is, either the people of the Jewes out of all Kingdoms: or Jewes and the Kingdoms of Gentiles, which was fulfilled in dayes of Apostles, Acts 2.) should be gathered together at Jerusalem, or into one Church body, to serve the LORD, ver. 22.

III. The Conclusion of the Prayer, is Perfory. Wherein, 1. A great and grievous affliction is commemorated, viz. That which befell the Jewes in their being carried to Babylon, ver. 23. 2. A Petition thereupon presented, deprecating imminent ruine, is declared, ver. 24. beginning. 3. The Argument whereby this Petition was urged, is signified to be drawn from Gods Eternity and unchangeablenesse, ver. 24. This Eternity of God is proved, (1) Partly, because God was before the Worlds Creation, vers. 25. (2) Partly, because God shall remain after the Worlds Consummation, ver. 26, 27. 4. The sweet Consolation received from God upon this Praying to him is Celebrated: viz. Assured perswasion of the Continuance of his Servants Children, and of their Seeds establishment before the LORD, ver. 28.

Doing his holy x will.

22. O all his works in places all
Of his y Rule and controule,
Blesse ye the LORD Imperial:
O bless the LORD my Soul.

Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion.

This Psalme is most Sweet, Desirable, and Comfortable: As the choice Matter thereof clearly evidenceth. The Kind of it is Laudatory and Eucharistical; wherein the Psalmist, highly transported with zeal of Gods Glory, most thankfully blesseth and praiseth him for his many remarkable Benefits. And he provokes himself. the Angels, Hoasts, and all works of the LORD to bless the LORD; Circularly returning again to the Provocation of himself unto this Duty, v. 1. ——— 22.

Penman of it, as the Title shewes, was David. When he wrote it, it is altogether uncertain. Occasion of his writing it, in the General; were the Lords manifold and eminent Mercies to himself, and others of Gods people, which here he thankfully commemorates and celebrates. But what these Mercies, manifested to him, were particularly, and individually and when they were actually imparted to him, is not easie to determine.

It is a pleasant and profitable Observation which Junius a hath touching this 103. Psalme and the four following Psalmes, viz. 104. 105. 106 and 107. viz. That these Psalmes are on purpose joyned and set together, that in one Context the Church of God might have Arguments of Gods praises; Ordinary and Extraordinary. 1. Ordinary; In respect of Gods Administrations ordinary, (1) Towards the Church and People of God, in Psal. 103. (2) Towards all Creatures, in Psal. 104. 2. Extraordinary, in respect of Gods Dispensations extraordinary; viz. (1) Towards the Church, by Benefits, Psal. 105. by Chastisements, Psal. 106. (2) Towards all, by eminent Providences, in Psal. 107. And unto this Distribution, The Matter of these five Excellent Psalmes doth so admirably agree, that I may justly stile them; The Churches Cinque-Ports of Thankfulness. Or, The Churches five-fold Directory or Platform for Divine Praises. A little Pentateuch of Praises.

a Fran. Jun. in Annotat. ad Psal. 103.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

Davids Scope intended in this 103. Psalme, is; 1. To incite himself, and all his inwards, to all possible thankfulness to the LORD for his many choise Benefits heaped upon him, &c. 2. As also (himself being wholly unable to praise the LORD enough) to provok the Angels and all the Creatures of God to praise the LORD together with him. And in these Arguments of Praise, are comprized singular Grounds of Consolation to Gods people, touching Gods tender mercies in remitting their sins, and allaying all their Chastisements, v. 8. to 20. The Psalme is an Excellent Platform of praising and blessing the LORD for his peculiar Mercies upon them that fear and obey him, and keep Covenant with him: which any Child of God may sweetly make use of, for enlarging his heart in true thankfulness.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

The Title indicates David to be Penman of this Psalme; of David. Nine Psalmes, (viz. 25. 26. 27. 28. 35. 37. 103. 138. 144.) have only this Title without any other addition at all in the Hebrew b, wherein we are to understand a Psalme, or Song, or, Hymne, &c. of David, according to the Nature of it.

In the Psalme it self. David layes down four things, viz.

I. A Preparatory Excitation of himself unto the due praises of the LORD. Wherein note, 1, The Principle, or Efficient Cause of this Act of praising God, viz. His Soul, and all his inward Faculties and Affections. Synechdochically, his whole man. 2. The way or manner of his preparing his Soul and all his Inwards to this Act, viz. By a reflection upon himself with much zeal and fervency, The Incitation being doubled. 3. The Formal Object of this blessing and praise; The Name of the LORD's holiness. 4. The Mean and manner of this praising God, consisting especially in the due Commemoration of all his benefits, v. 1, 2.

II. A Gratulatory Commemoration of some choice Benefits for which the LORD is to be praised: which Benefits are most rich Cordials to the sincere Saints of God. These Benefits seem to be of three sorts, viz. I. Such as had respect to David peculiarly. As, b See the Preface before the Psalmes, Sect. VI. The General Partition, &c. numb. IV.

1. Remission of all his sins. 2. Healing of all his sicknesses, v. 3. 3. Redemption of him from mortal dangers. 4. Eminent Communication of all good things to him; Crowning him with loving-kindness and bowel-mercies, v. 4, 5. Donation of such blessings as conduced to the sweetning and prolonging of his life. Renewing his youth, as the Eagles, v. 5. II. Such as concerned the Church and People of God more Generally. As, 1. Righteous vindicating of all oppressed ones, and exercising judgement for them, v. 6. 2. Notification, or Revelation, (1) Of his wayes: His Ordinances and Lawes, to Moses. (2) Of his Acts: His Eminent Providences, to the sons of Israel, v. 7. 3. His most gracious and compassionate dealing with his own people that fear him, &c. This is set forth, and most sweetly illustrated, (1) Partly, By the Fountain of such his dealing with them, and deportment towards them, viz. Gods blessed Nature, described in four of his Essential Attributes; Tender-compassionatness, Graciousness, Long-suffering, and Loving-kindness, v. 8. (2) Partly, By some Principal Acts of Grace and Mercy expressed towards them, viz. Moderating and abating their afflictions, and his displeasure therein towards them; For duration, not alwaies chiding, v. 9, For degree, not dealing according to sins desert, v. 10. Remitting their iniquities, and removing them as far from them, as East from West. Which Attributes and Acts are illustrated by Emphatical Similitudes, v. 11, 12, 13. (3) Partly, by the moving Causes inclining the Lord to such compassionate deportment towards his people, viz. 1. The Extremity of humane fragility, Exactly known to the LORD, This is Elegantly described, v. 14. 15. 16. 2. The opposite constancy and Immutability of the LORD's Mercy to them that fear him, keep his Covenant: do his commandments: and to their Children, v. 17, 18. III. Such as concern all Creatures, viz. The LORD's Supream and Universal Dominion over all, v. 19.

III. An Hortatory Provocation of the Creatures to blesse and praise the LORD together with him, viz. 1. His Angels described, (1) By their Power. (2) By their Obedience to his Word. (3) By their readiness to that Obedience, v. 20. 2. His Hoasts. That are his Instruments to do his Pleasure, v. 21. 3. All his works in all places of his universal Denomination, v. 22.

IV. A Circulatory Reflection again upon himself, exciting his Soul, as in the beginning of the Psalme, to blesse the LORD. A thankful heart thinks it can never be quickned enough unto thankfulness, v. 22. latter end.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, Occaſion, &c.

This Pſalm, for the Kinde and Nature of it, is Laudatory and Gratulatory. As in the former Pſalm 103. The Arguments of Divine praiſes are drawn from bleſſings proper and peculiar to David, to the Church and people of God, As Remiſſion of ſins, Redemption, Refreſhing with loving-kindneſs, bowel-mercies and goodneſs, relieving of the oppreſſed, revealing of his Goſpel-wayes to Moſes, and his Acts to Iſrael, Mitigation of his peoples afflictions in this preſent life, Ruling over all for his Churches good, &c. So in this Pſalme he fetches Arguments of Divine Praiſes, from Gods common works of Creation, Gubernation, and Providence h, touching at Gods works of Creation in Order, according to the five firſt dayes, and at the ſeveral ends and uſes whereunto the Creatures are Deſtined and Ordained; wherein the Infinite VViſdom Power, Goodneſs, and Providence of God ſhines forth moſt gloriouſly. This Pſalm, as many others i, is without any Title prefixed in the Hebrew.

h See before in Pſ. 103. Sect. 3. and 5.
i See Pſ. 1. Sect. 4.

Penman of it, probably was David. And R. Ezra's Conjecture for this, is rational, viz. Becauſe this Pſalm begins and ends, as Pſal. 103. Penned by David; Bleſs the LORD, O my Soul, compare Pſal. 104, 1, 35. with Pſal. 103. 1, 22. Only, this Pſalm 104. is cloſed up with Hale-lujah, ver. 35. i. e. Praiſe-ye the-LORD. This Hebrew Phraſe is kept in the Greek, Rev. 19. 3, 6. and in other Languages, (as one k hath righly noted;) and its ſet ſometimes in the beginning, ſometimes in the end of Pſalmes. But firſt uſed in this place, where conſuming of Sinners is mentioned, as in the New Teſtament its firſt uſed in Rev. 19. where the deſtruction of Antichriſt, the man of Sin is foretold. So he, Theſe three Pſalmes (wherewith this Fourth Book of Pſalmes is concluded) viz. Pſ. 104. 105. and 106. are all ended with Halelu-jah. They are the three great Halelu-jah's.

k Hen. Ainſworth in his Annot. on Pſ. 104. 35.

Occaſion of the Pſalmiſts Penning this Pſalm, and the time when he wrote it, are not Particularly known. But in the General, it is evident by the Matter of it, that he took Occaſion to write it, from ſerious Meditation, ver. 34. and Conſideration of the great VViſdom, Power, and Goodneſs of God ſhining forth in Gods works of Creation and Providence, moſt illuſtriouſly to all the world. Auguſtine turns this, as many other Pſalmes, unwarrantably into an Allegory l.

l Aug. in Enar. Pſ. Pſ. 103. T. 8

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Pſalmiſts Scope herein intended, is; To incite himſelf, and all others, unto the praiſes of God, for his wonderful Works of Creating, Ordering, and Governing, with ſuch Wiſdom, Power, Goodneſs, and Providence, all variety of his Creatures in the World: imprecating confuſion to the wicked of the Earth, that will not be moved to the due praiſes of God, from all theſe his glorious works.

The whole Pſalme flowes with choiſe Rhetorical Elegancies. And if a man would take liberty to Paraphraſe this Pſalme, it might be repreſented very Elegantly: As in this enſuing Poem, communicated to me from a friend, which for the Elegancy and neatneſs of it, I think fit here to ſubjoyn; though the Verſion be far from Exactneſs, and the ſence be ſometimes miſtaken, viz.

1. MY Soul, the great God's Praiſes ſings, Becircled round with Glory's wings,
2. Clothed with light: o're whom the Sky
Hangs like a Starry Canopy.

3. Who dwels upon the gliding ſtreams,
Enamel'd with his Golden Beams:
Enthron'd in Clouds as in a Chair.
He rides in Triumph through the Aire.

4. The Windes and flaming Element
Are on his great Ambaſſage ſent.
5. The Fabrick of the Earth ſhall ſtand
For ay; built by his powerful hand.

6. The floods, that with their watery Robe
Once covered all this Earthly Globe;
7. Soon as thy thundering voice was heard,
Fled faſt. 8. And ſtraight the Hills appeared;

The humble Valeys ſaw the Sun,
Whil'ſt the affrighted Waters run
Into their Channels. 9. And no more Shall drown the Earth, or paſs their Shore.

10. Along theſe Vales the cool Springs flow,
And waſh the Mountains feet below.
11. Thither for drink the whole Herd ſtrayes:
There the wild-Aſſe his thirſt allayes.

12. And on the Boughes that ſhade the Spring
The feathered Quire ſhall ſit and ſing.
13. When on her Womb thy Dew is ſhed,
The Pregnant Earth is brought to bed

And with a fruitful birth increas'r.
14. Yields Herbs and Graſs; for Man and Beaſt.
15. Heart-ſtrengthning Bread, care drowning Wine:
And Oyle that makes the ſleek face ſhine.

16. On Lebanon his Cedars ſtand,
Trees full of Sap, works of his hand.
17. In them the Birds their Cabins dight:
The Firre-tree is the Storks delight.

18. The wilde-Goat on the Hills; in Cells
Of Rock the Hermite Coney dwels.
19. The Moon obſerves her courſe: The Sun
Knows when his weary Race is done.

20. And when the Night her dark veil ſpreads
The wilder Beaſts forſake their ſheds.
21. The hungry Lions hunt for blood,
And roaring beg from God their food.

22. The Sun returnes, These Beasts of Prey
Fly to their Dens, and from the day,
23. And whil'st they in dark Cavernes lurk,
Man till the Evening goes to work.

24. How full of Creatures is the Earth!
To which thy Wisdom gave their birth.
25. And those that in the wide Sea breed,
The bounds of number farre exceed.

26. There the huge Whales with slimy feet
Dance underneath the Sapling-Fleet.
27. All these expect their nourishment
From thee. 28. And gather what is sent:

Be thy hand open, they are fed;
29. Be thy face hid, astonished:
If thou withdraw their breath, they must Return unto their former Dust

30. If thou send back thy Breath, the face
Of th'Earth is spread with a new race.
31. Gods Glory shall for ever stay:
He shall with joy his works survey.

32. The stedfast Earth shall shake, if he Look down: And if the Mountains be Touch'd, they shall smoak. 33. Yet still my Verse, shall, whil'st I live, his Praise rehearse.

34. In him with joy my thoughts shall meet,
He makes my Meditation sweet.
35. The Sinners shall appear no more:
Then, O my Soul, the LORD adore.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Excellent and Elegant Psalme, are; 1. An Exordium. 2. A Narration. 3. A Conclusion.

I. An Exordium, Introduction, or Entrance to the ensuing praises of God the Creator. Wherein the Psalmist, 1 Provokes himself to bless the LORD. 2. Propounds in General the Grounds he hath for blessing him, viz. (1) Partly, the LORD's exceeding greatness. (2) Partly, his Comely Honour and Majesty, so abounding and surrounding him, that he is said to be clothed therewith, ver. 1.

II. A Narration of the Grounds and Reasons of blessing the LORD, more Particularly Drawn, 1. Partly, from his Creation and Ordination of the Creatures to Excellent Ends and Uses, ver. 21. to 27. 2. Partly, from his Conservation of the Creatures in their being and well being, ver. 27. to 31.

1. Grounds of blessing God, drawn from his Creating & Ordaining the Creatures to excellent Ends & Uses. Here the Psalmist following the step of Moses, Gen. 1. 3, 4, &c. toucheth at the Works of the five first dayes, especially. As, I. Of the first day; Light, Gen. 1. 3, 4, 5. This is Metaphorically compared to a Garment, wherewith God the Father of Lights clothes himself m, Jam. 1. 17. Light most notably resembling Gods Inaccessible Light and Glory, and being as his Royal Robe neerest to him, ver. 2. begin. II. Of the second day, the Heavens; that is, the whole Out-spread-Firmament, Gen. 1. 6, 7, 8. This is that which is called the First Heaven, the Ayery Heaven, consisting of three Regions n, Lowest, from the Earth upwards, as far as the Reflection or Refraction of the Sun-beames returnes: Uppermost, from the Element of Fire downwards, as far as the heat of the Fire reacheth; Middlemost, betwixt these two, which is coldest, and where all the Meteors, as Rain, Hail, Snow, &c. are gendered. The use of this Out-spread-Firmament is Elegantly described to be threefold, viz. 1. To cover, and as it were to hide and withdraw his Majesty from our eyes, as under a Curtain, ver. 2. 2. To have, after the Manner of Great Princes, variety of Palaces and places, whence at his pleasure he may manifest himself. He plancheth his lofts or upper Chambers in the waters, i. e. in the Clouds. 3. To have variety of Instruments, Accommodated and fitted for such his Manifestation of himself, viz. (1) The Clouds, for his stately Chariot. (2) The wings of the wind, for his speedy conveyance, as swift Horses drawing his Charlot, ver. 3. The Angels: For their Nature made Spirits or Spiritual Substances; (and so differing from Christ who is no Created or made Spirit, but the Maker of all things.) Psal. 102. 25, 26, 27. with Heb. 1. 10, 11, 12. and from men, according to his Humanity, made of flesh and blood, Luke 24, 39. For the efficacy of their Administration, a flaming fire, All activity, &c. Hence, Angels have sometimes appeared like horses and chariots of fire, 2 Kings 6. 17. and 2. 11.

o Touching Angels mentioned here ver. 4. Seeing Scriptures seem not plainly and positively to determine on what day they were created; and Orthodox Writers do but conjecture, that probably they were Created on the First day: Let the Learned here make a Quære; whether this fourth verse (the Context duly considered) renders it not most probable, That Angels were Created on the second day.

The Apostle, or rather the Holy Ghost, in Heb. 1. 7. directs us to interpret this place of Angels Properly, who in the same Chapter also Heb. 1. 14. are called Ministring Spirits, as here His Ministers, ver. 4. I know, divers here render the Hebrew word רוחות Ruchoth, winds: and make it the subject here of this Proposition, thus; who maketh his windes messengers: As the word is used, Psal. 78. 49. and flaming fire his Ministers: because fire, hail, thunder, windes &c. are said to fulfil his word, Psal. 148. 8. and these are oft-times forerunners of Gods protection to his People, and his destruction of their Adversaries, as Psal. 50. 3, and 18. 8. 10. 15, &c. Job. 38. 22, 23. Isai. 29. 6. And Angels are sent rather from the Third Heaven, than from the First Heaven. And therefore, this Interpretation, thus notably agreeing to the works of the Second Day, is embraced by many. But the former Interpretation to me seems best and safest, from that passage, Heb. 1. 7. Nevertheless, if any shall think good to put both Interpretations together, as Mollerus hath done p, I shall not gainsay; viz. Thus. It's said; He rode upon a Cherub, & did fly yea he did fly upon the wings of the winde Psal. 18. 10. where the Ministry of Angels, and of windes are joyned together, both of them being created to execute Gods commands. And in the windes we have a notable adumbration of the Ministry of the Angels. III. Of the third Day. The Earth, Sea, Fruitfulness of the Earth in Plants, viz. Grass, Herbs, Trees, Gen. 1. 9. to 14. These the Psalmist describes more largely. v. 5, to 19. More Particularly, He sets forth, 1. Gods founding and constituting the Earth in the Center of the World, and that immoveably, ver. 5. 2. His Covering the Earth, even the highest Mountains with the Deep, as with a Garment, ver. 6. 3. His removing the deep waters from the face of the Earth, that the dry-land might appear, and this suddenly, by his most powerful word, along Mountains and Valleys, to the place which he had founded for them, ver. 7, 8. 4. His confining and bounding the waters there in their place, that they return no more to cover the Earth, ver. 9. 5. His making the Earth (which of it self is barren) very fruitful: And that two wayes: viz. 1. Partly, by sending Springs and Rivers (viz. from the Sea, Eccles. 1. 7.) into the Valleys, walking among the Hills, ver. 10. The use of which Springs, &c. is declared: viz. (1) To afford drink to the living Creatures of the Earth, ver. 11. (2) To afford drink and refreshment to the fowles of the Heaven, delighting to build and sing among the branches growing by those streams, ver, 12. 2. Partly, By Exhaling vapours and waters out of the Sea, up into the Clouds, through the force of the Sun. From which Clouds, as

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, Occasion, &c.

1 This Psalme is, as to the Kind of it, Landatory, and Gratulatory. As in the two former Psalmes q were sweetly delcribed the ordinary Matters of Praising God, viz. 1. His Administrations towards his own peculiar People, in Psal. 103. 2. His Administrations towards all Man-kind and all Creatures, in Psal. 104. So in this Psalme 105. He begins to set forth the Extraordinary Matter of Praising God, for his Extraordinary Dispensation towards his Church and People, In his Covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, &c. Adopting them Extraordinarily from among all people, to be Gods peculiar people; and Sealing up that spiritual Mercy to them, by promising to them, and performing to their Seed, the Land of Canaan for an Inheritance. Augustine saith; This is the first Psalme that hath Halelu-jah prefixed to it r. But his Observation fails him; for Halelu-jah is not in the Hebrew prefixed to this Psalme at all, Psalme 106. is the first to which it is prefixed. This Psalme is without Title: as many others are s.

Penman of this Psalme, was doubtlesse David: although his name be not prefixed. For, the first part of this Psalme, from ver. 1. to 16. with very little alterarion, is part of that Excellent Eucharistical Psalme which David delivered into the hand of Asaph, and of his Brethren, to thank the LORD withal, in the day when the Ark of the Covenant was brought up from the House of Obed-Edom the Gittite, &c. See 1 Chron. 16. 1, 7. to 23 t.

And this was the Occasion of Davids penning this Psalme. How suitably! A Psalme touching Gods Covenant with Abraham and his Seed, at the bringing up of the Ark of the Covenant into the City of David, into the Tent that David had pitched for it, 1 Chron. 15. 19. and 16. 1, &c. But, as one noteth u, David after this enlarged this Psalme very much, adding an History of Gods gracious dispensation towards Abraham's Seed, before they came into Egypt, In Egypt, and after they were delivered thence, from ver. 16. to the end. And Kimchi observes that his Masters were wont to say, that this Psalme, viz. ver. 1. to 16. was wont to be sung in the Morning, and Psal. 96. in the Evenings. And that these two Psalmes were still sung at the sight of the Ark, till Solomon took the Ark into the Temple, which he calls the House of Ages x.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Psalme, is; To Excite the Church and People of the Jewes, the Posterity of Abraham, to all enlarged Praises and Thankfulnesse to God, for his extraordinary Mercy and wonderful Goodness to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and their Seed; in taking them above all other people from among Idolaters, and Adopting them to be a peculiar people to himself; by Covenant, promising and performing to them and their Seed the Land of Canaan, (a visible pledge of greater Spiritual Mercies, covenanted,) that hereby they might be the more effectually engaged to keep Covenant with God, observing his Statutes, and keeping his Lawes, Psal. 105. 44, 45. Upon like ground, How should Christians, Redeemed from Paganish or Popish Idolatry, and brought into the New-Covenant in Christ exhibited, be filled with thankfulness to God, for such his Extraordinary and gracious Administrations!

Sect. V.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this choice Eucharistical Psalme, note

I. An Hortatory Exordium, Emphatically and lively Exhorting the Seed of Abraham, &c. to sundry Duties belonging to the Praises of God. Here, 1. The Duties Exhorted unto, are described. And they are especially these three: viz. 1. To Praise the LORD. This is laid down in variety of Acts, tending to the LORD's Praises. As, (1) Confessing to the LORD. (2) Calling on his Name. (3) Making-known his Acts among the People, ver. 1. (4) Singing to him. (5) Singing-Psalms to him. (6) Discoursing of all his marvellous-works, ver. 2. (7) Glorying in the Name of his Holyness. (8) Heartily rejoycing, &c. ver. 3. 2. To seek the LORD: viz. to seek Communion with him in his Worship. Here is signified, what it is which they are especially to seek in God, when he is worshipped, viz. (1) His Strength. His Sufficiency. (2) His Face. His Favour, and Efficiency. This seeking his face is amplified by the Adjunct constancy thereof, v. 4. 3. To Remember, His Marvels, His Wonders, and The Judgements of his mouth, ver. 5. II. The Compellation of the Persons thus Exhorted, is expressed, by their Relation to Abraham, and Jacob, ver. 6.

II. The Arguments, whereby the Seed of Abraham and Jacob, the Church of God, is provoked to Praise God, are drawn,

1. From their Covenant-Relation unto God.

2. From Gods Judgements manifested in all the Earth, on the behalf of his Covenant-People, v. 7.

3. From Gods covenant with their Fathers, v. 8. to 12. Here are set forth, 1. Gods constant fidelity in his Covenant, in all Generations, v. 8. 2. The Nature of it, in sundry Denominations; Covenant, Word, commanded, to Abraham: Oath, to Isaac: Decree, to Jacob, vers. 8, 9. 3. The Federates. God on the one Part; Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, on the other ver. 9, 10. 4. One principal Matter Covenanted to them; Giving the Land of Canaan for their Inheritance to them, &c. v. 11.

4. From Gods Providential Dispensations to them and their Posterity, in pursuance of his Covenant with them. These Dispensations of the LORD towards them, are Digested into three Periods or Intervals of time especially, viz.

(1) Before they came into Egypt, v. 12. &c. Where note, I. Gods singular Protection of their Fore-Fathers, ver. 12. to 16. This Protection is Amplified and Elegantly Illustrated (1) By the paucity of their number, insufficient to defend themselves. (2) By their Pilgrim-condition in the Land. (3) By their Adversaries opposite power and multitude, ver. 12, 13. (4) By the sufficiency, and manner of their Protection, which was not Vulgar, but with a priviledge of Singular Honour put upon them, as his Annointed-ones, his Prophets, ver. 14, 15. II. Gods admirable Sustentation of them in an extream Famine. Where note, 1. The Extremity of the Famine which he brought upon Canaan, v. 16. 2. The Mean, or Instrument of their Sustentation, Joseph. Touching him Gods Providence wrought wonderfully, (1) In sending him before, viz. to preserve the life of Gods Church and people, ver. 17. begin. (2) In his most wise ordering and disposing of all his afflictions, ver. 17, 18. (3) In his strange delivering him out of all his afflictions and miseries, ver. 19, 20. (4) In his more strange advancing him to high Honour and power in the land of Egypt under Pharaoh, ver. 21, 22.

(2) Whilest they were in Egypt, ver. 23. to 37. Here are related, I. Israels coming into Egypt, II. Jacobs sojourning in Egypt, ver. 23. III. Gods multiplying them there greatly, and making them stronger than their enemies, ver. 24. IV. The Lords leaving the Egyptians to hate them, and deal subtilly with them, ver. 25. V. his sending Moses and Aaron to Egypt, for his afflicted peoples relief and redemption, by working Signes and Wonders there, v. 26, 27. The wonderful Plagues which they inflicted on the Egyptians are enumerated, but not in the Order in which they were wrought; As, 1. Darkness, v. 28. 2. Waters turned to blood, and Fish slain, ver. 29. 3. Frogs, v. 30. 4. Flyes, 5. Lice, v. 31. 6. Hail, with flaming fire, smiting and breaking their Trees, &c. v. 32, 33. 7. Locusts, and Caterpillars, v. 34, 35. 8. Death of the first-born, v. 36.

(3) When they went out of Egypt, and afterwards, v. 37, &c. Here Gods Providential goodness to them is described several wayes, viz. 1. In the Manner of his bringing them forth. (1) With great riches. (2) With general strength of them all, v. 37. (3) With full consent of the Egyptians, extorted at last from them, v. 38. 2. In his conducting them through the Wilderness most wonderfully; (1) Covering them from the Suns heat, and directing them with a Pillar of Cloud by day. (2) Guiding them, and giving them light with a Pillar of fire by night, verse 39. (3) Feeding them, with Quails for flesh: with Manna for Bread, with Water out of the Rock plentifully flowing in the dry-places as a River for Drink, verse 40, 41. Their bringing forth, and this Conduct of them through the Wilderness, are illustrated by their Special Cause, viz. Gods stability and fidelity in his Covenant, verse 42, 43. 3. In his putting them into possession of the promised Inheritance of Canaan, verse 44. which is Amplified, by the End intended by God in bestowing this Mercy upon them, That they might be obedient to God according to his Word, ver. 45.

III. The Conclusion of the Psalme, is that Hortatory provocation of all to the Lords-praises; Halelu-jah, ver. 45.

Gladly, Amen-Praise-ye-the-LORD.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion, &c.

This Psalm, as to the matter of it, is of mixt Nature: being Laudatory, and Petitory. Laudatory v. 1. 2, 3, 48. Petitory, vers. 4, to 48. though in the Petitory part are inserted many Arguments of praise to the Lord, for his many mercies to Israel, notwithstanding their many and great Rebellions against him. And as in the former Psalme, The LORD is praised for his Extraordinary mercy to his Church and People in his Covenant with Abraham and other Benefits. b So in this Psalme, he is praised for his Extraordinary Goodnesse, Clemency and Favour still continued towards them, even in his severest chastisements upon them for their iniquities, v. 8, 9, 10, 11, 20, 23, 43, 44, 45, 46. As to the Form of Penning it, This is an Untituled Psalme, as many others are i. And is one of the Halelujatick Psalmes (as Augustine k stiles it) both beginning and ending with, Halelujah, ver. 1. 48.

k Psalmus Halelujaticus. Arg. in Enar. in pſ. 105, T. 8.

Penman of this Psalm is not here expressed, nor elsewhere plainly and fully (that I know) in Scripture. Some do conjecture from ver. 47, that this Psalme was written in the time of the Babylonish Captivity: or at least in the woful times of their dispersion by Antiochus Epiphanes afterwards l. And that consequently some Prophet, then living, Penned this Psalme. But the matter of the Psalm, and the dispersion of the Jews among the Heathens, v. 47. need not be carried so farre: And under Antiochus times we shall hardly find any Prophet. Some think it was Penned in the times of the Judges, in whose dayes they were oft oppressed and delivered: From v. 43. And that probably then Samuel wrote it. Or when the Philistines and other Heathens much afflicted Israel in dayes of Saul and David. See Psal. 60. Title. 2 Sam. 8, &c. m And then David seems to be Penman of it. For my part, I cannot think this Psalm was written so rarely, as in Samuels dayes; or so late as in the time of the Babylonish Captivity or Antiochus his Persecution: but rather that it was written by David as a Form of Praise and Prayer which the Church of God might use in all times of their Affliction and dispersion among the Heathen n. For, That Psalm which David delivered into the hand of Asaph and his brethren, to thank the LORD withall, at the bringing up of the Ark into the City of David, 1 Chron. 16. 1. ——7. Is Composed of divers Psalms, as I have elsewhere o noted: And it is concluded with three verses, which are found in this present Psalm. Compare 1 Chron. 16. 34, 35, 36. with Psal. 106. 1. 47, 48. Only two or three words are altered. Whence in my judgment its more than probable, that David, was Penman of it.

Occasion of his penning it, seems to have been (as is formerly noted) some great thraldom and dispersion of the Jews among the Heathen, ver. 47.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope herein intended, is; 1. Pathetically to Praise the LORD (in the name of the Church) for his extraordinary Mercy, Loving-kindnesse and Bowel-mercies still continued in former ages most compassionately to his sinful people, even then when he was constrained most severely to chastise them for their many and great Provocations. 2. And to intreat the LORD for like favours and compassions to his now deeply distressed Church, though a like unworthy people.

Sect. V. The Analysis, or Principal Parts.

In this Psalm, The Prophet layes down four things 1. An Exhortation. 2. A Prayer. 3. A Confession. 4. A Conclusion.

I. An Exhortation unto the praises of the LORD. Herein note, 1. The Manner of the Exhortation, 'tis doubled, Praise the Lord, confess to him. 2. The ground of this praising him. (1) Partly, His goodness. (2) Partly, the constancy of his loving-kindness, v. 1. 3. An ingenious acknowledgment of mans utter inability to praise the LORD sufficiently: Pathetically proposed by way of Interrogation, v. 2. 4. The special Qualification of such as can duly praise the Lord, and their happiness in that Qualification, viz. Constant Integrity of life and conversation, v. 3.

II. A Prayer. Wherein consider, 1. The Mercies Petitioned for, viz. (1) That the Lord would remember him (mentioned in Name of the Church, compare ver. 6, &c.) with the favour, which he is wont peculiarly to vouchsafe to his own people. (2) That he would visit him with his Salvation, and deliverance from misery v. 4. 2. The Arguments whereby these Petitions are urged, are drawn from the fruits thence rebounding, (1) Seeing the good of Gods chosen. (2) Rejoycing in the joy of his Nation. (3) Glorying with his Inheritance, ver. 5. for the better exalting and magnifying of Gods former mercies, and for making way for future blessings here prayed for. Here are confessed, 1. The sins of the Church and people of God then living. Wherein they have wretchedly resembled their sinful forefathers, and justly deserved to be alike punished, v. 6. II. The sins of their Forefathers themselves (notwithstanding all Gods contrary mercy and goodness to them,) both 1. In Egypt. 2. In the wilderness. And 3. In the Land of Canaan, v. 7. to 47.

1. Their Sins in Ægypt, 1. They understood not Gods wonders. 2. They remembred not the multitude of his Mercies, v. 7.

2. Their sins after they came out of Egypt, and in the wilderness. I. Their first sin, Their Provocation of the LORD, by their unbelief, murmuring, &c. at the Red Sea. This sin is illustrated and aggravated, 1. By their oblivion of Gods former works, that might have prevented this sin, v. 7. 2. By Gods saving them at the Red Sea, notwithstanding. Which Salvation is amplified, by the impulsive Cause moving him thereto, viz. His own Name and Glory, v. 8. 3. By the miraculous way and manner of his saving them, there from the Ægyptians; by drying up the Red Sea, but drowning all their enemies therein afterwards. ver. 9, 10, 11. This wonderful Salvation is illustrated by the Effects which it wrought in Israel, (1) They then believed his words. (2) They sang his praise, ver. 12. II. Their second Sin, Murmuring for Water and Flesh, and thereby tempting God. Which is amplified, 1. By the Cause thereof, Forgetting Gods works, &c. ver. 13. 14. 2. By the place, where. 3. By the Manner how, ver. 14. 4. By the consequent Effect thereof; Gods granting their desire, but with a curse, ver. 15. III. Their third Sin, The Sedition of Dathan's and Abiram's company. Described by 1. The Cause of it, Envy. 2. The Objects of it, Moses and Aaron, v. 16. 3. The Effects thereof, Gods dreadful Judgements upon the Offenders, (1) The Earth devouring some, v. 17. (2) Fire consuming others, v. 18. IV. Their fourth Sin, Idolatry in the Golden Calf. Set forth, 1. By the place where the Calf was made and worshipped, in Horeb, v. 19. 2. By the folly and brutishness of this their sin, v. 20. 3. By the Cause of it, their forgetting God their Saviour, and his wonders in Egypt and at the Red Sea, v. 21, 22, 4. By the Effect that had like to have ensued, viz. Their Destruction. Amplified by the Means hindering, viz. Moses his Intercession for them, v. 23. V. Their fifth Sin, Contempt of the promised Land, and unbelief of his Promises, Set forth 1. By the Object of this Contempt and unbelief; The Land of desire, and Gods Word, v. 24. 2. By the Manner their Sin, murmuring, &c. v. 25. 3. By the sad Effect thereof, Gods severe Oath against them them and their Seed, v. 26, 27. VI. Their sixth sin, Their Idolatry and Fornication with the Moabites, v. 28. Amplified, 1. By the Effects ensuing thereupon (1) Provocation of God. (2) The Plague breaking in upon them, verse 29. 2. By the removal of this Effect the Plague upon Phineabs his executing of judgement on Zimri and Cozbi. Which act of his, though not altogether regular, was yet justified and allowed by God, v. 30, 31. VII. Their seventh Sin, Murmuring for Water at Meribah, Amplified by the Effects thereof, viz. 1. Gods great displeasure. 2. Moses Provocation and Punishment, v. 32, 33.

3. Their sins in the Land of Canaan, viz. 1. Not destroying the Canaanites, as God had commanded them v. 34. II. Contracting affinity with them, and so learning their works, ver. 35. III. Falling to most foul and horrid Idolatry, 1. Serving Heathenish Idols, v. 36. 2. Sacrificing their Sons and Daughters to Devils, to the Idols of Canaan. So (1) Polluting the Land with innocent blood, v. 37, 38. (2) Defiling themselves with this spiritual whoredom, v. 39. This their Idolatry is Illustrated, 1. By the Effects ensuing thereupon, viz. Gods wrath. Gods abhorring his own Inheritance. Gods delivering them into their enemies hands to be afflicted and oppressed, v. 40, 41, 42. 2. By Events opposite to their deserts, Gods frequent deliverances of them from Calamities which by their provocations they frequently brought upon themselves, ver. 43. These Deliverances are Amplified and set forth, by (1) Their Adjuvant Cause; His Peoples Prayers, ver. 44. 2. Their Principal Cause, Gods faithfulness and loving-kindness, whence he would performe his Covenant, notwithstanding their sins, ver. 45. (3) Their Manner of his working their Deliverance and Salvation, By stirring up even in their very enemies (after their hatred) Compassions towards them, ver. 46.

In all this Confession, As Israels Rebellions are deeply aggravated by Gods opposite Mercies: So Gods Mercies are highly exalted and magnified by Israels opposite Rebellions and Provocations.

IV. The Conclusion of the whole Psalme, is Petitory, and Laudatory. 1. Petitory. The Church of God in her deepest afflictions, notwithstanding all her sins and unworthinesse, is encouraged to hope and pray for Salvation and Deliverance; from all these recited Mercies and Deliverances of God to their Rebellious Fore-fathers. And therefore they pray for, (1) Salvation. (2) Gathering from among the Heathens. Urging these Requests; Partly, from Gods Covenant-Relation to them. Partly, from the thanks and praise, that thereupon they shall be enabled to return to God, v. 47. 2. Laudatory. Wherein, in confidence and hope this Petition shall be granted, (1) The Psalmist proclaimeth the everlasting blessednesse of the LORD God of Israel, (2) Inciteth all the people thereunto to say Amen. (3) Exhorteth all to praise the Lord, v. 48. And as he ended this Fourth Book of Psalmes, So I close up this my Version and Exposition of this fourth Book, with Halelu-jah.

THE FIFTH BOOK

Viz. OF

PSALMES.

THis precious Volume of Psalmes, being by the Hebrews (as hath been formerly o manifested) disparted into five distinct Books, may not improperly be stiled DAVID's PENTATEUCH: i. e. Davids Five-fold-Volume. The FIFTH and last BOOK OF PSALMES begins with Psal. 107. 1. &c. and ends with Psal. 150. 6.——Halelujah. (As the three First Books end with Amen and Amen: So the two last Books end with Hale-lu-jah p.) This Fifth Book then comprehends in it xliiii Psalmes: Having in it more Psalmes for number than any of the four former Books, yea than both the third and fourth Book put together; and being longer than any of the other four Books. Of these fourty four Psalmes, fifteen are by the Titles ascribed to David, viz. Ps. 108. 109. 110. 122. 124. 131. 133. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 143. 144. 145. None of the rest are ascribed to any other Penman, and most of them are without any Title at all prefixed in the Hebrew: and how many of them may certainly or probably be ascribed to David, will best appear when the particular Psalmes come severally to be considered.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman Occasion, &c.

This Psalm is of mixt Kind, being for the Matter of it, Hortatory and Laudatory, viz. Exhorting all sorts of persons to praise the LORD for his eminent and various Providences to the Sons of men; and for the form or manner of it, Untuled (as many others m are,) and Penned with two sorts of verses inserted and divers times repeated, which are commonly called n the burden of the Song; This Psalm hath a double burden, The one Narratory, of mens distresses, of their crying to the LORD therein, and of his saving them out of their anguishes, v. 6. 13. 19. 28. The other Hortatory, inciting men thereupon thankfully to confess Gods loving-kindness and wonders to the Sons of men, ver. 8. 15. 21. 31. Some call these Amœban verses o, Wherein one Answers another by turnes. In like manner, two other Psalms, viz. Psal. 80. and 136. are Penned with such Burdens of the Song interwoven, but somewhat differently p. And it is very observable that these three Psalmes are for matter most Excellent; and for Form most Pathetical and vehement. And as Ps. 103. 104. 105. and 106. Represent the Arguments of Gods praises, Ordinary and Extraordinary, as hath been noted q. So this 107th. Pſalme concludes this ſhort Pentateuch of Gods praiſes, with an Elegant Repreſentation of Gods ſingular and extraordinary Providences, and wonderful diſpenſations to mankind in General, as eminent and extraordinary Matter of Divine Praiſes.

Penman of this Pſalme is not certainly known, and Interpreters are much to ſeek herein. Yet to me it ſeems probable, that David was Penman of it: For, 1. The firſt verſe, Confeſs ye to the LORD, for he is good, for his loving kindneſs is for ever; is Davids Language in the Pſalme expreſly aſcribed to him, 1 Chron. 16. 7, 8. 34. and therefore its likely enough that Pſ. 106. 1. and 107. 1. and 118. 1. and 136. 1. wherein theſe words are uſed were all of them Penned by David. The Matter of this Pſalme is not limited to any times, perſons, or places, to render it unſuitable to David and his times: but rather is of ſuch General Concernment for all times and all ſorts of perſons, that it may agree to him and his times as well as to any other. Auguſtine thinks, this Pſalme was not Penned particularly for Iſrael, but alſo for the whole Church of God throughout the World r.

r Cantatur iſte de univerſâ Eccleſiâ Dei diffuſâ toto orbe terrarum. Aug. Enar. in Pſ. 106. Tom. 8.

Occaſion of writing it, in Particular is not known to us; but onely in the General it is evident from the Subject-Matter of this Pſalme, that the Pſalmiſts ſerious conſideration of Gods rare and wonderful Providences towards mankind, gave Occaſion to him of penning this choiſe Pſalme, for inciting all to praiſe and magnifie the Lord for his loving-kindneſs and wonders towards the ſons of men in his providential Diſpenſations.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Scope intended in this Pſalm, is; to exhort and excite men to the praiſing and glorifying of God for his eminent loving-kindneſs and wonderful works towards the ſons of men, in his providential Adminiſtrations of all ſorts towards the outward man. For ſundry wonderful providences being mentioned; This as the Burden of the Pſalm is ſundry times inſerted thereupon; Let them confeſs to JEHOVAH his loving kindneſs, and his marvellous works to the Sons of Adam, ver. 8. 15. 21, 31. Eſpecially they that have eminent experiences of ſuch providences, ſhould ſing theſe praiſes.

Si guſtâſtis aviditate, Confeſſione eructate. Auguſt. in Enar. in Pſ. 106. 1.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

In this Pſalme principally note, 1. An Exordium. 2. A Narration. 3. The Concluſion.

I. An Exordium, Exhorting all to confeſs unto God, to confeſs to him with praiſes and thankfulneſs, for his goodneſs, and conſtant loving kindneſs, ver. 1.

II. A Narrative of the ſpecial Cauſes, why all ſhould confeſs unto the LORD, and praiſe him, viz. Gods merciful and wonderful Providence towards the Sonnes of men, eſpecially in reſpect of the outward man. Theſe Providences of the LORD are deſcribed, as diſcovering themſelves; 1. Partly in ſome certain ſelect and eminent Adminiſtrations. 2. Partly in variety of Diſpenſations.

1. In ſome certain ſelect and eminent Adminiſtrations, for redeeming, and delivering, and preſerving of perſons in ſome ſorts of diſtreſſes and extremities, v. 2. to 23. viz.

(1) Of diſperſed and wandering exiles, ver. 2. to 10. Here for the better inciting unto thankfulneſs; The LORD's merciſull and wonderfull Providences, in delivering exiles out of their miſeries, are illuſtrated. I. By the miſeries whereunto exiles are expoſed, As; 1. Oppreſſion under the power of their Enemy, v. 2. 2. Diſperſion up and down the Earth, v. 3 3. Wandring in ſolitarineſs in the Deſert, 4. Privation of fixed City or Habitation, v. 4. 5. Hunger and thirſt. 6. Overwhelming trouble of ſoul, upon all, v. 5. II. By the effect of theſe their Miſeries, Crying unto the LORD: which notes fervency, vehemency of their complaints to him. III. By the manner of the LORD's deliverances vouchſafed them, viz. 1. Seaſonably, upon their crying to him, v. 6. 2. Suitably according to the nature of their diſtreſſes, v. 7. This is amplified by an inſerted Exhortation to them, To confeſs thankfully the LORD's loving kindneſs and wonders to the ſons of men, v. 8. 2. Sufficiently and fully, according to the extremities of their wants and miſeries, v. 9.

(2) Of Captives, v. 10. to 17. Here are alſo deſcribed, I. The miſery of Captives, viz. ſitting 1. In darkneſs; 2. In ſhadow of death; 3. Bound in cords and irons, v. 10. II. The procuring cauſes of their miſeries, viz. 1, Rebellion againſt Gods Word. 2. Contempt of his Counſels, verſe 11. whereupon he brought them to deep and helpleſs abaſement, v. 12. III. The effect of their miſery, Their crying therein to the Lord. IV. The LORD's deliverance of them out of their anguiſhes: 1. Seaſonably, upon their cry, v. 13. 2. Suitably, according to the nature of their miſeries, v. 14. which is illuſtrated by the Exhortation, To confeſs the Lords loving kindneſs, and his wonders to the ſons of men, v. 15. 3. Powerfully and Irreſiſtibly, v. 16.

(3) Of afflicted and ſick perſons, v. 17, to 22. Here alſo note, 1. A ſharp reprehenſion of ſuch in reſpect of the cauſe of their affliction and ſickneſs; Fooles. 2. They feel the ſad and miſerable operation of the troubled Sea and ſtorm upon them, viz. filling them with overwhelming fears, v. 26. making them reel and ſtagger to and fro like a drunken man, And ſwallowing up all their wiſedome and Art of Navigation, that they know not what to do, but onely to commit themſelves to Providence, v. 27. Sect. III. The Kinde, Penman, and Occasion of this Psalme.

This is An Entituled Psalme, as to the Form of penning it: The Title declaring 1. The Denomination of it; A Song, A Psalme, The reason of this twofold Denomination hath been touched formerly m. 2. The Penman of it; David. And it is of a mixed Nature, Partly Eucharistical or Gratulatory; Partly Euchtical or Pethory, as to the Subject-matter of it. This Psalm is composed of the latter parts of two other Psalmes, viz. Of Psal. 57. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. and Psal. 60. 5. to the end: very few expressions being altered. So that the Subject-matter of this Psalme, and of the latter parts of those two Psalmes, is one and the same, as the very words for most part are one and the same. But why the same Matters should thus be twice handled, is not so easie to be explained. If it may be lawful for me to conjecture from the matter of those two Psalmes, of which this is composed, I should think; 1. That when David penned, Psal. 57. & 60, he was in some danger by Saul, and by the Edomites, as the sad beginnings of those two Psalmes do somwhat notably imply unto us; yet he was not without much hope and confidence of overcoming them and prevailing, as the latter parts of those Psalms (whereof Psal. 108. is made up) do evidently intimate: but when he penned this 108. Psalm, he seems to have obtained a full victory over his dangers and enemies n. And therefore leaving out the beginnings of those two Psalms, which speak more uncomfortably; he joyns together the latter parts of them which speak more gladsomly, confidently, and triumphingly. Or, 2. That as David had expressed his prayer and thankfulness to God in those two Psalmes, for the hoped-for beginnings of deliverance from K. Saul, and the Edomites severally: so his thankful heart considering the greatness of these mercies compleatly vouchsafed him, desired again to express his thankfulness to God for these mercies joyntly, in Psal. 108. wherein the choice gratulatory parts of those Psalms are joyned together. Hence we may take direction and encouragement to make up or compose a Psalme of the parts of several Psalms, whose matter is suitable and agreeable, as here these are. Occasion, of this Psalme is for substance the same with that of Psal. 57. and 60. whereof it is composed.

m See on Psal. 30. Sect. 5.

n See to this effect Sim de Muis in Arg. Psal 108.

Sect. IV. The Scope.

The Prophets Scope intended in this Psalm is the same in part which is intended in Psal. 57. and 60. viz.

viz. 1. To praiſe the LORD for his great mercy to him, againſt the Edomites in the valley of Salt: 2. As alſo to pray unto him, and profeſs his confidence in him, for the more compleat perfecting and improving of received mercies.

Sect. V. The Analyſis, or Principal Parts.

The Title repreſents to us, 1. The Denomination: 2. The Penman, of this Pſalme.

In the Subſtance of the Pſalme, note

I. Davids Provocation of himſelf unto Praiſe and thankfulneſs to the LORD for Mercies received when he fled from Saul in the Cave, Pſal. 57. tit. with 2 Sam. 24. 1. &c. Herein are, 1. The Nature and Manner of his thankfulneſs, whereunto he incites himſelf, viz. (1) With his heart firmely-prepared, (2) With his Glory, his tongue, awakened, ver. 1. (3) With his Muſical Inſtruments awakened. (4) With his whole ſelf awakened at day dawning, or awakening (i. e. preventing) the-day-dawning, v. 2. 2. The Extent of this his thankfulneſs, even to Jewes and Gentiles, v. 3. 3. The ſpecial Perfections and Acts of God, which he will peculiarly praiſe, viz. His loving-kindneſs and truth: both amplified elegantly by their Greatneſs, ver. 4. All which he cloſeth up with an earneſt requeſt that God would, in behalf of David againſt his Enemies, exalt himſelf and his Glory above Heaven and Earth, ver. 9.

II. Davids Prayer for Gods Aſſiſtance, Deliverance, and Salvation by his right-hand, and by anſwering him. This is earneſtly preſſed by ſtrong Arguments, drawn from

1. Gods dear affection to him and his people, his beloved, v. 6.

2. Gods faithful Promiſe, confirmed by his inviolable Oath, touching the certainty and ſtability of Davids Kingdom, &c. For brevity ſake, ſee the reſt of the Analyſis of Pſal. 60. from ver. 6. to the end, and apply it here. The Matter being the ſame.

Sect. III. The Kind, Penman, and Occasion,

This Psalme, as to the Kind of it, is a Prayer; A Prophetical Prayer c. ful of most dreadful Thunderbolts of Curses against, not only the Psalmists bitter, lying, slandering enemies, but also against the enemies of Christ and his Mystical Body and Members.

Penman of this Psalme, was David, as the Title expresseth.
